10. The Indian side recalled that they had proposed a list in 1983 for visits by Indian pilgrims which contained the names of the following shrines:
   i) Sadhu Bela, Khanpur and Mirpur Mathelo (Sukkur)
   ii) Maheshpanthi Shrines (Sind)
   iii) Hazratdata Ganj Buksh (Lahore)
   iv) Dev Samaj Temple (Lahore)
   v) Hazrat Bari Imam (Islamabad)
   vi) Prahaladpuri temple (Multan)
   vii) Pir Giarwienwala Shrine (Multan) viii) Nirankari Shrine (Islamabad) ix) Sakhi Sarwar Shrine (D.G. Khan)
   x) Parnami Shrines(Sahiwal) xi) Ahmediya Shrines at Rabwa (Jhung) xii) Darbar of Shahanshah Godriwala in village Garh (Gujrat) xiii) Mata Hinglaj’s Shrine (Baluchistan).

11. If due to any reason, it was not possible to agree to open all the above places, the Indian side suggested that at least the following five shrines may be opened in the first instance for Indian pilgrims:
   i) Sadhu Bela (Sukkur)
   ii) Maheshpanthi Shrines (Sind)
   iii) Prahaladpuri Temple (Multan)
   iv) Darbar of Shahanshah Godriwala in Village Garh (Gujrat)
   v) Mata Hinglaj’s Shrine (Baluchistan).

The Pakistan side agreed to open Sadhu Bela Temple to the pilgrims visiting Hyat Pitafey. The visit will be for one day. The Pakistan side will also consider the question of opening other shrines. However, it was pointed out that there is no shrine in Rabwah and that the shrines mentioned at serial (xii) in para 10 is a Muslim shrine.

14. Indian side proposed that Pakistan side may suggest some other station in place of Hyderabad. Indian side will indicate the three places required for the IAC staff posted in Pakistan after consultation with the relevant agencies.

Islamabad, July 18, 1989.

Remarks by Sahabzada Yaqub Khan:

Excellency Mr. Narasimha Rao,

Ladies and Gentlemen.

It is both a pleasure and an honour for me to welcome Your Excellency to Pakistan for the Third Meeting of the Indo-Pakistan Joint Commission. I should also like to extend a warm welcome to members of the Indian delegation. We are very happy to have you in Islamabad.

Excellency,

The discussions between our two Prime Minister last December in Islamabad laid the groundwork for a new and promising start in improving our relations. Both leaders stressed the need to revitalize the process of normalization of relations. We agreed to resume various high-level bilateral meetings. We also decided to convene the indo-Pakistan Joint Commission which had not met since 1985.

Our meeting is most timely. The recent official visit by His Excellency Mr. Rajiv Gandhi has imparted a fresh stimulus for a forward movement on a broad agenda. Both sides have demonstrated a willingness to address outstanding differences and seek agreements based on equity and mutual benefit.

Since the beginning of this year a number of important bilateral meetings have taken place. This indicates a common desire to work towards improving relations between our two countries. Over the past six months bilateral discussions on a wide range of issues have yielded hopeful possibilities.

Excellency.

We attach great importance to the work of the Joint Commission. The purpose assigned to the Joint Commission at its establishment in 1983 was to strengthen mutual understanding and promote cooperation in diverse fields. Despite its short existence, a wide network for initiatives and joint actions in different spheres of activity has been created.

We have agreed to cooperate in the fields of agriculture, communications, railways, shipping and science & technology. There has been steady growth in bilateral trade. Following the ratification of the Cultural Cooperation Agreement, a Cultural Protocol will be signed for the next three years. Exchanges in the fields of art, culture, education, sports and media are being expanded.

These agreed areas of cooperation are evidence of our determination to benefit from each other's experience, knowledge and skills. These are small steps. But they pave the way for initiating further activities to improve mutual cooperation and understanding between our two countries.

Excellency,

Bilateral cooperation can only flourish in an environment of peace and stability. It is to this end that we seek good neighbourly, cooperative and tension-free relations with India on the basis of sovereign equality and mutual benefit. We seek to resolve our outstanding differences on a step by step basis as envisaged in the Simla Agreement in order to build a durable relationship.

Regrettably there are several issues which continue to divide us. We must have a better understanding of each other's perspectives in order to resolve those problems expeditiously.

We seek ways to dispel rather than to live with the dark clouds of mistrust and suspicion. We must remove the risks of misperception and move forward with confidence and trust.

Excellency,

Conflict and confrontation are being replaced by peace and cooperation in many parts of the world. There has been a dramatic reversal of the perception that political problems can be resolved through the use of military force.

A wave of peace is moving across the globe. A decade marked by strife and turmoil is ending. Let us endeavour to strive our peace in our region.

Excellency,

In many areas we face common problems. We have a shared interest in improving the living conditions of our peoples. Together we must make a constructive contribution to the realization of the economic and social aspirations of the people in our two countries.

Excellency,

This meeting of the Joint Commission provides an opportunity to give substance to bilateral cooperation in a concrete form and on a broad front. The new programmes and proposals we will consider and adopt at this meeting will further consolidate our relationship.

Our cooperative efforts should respond to the expectations of our people, who aspire for harmonious and mutually beneficial ties. The task before us is challenging. But with goodwill and sincerity on both sides, our deliberations will produce substantive results and, I am confident, will give a new impetus to the advancement of bilateral cooperation.

Statement by P. V. Narasimha Rao:

Your Excellency, Foreign Minister Sahabzada Yaqub Khan,

Ladies and Gentlemen

2. I would at the outset like to thank you and through you the Government of Pakistan for the gracious hospitality which has been extended to the members of my delegation and myself as well as for the warm words of welcome. The basic oneness and empathy of our peoples together with the traditional Pakistani courtesy and warmth of which we are always the recipients made Pakistan for us a home away from home. Having so much in common there is no reason why we should not given the favourable prevailing political climate draw upon this shared heritage of language, culture and history to forge closer links in all fields in the mutual interest and for the benefit of our teeming millions.

3. Before proceeding any further permit me, Excellency, to introduce the members of my delegation.

4. The third meeting of the India-Pakistan Joint Commission is taking place in the background of a particularly favourable climate in India-Pakistan relations. It is quite evident that the tenor of India-Pakistan relations underwent a marked improvement with the meeting between our two Prime ministers in December 1988. Their subsequent meetings both in Paris and now again in Islamabad will further serve to accelerate the normalization process between our two countries in accordance with the Simla Agreement. This will not only benefit the peoples of our two countries but will also provide peoples of our two countries but will also promote peace and stability in our region.

5. We also meet Excellency at a time of momentous changes in the international environment with confrontation giving way to dialogue on a wide range of issues. Old rigidities are being influenced by new thinking and frozen attitudes on many hitherto intractable problems are under attack. However, the new détente that is taking place has unfortunately tended to leave out the world economic problems from its purview, perhaps deliberately. The external debt problem, adverse balance of trade, protectionism, issues like intellectual property rights, trade in services, rules and regulations governing international investment, are all being utilized to perpetuate the dominance of the developed countries, and the technological backwardness of the developing.
6. In this background there is need for greater coordination among like-minded developing countries. We would also need to develop our bargaining position by expanding markets among ourselves, attain higher rates or growth and generate technology. It is, therefore, only appropriate that during the recently held meeting between the Foreign Secretaries of India & Pakistan there was agreement to consult and coordinate our positions on international economic issues. This is an area in which meaningful cooperation between India and Pakistan would not only help the two countries but would also enormously benefit the entire developing world.

7. I am happy to note that in the purely bilateral content and in keeping with the mandate from our two leaders we have in the first half of 1989 had a series of India-Pakistan meetings. These have covered almost the entire range of India-Pakistan relations and have been productive in enlarging areas of cooperation or at least in narrowing down differences on the more intractable issues. Particularly significant have been the meetings between the Water Resources Secretaries, the Home Secretaries, the railway and aviation officials, the Defence Secretaries and the Foreign Secretaries of our two countries. These have succeeded in strengthening infrastructural linkages and setting up institutional arrangements to deal with cross border crimes including inter alia drug trafficking, smuggling and the movement of fugitives from law. We are both committed to a comprehensive and peacefully negotiated settlement of the Siachen issue in accordance with the Simla Agreement and are well on the way to putting behind us this problem which has for some time bedeviled our relationship. I welcome the understanding arrived at during the Foreign secretaries’ meeting to coordinate with each other for various candidatures in international bodies as well as to hold suitable follow up meetings to sort out a variety of issues in the bilateral context.

8. The present meeting of the Joint Commission is taking place after an unforeseen gap of four years. I do not want to go into the reasons for this delay or the factors that had vitiated the atmosphere resulting in this delay. When the Joint Commission had been set up in 1983, the idea was to provide an institutional framework for fostering growing contacts and cooperation between our two countries and peoples in various areas of mutual interest and benefit. Through this mechanism we have achieved some, even though modest, progress. We were able to develop a Cultural Cooperation Agreement which was signed in December 1988 and the Cultural Exchange Programme should be ready during our present meeting. Infrastructural links particularly in the field of communications have been steadily strengthened.

9. In other areas, progress has been slow, perhaps due to a desire to be cautious and not do, or be seen to be doing, too much too soon. However, given the mandate of our two Prime Ministers and the desire of our two peoples, I submit that now is a time for boldness and not hesitation.

10. Given the felt needs of the peoples in our two countries, therefore, there is a lot more that needs to be done. The various agreements and protocols that we sign should be implemented fully and meaningfully. On trade, we continue to give Pakistan MFN status and we hope you will be able to extend similar facility to us before long. We were particularly surprised that, in contrast to the developments in other areas, Pakistan has singled out India as the only country to which it will not provide GSTP facilities. Industrial cooperation between our two countries including in third country projects should be encouraged. Our efforts to bring about a more relaxed travel and visa regime will be welcomed by large sections of our peoples.

11. There is a much greater convergence of thinking in the two countries on measures to increase people to people contacts which, provides to surest foundation for friendly and cooperative ties between India and Pakistan over the long haul. I therefore look forward with anticipation to the possibility of this session of the Joint Commission making a breakthrough in devising significant steps for increased exchanges between the two countries in education, culture, the media and in the economic and commercial sectors.

12. I would like to assure you that our approach is positive and any new ideas or proposals that you may have will receive our most constructive consideration. Our objective is to increase contacts and cooperation where they exist and to explore new avenues for meaningful and mutually beneficial interaction.

13. The Government and people of India sincerely desire cordial, cooperative and good neighbourly relations with the Government and people of Pakistan devoid of past suspicions, mistrust and recrimination. Any adverse propaganda distortions in publications and books should not only be consciously corrected but an effort made to project each other objectively and without bias. This would help to create positivity in India-Pakistan relations.

14. In conclusion, Excellency, I would be remiss if I failed to mention our good fortune in having you here as Co-Chairman to guide our deliberations. Your innate abilities, vast experience and Rampur charm will, I am confident, help make this meeting memorable and successful.

Islamabad, April 3, 1996.

Pakistan is ready to offer the Most Favoured Nation (MFN) status to India provided New Delhi removes non-tariff barriers to start meaningful trade between the two countries, said Federal Commerce Minister Ahmed Mukhtar in an interview with KHALEEJ TIMES.

He said: “I favour trade with India and if that is done I do not believe Pakistan will have any disadvantage."

He said although India has already given the MFN status to Pakistan there are certain hurdles due to which Islamabad cannot reciprocate. One of the reasons is that Indians are still hesitant to remove non-tariff barriers, he added.

“We have also asked the Indians to open their borders so that two-way trade could be made viable and profitable,” Mr. Mukhtar said, hoping that the Indian government would look into the issue and remove hurdles due to which both countries cannot benefit from each other.

Citing an example, he said that ever since Bangladesh accorded the MFN status to India its exports to New Delhi remained static at $600 million while its imports from India went up to $2.2 billion. This, he pointed out, is happening as the Indians are not ready to open their borders to provide free access to Bangladeshi traders so that they can receive goods on time and relatively on cheaper prices.

“What is happening today is that we have to first send our goods to Karachi for onward shipment to India, but if there are no border restrictions we can send these goods from Lahore to New Delhi which will save a lot of time and money, “he said, adding “the Indian government should open up border as early as possible so that the traders community of both countries could immensely benefit from each other”.

“Who does not know that India and Pakistan spend a lot of additional foreign exchange on importing things from other places and if they could get these things from each other, they would be doing a great service to their own peoples, “he said.

He did not believe that India would give a tough time to Pakistan in trade. “We are ahead of India in producing and exporting leather and India is just earning 5 to 10 per cent more in the textile sector”. He said: “Pakistan would be much more comfortable if trade with India is started on a large scale.”

“In addition, India has not been able to compete with us in textiles. We have 10 to 12 million of cotton bales annually while India has about 13 million bales despite being so large. The people should have no fears in having trade with India, “he added.

It may be recalled that on January 11, 1996 a Spokesman of the Pakistan Foreign Office had said “MFN status will not be granted to India unless the latter stops giving subsidies to the manufacturers and exporters and Pakistan’s business community is prepared to compete with Indian products so that a level playing field is available.” He said on the MFN status “our policy is quite clear: we will honour all commitments under the WTO agreement. Pakistan is committed to discussing trade matters with India and other WTO members”.

2712. Joint Press Statement issued at the end of the discussions between India and Pakistan on matters relating to Economic and Commercial Cooperation.

New Delhi, November 10, 1998.

As part of the composite and integrated dialogue process between India and Pakistan on the basis of the agreed agenda of June 23, 1997, discussions were held on economic and commercial cooperation in Delhi on November 10, 1998. The Indian delegation at these discussions was led by Commerce Secretary, Shri P.P. Prabhu, and the Pakistan delegation by Commerce Secretary, Mr. Mohammed Suleiman.

Mr. Mohammad Suleiman will call on Commerce Minister, Shri R.K. Hegde at 1600 hrs. today.

The discussions were held in a frank and cordial atmosphere.

They exchanged views on various aspects of Economic and Commercial cooperation and decided to continue discussions at the next round of the dialogue process.

The Associated Press of Pakistan quoting the Indian Commerce Secretary from New Delhi said that the he had pushed Pakistan to reciprocate the most-favoured-nation (MFN) treatment that New Delhi has extended to Islamabad for many years.

"The Pakistan side conveyed that this would be done in due course," he said, adding the issue would be further discussed at a South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation (SAARC) meeting later that month. However, a Pakistani Foreign Ministry Official told reporter in Islamabad that there was need to extend MFN to India. While stressing the “unlimited possibilities” for cooperation, the official indicated trade ties could not be developed in the present climate. “An environment of peace and security is absolutely essential for a free flow of trade and to build confidence among businesses of the two countries,” he said.

The same APP report said that the two parties during their Delhi talks discussed questions of cooperation in the power, telecommunications and railway sectors, but very little progress was apparently made, besides commitments to keep talking. India wants to buy power from Pakistan on a long-term basis to bridge the demand-supply gap of about 3,000 megawatts in northern India. The report quoting an Indian source said Pakistan had made an initial offer of 650 megawatts on the table, but added that no concrete agreement had been reached.

Media reports said that India-Pakistan bilateral trade was worth Rs. 6.8 billion in the year to March 1998 way below the figure for unofficial trade — including smuggling and re-export through third countries-which was estimated at up to $1.5 billion. It said the potential for trade was enormous, but it was stymied by tariff differences and a Pakistan restriction on Indian imports to a list of 600 items. The situation was also preventing the growth of freer trade within SAARC. In particular, their differences on tariffs have stalled efforts for a South Asian Preferential Trade Agreement. For Pakistan, whose economy was far more vulnerable than India’s, there was a feeling that liberalizing trade with it would result in its market being swamped by Indian goods. The current talks in New Delhi mark the second round of discussions since India and Pakistan resumed their broad bilateral dialogue in Islamabad last month after a one-year gap.

New Delhi, November 20, 1998.

During the recent bilateral meetings on Economic & Commercial Co-operation and Friendly Exchanges in Various Fields, held as a part of the composite dialogue process, it was agreed that technical level discussions will be held between India and Pakistan on the sale of Power by Pakistan to India and to finalise an Agreement as also commercial and operational details for the Delhi-Lahore Lahore-Delhi Bus Service. It has now been decided that Indian delegations will visit Pakistan from 24th to 27th November 1998 for discussions on the Bus Service.

Islamabad, November 26, 1998.

Government of Pakistan indicated availability of surplus power up to 2000 MW which could be exported to India at least till the year 2010 and possibly even beyond. The transfer of this power would require detailed system studies and setting up of a large transmission network. It was thus felt that initial study should be restricted to establish interconnection facilities which can be executed in the shortest time.

2. It was felt that a beginning could be made by initiating power exchange at 220 KV level by connecting sources of power in Pakistan with Northern Regional Grid in India in the short term.

3. In the above context, the following options were discussed:-

(a) Connecting load in Northern or Western Grid of India with Pakistan in a radial mode. It was felt that this option needs to be studied in detail.

(b) By radial interconnection of grid stations located in Pakistan to Indian Grid. A total of 400 to 500 MW of power would be transmitted through this mode.

The following proposal was discussed in this regard:-

(i) Pakistan would supply 400-500 MW of power from one of the bus sections of 220 KV Sarfraz Nagar (Dinanath) grid station or any other grid station near Lahore which would be dedicated to the Indian System.

(ii) For absorbing 400-500MW of power one double circuit twin bundled 220 KV transmission line would be constructed from Sarfraz Nagar (Dinanath) to the nearest point on Pak-India border. Within the Indian territory, one 220 KV double circuit twin bundled line would be constructed up to Ferozepur/Amritsar or two 220 KV double circuit lines would be constructed from the border to Ferozepur and Amritsar.

(iii) The 220 KV buses at Sarfraz Nagar (Dinanath) (or any other grid station around Lahore) could be sectionalized and the transmission line to India could be connected to one of the two sections. The arrangements at Sarfraz Nagar (Dinanath) grid station (or any other grid station around Lahore) and 220 KV lines up to the border would be built by Pakistani side and the lines from the border to Indian grid station (s) would be constructed by Indian side.
4. Alternatives in addition to the specific proposal under Para 3 (b) (i) – (iii) to supply 400-500 MW from Lahore or any other area to the Indian Grid by isolating the Pakistani and/or the Indian Grid may also be studied by mutual exchange of data/information to finalize proposal(s) for implementation at an early date.

5. The transmission line could be constructed in about six months time from the data of commercial agreement between GOP and GOI. In the meantime, both the countries would consider initiating engineering activities for implementation of the above proposal. The tentative schedule for implementation of the proposed engineering activities, which can start after an in-principle agreement, is annexed.

6. Export of bulk power in the long term was also discussed and the points of interconnection in India were suggested as Moga 400KV Grid Station (existing) in Punjab and Sirohi 400 KV Grid Station (proposed) in Rajasthan. Possibility of asynchronous connection through HVDC back to back link would be examined keeping in view the constraints of operating in synchronous option. Possibility of connection through AC link from identified grid Stations in Pakistan to Indian grid could also be considered.

7. It was agreed that the next round of discussions would be held in New Delhi on mutually convenient dates for consideration of an in-principle agreement on the power export possibility identified for the short term and subject to conclusion of such an agreement, commercial discussion could follow.

8. It was agreed that Mr. Aurangzeb Akbar, Deputy Secretary, Ministry of Water and Power, Islamabad from Pakistan and Mr. S.K. Jayaswal, Deputy Secretary from Indian side will be the nodal point for exchange of technical information/data required by both sides.

2715. Joint Press Statement issued at the end of the discussions between India and Pakistan on the question of sale of Power to India.

Islamabad, November 26, 1998.

Technical-level discussions were held between Pakistan and India, on the issue of Export of Power to India, in Islamabad on November 25-26, 1998. The Indian delegation was led by Shri Pradip Baijal, Special Secretary, Ministry of Power, Government of India and Pakistan delegation by Engr. Syed Ibrahim Shah, Senior Joint Secretary, Ministry of Water and Power, Government of Pakistan.

2. The Indian delegation called on HE Gohar Ayub Khan, Minister of Water and Power, Government of Pakistan on November 25.

3. In the course of discussions, the Pakistan delegation indicated availability of surplus power up to 2000 MW which could be exported to India at least till the year 2010 and possibly even beyond. Since transfer of this power would require detailed system studies and setting up of a large transmission network, it was felt that initially study should be restricted to establish interconnection facilities which can be executed in the short term to transmit 400-500 MW power to India. Possible technical alternatives were examined.

4. It was assessed that the transmission lines for the purpose, on the Indian and Pakistani sides could be constructed in about six months from the date of commercial agreement between GOP and GOI.

5. It was agreed that the next round of discussions would be held in New Delhi on mutually convenient dates for consideration of an in-principle agreement on the power export possibility identified for the short term and subject to conclusion of such an agreement, commercial discussions could follow.

6. Export of bulk power in the long term was also discussed and the Indian delegation suggested possible points of interconnection in Northern and Western Regions of India. It was decided that various technical aspects in this regard would be examined.

2718. Inaugural address by External Affairs Minister Yashwant Sinha, at the third meeting of India-Pakistan Chambers of Commerce and Industry.

Dr. A.C. Muthiah, President, FICCI Jenab Ilyas Ahmed Bilour, President, India-Pakistan Chamber of Commerce and Industry Jenab Iftekhar Malik, Immediate Past President, Federation of Pakistan Chambers of Commerce and Industry Jenab Aziz Ahmad Khan, High Commissioner-designate of Pakistan Dr. Amit Mitra, Secretary General of FICCI Ladies and Gentlemen.

A very warm welcome to our friends from Pakistan.

I am happy to have this opportunity to participate in this third meeting of the India-Pakistan Chambers of Commerce and Industry. It is a reminder of the historic initiative that was taken through the Lahore Bus journey of Prime Minister Vajpayee in 1999. The hope for the future that had been rekindled by the Lahore process was quickly seized by your two Chambers to create this common platform for pursuing mutually benefiting endeavours.

The fact that this meeting is taking place today and the overwhelming participation here from both sides are clearly a reflection of the hitherto unfulfilled yearnings of the people of our two countries to find ways to contribute to enhanced trade and economic exchanges, and the resulting employment and income generation benefits for our respective peoples.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Figures show clearly, and they have been mentioned here by speaker after speaker, that we have not fully exploited our common potential. Our bilateral trade recorded officially has hovered, over the past several years, in the range of US$ 200-250 million. Our exports to each other constitute a very small proportion of the overall exports of each of our countries, namely, a mere 1%. It is also much lower than India’s trade figures with other countries in the SAARC region. With Bangladesh our total trade is almost US$ 1 billion, with Sri Lanka it was close to US$ 1 billion in 2002, with Nepal it is around US$ 600 million. The level of trade with Pakistan is clearly not natural, since Pakistan’s economy, as has been mentioned, is much bigger, much larger. Let us not forget that at the time of independence more than 50% of Pakistan’s exports and 30% of its imports were accounted for by India.

A comparison would be relevant in this regard. The US has strong trade relations with its neighbours Canada and Mexico. In both these cases, although US is the stronger economy, trade balances are in favour of Canada and Mexico.
Apprehensions, therefore, that the larger economy will inevitably swamp the smaller neighbouring economies are not borne out by reality. Balance of trade is a reflection of complementarities in the economies. The challenge is to exploit the potential that exists to mutual benefit. With Nepal, for example, India generally imports more than it exports.

I would like to compliment FICCI for its excellent "Status Paper on India-Pakistan economic relations". It has shown that with a normal traderelationship, our trade will easily reach the level of US$ 3-4 billion, and Dr. Muthiah just mentioned that it could even reach $6-8 billion. You can visualise the impact that this will have on employment and incomes in both our countries. There would also be the resulting need for further investments in communications and infrastructure to support this, a point which has been made here, which would have its own spin-off benefits. Government revenues would benefit from the tax incomes generated and business persons of Pakistan would also benefit from the more than one billion strong Indian market, with a middle class of over 300 million people with increasing purchasing power, which is much larger than the total population of many industrialised countries. Normal trade relations will therefore expand the potential for foreign direct investment in Pakistan considerably.

The FICCI study that I just referred to points out that many of Pakistan's exports would benefit and become even more competitive, a point which has been made by both sides, through cheaper raw material and intermediate inputs from India. This would apply to the plastics, leather and textile industry. The Pakistani domestic and industrial consumer would also benefit from lower prices in several sectors including engineering industry and transport equipment.

Goods from other neighbourhood economies with whom Pakistan has normal trade relations have not swamped Pakistani markets. For example, out of US$ 1.8 billion worth of trade with China in 2002, Pakistan's exports are quite substantial and to the tune of US$ 750 million. There is no need therefore to harbour any special fears about India. The wide range of products of potential trade such as chemicals, industrial machinery, cement, tyres, tea, pharmaceuticals, etc. clearly show the complementarities that exist between our two economies.

Bilateral trade between India and other SAARC countries has not been to the disadvantage of the other SAARC countries nor has it been to the sole advantage of India. For example, there has been a remarkable increase in the level of trade with Sri Lanka, and this is a point I would like to particularly emphasise, following the Free Trade Agreement signed in 2001. In 2002 alone, exports of Sri Lanka to India grew by around 137%. Consequently, we have now created a Joint Study Group which is studying how to take us into the next generation of economic partnership with a focus on trade in services and investments in each other’s countries. Similarly, we also hope to commence negotiations on a Free Trade Agreement with Bangladesh before the end of this year. Let me assure you that we in India have no intention to overwhelm Pakistan’s economy through trade. Our aim is only to have a normal trade relationship, and promote trade in a manner that people of both countries benefit.

Friends, it is also unfortunate that not enough progress has been made in SAFTA and SAPTA so far. SAARC came into being in 1985. Almost 18 years later, very little progress has been made with regard to its primary objective of economic cooperation. After eight years and four rounds of SAPTA negotiations, intra-SAARC trade forms only 4% of the total trade of South Asia. The number of products on which Preferential Tariffs have been exchanged with Pakistan is in particular, minimal.

As early as 1997, there was also a decision at the summit level to have a South Asian Free Trade Area by the year 2000. However, till the beginning of 2002, only one meeting had taken place, and efforts continue to be made to delay this process. We are now in the second half of 2003, and not a single meeting has taken place this year on SAFTA despite the Kathmandu Summit mandate for a speedy conclusion of the talks to finalise the Framework Treaty. I know that your group needs no convincing of the immense benefits that would accrue from such an arrangement.

In fact, I believe that along with a free trade arrangement for goods and merchandise, we should also have free flow of investment and services within the SAARC area. We are also prepared to work for reasonable levels of uniform value addition norms for all countries in South Asia, and for harmonisation of tariff regime.

In a globalizing world, regional trade is increasingly seen as a protective measure against external shocks. According to some estimates, intra-regional trade between ASEAN countries is over 40 per cent of its total trade. The European Union too trades over 65 per cent within itself. And these figures have been achieved because both ASEAN and the EU have not allowed political differences amongst member countries to hamper trade within the region.

There is much that we can achieve together. Our representatives have worked successfully and productively in international fora including the WTO, and on discussions in UN fora on issues of poverty alleviation, access to better healthcare, ensuring education for all, and solutions to problems of environmental degradation.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

India is today one of the fastest growing economies of the world, ranking fourth in terms of purchasing power parity. India remained relatively unscathed from the 1997-98 Asian financial crisis and maintained a healthy growth rate despite recession in major world economies over the past several years. We have built external foreign exchange balances of around US$ 82 billion. From a food grains importing country, we are net exporter of good grains today. Our rate of inflation has also been well under control over the last five years. A Morgan Stanley Dean Witter report felt that were it not for the resilience of China and India, the world economy would have been in deep recession in 2002.

We are proud of our achievements and confident of the future. At the same time, we are also clear that if we want to secure this future, our neighbours must become full partners in this endeavour and make equal if not more economic progress. We wish to celebrate together as we purposefully move forward. It is for this reason I recently suggested that even as we implement fully the SAARC Charter, we should also start thinking of a South Asian Union.
If other regions could achieve this kind of Union, despite political, social and economic differences, there is no reason why we should deprive our people of this opportunity. I repeat this here today to show India’s commitment to the concept of a South Asian Union. We are prepared to enter into discussions on this issue from tomorrow, if other countries of the region are willing.

My intention is not in any way to wish away or to underplay the differences that exist between us. We must, at the same time, exploit the potential for cooperation that exists. I am confident that this would increase the political and economic space to create and exploit additional areas of cooperation and deal with differences. This is the approach that we have successfully adopted and productively followed in our relations with others.

Friends, the challenge faced by India and Pakistan is whether we can truly live together as good neighbours. Till now, we have witnessed the simple logic of mutual economic benefits being overwhelmed by political and other differences between our two countries. I believe that the time has come for us to reverse this trend and for economics to attain a dominant role in our bilateral interaction.
It is businessmen such as you and Chambers of Commerce and Industry of the two countries who can play a critical role in this regard.

In conclusion, the most important objective that India seeks to achieve in the next decade or so is to completely banish poverty from our land and to provide our people with a better quality of life. This objective would naturally benefit from peaceful and cooperative relations in the region and the rest of the world.
We intend to continue to pursue the twin objectives of peace and economic progress with determination.

I would like to once again thank the Federation of Indian and Pakistani Chambers of Commerce and Industry for the initiative they have taken to convene this meeting and for this very important contribution to the improvement in relations between our two countries.

I wish you success in your deliberations. I would also urge you to work out specific joint recommendations to both Governments for taking the trade and economic relationship significantly forward.

Let me assure you that the Government of India would not be found wanting in implementing these joint recommendations.

Thank you very much.

New Delhi, September 14, 2003.

Shri Anand G. Mahindra, President, CII
Jenab Amin Hashwani, Co-Chairman, India-Pakistan CEOs Forum
Shri Suketu Shah, Leader, India-Pakistan YPO Peace Initiative
His Excellency, Jenab Aziz Ahmed Khan, High Commissioner of Pakistan

Friends,

I am happy to have this opportunity to launch the India-Pakistan CEO’s Business Forum in New Delhi today. I compliment the CII on taking this step in furtherance of Prime Minister’s initiative to expand economic cooperation and people-to-people contacts with Pakistan. The invitation to businessmen of both countries to interact in such a forum would help in focussing on the challenges as well as the opportunities not just in Indo-Pak trade and economic relations but also the larger relationship and the global context. It will also be useful for finding new approaches for the future and discovering complementarities between our two economies.

Friends, a most of you are aware there has been a significant change in India-Pakistan relations since Prime Minister Vajpayee extended his hand of friendship to Pakistan once again on April 18, 2003 and Prime Minister Jamali spoke to him on phone on April 28. A number of important steps have been taken to advance people-to-people contacts. The Delhi-Lahore Bus service has resumed. There is now a regular flow of people across the Wagah border. I am particularly happy that all of you have come through Wagah border.

Some of the important developments since April, include:

- Exchange of Parliamentary delegations
- Visit of a 120-member business delegation from the Federation of Pakistan Chambers of Commerce and Industry.
- Fashion show in Karachi by some leading Indian fashion designers, and a similar reciprocal event in Delhi.
- Visit by a 60-member delegation of journalists and MPs from India to Pakistan.
- Mutual release of civilian prisoners and fishermen.
- A decision to facilitate the visa requirement of Pakistani children coming to India for medical treatment and to fully fund the travel, stay and medical treatment of 20 Pakistani children taking into account the popular response to the Noor Fatima case.
- Resumption of sporting ties.
- Staging of a Pakistani play “Ek Thi Nani” In India.
- Innovative new ways to expand trade and economic cooperation including through the establishment of this Forum.

As is obvious, a great deal of progress has been made. Unfortunately, there are also areas where we have not been able to move forward. For example, the first round of Civil Aviation talks have not proved as productive as we would have liked them to be. A Tea Trade delegation and a team of jurists from India were denied visas to go to Pakistan for reasons which remain a mystery to us. We, however, do not intend to allow these setbacks to cool our enthusiasm in any manner. We are committed to persevering with the process of normalizing the relationship.

The need for greater economic interaction between India and Pakistan is a self-evident reality. Facts and figures of India-Pakistan trade speak out loud in this regard. According to official figures, trade between Pakistan and India is currently of the order of US $ 200-250 Million. This miniscule and unnatural figure is about a quarter or so of trade between India and other countries of the sub-continent like Bangladesh and Sri Lanka. In fact, estimates of actual trade, taking into account trade through third countries, is around US $ 2 Billion. But, even that is only a glimpse of the potential that exists.

If US$ 2 billion worth of goods are traded at a time when politics has been working against trade, what would be the picture when politics and trade become aligned? Moreover, enhanced trade would lead to increase in investments in communications and infrastructure. It would attract large investments from outside to both our countries. There would also be a whole range of other spin-off benefits, such as, increased revenues generated from taxes, increased employment and higher incomes. May I also mention that reports prepared by our Chambers of Commerce indicate that normal trade between our two countries would benefit in particular, Pakistan’s exports which would become more competitive due to cheaper raw material and inputs from India.

One of the businessmen who was part of the Federation of Pakistan Chambers of Commerce and Industry delegation told me that in the absence of direct trade, he had no option but to purchase textile machinery manufactured in India from Dubai. This is an unfortunate situation. We should ask ourselves who is benefiting from this absence of direct trade between India and Pakistan. Why are we denying ourselves the benefits of trading with each other? What are the elements which are preventing such commerce and how can we change them?

Friends, despite the ups and downs in India-Pakistan relations, India has continued to extend the Most Favoured Nation treatment to Pakistan. India seeks normal trade relations with Pakistan. We would like to promote trade in a manner that people of both countries benefit. It is for this reason that we have supported CII’s efforts to organize a ‘Made in Pakistan’ products exhibition in India. There is a perception that India maintains certain non-tariff barriers. Let me declare in unambiguous terms that if there are any Pakistan specific restrictions, the Government of India will strive for their removal. Naturally, it is our hope that Pakistan, will also sooner rather than later, give India the Most Favoured Nation treatment and remove all non-tariff barriers.

Along with steps such as the above, we should sincerely work towards more effective arrangements under SAARC. Progress towards SAFTA is an urgent requirement. Friends, I have in recent days spoken of India’s willingness to move towards a South Asian Union. I hope this goal will materialize some day. I dream of the day when South Asia, through mutual agreement, creates one currency, one tariff regime and agrees to free movement of goods, services and people throughout the region.

We, in India and Pakistan, have allowed our differences to overwhelm our commonalities so far. We have failed to provide adequate space for our natural complementarities to assert themselves. India’s commitment to the building, through dialogue, of a relationship of durable peace, stability and cooperation was underlined by our Prime Minister when he recorded at the Minar-e-Pakistan in February, 1999 that a ‘stable, secure and prosperous Pakistan is in India’s interest’. As neighbours, we cannot wish each other away. We need to learn to deal with each other as two mature nations and accept each other’s reality. I am aware that there are many voices in Pakistan which echo similar sentiments towards India. It is our hope that these sentiments can slowly but steadily drown the shrill cries of hostility between us.

The people-to-people contacts which have been initiated since the Prime Minister’s Srinagar initiative reveal the extraordinary amount of goodwill that exist in both countries for each other, particularly at the common man’s level. There are strong peace constituencies in both countries and CEOs such as you gathered here, are important leaders of such peace constituencies. I believe that these peace constituencies should be encouraged and strengthened by the Governments of both countries.

Friends, I am often asked the question if India’s foreign policy is Pakistan centric. I have responded to this several times in the past and do so again today. There is a wide world out there with whom India is seeking to build good relations. In the best traditions of Indian foreign policy, we strive to strengthen relations with all countries of the world. We would like to see close economic, political, social and people-to-people linkages with all countries. India, therefore, has no intention or desire to be Pakistan centric in our policies. At the same time, we hope that Pakistan will also succeed in shedding its obsession with India. For example, the practice of turning every international and multilateral forum into a battleground to attack each other should end.

While our respective domestic media exult in the coverage of such verbal duels, the sad reality is that they lower the standard of debate of the entire forum in which they take place and are a major source of embarrassment to all those forced to witness this unseemly spectacle. Let us put an end to this practice. The forthcoming UNGA will be a test of this.

I would like to thank the Confederation of Indian Industry in cooperation with Young President’s Organization for the initiative they have taken to launch the India-Pakistan CEO’s Forum today. I am convinced that this Forum will make an important contribution to improvement in relations between our two countries. I welcome the initiative to organize an exhibition of Pakistani products in India and the setting up of the India-Pak trade website. These measures, I am sure, will open up new windows of opportunity for interaction between our peoples and it is through such interaction that we are going to ultimately succeed in transforming the relations between our two countries.

I wish you all success in your deliberations and hope you will have a pleasant and enjoyable stay in India.

Thank you
Joint Statement issued at the end of India – Pakistan talks on Economic and Commercial Cooperation.

As part of the Composite Dialogue between Pakistan and India, discussions were held on Economic and Commercial Cooperation in Islamabad on 11 – 12 August, 2004. The Pakistani delegation was led by Commerce Secretary, Mr. Tasneem Noorani while the Indian delegation at these discussions was led by Commerce Secretary Mr. Dipak Chatterji.

Mr. Chatterji called on Commerce Minister, Mr. Humayun Akhtar Khan. The discussions were held in frank and cordial atmosphere.

Wide ranging proposals were made on various aspects of Economic and Commercial Cooperation. These would be considered further.

Pakistani sources pointed out after the talks that the Indian delegation had asked for MFN status at the talks but Pakistan linked it with the start of a sustainable political dialogue to resolve all outstanding issues between the two countries. Pakistan also raised the issue of access of its products to the India market. Talking to newsmen, Mr. Tasneem said: “It was first time interaction with India on trade and it was going on in a positive direction.” He said during the talks Pakistan raised the issue of both non-tariff and tariff barriers while India showed its areas of interest in trade with Pakistan. Asked whether India raised the issue of seeking Most Favoured Nation (MFN) status. Mr. Tasneem said all the issues, including this one, came under discussion and they were reviewing the legality of the issue. The Indian Commerce Secretary said both sides exchanged views on enhancing the volume of trade between the two countries. He said India sought the MFN status from Pakistan so that the volume of trade could be enhanced between the two neighbouring countries.

Media reports said that Pakistan had communicated to India that under the present circumstances when Indians enjoyed protection from their government, it would be difficult for Pakistan to give them MFN status. These reports pointed out that for Pakistan to consider MFN status for India, New Delhi had to eliminate the subsides, lower the tariff rates and remove the non-tariff barriers so that Pakistani products could also avail level-playing field in the India markets. India also reportedly raised the issue of transit facility to trade via the Wagah border to Afghanistan. While the Commerce Secretary linked the issue of MFN to economic factors, the Pakistani Commerce Minister Humayun Akhtar Khan linked it to the sustainable political dialogue between Islamabad and New Delhi. “Pakistan was ready to consider giving MFN status to India if there starts a sustainable political dialogue to resolve all outstanding issues between the two countries,” Mr. Khan told MR Deepak Chatterji who had called on him on August 11.

Menon, Commerce Secretary, Government of India and the Pakistani delegation was led by Mr. Tasneem Noorani, Commerce Secretary, Government of Pakistan.

3. The Joint Study Group had detailed discussions on promotion of trade and economic cooperation for the mutual benefit of both countries. The JSG constituted two Working/Sub-Groups on Customs Cooperation & Trade Facilitation and Non-Tariff Barriers (NTBs). The Terms of Reference (TOR) for the Sub-Groups were mutually agreed upon. The two sides identified issues relating to bilateral trade and deliberated upon the future roadmap in order to enhance trade and economic cooperation. It was also decided to hold the Second Meeting of the JSG on mutually agreed dates.

4. The recommendations of the JSG would be submitted to the respective Governments for consideration under the framework of the Composite Dialogue.

New Delhi, August 10, 2005.

The Second Round of India – Pakistan talks on Economic and Commercial Cooperation within the framework of the Composite Dialogue was held here on August 9-10, 2005. The Indian Delegation was led by Commerce Secretary Shri S. N. Menon. The Pakistan delegation was led by the Acting Secretary Ministry of Commerce, Syed Asif Shah.

The discussions were held in a cordial and constructive atmosphere. The two sides recognized the scope for further increase in bilateral trade and discussed further measures to enhance mutually beneficial economic and commercial cooperation.

The two sides agreed on the following:

- Aeronautical talks would be held in Pakistan in September 2005 to review the existing Air Services Agreement.
- Bilateral meeting to review the Shipping Protocol of 1975 would be held in Pakistan in September 2005.
- The Second Meeting of the Joint Study Group (JSG) would be convened at an early date in Islamabad. The JSG meeting would be preceded by the meeting of the Sub-Groups on Non-Tariff Barriers (NTBs) and Customs Cooperation and Trade Facilitation to formulate recommendations for consideration by the JSG.

The two sides recalled the decision taken during the visit of the Prime Minister of Pakistan to India in November 2004 to open branches of scheduled banks in each other’s country and agreed that requests for opening of bank branches in both the countries would be processed expeditiously to facilitate bilateral trade relations.

Both sides also noted the progress achieved in concluding a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) between the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) and Securities and Exchange Commission of Pakistan (SECP) to benefit from each other’s experiences.

Both sides expressed the hope that Fibre Optic link between Amritsar and Lahore would be established and operationalized at the earliest.

1. When the talks began on August 9, the Indian Commerce Secretary in his welcome address said that under the Composite Dialogue, both sides would explore cooperation in the areas of mutual benefit like Civil Aviation, Shipping, Banking, and Petroleum & Natural gas. The exchange of technology and skills between the two countries would help enhance the quality of goods at relatively cheaper prices, he said. He welcomed the move of the Government of Pakistan to open the Wagah- Attari Land Route. “The Wagah- Attari LCS was notified by India in 1994 on the permanent basis for movement of goods by road and rail. We hope that Pakistan would consider opening of the same on permanent basis for a larger number of commodities. This has the potential for the creation of jobs by increasing ancillary activities along these routes” he said. During the talks both the sides noted the quantum increase in the volume of trade between the two countries, which has reached the level of US $ 600.77 million in 2004-05.

New Delhi, September 28, 2005.

2. The two sides finalised an agreement on the Lahore-Amritsar bus service. They also discussed the draft agreement / protocol and technical modalities for the Nankana Sahib –Amritsar bus service including issues such as designated routes, bus terminals and facilities for the bus crews. Both sides agreed to hold another round of technical level talks within one month to finalise the arrangements for starting the Nankana Sahib-Amritsar bus service at the earliest possible.

3. A trial run of the Lahore-Amritsar bus service by the operators of the two sides will take place in the second half of October 2005 with a view to starting the regular bus service in the first half of November 2005.

4. The two sides also explored the possibility of travel by pilgrims from both countries to holy shrines in India and Pakistan including Ajmer Sharif.

1. The schedule of October could not be maintained because of earthquake in Pakistan. The trial run from Amritsar to Lahore took place on December 11, when a bus from the Indian part of the Punjab crossed over to the Pakistani side via the Wagah border check post. The bus service is named Punj – Aab (Five Rivers). The Pakistan side conducted its dry run on December 13 when a bus carrying eight officials from Lahore crossed into India through the Attari - Wagah joint check post. The regular bus service which was to start from Lahore on December 23 and from Amritsar on December 27 has been postponed to now start from Lahore on January 20, 2006 and from Amritsar on January 24, 2006.

Islamabad, October 4, 2005.

Foreign Minister Kasuri and I have had two days of friendly, intensive and productive talks on all aspects of our bilateral relations. Yesterday, we conducted a comprehensive review of the second round of the Composite Dialogue. I agreed with Foreign Minister Kasuri that the second round of the Composite Dialogue achieved more positive results than the first round. We can expect an even more successful third round which will take place from January to July 2006.

2. This morning, I met President Musharraf and conveyed to him the greetings of our President and our Prime Minister. We both agreed that India-Pakistan relations had made significant progress since the current peace process began in January 2004. We reaffirmed our commitment not to permit terrorism to impede the peace process.

3. The Joint Commission met this morning after a hiatus of 16 years. We had a very useful discussion on how we could use the Joint Commission to further expand our bilateral cooperation. We have presented draft proposals to the Pakistani side on Visa Liberalisation, Consular Access and on expanding both the exchange of pilgrims and increasing the list of shrines on both sides.
We have also handed over a draft Cultural Exchange Programme. We hope that these proposals will elicit a positive and early response from the Pakistani side.

4. We welcome the agreement we have reached to initiate technical level discussions to promote bilateral cooperation in a number of areas of mutual interest such as Agriculture, Health, Education, Science and Technology, Information, Environment and Tourism. Such cooperation will add greater substance to our relations both in the bilateral context as well as in the context of regional cooperation under SAARC. We have agreed that the next meeting of the Joint Commission which would be convened in 2006, would consider the reports of the various technical level interactions.

5. This afternoon, I will be meeting PM Shaukat Aziz and exchanging views with him on all aspects of our bilateral relations. I will leave for Karachi this evening for a day long visit. There will be an opportunity for me to call on the Governor of Sindh and meet the Chief Minister of the province. A meeting with the Federation of Pakistani Chamber of Commerce and Industry is being scheduled tomorrow. As you know, we plan to reopen our Consulates in Karachi and Mumbai respectively by January 2006 and my visit to Karachi will give me an opportunity to review the progress in the renovation of our Consulate premises.

6. The detailed results and outcomes of our meeting are laid out in a comprehensive manner in the Joint Press Statement. As is evident from the Joint Press Statement, this has been a substantive visit. I take this opportunity to thank my friend and counterpart, Foreign Minister Kasuri, for the gracious hospitality extended to me and my delegation during our stay in Islamabad.

Karachi, October 5, 2005.

I am very glad to be present here this morning and interact with this distinguished gathering of the business community in Pakistan. I am grateful to the Federation of Pakistan Chambers of Commerce & Industry for kindly providing the platform for this interaction.

2. I have returned to Karachi after a gap of 23 years and it is with a feeling of affection and nostalgia that I see many of the prominent landmarks of this great City.

3. As I take an overview of the economic and commercial relationship between India and Pakistan and the manner in which it has progressed in the past 18 months or so, there are numerous positive developments. Firstly, economic and commercial contacts between the two countries have rapidly grown in this period. This greater intensity to business-level contacts has encouraged thinking and discussion about joint ventures, technical collaborations, and better marketing strategies in either country. This is a most encouraging sign. Secondly, there has been excellent participation by business communities of both countries in trade fairs and exhibitions in the other country. Thirdly, there are rapid developments beyond conventional trading, and this is in the area of services – in particular tourism, IT, civil aviation, shipping services, medicine and tele-medicine and banking. Fourthly and finally, there have been developments, which inspire confidence that there is an emerging environment in which it would be possible to restructure the infrastructure of trade and economic cooperation. In this regard, I refer, in particular, to the small beginning which has been made with regard to direct trade through the Attari-Wagah border, the good possibilities which exist for such trade on the Srinagar-Muzaffarabad and the Khokrapar-Munabao routes, the interest which has been shown in the Mumbai-Karachi ferry service and the on going discussion on expanding the scope of the present civil aviation and shipping protocols between India and Pakistan.

4. The points I have mentioned so far provide a bird’s eye view of the present conjuncture of economic and commercial cooperation between India and Pakistan. There is a more general environment also to which I must refer. Both the Pakistani and Indian economies are in the midst of a major growth spurt. This provides a most favourable environment to conceive new concepts and ideas of how we can mutually benefit from existing complementarities between the two countries. Secondly, the regional institutional environment, particularly given the impetus, which has been provided by SAPTA and SAFTA, is also more commerce and business sensitive than perhaps, it has ever been. Finally, the current international environment has also provided further impetus to efforts in both India and Pakistan for expanding bilateral economic cooperation. In this context, I would refer, specifically, to the burden that increase in the price of hydrocarbons has placed on both our economies and the fact that we have, today, instruments, which would enable us to alleviate that burden by cooperation with third countries. Transnational pipelines, therefore, immediately come to mind and this is an area which is of immense significance to all of us.

5. Having sketched this general background let me come to specifics. There is a lot of scope for cooperation in many areas such as agriculture, chemicals, textile machinery, hydropower, drugs and pharmaceuticals, cotton industries, to name a few. For example, Pakistan can export cotton yarn, textile fabrics, surgical instruments, sports goods, electric fans and water coolers to India.
We can even look at import of power from Pakistan if Pakistan has surplus power. India has recently offered liberalizing import of 116 tariff lines of interest to Pakistan in SAFTA. We are ready to look at non-tariff barriers within the ambit of the Joint Study Group. Similarly, India is in a position to fulfill Pakistan’s annual demand of 100,000 units of vehicle tyres but the 46% import tariff on this item acts as a deterrent. We understand that there are certain industries, which need to be protected. We urge Pakistan to make a negative list of these and open the rest for regular trade or atleast open those items that she presently imports from elsewhere to Indian trade. This would go a long way in enhancing economic cooperation between the two countries.

6. I can, confidently assert that the business environment today is more favourable than it has ever been between India and Pakistan. This poses a challenge for those of us in Government and equally for the business community in both countries. I do believe that the role of Government should be to facilitate to the fullest extent possible contacts between the business communities of the two countries. In this spirit, we would welcome suggestions from businessmen in Pakistan on what we can do in specific and precise ways to advance cooperation between the two countries, turn our backs on the barriers and suspicions of the past and in some way endeavour to create and encourage the spirit of enterprise for businessmen in both the countries. Equally, there is a challenge for the business community of both countries. As I said, the environment, which exists today, because of a number of conjunctural forces and factors, is in many ways unique. It is for you to make full use of it. I am aware of the considerable increase in trade, which has already taken place in the last 12 months. This is a most encouraging sign since what, more than anything else, led to this spurt in our trade was only a more open visa regime than existed previously. Once we have better banking, airline, shipping and road transport linkages with each other, clearly, the results will be even more significant. It is our expectation that in the next few months there will be considerable advances in each of these specific sectors. We are on the threshold of a major expansion in people-to-people and business contacts. The re-opening of the Consulates General in Mumbai and Karachi reflects the desire of both Governments to facilitate the expansion of such contacts to the fullest extent possible.

7. Another important milestone will be the opening of Khokrapar-Munabao train route. These developments will facilitate cooperation between Western India and Southern Pakistan to a far greater extent than before. Karachi is poised at the threshold of a great expansion as Pakistan moves to harness its potential as a “hub country” as Foreign Minister Kasuri said at our talks in Islamabad. It is my belief that the expansion in trade and economic cooperation between India and Pakistan will lead Karachi to a even more successful and qualitatively new stage of its evolution as a trading and commercial capital of Asia and the World. The spirit of its citizens and the enterprise of its businessmen are well known to everyone in India. I hope that this spirit and enterprise are harnessed to the cause of expanding economic and commercial cooperation between India and Pakistan for the betterment of our whole region.

8. I expect that the citizens and the business community of Karachi will lead the way forward in building a new future for the people of India and Pakistan’.

Interestingly Pakistan’s willingness for free trade through Jammu and Kashmir came barely a fortnight after Prime Minister Manmohan Singh stated that the ‘Line of Control’ could become a line of peace with a free flow of ideas, goods, services and people. When asked whether the trade on the LOC could begin this year, Mr. Shah told Mr. Ramesh certain infrastructure needed to be rebuilt since many bridges had collapsed in the devastating earthquake in October 2005. Mr. Shah also told Mr. Ramesh that there was a feeling of openness in trade and “we need to take it forward.” Mr. Shah said that he would take back home India’s proposal on investment along with trade in merchandise. Mr. Ramesh suggested to the Pakistani Commerce Secretary that the trade point in Jammu and Kashmir could start operating on the lines of the Nathu La Pass in Sikkim. “If we can open Nathu La for trade with China, there is no reason [why] we cannot do it in Jammu and Kashmir,” Mr. Ramesh said.

INDIA-PAKISTAN RELATIONS

SECTION - XI

INDIA-EAST PAKISTAN BORDER
2740. Report of the Bengal Boundary Commission headed by Sir C. Radcliffe presented to the Viceroy and the Governor-General of India, on the division of the province of Bengal.

New Delhi, August 12, 1947

I have the honour to present the decision and award of the Bengal Boundary Commission, which, by virtue of section 3 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, is represented by my decision as Chairman of that Commission. This award relates to the division of the Province of Bengal, and the Commission’s award in respect of the District of Sylhet and areas adjoining thereto will be recorded in a separate report.

2. The Bengal Boundary Commission was constituted by the announcement of the Governor-General dated the 30th of June, 1947, Reference No. D 50/7/47R. The members of the Commission thereby appointed were:

Mr. Justice Bijan Kumar Mukherjea,
Mr. Justice C.C. Biswas
Mr. Justice Abu Saleh Mohamed Akram, and Mr. Justice S. A. Rahman.

I was subsequently appointed Chairman of this Commission.

3. The terms of reference of the Commission, as set out in the announcement, were as follows:

“The Boundary Commission is instructed to demarcate the boundaries of the two parts of Bengal on the basis of ascertaining the contiguous (majority) areas of Muslims and non-Muslims. In doing so, it will also take into account other factors.”

We were desired to arrive at a decision as soon as possible before the 15th of August.

4. After preliminary meetings, the Commission invited the submission of memoranda and representations by interested parties. A very large number of memoranda and representations was received.

5. The public sittings of the Commission took place at Calcutta, and extended from Wednesday the 16th of July 1947, to Thursday the 24th of July 1947, inclusive, with the exception of Sunday, the 20th of July. Arguments were presented to the Commission by numerous parties on both sides, but the main cases were presented by counsel on behalf of the Indian National Congress, the Bengal Provincial Hindu Mahasabha and the New Bengal Association on the one hand, and on behalf of the Muslim League on the other. In view of the fact that I was acting also as Chairman of the Punjab Boundary Commission, whose proceedings were taking place simultaneously with the proceedings of the Bengal Boundary Commission, I did not attend the public sittings in person, but made arrangements to study daily the record of the proceedings and all material submitted for our consideration.

6. After the close of the public sittings, the remainder of the time of the Commission was devoted to clarification and discussion of the issues involved. Our discussions took place at Calcutta.

7. The question of drawing a satisfactory boundary line under our terms of reference between East and West Bengal was one to which the parties concerned propounded the most diverse solutions. The province offers few, if any, satisfactory natural boundaries, and its development has been on lines that do not well accord with a division by contiguous majority areas of Muslim and non-Muslim majorities.

8. In my view, the demarcation of a boundary line between East and West Bengal depended on the answers to be given to certain basic questions which may be stated as follows:

(1) To which State was the City of Calcutta to be assigned, or was it possible to adopt any method of dividing the City between the two States?

(2) If the City of Calcutta must be assigned as a whole to one or other of the States, what were its indispensable claims to the control of territory, such as all or part of the Nadia River system or the Kulti rivers, upon which the life of Calcutta as a city and port depended?

(3) Could the attractions of the Ganges-Padma-Madhumati river line displace the strong claims of the heavy concentration of Muslim majorities in the districts of Jessore and Nadia without doing too great a violence to the principle of our terms of reference?

(4) Could the district of Khulna usefully be held by a State different from that which held the district of Jessore?

(5) Was it right to assign to Eastern Bengal the considerable block of non-Muslim majorities in the districts of Malda and Dinajpur?

(6) Which State’s claim ought to prevail in respect of the Districts of Darjeeling and Jalpaiguri, in which the Muslim population amounted to 2.42 per cent of the whole in the case of Darjeeling, and to 23.08 percent of the whole in the case of Jalpaiguri, but which constituted an area not in any natural sense contiguous to another non-Muslim area of Bengal?

(7) To which State should the Chittagong Hill Tracts be assigned, an area in which the Muslim population was only 3 percent of the whole, but which it was difficult to assign to a State different from that which controlled the district of Chittagong itself?

9. After much discussion, my colleagues found that they were unable to arrive at an agreed view on any of these major issues. There were of course considerable areas of the Province in the south-west and north-east and east, which provoked no controversy on either side: but, in the absence of any reconciliation on all main questions affecting the drawing of the boundary itself, my colleagues assented to the view at the close of our discussions that I had no alternative but to proceed to give my own decision.

10. This I now proceed to do: but I should like at the same time to express my gratitude to my colleagues for their indispensable assistance in clarifying and discussing the difficult questions involved. The demarcation of the boundary line is described in detail in the schedule which forms Annexure A to this award, and in the map attached thereto, Annexure B. The map is annexed for purposes of illustration, and if there should be any divergence between the boundary as described in Annexure A and as delineated on the map in Annexure B, the description in Annexure A is to prevail.

11. I have done what I can in drawing the line to eliminate any avoidable cutting of railway communications and of river systems, which are of importance to the life of the province: but it is quite impossible to draw a boundary under our terms of reference without causing some interruption of this sort, and I can only express the hope that arrangements can be made and maintained between the two States that will minimize the consequences of this interruption as far as possible.

Cyril Radcliffe

1. A line shall be drawn along the boundary between the Thana of Phansidewa in the District of Darjeeling and the Thana Tetulia in the District of Jalpaiguri from the point where that boundary meets the Province of Bihar and then along the boundary between the Thanas of Tetulia and Rajganj; the Thanas of Pachagar and Rajganj, and the Thanas of Pachagar and Jalpaiguri, and shall then continue along the northern corner of the Thana Debganj to the boundary of the State of Cooch-Behar. The District of Darjeeling and so much of the District of Jalpaiguri as lies north of this line shall belong to West Bengal, but the Thana of Patgram and any other portion of Jalpaiguri District which lies to the east or south shall belong to East Bengal.

2. A line shall then be drawn from the point where the boundary between the Thanas of Haripur and Raiganj in the District of Dinajpur meets the border of the Province of Bihar to the point where the boundary between the Districts of 24 Parganas and Khulna meets the Bay of Bengal. This line shall follow the course indicated in the following paragraphs. So much of the Province of Bengal as lies to the west of it shall belong to West Bengal. Subject to what has been provided in paragraph 1 above with regard to the Districts of Darjeeling and Jalpaiguri, the remainder of the Province of Bengal shall belong to East Bengal.

3. The line shall run along the boundary between the following Thanas:
   Haripur and Raiganj; Haripur and Hemtabad; Ranisankail and Hemtabad; Pirganj and Kaliganj; Bochaganj and Kaliganj; Biral and Kaliganj; Biral and Kushmundi; Biral and Gangarampur; Dinajpur and Gangarampur; Dinajpur and Kumarganj; Chirirbandar and Kumarganj; Phulbari and Kumarganj; Phulbari and Balurghat. It shall terminate at the point where the boundary between Phulbari and Balurghat meets the north-south line of the Bengal-Assam Railway in the eastern corner of the Thana of Balurghat. The line shall turn down the western edge of the railway lands belonging to that railway and follow that edge until it meets the boundary between the Thanas of Balurghat and Panchbibi.

4. From that point the line shall run along the boundary between the following Thanas:
   Balurghat and Panchbibi; Balurghat and Joypurhat; Balurghat and Dhamairhat; Tapan and Dhamairhat, Tapan and Patnitala; Tapan and Porsa; Bamangola and Porsa; Habibpur and Porsa; Habibpur and Gomastapur; Habibpur and Bholahat; Malda and Bholahat; English Bazar and Bholahat; English Bazar and Shibganj; Kaliachak and Shibganj; to the point where the boundary between the two last mentioned thanas meets the boundary between the districts of Malda and Murshidabad on the river Ganges.

5. The line shall then turn south-east down the River Ganges along the boundary between the Districts of Malda and Murshidabad; Rajshahi and Nadia; to the point in the north-western corner of the District of Nadia where the channel of the River Mathabanga takes off from the River Ganges. The district boundaries, and not the actual course of the River Ganges, shall constitute the boundary between East and West Bengal.
6. From the point on the River Ganges where the channel of the River Mathabanga takes off, the line shall run along that channel to the northernmost point where it meets the boundary between the Thanins of Daulatpur and Karimpur. The middle line of the main channel shall constitute the actual boundary.

7. From this point the boundary between East and West Bengal shall run along the boundaries between the Thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur; Gangani and Karimpur; Meherpur and Karimpur; Meherpur and Tehatta; Meherpur and Chapra; Damurhuda and Chapra; Damurhuda and Krishnaganj; Chuddanga and Krishnaganj; Jibannagar and Krishnaganj; Jibannagar and Hanskhali; Maheshpur and Hanskhali; Maheshpur and Ranaghat; Maheshpur and Bongaon; Jhikargacha and Bongaon; Sarsa and Bongaon; Sarsa and Gaighata; Gaighata and Kalaraa; to the point where the boundary between those thanas meets the boundary between the districts of Khulna and 24 Parganas.

8. The line shall then run southwards along the boundary between the Districts of Khulna and 24 Parganas, to the point where that boundary meets the Bay of Bengal.

I have the honour to present the report of the Bengal Boundary Commission relating to Sylhet District and the adjoining districts of Assam. By virtue of Section 3 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, the decisions contained in this report become the decision and award of the Commission.

2. The Bengal Boundary Commission was constituted as stated in my report dated the 12th of August 1947 with regard to the division of the Province of Bengal into East and West Bengal. Our terms of reference were as follows:

“The Boundary Commission is instructed to demarcate the boundaries of the two parts of Bengal on the basis of ascertaining the contiguous majority areas of Muslims and non-Muslims.
In doing so, it will also take into account other factors. In the event of the referendum in the District of Sylhet resulting in favour of amalgamation with Eastern Bengal, the Boundary Commission will also demarcate the Muslim majority areas of Sylhet District and the contiguous Muslim majority areas of the adjoining districts of Assam."

3. After the conclusion of the proceedings relating to Bengal, the Commission invited the submission of memoranda and representations by parties interested in the Sylhet question. A number of such memoranda and representations was received.

4. The Commission held open sittings at Calcutta on the 4th, 5th and 6th days of August 1947, for the purpose of hearing arguments. The main arguments were conducted on the one side by counsel on behalf of the Government of East Bengal and the Provincial and District Muslim Leagues; and on the other side, by counsel on behalf of the Government of the Province of Assam and the Assam Provincial Congress Committee and the Assam Provincial Hindu Mahasabha. I was not present in person at the open sittings as I was at the time engaged in the proceedings of the Punjab Boundary Commission which were taking place simultaneously, but I was supplied with the daily record of the Sylhet proceedings and with all material submitted for the Commission's consideration. At the close of the open sittings, the members of the Commission entered into discussions with me as to the issues involved and the decisions to be come to. These discussions took place at New Delhi.

5. There was an initial difference of opinion as to the scope of the reference entrusted to the Commission. Two of my colleagues took the view that the Commission had been given authority to detach from Assam and to attach to East Bengal any Muslim majority areas of any part of Assam that could be described as contiguous to East Bengal, since they construed the words “the adjoining districts of Assam” as meaning any district of Assam that adjoined East Bengal. The other two of my colleagues took the view that the Commission’s power of detaching areas from Assam and transferring them to East Bengal was limited to the District of Sylhet and contiguous Muslim majority areas (if any) of other districts of Assam that adjoined Sylhet. The difference of opinion was referred to me for my casting vote, and I took the view that the more limited construction of our terms of reference was the correct one and that the “adjoining districts of Assam” did not extend to other districts of Assam than those that adjoined Sylhet. The Commission accordingly proceeded with its work on this basis.

6. It was argued before the Commission on behalf of the Government of East Bengal that on the true construction of our terms of reference and section 3 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, the whole of the District of Sylhet at least must be transferred to East Bengal and the Commission had no option but to act upon this assumption. All my colleagues agreed in rejecting this argument, and I concur in their view.

7. We found some difficulty in making up our minds whether, under our terms of reference, we were to approach the Sylhet question in the same way as the question of partitioning Bengal, since there were some differences in the language employed. But all my colleagues came to the conclusion that we were intended to divide the Sylhet and adjoining districts of Assam between East Bengal and the Province of Assam on the basis of contiguous majority areas of Muslims and non-Muslims, but taking into account other factors. I am glad to adopt this view.

8. The members of the Commission were however unable to arrive at an agreed view as to how the boundary lines should be drawn, and after discussion of their differences, they invited me to give my decision. This I now proceed to do.

9. In my view, the question is limited to the districts of Sylhet and Cachar, since of the other districts of Assam that can be said to adjoin Sylhet neither the Garo Hills nor the Khasi and Jaintia Hills nor the Lushai Hills have anything approaching a Muslim majority of population in respect of which a claim could be made.

10. Out of 35 thanas in Sylhet, 8 have non-Muslim majorities; but of these eight, two—Sulla and Ajmiriganj (Which is in any event divided almost evenly between Muslims and non-Muslims), are entirely surrounded by preponderatingly Muslim areas and must therefore go with them to East Bengal. The other six thanas comprising a population of over 530,000 people stretch in a continuous line along part of the southern border of Sylhet District. They are divided between two sub-divisions of which one, South Sylhet, comprising a population of over 515,000 people, has in fact a non-Muslim majority of some 40,000; while the other, Karimganj, with a population of over 568,000 people has a Muslim majority that is a little larger.

11. With regard to the District of Cachar, one thana, Hailakandi, has a Muslim majority and is contiguous to the Muslim thanas of Badarpur and Karimganj in the District of Sylhet. This thana forms, with the thana of Katlichara immediately to its south, the sub-division of Hailakandi, and in the Sub-division as a whole Muslims enjoy a very small majority being 51% of the total population. I think that the dependence of Katlichara on Hailakandi for normal communications makes it important that the area should be under one jurisdiction, and that the Muslims would have at any rate a strong presumptive claim for the transfer of the Sub-division of Hailakandi, comprising a population of 166,536, from the Province of Assam to the Province of East Bengal.

12. But a study of the map shows, in my judgment, that a division on these lines would present problems of administration that might gravely affect the future welfare and happiness of the whole district. Not only would the six non-Muslim thanas of Sylhet be completely divorced from the rest of Assam if the Muslim claim to Hailakandi were recognised, but they form a strip running east and west whereas the natural division of the land is north and south and they effect an awkward severance of the railway line through Sylhet, so that, for instance, the junction for the town of Sylhet itself, the capital of the district, would lie in Assam, not in East Bengal.

13. In those circumstances I think that some exchange of territories must be effected if a workable division is to result. Some of the non-Muslim thanas must go to East Bengal and some Muslim territory and Hailakandi must be retained by Assam. Accordingly I decide and award as follows:

A line shall be drawn from the point where the boundary between the Thanas of Patharkandi and Kulaura meets the frontier of Tripura State and shall run north along the boundary between those Thanas, then along the boundary between the Thanas of Patharkandi and Barlekha, and then along the boundary between the Thanas of Karimganj and Barlekha, and then along the boundary between the Thanas of Karimganj and Beani Bazar to the point where that boundary meets the River Kusiyara. The line shall then turn to the east taking the River Kusiyar as the boundary and run to the point where that river meets the boundary between the Districts of Sylhet as lies to the west and north of this line shall be detached from the Province of Assam and transferred to the Province of East Bengal. No other part of the Province of Assam shall be transferred.

14. For purposes of illustration a map marked A is attached on which the line is delineated. In the event of any divergence between the line as delineated on the map and as described in paragraph 13 the written description is to prevail.

Cyril Radcliffe
Summary record of the meeting between Rear-Admiral Viscount Mountbatten of Burma and representatives of India and Pakistan, for the acceptance of the Awards of the Punjab and Bengal Boundary Commissions.

New Delhi, August 16, 1947

Those present at this Meeting held at Government House, New Delhi, on 16 August 1947 at 5.00 p.m. were: Rear-Admiral Viscount Mountbatten of Burma, Pandit Nehru, Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan, Sardar Patel, Mr. Fazlur Rahman, Sardar Baldev Singh, Mr Mohammad Ali, Rao Bahadur, V.P. Menon, Lieutenant-Colonel Erskine Crum (Secretariat)

The Awards of the Boundary Commissions

1. The meeting considered the awards of the Boundary Commissions, copies of which had been given to the Ministers after the Joint Defence Council meeting that morning.

Bengal

2. Pandit Nehru said that he had never considered that the allocation of the Chittagong Hill Tracts to East Bengal was possible under the terms of reference of the Boundary Commission. Eminent lawyers had confirmed this point of view. Tracts were an excluded area, and were not represented in the Bengal Council. He and his colleagues had given assurances to petty chiefs from the Chittagong Hill Tracts who had come to see them, that there was no question of the territory being included in Pakistan. The population of the Chittagong Hill Tracts, though small (approximately 1/2 million) was 97% Buddhist and Hindu. There was not the least doubt that the people themselves would prefer to form part of India. On religious and cultural grounds the Chittagong Hill Tracts should form part of India. Sir Cyril Radcliffe had no business to touch them.

3. The Governor General explained the reasons why Sir Cyril Radcliffe has included the Chittagong Hill Tracts in East Bengal. He emphasized particularly the economic ties which bound Chittagong District and the Hill Tracts together. He stressed the importance to Chittagong Port of the proper supervision of the Karnaphuli River, which ran through the Hill Tracts.

4. Mr. Fazlur Rahman gave his opinion that the Chittagong Hill Tracts could not exist if separated from Chittagong District. In his view, the allocation of these Tracts to East Bengal was unquestionably permissible under the terms of reference. In fact the "contiguity" clause of the terms of reference would not have permitted their allocation to West Bengal.
5. The Governor General said that it had been Sir Frederick Burrows' view that the whole economy of the Chittagong Hill Tracts would be upset if they were not left with East Bengal. However, he had confirmed that Sir Frederick had not expressed any view on this matter to Sir Cyril Radcliffe, so he could not be said to have influenced the decision.

6. The Governor General suggested the possibility of a compromise whereby the upper waters of the Karnaphuli would be protected through the allocation of a strip of territory on either side of the river to East Bengal, while the administration of the rest of the Hill Tracts would be undertaken by India.

7. This was not considered a satisfactory solution by either party. Pandit Nehru's view was that India should undertake the administration of the whole territory; a strip on either side of the river allocated to Pakistan would cut the territory in two. If the Chittagong Hill Tracts were given to India an agreement between the two Dominion Governments whereby Pakistan would obtain all desired facilities, could well be made.

8. Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan said that he could not consider any suggestion of an adjustment in this territory alone. The awards of both Commissions must be looked at as a whole. If this was done, it would be found that Sir Cyril Radcliffe had completely ignored the fundamental basis of his terms of reference. Moreover, the Chittagong Hill Tracts were the only source of hydro-electric power in East Bengal.

9. The Governor General then suggested that the two Governments might agree on an exchange of territory, whereby the Chittagong Hill Tracts would go to India and some predominantly Muslim area which had been allotted by the Commission to India would go to Pakistan.

10. Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan emphasized that the awards of the Commissions, taken as a whole, had been so unfavourable to Pakistan, that he could not consider any minor modification only, such as had been suggested.

11. Mr. Fazlur Rahman protested strongly against the allocation of the Districts of Darjeeling and Jalpaiguri to India. In his view, Sir Cyril Radcliffe had violated the basic principle of his terms of reference in making this decision.

Punjab

12. Pandit Nehru said that he considered that the award of the Boundary Commission in the Punjab was likely to have a bad effect among the Sikhs, who presented a particularly difficult problem.
13. Sardar Baldev Singh also considered that the reaction to the award would be very unfavourable on the Sikh mind.

14. Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan said that it would have a similarly unfavourable reaction among the Muslims. He emphasized that he, as Prime Minister of Pakistan, considered it his duty to stand up for the rights of the Sikhs in West Punjab as much as the India leaders stood up for their rights in East Punjab. He emphasized that complete religious freedom would be allowed.

15. Sardar Patel's view was that the only solution to the Punjab award was a transfer of population on a large scale.

16. The governor General said that he had spoken to Mr. Jinnah about Nanakana Sahib. Mr. Jinnah had stated that he had it in mind to give the Sikhs any religious assurances that were required in connection with their Gurdwara there. The Governor General suggested that a specific statement on Nankana Sahib might be made by the Pakistan Government at the same time as the issue of the Boundary Commission award.

17. Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan said that he understood that it was Sir Francis Mudie's view that the Punjab Boundary Force should be separated and be put under the control of the two Governments rather than under joint control. It was agreed that this suggestion should be considered at the meeting at Ambala the following day.

18. Pandit Nehru suggested that he and Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan should also visit Lahore and Amritsar the following day, and this was agreed.

19. Pandit Nehru said that he had received particularly alarming reports from Lahore, where many hundreds of Sikhs and Hindus were gathered together in relief camps without proper protection and without rations. Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan undertook to get in touch with the Prime Minister of West Punjab and ask him to ensure that full measures were taken for the protection of refugees. He further suggested that the Punjab Boundary Force should be asked to assist in the evacuation of refugees.

The Publication of the Awards

20. Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan said that he was opposed to any suggestion that adjustments between representatives of the two Governments should be made at the present meeting. He considered that the awards of the Boundary Commission should be published as they stood.
21. The Governor General suggested that in the communique stating that the awards had been considered by the Prime Ministers, it might be stated that they had come to the conclusion that there were certain unsatisfactory features which they proposed to take up forthwith on a governmental level. Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan was opposed to this suggestion. He considered, and it was agreed, that the communique should only make mention of the fact of the meeting, and not draw attention to any dissatisfaction, nor to any proposals for the transfer of population.

22. Pandit Nehru finally emphasized that he and his colleagues felt themselves to be in a moral impasse about the Chittagong Hill Tracts, because, throughout the previous two or three months, they had given countless assurances to the representatives of that territory that it could not be included in Pakistan. Furthermore, this action had been taken after consultation with lawyers.

23. It was agreed that the Governor General should issue the awards in the form of a Gazette Extraordinary the following day, and that copies of the awards should be sent immediately to the Governors of East and West Bengal and East and West Punjab.

I have received information from more than one source that Muslim League National Guards in East Bengal are carrying on propaganda that Tripura State belongs to Eastern Pakistan. Pamphlets inciting Muslims to conquer Tripura and annex it to East Bengal are in circulation in Eastern Pakistan and preparations are being made to invade Tripura.*

Tripura acceded to the Indian Dominion before 15 August. Any activities in Pakistan territory intended to support the forcible annexation of Tripura into Eastern Pakistan are clearly an hostile act against the Dominion of India. I request that you will discourage such activities and see that no act of aggression is committed on Tripura.

* In October 1947, at public meetings convened by the Muslim League at Comilla, demands were made for the accession of Tripura to Pakistan. Similar propaganda was carried on in the Feni sub-division.
Continuation our telegram 670 of January 22nd. Demarcation of boundary between East Bengal and Assam. We are informed that Deputy Commissioner, Sylhet, has crossed into Patharia Hill Reserve Forest on the border between Kusiyara and Tripura State, has arrested section of Assam armed police consisting of 14 men sent to protect oil concessions in Patharia and is also reported to have arrested B.O.C. employees. Pathan troops are also said to have entered this area as reinforcements. According to map attached to Radcliffe Award, Patharia Hill Reserve Forest clearly falls within the Dominion of India, and I would request that East Bengal Government be asked immediately to withdraw their forces from this area. Failing withdrawal of Deputy Commissioner’s party, we may have to consider other action. Until boundary has been demarcated by Joint Survey Commission, as already suggested by us, Assam Government should, we think, continue to be in undisturbed possession of this area. Incident emphasizes the need for a joint survey without further delay.

[Editor’s Note: In the Radcliffe Award, the entire Sylhet district of Assam with the exception of four thanas of Patharkandi, Ratabari, Karimganj and Badarpur had been awarded to East Pakistan, but East Pakistan claimed even this area as its own territory describing it as the Patharia Forest Reserve. Prime Minister Nehru in another Telegram of 2nd February 1948 pointed out to Liaquat Ali Khan that the Government of Assam Gazette published in 1940 showed Patharia as part of Patharkandi thana and there was no subsequent Gazette notification changing the position. He asserted that according to Radcliffe “Patharkandi thana is definitely included within the province of Assam”, and this position was confirmed by the Map attached to the Award. On the other hand Liaquat Ali Khan in his telegram of January 31 had claimed the area within East Pakistan and complained that the Indian troops had entered the Forest Reserve and encamped within the Pakistan territory. He therefore desired that until the dispute was settled, the disputed area would not be disturbed. He proposed constitution of a commission to settle the matter. Indian Prime Minister agreed with the suggestion and proposed that “until the work of Commission is completed and decision is reached by the two Governments, all troops and armed police on either side should be withdrawn from Reserve” but the withdrawal “should be only up to a distance of five miles (as against ten miles suggested by Liaquat Ali Khan) beyond the periphery of the Reserve”. Going a step further, Nehru suggested that since “the question is not only one of exact location of a boundary but also of the possession of Reserve itself, civil officers of both East Bengal and Assam Governments should also be withdrawn from the Reserve.” In the meantime Pakistan had raised the red flag on the boundary between Kusiyara river and Tripura State and suggested that the proposed boundary commission should settle the entire sector. Since there was also the question of the boundary between Sylhet and Karimganj, Nehru suggested that the proposed commission should first settle the question of Patharia Forest Reserve and location of the Kusiyara river before any other boundary dispute was considered. India nominated Rohini Kumar Chaudhary to represent India and Pakistan Syed Mouzzimuddin to represent Pakistan on the Boundary Commission which was constituted on March 15, 1948. In the meantime there were differences of interpretation with regard to other sectors of India –}
East Pakistan boundary namely Murshidabad – Rajshahi, certain point on the river Ganga, it was decided at the Inter-Dominion Conference held in December 1948 to refer all the disputes to another Boundary Commission consisting of one member each by the two Dominions and another a Chairman acceptable to both the Dominions. This Chairman was Justice Algot Bagge, a former member of the Supreme Court of Sweden.

New Delhi, February 18, 1948.

Your telegram 471 of February 10. Dispute Patharia Hills Reserve. Your paragraph 3.2. We agree that dispute should be settled by a Joint Boundary Commission on which both Dominion Governments will be equally represented. We consider, however, that as at present there is no dispute elsewhere than on Sylhet - Karimganj border. In order to save time, Commission should be asked to investigate and report on disputes on this border only and not on possible disputes on rest of the border between Assam and East Bengal. We also agree that until the work of Commission is completed and decision is reached by the two Governments, all troops and armed police on either side should be withdrawn from Reserve. We suggest, however, that withdrawal should be only up to a distance of five miles beyond the periphery of the Reserve. We would add that as the question is not only one of exact location of a boundary but also of the possession of Reserve itself, civil officers of both East Bengal and Assam Governments should also be withdrawn from the Reserve. Please telegraph your consent.

Your paragraph 4: We agree that there should be one representative of each Dominion Government on Boundary Commission. We note the name of your representative and will telegraph the name of our representative as early as possible. We also agree that each representative should be assisted by one or two experts who will not be members of Commission.

Your paragraph 2: I stated in my reply to a question on the floor of the Constituent Assembly of India (Legislative) on February 7 that we had been waiting for a reply to our telegram dated February 2, 1948 and not to our earlier telegram of January 28. Your telegram 382 of February 4 reached here after I had approved of the reply in draft, and I regret that the reply was not amended subsequently to make it clear that your reply to our telegram of February 2 had in fact been received. I assure you, however, that I had no intention of misleading the House about the attitude of Pakistan Government.

Note: Liaquat Ali had in his telegram proposed that the troops should be withdrawn from all points within ten miles or any other distance which Nehru might prefer from the periphery of the Forest Reserve. The Joint Boundary Commission should deal with all disputes between Assam and East Bengal on the borders of the Sylhet district, and not just with the Sylhet - Karimganj boundary. In the other telegram Liaquat Ali said that while the Governments of Assam and East Bengal could decide on the venue of the meeting, it was vital to remove "all possibilities of a clash." In his Tel. of 10 February, Liaquat Ali said that he had replied to Nehru's of 28 January which should have reached him before he gave his reply in the Constituent Assembly (Legislative).

2746. Interpretation of the Radcliffe Award on Sylhet

SECRET

A. Letter from the Minister of Judicial and Legislative Ministry, Government of West Bengal to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru regarding interpretation of the Radcliffe Award on Sylhet.

Bombay (Camp), April 25, 1948.

Judicial & Legislative Ministry, Government of West Bengal, Camp Bombay.

April 25, 1948

My dear Pandit Ji,

As suggested by you yesterday, I am writing this to remind you of the points I discussed with you relating to the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award in respect of the south-western portion of the Sylhet district which comprises territories amounting to 1256 square miles, rich in tea and perhaps oil, and yielding a revenue of about Rs.1½ crores. This territory also forms a belt adjoining the north-western borders of the Tripura State including in it a portion of the Bengal
- Assam Railway as well as Hindu majority areas from the point of view of population. The suggestions I would ask you kindly to consider for your early decision in this connection are as follows:-

1. In view of the representations made by the West Bengal Government with the support of their legal opinion followed also by the opinion of Kunwar Sir Duleep Singh, the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award advanced by the West Bengal Government and also subsequently forwarded by the Government of Assam should, in the first place, be unilaterally accepted by the Central Government apart from the question as to whether the Pakistan Government accept this interpretation or not.

2. It should be made known to the public by the Central Government as well as formally communicated to the Government of Pakistan that according to the correct interpretation of the Radcliffe Award the area in question as the residual portion of the district of Sylhet belongs to the Indian Union although, it now happens to be under the possession of the Government of Eastern Pakistan.

3. Acceptance by the Central Government of this interpretation and their declaration, to this-effect should then be followed by concrete proposals to be thought of for implementing this interpretation. Although, we may be aware of the fact that the Government of Pakistan will take a different view, that should be no reason for our not advancing this claim without any further loss of time.

4. The area in question being in the decided opinion of the West Bengal Government (a Cabinet decision was taken to this effect) a portion of the Indian Union, being exclusively a Bengali-speaking area, being a portion under the jurisdiction of the Bengal Provincial Congress Committee and being now one of the territories from which considerable number of refugees are arriving in the West Bengal Province, the Government of West Bengal should be recognised as vitally interested in these territories and as such should be asked to depute its representatives to form part of the Delegation on behalf of the Indian Union in any joint Commission of the Governments of India and Pakistan which may have to consider the matter.

5. I had a talk about the subject with the Hon'ble Shri G. N. Bardoloi, Premier of Assam, and as far as I understood he would welcome the Central Government including representatives of the West Bengal Government in any Delegation which may have to be formed in this connection, for negotiations. For, this subject would be entirely for the Central Government to deal with, although the territories in question form part of the province of Assam (sic).
6. Apart from any other consideration, acceptance by the Central Government of this interpretation of the Radcliffe Award will have a salutary effect on the morale of the populations inhabiting this area and help to check tendencies towards exodus to a large extent.

There are many other aspects of the question which justify the claim of the Indian Union to these territories being made immediately, irrespective of whether there is any chance of its implementation at present or not.

I press this so strongly because I have personally considered the matter most carefully and feel that I am justified in thinking that this claim sooner or later will be irresistible before any forum for mutual negotiations for amicable settlement of elsewhere. I do hope and trust you will kindly give an early decision but not an adverse one without, personally giving me a chance to argue out the whole case before you, if necessary. I hope you will kindly treat this matter as very urgent.

With kindest regards,

Yours sincerely

Niharendu Dutt Muzumdar

The Hon'ble Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru,
Prime Minister,
India.

B. Note of Secretary, Ministry of Law commenting on the opinion of his Ministry on the interpretation of Radcliffe Award on Sylhet based on the suggestion of West Bengal Government.

New Delhi, May 27, 1948.

Subject: Disputed territory in the old District of Sylhet: Wrong interpretation of the Radcliffe Award.

The Cabinet at its meeting held on 6th May 1948 decided that the Ministry of Law, in consultation with the Legal Adviser of the Ministry of External Affairs and Commonwealth Relations should prepare and put up specific proposals on the above subject for consideration by the Cabinet. Accordingly the enclosed draft has been prepared by the Ministry of Law. In forwarding the draft to the Ministry of External Affairs and Commonwealth Relations the Ministry of Law have noted as follows:-

1. After informal discussion with Sir Dalip Singh and Mr. S. Dutt, I have attempted a draft letter as directed by the Cabinet. I have however grave misgivings as to the immediate as well as the final making such an approach to Pakistan.

2. There can hardly be any doubt that this claim to set up “Q line” as the proper boundary between East Bengal and Assam will be rejected off-hand by Pakistan. It is quite unlikely that Pakistan will even agree to a suggestion that this question of interpreting the terms of the award should be referred to the Joint Boundary Commission which has been agreed to by the Dominions for deciding a particular dispute. From Mr. Dutt’s note it appears that there will be some awkwardness in our suggesting it, since we have formerly rejected attempts on the part of Pakistan to bring other boundary disputes before this Commission. In the circumstances it is, I think, essential that we should, have a clear idea as to what our next step is going to be in the event of Pakistan summarily, and probably rudely, rejecting our claim.

3. We may perhaps be able to maintain before a legalistic tribunal that the wording of the award in paragraph 13 is final and conclusive and must be interpreted in the way we are seeking to interpret it, and that the statements in paragraphs 10, 11 and 12 of the Report (of Radcliffe) are not decisive even if they are relevant. Once we admit that any statement contained in these three paragraphs actually defines the boundary notwithstanding its inconsistency with our present claim, we are bound to weaken our case. In my opinion, with all respect to Sir Dalip Singh’s arguments to the contrary, the substance of these three paragraphs read as a whole is likely to go against the interpretation we are now putting forward rather than in its favour.

4. For instance the first sentence of paragraph 10 of the Report reads: “Out of 35 thanas in Sylhet, 8 have non-Muslim majorities; but of these eight, two—Sulla and Ajmiriganj—— are entirely surrounded by preponderatingly Muslim areas, and must therefore go with them to East Bengal”. It may be pointed out that a small part of the Ajmiriganj thana lies to the south of the straight line drawn due west of the starting point of the Radcliffe line. If we admit on the basis of the sentence quoted above that Sir Cyril Radcliffe had definitely decided to transfer this part to East Bengal, I am unable to see how we can lay any claim to “the preponderatingly Muslim areas” by which these two non-Muslim thanas of Sulla and Ajmiriganj are surrounded. These areas which according to the first sentence of paragraph 10 must go to East Bengal certainly include the thanas of Baniyachung, Lakhai, Madhabpur, Nabiganj, Habiganj, Chunarughat, and Bahubal, if not also Maulavi Bazar and Rajnagar (vide map).
If we do not claim those thanas, it seems to me that the whole of the Q line theory will fall to the ground. It seems necessary, therefore, to stick to the view even the apparently categorical statement in the first sentence of paragraph 10 of the report has not been given effect to in the award and hence is of no effect.

5. Then it seems to me that, although there is nothing to prevent making an attempt at argumentation, the general trend of paragraph 12 of the report is not in favour of our contention. In particular, it cannot be denied that the retention in Assam of the area south of the Q line will result in a very awkward severance of the railway lines within the old Sylhet district. It will also mean that communications with Sylhet town by rail from other parts of East Bengal will have to be across Assam territory.

6. For these reasons, therefore, I have preferred in my draft letter to rest the claim entirely on the wording of the award, and not on any arguments derivable from, or analysis of paragraphs 10, 11 and 12 of the Report. But I have no doubt in my mind that Pakistan will rely strongly on those paragraphs and contend that since there is a doubt, or at any rate a dispute, over the meaning of the award, these paragraphs must be looked into for the purpose of ascertaining the meaning of the award. In that very probable contingency the arguments contained in Sir Dalip Singh’s note will no doubt be of use.

7. If H.M. approves of the lines on which the letter to Pakistan has been drafted, I suggest that the file may be referred to the Ministry of External Affairs and Commonwealth Relations for any comments or suggestions they may like to make with regard to the draft. In particular, they may like to fill out the last paragraph, indicating the proposal that we should make to Pakistan in respect of our claim.

C. DRAFT LETTER

Prepared by the Ministry of Law for Government of Pakistan Referred to in the Note Above

From……………………

To …………………

Sir,

I am directed by the Government of India to invite the attention of the Government of Pakistan to the award of the Bengal Boundary Commission in regard to Sylhet district.

2. As the Government of Pakistan are aware, this award is contained in paragraph 13 of the report submitted on the 13th August, 1947 by Sir Cyril Radcliffe to the Governor-General of India. After stating that in the circumstances discussed in the three immediately preceding paragraphs of the report, some of the non-Muslim Thanas of Sylhet district must go to East Bengal and some Muslim territory must be retained by Assam, Sir Cyril Radcliffe gives directions for the drawing of a line across the district of Sylhet.

3. There can be no doubt, and there is no doubt, as to the point where the above line starts, not as to the point where it ends. It starts from a point A where the boundary between the Thanas of Patharkandi and Kulaura meets the frontier of Tripura State, then proceeds in a generally northern direction to a point B where the boundary between the thanas of Beani Bazar and Karimganj meets the river Kusiyara and then proceeds in a generally eastern direction to C the point where that river meets the boundary between the districts of Sylhet and Cachar.

4. The award then directs categorically that, “so much of the district of Sylhet as lies to the West and north of this line shall be detached from the Province of Assam and transferred to the Province of East Bengal; and no other part of the Province of Assam shall be transferred”.

5. The Government of India has given very careful consideration to the question as to how the operative part of the award quoted in the preceding paragraph ought to be interpreted. They have come to the conclusion that the area lying to the west and north of the line ABC must be determined by drawing a straight line Q due west from A the southern-most point, and another straight line P due north from C the eastern-most point. Whatever part of the Sylhet district falls to the south of the straight line Q or to the east of the straight line...
P clearly does not lie to the west and north of the line ABC and ought not to be transferred to East Bengal. The contour of the Sylhet district is such that no part of it lies to the east of the straight line P but a very considerable part lies to the south of the straight line Q. In the opinion of the Government of India, the Radcliffe award has not transferred this latter part of the District of Sylhet to East Bengal, and this area remains within the Province of Assam and consequently the Dominion of India.

6. In support of the above contention the Government of India first wish to observe that for purposes of sub-section (3) of Section 3 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, it is the award of the Boundary Commission which is material and operative, and sub-section (4) of this Section defines the expression “award” as meaning the decisions of the Chairman of the Boundary Commission contained in his report to the Governor-General at the conclusion of the Commission’s proceedings. It is, therefore, not the whole of the report that constitutes the award, but only that part of it which sets out the decisions of the Chairman. In this particular case, then, the award is that part of the report which follows the words “Accordingly I decide and award as follows”.

7. Secondly, it should be noted that the award does not state that the whole of the line A B C shall constitute the only boundary between the two parts into which the district of Sylhet is to be divided under the award. If Cyril Radcliffe’s intention was otherwise, he would have said so in the award.

8. Thirdly, if Sir Cyril Radcliffe meant to apportion the area lying south of the straight line Q to East Bengal, he could have said so in the plain terms as he did in the case of Jalpaiguri district in the main Bengal award (vide the last sentence of paragraph 1 of annexure A to the report of the Bengal Boundary Commission). Alternatively, he could have easily said, if that was his intention, that so much of the district of Sylhet as lies to the east and south of the line ABC shall be detached from that district and remain part of the Province of Assam, and that the rest of the district shall be transferred to the Province of East Bengal. The contrary formula actually adopted by him must, therefore, be given its appropriate and full meaning, and in doing so the existence of a part of Sylhet district to the south of the straight line Q cannot be ignored.

9. Fourthly, the various and conflicting considerations discussed by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in paragraphs 10, 11 and 12 of the report are not intended to, and do not, form part of the award which, as already pointed out, is set out clearly and precisely in paragraph 13 of the report.

10. For these reasons, among others, the Government of India claim all that portion of the district of Sylhet which lies to the south of the straight line Q as marked in the attached map. As, unfortunately, owing to a wrong interpretation of the award, that portion was transferred to the territory of East Bengal after the announcement of the award, the Government of India would request that immediate steps be taken by the Government of Pakistan to transfer the territory to Assam. The Government of India would also suggest that a Survey Commission be set up consisting of one representative of each Government to demarcate the boundary on the ground along the line Q.

Note by S. Dutt:
The decision of the Cabinet is requested as to whether the Government of Pakistan should be addressed by the Government of India as in the attached draft.

D. When the proposal was circulated to the Cabinet Ministers, Minister of Health Rajkumari Amrit Kaur had her reservation which she recorded in her Note as under:

The Legal Adviser’s opinion may show perhaps that the matter in dispute did not receive full consideration in all its aspects in the original note on which the decision to hand over certain territory to Pakistan was based. The conclusion however of the Legal Adviser is that the case is arguable.

On the other hand, the opinion, of the Secretary of the Law Ministry would show that at any rate there was a possible interpretation of the Award which justified the handing over of the territory.

In these circumstances, it seems to me that two difficulties arise (i) that the fact that a possible interpretation was accepted by the Government of India as the interpretation of the Award must now weigh against the Government of India’s present interpretation. (ii) be that as it may, however, it seems further to me that we have no means of enforcing the interpretation that we now wish to place upon the Award short of going to war with Pakistani unless Pakistan agrees to a reference to some judicial tribunal. It seems to me that Pakistan is not likely to agree to any such thing and the therefore it will be useless to prosecute the matter beyond the stage when Pakistan has refused to abide by a judicial decision as to the meaning of the Award.

F. Letter from the Ministry of External Affairs to the Government of Pakistan on the question of interpretation of the Award on Sylhet.

    Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations,
    Karachi.

Sir,

I am directed by the Government of India to invite the attention of the Government of Pakistan to the award of the Bengal Boundary Commission in regard to Sylhet district.

2. As the Government of Pakistan are aware, this award is contained in paragraph 13 of the report submitted on the 13th August, 1947, by Sir Cyril Radcliffe to the Governor- General of India. After stating that in the circumstances discussed in the three immediately preceding paragraphs of the report, some of the non-Muslim Thanas of Sylhet district must go to East Bengal and some Muslim territory must be retained by Assam Sir Cyril Radcliffe gives directions for the drawing of a line across the district of Sylhet.

C the point where that river meets the boundary between the districts of Sylhet and Cachar.

4. The award then directs categorically that “so much of the district of Sylhet as lies to the west and north of this line shall be detached from the Province of Assam and transferred to the Province of East Bengal and no other part of the Province of Assam shall be transferred”.

5. The Government of India have given very careful consideration to the question as to how the operative part of the award quoted in the preceding paragraph ought to be interpreted. They have come to the conclusion that the area lying to the west and north of the line ABC must be determined by drawing a straight line Q due west from A the southernmost point, and another straight line P due north from C the eastern most point. Whatever part of the Sylhet district falls to the south of the straight line Q or to the east of the straight line P clearly does not lie to the west and north of the line ABC and ought not to be transferred to East Bengal. In the opinion of the Government of India, the Radcliffe award has not transferred this latter part of the district of Sylhet to East Bengal and this area remains within the Province of Assam and consequently the Dominion of India.

6. In support of the above contention the Government of India first wish to observe that for purposes of sub-section (3) of Section 3 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, it is the award of the Boundary Commission which is material and operative, and sub-section (4) of this section defines the expression “award” as meaning the decisions of the Chairman of the Boundary Commission contained in his report to the Governor-General at the conclusion of the Commission’s proceedings. In this particular case, then, the award is that part of the report which follows the words “Accordingly I decide and award as follows”.

7. Secondly, it should be noted that the award does not state that the (whole of) the line ABC shall constitute the only boundary between the two parts into which the district of Sylhet is to be divided under the award. If Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s intention was otherwise, he could easily have said so in the award.

8. Thirdly, if Sir Cyril Radcliffe meant to apportion the area lying south of the straight line Q to East Bengal, he could have said so in plain terms as he did in the case of Jalpaiguri district in the main Bengal award (vide the last sentence of paragraph 1 of annexure A to the report of the Bengal Boundary

The contrary formula actually adopted by him must, therefore, be given its appropriate and full meaning, and in doing so the existence of a part of Sylhet district to the south of the straight line Q cannot be ignored.

9. Fourthly, the various and conflicting considerations discussed by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in paragraphs 10, 11 and 12 of the report are not intended to, and do not, form part of the award which, as already pointed out, is set out clearly and precisely in paragraph 13 of the report.

Reply from Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs to Ministry of External Affairs regarding interpretation of the Radcliffe's Award on Sylhet.

From: The Secretary to the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations.

To: The Additional Secretary to the Government of India, Ministry of External Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, New Delhi.

Sir,

With reference to your letter No.F.12-6/48-PAK.I., dated the 1st July, 1948, I am directed by the Government of Pakistan to state that for reasons given below the Government of Pakistan are unable to agree with the interpretation that has been put by the Government of India on the Award of Sir Cyril Radcliffe.

2. Under Section 3(4) of the Indian Independence Act the “award” means the decision of the Chairman of the Boundary Commission. A perusal of the report submitted by Sir Cyril Radcliffe to the Governor-General will show that preliminary facts are stated in paras.1, 2, 3 and 4, and from para. 5 onwards the decision of the Chairman is given on the several contentions of the parties before the Boundary Commission. Paras 5, 6 and 7 contain the decision of the Chairman on three preliminary points which had been raised before the Boundary Commission. In paragraph 8, after stating that the members of the Commission were unable to arrive at an agreed view as to how the boundary line should be drawn and, after discussion of their differences, had invited him to give his decision, he expressly adds, “This I now proceed to do”. In paras 10, 11 and 12 he examines the various considerations on which a decision as to the boundary between East Bengal and Assam might be based. In these paras, he considers what were Muslim and non-Muslim majority Thanas in the Districts of Sylhet and Cachar. He finds himself unable to divide the Districts of Sylhet and Cachar on the basis of the majority areas and says that, “A study of the map shows that a division on these lines would present problems of administration that might gravely affect the future welfare and happiness of the whole District.” Holding this view, he says in para,13 that “some exchange of territories must be effected if a workable division is to result. Some of the non-Muslim Thanas must go to East Bengal and some Muslim territory and Hailakandi must be retained by Assam.” Then he adds, “Accordingly I decide and award as follows”. The word “Accordingly” clearly shows that the proceeds to make the decision contained in para 13 as to the boundary for reasons already stated by him in paras 10, 11, 12 and in the earlier portion of para 13.

3. It is a well-known rule of construction applicable to all written instrument that, “the instrument must be construed as a whole in order to ascertain the true meaning of its several clauses and the words of each clause must be so interpreted as to bring them into harmony with the other provisions of the instrument, if that interpretation does no violence to the meaning of which they are naturally susceptible. The best construction of deeds is to make one part of the deed expound the other, and so to make all the parts agree. And effect must, as far as possible, be given to every word and every clause”. In the present case, Sir Cyril Radcliffe has himself by using the word “Accordingly” put the matter beyond doubt; but even apart from the use of this word, the Award could not be construed in any other manner.

4. Apart from these considerations the Government of Pakistan desire to point out that point A on the map alleged to have been marked ‘A’ by Sir Cyril and attached to the Award is the point where the boundary between the thanas of Patharkandi had Kulaura meets the frontier of Tripura State and Sir Cyril Radcliffe draws the line northwards from that point. He holds that this line should divide the district of Sylhet into two parts and the part of the District lying east of this line should be included in Assam and the part lying to the west and north of this line should be included in East Bengal. The portion of the District of Sylhet claimed by the Government of India as part of Assam is clearly to the west of point A and also west of Line A B. It is certainly not in the south of point A or line A B. The map which is alleged to have been drawn up by Sir Cyril under para 14 of the Award places the question beyond any controversy. It is categorically stated in that map above the signature of Sir Cyril Radcliffe as follows:-

This proves conclusively that the District of Sylhet is divided between the two Provinces by that line and the line ABC constitutes the only boundary between the two parts in which that District has been divided under the Award.

5. If Sir Cyril Radcliffe intended to give the portion of the District of Sylhet to the Province of Assam now claimed, he would have drawn the imaginary line from A to Q as is now drawn up by the Government of India and clearly and distinctly stated both in the Award and the map that the District of Sylhet has been divided into three parts and the portion, south of line A to Q has been awarded to the Province of Assam.

6. It is important to note that the imaginary line AQ drawn by the Government of India is not only purely arbitrary and runs counter the terms of reference of the Commission as well as to all consideration which Sir Cyril based his Award; it cuts off the southern portion of Ajmiriganj Thana which Sir Cyril specifically mentioned in para 10 as one of the thanas that must inevitably go to East Bengal.

7. In paragraph 8 of your letter under reference you have referred to Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s Award in respect of Jalpaiguri district in support of your interpretation. The Government of Pakistan consider that, if the interpretation which the Government of India seeks to place on the Sylhet Award were accepted, they would be clearly entitled to include in East Bengal the area marked red in the accompanying map (which is illustrative and not authoritative) and hereby reserve their right to claim the said territory.

8. I am to draw your attention to paragraph 1 of Annexure A to the Report of the Bengal Boundary Commission according to which: “A line shall be drawn along the boundary between the Thana of Phansidewa in the District of Darjeeling and the Thana Tetulia in the District of Jalpaiguri from the point where that boundary meets the Province of Bihar and then along the boundary between the Thanas of Tetulia and Rajganj; the Thanas of Pachagar and Rajganj, and the Thanas of Pachagar and Jalpaiguri, and shall then continue along the northern corner of the Thana Debiganj to the boundary of the State of Cooch-Behar. The District of Darjeeling and so much of the District of Jalpaiguri as lies north of this line shall belong to West Bengal, but the Thana of Patgram and any other portion of Jalpaiguri District which lies to the east or south shall belong to East Bengal”

9. There is no dispute as to the location of the line ABC. If the word ‘north’ occurring in para 1 just quoted is interpreted in the same way as the Government of India desire to interpret the words “west” and “north” in the case of the Sylhet award, only that portion of Jalpaiguri district which is directly north of the line described in paragraph 1 and marked in red link in Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s map, should go to West Bengal. The rest of the district of Jalpaiguri lying to the east of the yellow vertical line CD drawn due north from the south and of Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s boundary line would clearly belong to East Bengal.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

(T.B. Creagh Coen)

for Secretary to the Government of Pakistan

MEMORANDUM

Subject: East Bengal-Assam Boundary Interpretation of the Radcliffe Award.

At its meeting on the 25th June, 1948, the Cabinet approved of the draft letter put up by the Ministry of Law on the subject of wrong interpretation of the Radcliffe Award regarding certain territories in the old District of Sylhet and directed the Ministry of External Affairs and Commonwealth Relations to take steps to send the letter to the Government of Pakistan. The letter was despatched on the 1st July, 1948 and a reply has now been received from the Government of Pakistan. Copies of the letter to Pakistan and their reply are attached.

2. The reply has been shown to the Legal Adviser to this Ministry and to the Ministry of law. The opinion of the Legal Adviser is as follows:

“The analogy drawn by Pakistan; with the division of Bengal is, in my opinion, fallacious as the words relied on are not the same. So far as Jalpaiguri is concerned, the words used are (1) so much as lies in the ‘north of this line’, (2) ‘which lies in the East or South’. There is, in strict law, a clear distinction between ‘north’, ‘East or South’ and ‘North and West’. Suppose any point of origin with; axes at right angles to each other and a line drawn in the plane as shown in the figure below.

The entire area lying ‘north’ of this line is easily discernible. Similarly the entire area lying East or South is discernible by drawing imaginary lines. To find the area lying West and North however, a line has to be drawn due North from the Northern-most point of the line and due West from the Western-most point of the line and only that area will be ‘West and North’. I think this is a correct answer to the claim to Jalpaiguri or any portion thereof. As regards para 3 of the Pakistan reply, the argument in the abstract, is correct provided however the words in the operative part are not clear and unambiguous. The question therefore is whether the words “West and North” are not clear in themselves and need no interpretation. Even if they are considered ambiguous in the context the question remains what is the true interpretation of the award. As I stated previously the matter is arguable and by no means so clear as Pakistan makes out in para 2. My previous note and Mr. Sundaram’s admirable note on the point may be considered. Para 4 does not appear to me to advance the matter at all. The division does not become three fold because the Western boundary to the South of the line A.B. is advanced Westward, while remaining South of the line.

Para 5. The words ‘East and North’ imply an imaginary line AQ. It is a question whether by the specific words with reference to Amirganj thana, the line AQ stops at its intersection with that district and runs Southward following the boundary of that thana. I have already dealt with the claim to a portion of Jalpaiguri. I humbly suggest Mr. Sundaram should also be consulted. I must repeat the caution that the fact that we accepted a different interpretation must weigh heavily against us.”

3. The opinion of the Secretary of the Ministry of Law (Mr. Sundaram) is as follows:-

“Paragraphs 2 and 3 of Pakistan Government’s letter:

The arguments in these two paragraphs were only to be expected, but do not effectively counter the contention put forward in paragraph 9 of our letter. The rule of construction stated in paragraph 3 of the Pakistan Government’s letter may, of course, be applied to the decision (or award) and to ‘every word and clause’ of that decision, but the decision is contained entirely in the second sub-paragraph of paragraph 13 of the Report.

2. Paragraph 4 ibid: The statement at ‘A’ on page 168/cor. (in para 4 of the Pakistan Government’s reply) should be verified with reference to the original signed copy of the map which, I understand, is in the custody of the External Affairs Ministry. If Sir Cyril Radcliffe has actually stated on the map that ‘Red Line A B C forms boundary between Provinces of Assam and East Bengal in District of Sylhet’, it certainly makes our case even weaker, since the necessary implication would be that no other boundary line within the district of Sylhet was intended by him. (See paragraph 7 of our letter in this connection.)

3. Paragraphs 5 and 6 ibid: were also to be expected, and I have no special comments thereon.
4. Paragraphs 7, 8 and 9 ibids: I have nothing to add to Kunwar Dalip Singh’s observations in regard to the Jalpaiguri point.

4. It has been verified from the original signed copy of the map that Sir Cyril Radcliffe has actually written on the maps:

5. H.P.M. directed that H.M. Transport should see the case and if he desires, the matter should be placed before the Cabinet.

6. H.M. Transport, while agreeing it that “the matter has certainly to be reported to Cabinet in view of its previous directive”, has commented as follows:

“After looking at the map at flag ‘E’ and the certificate therein of Radcliffe, I have come to the conclusion that our case is more than ordinarily weak. The line ABC is not disputed. When the Radcliffe award speaks of the portions of Sylhet district west and north of this line it was a loose but a fairly definite description of what he meant. He obviously meant the portions of Sylhet west of the line A B and north of the line B C. That the winding southern boundary of the Sylhet district includes an area south of a line that may be drawn due west from the point A is obviously not a strong argument in favour of the view we have taken that that portion is not specifically covered in the area west of the line AB. The map and the certificate on it, apart from other considerations, will be accepted by any arbitrator as almost conclusive evidence that the whole of the Sylhet district is divided into two parts by the red-line ABC shown on the map. I am afraid we can hardly pursue this matter further with Pakistan.”

7. The case is placed before the Cabinet for further consideration. The points for decision are (1) whether the matter should be pursued with the Government of Pakistan and (2) if the matter is not to be pursued, whether there would be any point in seeking to controvert the argument of that Government in regard to Jalpaiguri.

(A) East-West Bengal disputes concerning—

(i) the boundary between the district of Murshidabad (West Bengal) and the district of Rajshahi including the thanas of Nawabganj and Shibganj of pre-partition Malda District (East Bengal); and

(ii) that portion of the common boundary between the two Dominions which lies between the point on ‘the River Ganges where the channel of the river Mathabhanga takes off according to Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s Award and the northern-most point where the channel meets the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur according to that Award.

In the event of disagreement between the members, the decision of the Chairman shall be final in all matters. The Tribunal shall report within three months from the date of its first sitting.

(3) After the Tribunal has adjudicated upon the disputes, the boundaries shall be demarcated jointly by the experts of both Dominions. If there is any disagreement between the experts regarding the actual demarcation of the boundary in situ, such disagreement shall be referred to the Tribunal for decision and the boundary shall be demarcated finally in accordance with such decision.

3.(1) The Committee further recommends that the entire boundary between East-West Bengal (other than the portion described in paragraph 2 above) should also be demarcated without further delay by the Directors of Land Records of the two Provinces assisted by such staff and in such manner as they might mutually agree upon, areas where disputes have arisen or may arise being taken up first.
The Committee recommends that the boundary between East Bengal on the one hand and Assam, Tripura State and Cooch Behar State (India) on the other, except the portions described in para. 2 above, should also be demarcated as soon as possible by the Directors of Land Records of the Provinces or States concerned, assisted by such staff and in such manner as they might mutually agree upon.

4. The cost of the Tribunal and of implementing the recommendations contained in paragraphs 2 and 3 above other than that of the staff normally employed by the two Governments shall be borne equally by both Dominions.

5. In order to prevent border incidents on the East Bengal-West Bengal and East Bengal-Assam borders, the Committee recommends that all border incidents other than those involving questions of policy shall be settled by the District Magistrates and failing them by the Commissioners of the Provinces concerned or where there are no Commissioners, by officers of equivalent rank and steps shall be taken to prevent the recurrence of such incidents in the future.

6. Regarding the incidents on Tripura-East Bengal border, the Committee agreed that both Governments must take all possible steps to prevent the recurrence of such incidents in future. Such incidents shall be settled by the District Magistrates of the districts concerned in East Bengal and the Dewan of Tripura State who should meet as soon as practicable, with a view to holding a joint enquiry, if necessary, followed by such other action as the circumstances may necessitate. In the event of disagreement between the District Magistrate and the Dewan the matter shall be referred to His Excellency the Governor of Assam and the Hon’ble the Premier of East Bengal or their nominees, for decision.

7. Both Governments agree that henceforth no attempt will be made by either side to settle boundary disputes by force.

8. Interim Arrangements.

(i) East Bengal-Assam border.—The Committee recommends the following proposals for the interim administration of the Patharia Reserve Forest on the East Bengal-Assam border:

1. There shall be no armed forces of either Government of any description within 5 miles of the periphery of the Reserve Forest.

2. East Bengal Government shall be in possession of the Reserve Forest west of the Radcliffe Line and Assam Government shall be in possession of the Reserve Forest east of the Radcliffe Line.
The strength of the Forest staff to be employed by each of the two Governments on each side of the Radcliffe Line shall be determined jointly by the Conservators of Forests, East Bengal and Assam.

(3) Each side undertakes not to make any new construction of any description within the areas of the Reserve Forest, of which it will be placed in charge, for the interim administration, provided, however, that there shall be no objection to any special operations necessary in connection with the oil boring by the B.O.C. on either side of the Radcliffe Line within the Reserve Forest.

(4) In order to satisfy themselves that each of them is carrying out the undertakings set out above, the two Governments will agree to the areas of the Forest placed in their respective charges being inspected by a joint Committee of Officers, one of each Government, not below the rank of a Divisional Forest Officer assisted by such advisers as each might consider necessary.

(ii) East Bengal-West Bengal border (Rajshahi-Murshidabad).—It was agreed that without prejudice to the rights of either Government to the area in dispute each Government shall continue to maintain possession of the areas which are now in its possession along the East Bengal-West Bengal border. The area now in actual possession of West Bengal at Ghughumari Ghat (Rainapur) shall be cordoned off by East Bengal on its periphery on the East Bengal side and shall continue to remain in possession of West Bengal provided that—

(a) both West Bengal's and East Bengal's anti-smuggling staff may be stationed in this area and may freely patrol the river bank along this area; and

(b) that West Bengal will exercise Civil and Criminal jurisdiction over this area and shall post a Magistrate on the spot to deal with local cases.

Dacca, January 26, 1950

Decisions given by The Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Tribunal in Conformity with the agreement concluded at the Inter-Dominion Conference at Delhi on December 14th, 1948, between
The Dominion of India and
The Dominion of Pakistan
Relating to the interpretation of the Report of the Bengal Boundary Commission, August 12th and 13th, 1947.

By the Indian Independence Act, 1947, as from August 15th, 1947 two independent Dominions were set up in India, to be known respectively as India and Pakistan. According to Section 2(2), it was provided that the territories of Pakistan should be inter alia the territories which, on the appointed day, were included in the Province of East Bengal, as constituted under Section 3. It was laid down in this Section that the Province of Bengal, as constituted under the Government of India Act 1935, should cease to exist and that there should be constituted in lieu thereof of two new Provinces, to be known respectively as East Bengal and West Bengal. The boundaries of the new Province of East Bengal should be such as may be determined, whether before or after the appointed day, by the award of a boundary commission appointed or to be appointed by the Governor General in that behalf, and the expression "award" should mean, in relation to boundary commission, the decisions of the Chairman of that commission contained in his report to the Governor General at the conclusion of the commission's proceedings.

The Commission known as the Bengal Boundary Commission, was constituted by the Governor General on June 30th, 1947. The Commission presented to the Governor General the following two reports dated the 12th and 13th August, 1947, respectively:

1. Report of the Bengal Boundary Commission for the division of Bengal Province - [Document No.2740]
2. Report of the Bengal Boundary Commission relating to Sylhet District and adjoining districts of Assam-[Document No. 653 p. 1472] Certain disputes arose out of the interpretation of this Report, generally known as the Radcliffe Award. By special agreement concluded on December 14, 1948, at the Inter Dominion Conference held at New Delhi the two Dominions agreed as follows for the settlement of these Disputes:

(1) “A Tribunal should be set up at as early a date as possible and not later than January 31st, 1949, for the adjudication and final settlement of the following boundary disputes arising out of the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award and for demarcating the boundary accordingly”:

(A) East-West Bengal disputes concerning -

(i) the boundary between the district of Murshidabad (West Bengal) and the district of Rajshahi including the thanas of Nawabganj and Shibganj of pre-partition Malda district (East Bengal); and

(ii) that portion of the common boundary between the two Dominions which lies between the point on the River Ganges where the channel of the River Mathabhanga takes off according to Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s award and the northernmost point where the channel meets the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur according to that Award.

(B) East Bengal-Assam disputes concerning -

(i) the Patharia Hill Reserve Forest; and

(ii) the course of the Kusiyara River.

(2) The Tribunal shall consist of three members as follows: One member nominated by each of the two Dominions of India and Pakistan, such person being one who is holding or has held high judicial office and a Chairman who is holding or has held high judicial office and is acceptable to both Dominions. In the event of disagreement between the members, the decision of the Chairman shall be final in all matters. The Tribunal shall report within three months from the date of its first sitting.

(3) After the Tribunal has adjudicated upon the disputes, the boundaries shall be demarcated jointly by the experts of both Dominions. If there is any disagreement between the experts regarding the actual demarcation of the boundary in situ, such disagreement shall be referred to the Tribunal for decision and the boundary shall be demarcated finally in accordance with such decision.

(4) The Tribunal shall prescribe the procedure to be followed for adjudicating upon the disputes as well as for deciding the point or points of disagreement, if any arising from the demarcation of boundary.”
According to the agreement the cost of the Tribunal and of implementing the agreement contained in paragraph (1), (2) and (3) above other than that of the staff normally employed by the two Governments should be borne equally by both Dominions.

Pursuant to section (2) of the said Agreement the Governments of the two Dominions nominated as members of the Tribunal: the Government of India, The Hon'ble Chandrasekhara Aiyer, retired judge of the Madras High Court and the Government of Pakistan, The Hon'ble M. Shahabuddin, judge of the High Court at Dacca in East Bengal. The two High Contracting Parties nominated as Chairman, The Hon'ble Algot Bagge, former member of the Supreme Court of Sweden.

By Special agreements in November, 1949, between the Governments of the two Dominions it was settled that the Tribunal thus composed should be deemed to have been set up in terms of the Delhi Agreement of December 14th, 1948, that the Tribunal should open its proceedings at Calcutta and that it should sit part of the time at Calcutta and part of the time at Dacca, the Headquarters of the Tribunal being wherever it is sitting for the time being. It was also agreed that the sittings at Calcutta and Dacca should be for approximately equal periods. All arrangements for the sittings at Calcutta should be made by the Government of India and those for the sittings at Dacca by the Government of Pakistan.

On December 3rd, 1949, the Tribunal held an informal meeting in the Great Eastern Hotel at Calcutta and acting pursuant to the provisions of the Inter-Dominion Agreement of 1948, established the necessary rules for the procedure. It was decided -

(i) that the Tribunal would be known as “The Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Tribunal”.

(ii) that the hearing concerning East-West Bengal disputes should take place at Calcutta and the hearings concerning East Bengal-Assam disputes should take place at Dacca;

(iii) that the hearing should be open to public, the Tribunal reserving to themselves the right to make exceptions to this rule;

(iv) that the Tribunal should hear oral arguments by Counsel of each Party, in the dispute concerning the boundary between the district of Murshidabad and the district of Rajshahi, the Indian Government beginning and the Pakistan Government replying; in the dispute concerning the River Mathabhanga the Pakistan Government beginning and the Indian Government replying; in the dispute concerning the Patharia Hill Reserve Forest, the Indian Government beginning and the Pakistan Government replying and in the dispute concerning the course of the River Kusiyara, the Pakistan Government beginning and the Indian Government replying;

(v) that the procedure should be informal, and

(vi) that the proceedings should be recorded by the Secretary General appointed by the Tribunal, a full shorthand report being also made.

The Tribunal appointed as Secretary-General to the Tribunal the Hon'ble G.de Sydow, judge of the Court of Appeal at Stockholm.

An official report of the oral proceedings was prepared by the Secretary-General to the Tribunal. Also a complete shorthand report of the hearings was made under the supervision of the Tribunal and the Parties. When closing the hearings on January 12th 1950, the Chairman stated that the decisions of the Tribunal would be delivered to the two Governments in writing within about one month’s time from that date.

II

The Tribunal having carefully considered the cases, oral arguments, documents and maps presented by either side and finding a local inspection in Dispute II unnecessary, makes the following decisions;

Dispute I

The dispute concerns the boundary between the district of Murshidabad (West Bengal) and the district of Rajshahi including the the thana Nawabganj and Shibganj of pre-partition Malda district (East Bengal).

Mr. Justice Chandrasekhara Aiyer opines as follows: (Not Included)

The conclusion of Mr. Justice Chandrasekhara Aiyar is as follows:

The district boundary on the date of the Award must be ascertained and demarcated. If this is impossible, the midstream line of the river Ganges and the land boundary will be demarcated within one year from the date of the publication of this Award.

Mr. Justice Shahabuddin opines as follows: (Not Included)

The Conclusion of Mr. Justice Shahabuddin is as follows:

The construction put by Pakistan on the Award in connection with this dispute is correct and reasonable and the boundary in this area, except over the Rampur-Boalia Char is flexible and not rigid and the boundary line shall run along the course described in the Pakistan statement of the case, subject only to such geographical variations as may result from changes occurring in the course of the river Ganges.

The Chairman opines as follows: (Appendix-III)

The conclusion of the Chairman is as follows:

In the area in dispute the district boundary line, consisting of the land boundary portion of the district boundary as shown on the map Annexure B' and as described in the Notification No. 10413-Jur., of 11-11-40, and the boundary following the course of the midstream of the main channel of the river Ganges as it was at the time of the Award given by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in his Report of August 12th, 1947, is the boundary between India and Pakistan to be demarcated on the site.

If the demarcation of this line is found to be impossible, the boundary between India and Pakistan in this area shall then be a line consisting of the land portion of the above mentioned boundary and of the boundary following the course of the midstream of the main channel of the river Ganges as determined on the date of demarcation and not as it was on the date of the Award. The demarcation of this line shall be made as soon as possible and at the latest within one year from the date of the publication of this decision.

Having regard to the fact that the two Members have disagreed in their views and that the Chairman has agreed with Mr. Justice Chandrasekhara Aiyer and giving effect therefore to the terms of section (2) of the Delhi Agreement under which the view of the Chairman has to prevail, the Tribunal gives the following:

Decision

In the area in dispute the district boundary line consisting of the land boundary portion of the district boundary as shown on the map Annexure 'B' and as described in the Notification No. 10413 -Jur of 11-11-40 and the boundary following the course of the midstream of the main channel of the river Ganges as it was at the time of the Award given by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in his Report of August 12th, 1947 is the boundary between India and Pakistan to be demarcated on the site.

If the demarcation of this line is found to be impossible, the boundary between India and Pakistan in this area shall then be a line consisting of the land portion of the above mentioned boundary and of the boundary following the course of the midstream of the main channel of the river Ganges as determined on the date of demarcation and not as it was on the date of the Award. The demarcation of this line shall be made as soon as possible and at the latest within one year from the date of the publication of this decision.

Dispute II

The dispute concerns that portion of the common boundary between the two Dominions which lies between the point on the river Ganges where the channel of the river Mathabhanga takes off according to Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s Award and the northernmost point where the channel meets the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur according to that Award.

Mr. Justice Chandrasekhara Aiyar opines as follows: (Not Included)

The conclusion of Mr. Justice Chandrasekhara Aiyar is as follows:

(a) Sir Cyril’s line in the Award map (Document No. 72)\(^1\) showing the Mathabhanga river in red ink is to be adopted as the boundary.

(b) If this is not possible, the river Mathabhanga shall be taken as that which commences from the loop of the Ganges as found in the congregated air map (Document No. 164)\(^1\) and the boundary shall be along the middle line of the main stream from the point of the said off-take to the northernmost point where the line meets the boundary of the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur; the off-take point of the river as now demarcated shall be connected by a shortest straight line with the point nearest to it on the midstream of the main channel of the river Ganges. The centre line shall be a rigid boundary and demarcated accordingly as on the date of Sir Cyril’s Award or, if this is found impossible, as on the date of this decision.

Mr. Justice Shahabuddin opines as follows: (Not Included)

The conclusion of Mr. Justice Shahabuddin is as follows:

The boundary line in this case is a fluid boundary and not a rigid one, and it shall run on water along the course described in the statement of the case of Pakistan, subject only to such geographical variations as may result from changes occurring in the course of the river Mathabhanga.

The Chairman opines as follows: (Appendix-VI)

The conclusion of the Chairman is as follows:

The boundary between India and Pakistan shall run along the middle line of the main channel of the river Mathabhanga which takes off from the river Ganges in or close to the north-western corner of the district of Nadia at a point west-south-west of the police station and the camping ground of the village of Jalangi as they are shown on the air photograph map of 1948, and then flows southwards to the northernmost point of the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur.

The point of the off-take of the river Mathabhanga shall be connected by a straight and shortest line with a point in the midstream of the main channel of the river Ganges, the said latter point being ascertained as on the date of the Award or if not possible as on the date of the demarcation of the boundary line in Dispute I. The said point so ascertained shall be the south-eastern-most point of the boundary line in Dispute I, this point being a fixed point.

Having regard to the fact that the Members have disagreed and that the Chairman has disagreed with both of them and giving effect, therefore, to the terms of section (2) of the Delhi Agreement under which the view of the Chairman has to prevail, the Tribunal gives the following:

Decision

The boundary between India and Pakistan shall run along the middle line of the main channel of the river Mathabhanga which takes off from the river Ganges in or close to the north-western corner of the district of Nadia at a point west-south-west of the police station and the camping ground of the village of Jalangi as they are shown on the air photograph map of 1948, and then flows southwards to the northernmost point of the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur.

The point of the off-take of the river Mathabhanga shall be connected by a straight and shortest line with a point in the midstream of the main channel of the river Ganges, the said latter point being ascertained as on the date of the Award or if not possible as on the date of the demarcation of the boundary line in Dispute I. The said point so ascertained shall be the south-eastern-most point of the boundary line in Dispute I, this point being a fixed point.

Dispute III

The dispute concerns the Patharia Hills Reserve Forest.

Mr. Justice Chandrasekhara Aiyar opines as follows: (Not Included)
The conclusion of Mr. Justice Chandrasekhara Aiyar is as follows:

The portion to the west of the forest boundary line as drawn by Sir Cyril Radcliffe, (Document No. 184) and shown in white in India’s index map, (Document No. 185), shall belong to East Bengal but the rest of the forest lying to the east of the said line shall belong to Assam.

Mr. Justice Shahabuddin opines as follows: (Not Included)

The conclusion of Mr. Justice Shahabuddin is as follows:

The boundary line delineated on the map of the Award accords with the description given in the Award, and that line shall be the boundary line in this area and the portion of the forest to the west of that line, i.e., the portion shown in white in the index map shall be awarded to East Bengal (Pakistan) and the portion to the east of the line i.e., the portion shown in blue in the index map to the province of Assam (India).

The Chairman opines as follows: (Appendix-IX)

The Conclusion of the Chairman is as follows:

The line indicated in the map ‘A’ attached to the Award is the boundary between India and Pakistan. Now, therefore, in view of the unanimous conclusions of the Chairman and the Members the Tribunal gives the following:

Decision

The red line indicated in the map ‘A’ attached to the Award given by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in his report of August 13th, 1947, is the boundary between India and Pakistan.

Dispute IV

The dispute concerns the course of the Kusiyara river.

Mr. Justice Chandrasekhara Aiyar opines as follows: (Not Included)

The conclusion of Mr. Justice Chandrasekhara Aiyar is as follows:

The line drawn by Sir Cyril Radcliffe from the north-western corner of the Patharia Hills Reserve Forest up to the point ‘B’ in the Award map (Document No. 342) is the correct boundary line.

The line BC in the Award map is correctly shown as the Kusiyara river and will constitute the boundary between East Bengal and Assam.

Mr. Justice Shahabuddin opines as follows: (Not Included)

The boundary in this area shall run along the southern river i.e., the river wrongly described as Sonai in the Award map, from the point where the land boundary running from the south to the north meets the said river, to the point from where that river takes its waters through Noti Khal from the northern river, i.e., the river named on the said map as Boglia and thence along the latter river to the boundary between the districts of Sylhet and Cachar.

The Chairman opines as follows:

The conclusion of the Chairman is as follows:

From the point where the boundary between the thanas of Karimganj and Beani Bazar meets the river described as the Sonai river on the map ‘A’ attached to the Award given by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in his Report of August 13th, 1947 (Gobindapur) up to the point marked ‘B’ on the said map (Birasri) the red line indicated on the said map is the boundary between India and Pakistan.

From the point ‘B’ the boundary between India and Pakistan shall turn to the east and follow the river which according to the said map runs to that point from the point ‘C’ marked on the said map on the boundary line between the districts of Sylhet and Cachar.

Having regard to the fact that the two Members have disagreed in their views and that the Chairman has agreed with Mr. Justice Chandrasekhara Aiyar, and giving effect, therefore, to the terms of section (2) of the Delhi Agreement under which the view of the Chairman has to prevail, the Tribunal gives the following:

Decision

From the point where the boundary between the thanas of Karimganj and Beani Bazar meets the river described as the Sonai river on the map ‘A’ attached to the Award given by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in his Report of August 13th, 1947 (Gobindapur) up to the point marked ‘B’ on the said map (Birasri) the red line indicated on the said map is the boundary between India and Pakistan.

From the point ‘B’ the boundary between India and Pakistan shall turn to the east and follow the river which according to the said map runs to that point from the point ‘C’ marked on the said map on the boundary line between the districts of Sylhet and Cachar.

APPENDIX III

The Opinion of the Chairman on Dispute No. 1

The case submitted in this dispute on behalf of the Government of India is that the line marked by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in Annexure B of his award is the actual line of demarcation to be worked out on the site and that in consequence this line shall be rigid, not shifting according to the course of the river Ganges.

The case submitted by the Government of Pakistan is that upon a proper construction of the award, the district boundary is and is to remain the boundary between India and Pakistan subject only to such geographical variations as may result from changes occurring in the course of the river.

The relevant portion of the Award in Annexure A in this respect is as follows:

4. From that point a line shall run along the boundary between the following Thanas:

...... Kaliachak and Shibganj; to the point where the boundary between the two last mentioned thanas meets the boundary between the districts of Malda and Murshidabad on the river Ganges.

5. The line shall then turn south-east down the River Ganges along the boundary between the districts of Malda and Murshidabad; Rajshahi and Murshidabad; Rajshahi and Nadia; to the point in the north-western corner of the District of Nadia where the channel of the River Mathabhanga takes off from the River Ganges. The district boundaries, and not the actual course of the River Ganges, shall constitute the boundary between East and West Bengal.

The boundary between Rajshahi and Murshidabad districts was last notified, before the Partition, under Bengal Act IV of 1864, by notification No. 10413-Jur., dated 11th November, 1940. This notification while describing ‘the boundary between Rajshahi district and adjoining districts (Nadia and Murshidabad) going in the direction up the river Ganges states as follows:

boundary of Char Khidirpur (235), thence along the south boundary of Taranagar (232), thence along the eastern boundary of Majher Diar (231), up to the midstream of the Ganges, thence along the midstream of the Ganges up to the junction of the midstream of the Ganges and the Mahananda, river . . . . . .

The district boundary between Malda and Murshidabad was notified last, before the Partition, by notification No. 2667-Jur., dated 6th March, 1942, under Bengal Act IV of 1864. This notification, while describing the southern boundary of the district of Malda (i.e. the boundary between Malda and Murshidabad districts), states as follows:-

“up to the junction with the trijunction point of district of Rajshahi, Malda and Murshidabad on the main channel of the Ganges or Padma river.

South-western and western boundary of the district.

Thence towards north-west and north along the midstream of the main channel of the Ganges or Padma river up to the junction with the trijunction point on the main channel of the districts of Malda, Santhal Parganas and Purnea ...........”

The northern and north-eastern boundary of the Murshidabad district (i.e. the district boundary between Murshidabad on one side and Rajshahi and Malda on the other) was notified under the notification dated February 11th, 1875, as following the stream of the rivers ‘Ganges’ and ‘Pudda’. After that there is no district notification of Murshidabad covering the disputed area, but if the Thana notifications up to 1931 are congregated then the line so formed will tally with the boundary line of Rajshahi and Malda.

According to these notifications the district boundary between Malda and Murshidabad was then “the midstream of the main channel” of the river Ganges and between Murshidabad and Rajshahi “the midstream of the river Ganges” with the exception of the char area in the river Ganges, opposite Rajshahi town, where the boundary line ran over land. The district boundary in consequence according to those notifications ran to about seven eighths in the Ganges and to about one eighth on land, viz., the char area opposite Rajshahi town.

The first question to examine is whether the district notification line in the river Ganges consisting in “the midstream of the main channel of the river Ganges” or “the midstream of the river Ganges” was rigid and object of correction only through a new notification or if this line in the river Ganges was a fluid line.

On behalf of the Indian Government it has been argued that the district boundary always was a rigid line, i.e., when a notification declared the main stream of a river as the boundary, the main stream at the time of the notification was intended. The Pakistan Government on the other side contends that the district boundary in a river was not a fixed boundary in the sense of a demarcated line, but a notional boundary which depended on the existing course of the river. That will say that according to the Government of Pakistan if the main stream of the river left its old bed and formed a new one the district boundary line followed the new mainstream of the river until an official notification made a change in the boundary.

The notifications contain no explicit disposition whether the notifications when talking of the midstream of the river Ganges mean the midstream of the Ganges at the time of the notification—rigid line—or the midstream of the river Ganges as it is any time until the next notification— a flexible line.

However, the correspondence in the Documents Nos. 110-118 indicates that the boundary between the districts by the Governmental authorities was held to be the centre of the stream which at the time in question is actually the main stream, meaning thereby presumably at any time when the question of the boundary came up.

It seems therefore not possible to hold that the district boundary in the river Ganges in the disputed area was a rigid line.

Another question is however whether the boundary between India and Pakistan as established in the award is embodying the flexible line of the district boundaries or whether the boundary between India and Pakistan is according to the award a stationary line.

It is stated in the award that "the line shall then turn south-east down the river Ganges along the boundary between the Districts of Malda and Murshidabad etc., - - , to the point in the north-western corner etc." Supposing that the award had not gone beyond stating this, the boundary between India and Pakistan having incorporated the district boundary would have been a fluid line in the river Ganges down to the char area opposite Rajshahi town, a rigid line over the char and then a fluid line in the river Ganges down to the point where the river Mathabhanga takes off. But the award continues that "the district boundaries, and not the actual course of the river Ganges shall constitute the boundary between East and West Bengal".

The flexible district boundaries which cover about seven-eighth of the boundary stretch now in question, were at the time of the award following the then actual course of the river Ganges.

To take the flexible district boundaries as the boundary between India and Pakistan would then be to have the flowing course of the river Ganges as the boundary on a great part of the boundary line. This would be contrary to the prescription in the award that the actual course of the river Ganges shall not constitute the boundary between East and West Bengal.
It has been maintained that another interpretation of the words “not the actual course etc.” is possible, viz., that the words have been used only to indicate that the boundary should run across the char area. But that should have been the result even without this sentence as it already has been stated in the description that the line should run along the boundary between the two districts, across the char area. It is not possible that Sir Cyril Radcliffe who otherwise in the award has used very concise language just here should have expressed himself in terms which are purely tautological. These words must have a special meaning and according to my opinion the meaning is the one above explained.

The award then cannot mean the boundary to be a flexible line. Such an interpretation having been accepted, the question arises which rigid district boundary lines are meant in the description.

It would, in itself, seem to be a natural thing to interpret the expression “the district boundaries” in Annexure A with the help of the map in Annexure B. On this map there are drawn district boundaries on the stretch in dispute and Sir Cyril Radcliffe has followed these district boundaries in delineating the boundary between India and Pakistan on the stretch in question.

To consider the district boundaries drawn on the map as the district boundaries of the description offers no difficulty as regards the land boundaries. They are put down on the map as notified in the latest notifications and they show the district land boundaries at the time of the award.

But concerning the part of the district boundaries which are following the midstream of the river Ganges difficulties arise in making use of the map as regards the interpretation of the district boundaries of the description in Annexure A.

The map in Annexure B is a congregated map of the district maps used at the time of the latest notifications. As the district maps are based on a survey which was started in 1915 and completed in 1926, the map does not reproduce the position of the river at the time of the notifications but at the time of the survey. The map, in fact, does on the stretch which is following the river Ganges not reproduce any other district boundaries than those determined by the position of the river Ganges at the time about thirty years ago when the survey maps were made on which the map in Annexure B is based. To interpret the words “district boundaries” in the description in Annexure A on this stretch as being the same as district boundaries as determined by the position of the river Ganges as demarcated on the map in Annexure B does not seem possible. The district boundaries and the delineation of the boundary between India and Pakistan following these district boundaries in the river Ganges as demarcated on the map can therefore not be considered as having been meant as an illustration of the words “district boundaries” in the description so far as the district boundaries following the midstream of the river Ganges are concerned.

It remains then as regards the part of the district boundaries which is following the midstream of the river Ganges to decide whether to take the district boundaries as they were at the time of the latest notifications of the districts concerned or the district boundaries as they were at the time of the award.

The position of the district boundaries as they were at the time of the notifications depends so far as they are following the midstream of the river Ganges on the position of the river at the time of the different notifications. As the river Ganges certainly has shifted its course between the dates of these different notifications no continuous and common district boundary line can be taken as existing at the different dates of the notifications so far as the district boundaries of the notifications were determined by the midstream of the river Ganges.

The dates of the latest notifications therefore cannot be taken as the time for deciding the position of the district boundaries.

As regards then the time of the date of the award there is to be remembered the stipulation in Annexure ‘A’ that the district boundaries and not the actual course of the river Ganges shall constitute the boundary between East and West Bengal. The interpretation given of this stipulation is that the boundary as determined by the district boundaries is to be a rigid and not a flexible line.

By taking the district boundary line at the time of the award as a rigid line you do not then come into conflict with the stipulation that the actual flowing course of the river Ganges shall not constitute the boundary.

My conclusion is therefore that in the area in dispute the district boundary line consisting of the land boundary portion of the district boundary as shown on the map, Annexure ‘B’ and as described in the Notification No. 10413-Jur., of 11-11-40, and the boundary following the course of the midstream of the main channel of the river Ganges as it was at the time of the award given by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in his Report of August 12th, 1947, is the boundary between India and Pakistan to be demarcated on the site.

If the demarcation of this line is found to be impossible, the boundary between India and Pakistan in this area shall then be a line consisting of the land portion of the above mentioned boundary and of the boundary following the course of the midstream of the main channel of the river Ganges as determined on the date of demarcation and not as it was on the date of the award. The demarcation of this line shall be made as soon as possible and at the latest within one year from the date of the publication of this decision.

Appendix VI
The Opinion of the Chairman on Dispute No. II

The case submitted in this dispute on behalf of the Government of Pakistan is that the middle line of the channel of the river Mathabhanga within the limits prescribed in (II) 2 in the printed statement of the case of the Government of Pakistan is and is to remain the boundary between India and Pakistan, subject only to such geographical variations as may result from changes occurring in the course of the river Mathabhanga. The limits thus prescribed are as follows:

“At and before the date of the said Award, the Mathabhanga River took off and now takes off from the Ganges near village Godagaridiar J.L. No. 170 of Daulatpur P.S. and flowed as it now flows through mauzas Udainagar Khanda, J.L. No. 169 and Muradpur Diar J.L. No. 172 of Daulatpur P.S., Muradpur Jalangi J.L. No. 30, Sahebrampur J.L. No. 33, Ikuri. J.L. No. 31 of Jalangi P. S. of Murshidabad district, and mauza Madhugari J.L. No. 108 of Karimpur P.S., meeting the boundary between thanas Daulatpur and Karimpur near the south-western corner of Char Sarkarpura J.L. No. 173 of Daulatpur P.S.”

The case submitted on behalf of the Government of India is that the point in the north-western corner of the district of Nadia where the channel of the river Mathabhanga takes off from the river Ganges can be ascertained by reference to Annexure B of Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s Award, i.e., his map, where he has shown the point at which the channel of the Mathabhanga takes off from the river Ganges. The other end of the disputed boundary is the northernmost point where the channel of the Mathabhanga meets the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur. Having taken that point Sir Cyril has drawn the line from there up to the point where the river Mathabhanga, according to his award, takes off from the river Ganges. The Government of India claims the land to the west of the line in Annexure B.

“5 . . . . to the point in the north-western corner of the District of Nadia where the channel of the River Mathabhanga takes off from the River Ganges, the district boundaries, and not the actual course of the River Ganges, shall constitute the boundary between East and West Bengal.

6. From the point on the River Ganges where the channel of the River Mathabhanga takes off, the line shall run along that channel to the northern most point where it meets the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur. The middle line of the main channel shall constitute the actual boundary."
7. From this point the boundary between East and West Bengal shall run along the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur; . . . . . "

It is common ground that there is no dispute as to the boundary proceeding southwards from the point where the channel of the Mathabhanga meets the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur.

The Government of India does not base their case on the presumption that there is, or was, at or about the time when Sir Cyril gave his award, a river Mathabhanga taking off from the river Ganges as indicated on the map attached to the award. They concede that there is no river at that place. They say that—river or no river—there is a rigid line as indicated on the map from the point where, according to the map, the river Mathabhanga takes off from the river Ganges and that the line which is to be followed at the demarcation is, so far as there is a main channel indicated on the map, the line which is equal in distance from both the shores as indicated on the map, and then the line representing the river until this line meets the northernmost point on the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur.

The Government of Pakistan submits that there is a divergence between the boundary as described in Annexure A of the award and as delineated in the map in Annexure B thereof, in that, the position of the off-take and the channel of the river Mathabhanga as shown in the map is incorrect, and that, in accordance with the terms of paragraph 10 of the award, the description in Annexure A thereof must prevail.

The Government of India in this respect refers to what is said in clause 10 in the award: “The demarcation of the boundary line is described in detail in the schedule which forms Annexure A to this award and in the map attached thereto, Annexure B”. The Government of India says: The demarcation is described in detail in the map as also in Annexure A. Therefore, the description is in detail in both. The map is not only for the purpose of illustration, but the demarcation of the boundary line is described in detail in the map. Sir Cyril’s finding on a question of fact is conclusive. He finds the Mathabhanga channel and draws it on the map. There is no divergence between the boundary line in Annexure B and the description in Annexure A.

The Government of Pakistan replies: You must interpret a term in connection with its context. The map is annexed for purposes of illustration, and if there should be any divergence between the boundary as described in Annexure A and as delineated on the map in Annexure B, the description in Annexure A is to prevail. In this case the author of the award has done two things; he has made a delineation and he has also made a description. Delineation is the marking of a red line. His delineation is quite obviously divergent from the description given in Annexure A.
I am of the opinion that it must be held that the award makes a difference between the description in Annexure A and the delineation on the map Annexure B. So far as it is possible to get a solution from the description in Annexure A the delineation on the map is only an illustration of that solution.

In this case such a solution can be found. According to the description in Annexure A Section 5 the line now in dispute shall begin at a point in the north-western corner of the district of Nadia where the channel of the river Mathabhanga take off from the river Ganges. From that point the line shall run along the channel to the northern most point where it meets the boundary between the thanns of Daulatpur and Karimpur.

Air photograph maps established by way of photographs taken from the air in the year 1948 and submitted by the Government of Pakistan (Document No. 164) and an air map of 1939 submitted by the Government of India which is substantially the same as the 1948 air photograph maps, are showing a river taking off from a loop of the river Ganges not far from the point indicated on the Annexure B map. This same river is running south to the northernmost point where it meets the boundary between the thanas aforementioned.

There is no reason why this river should not be accepted as the river described in Annexure A.

The river, as reproduced on the 1948 air photograph maps (Document No. 164), corresponds with the description in Annexure A, with the exception that the place where this river takes off form the river Ganges possibly is situated in the district of Murishdabad, but anyhow quite close to the north-western corner of the District of Nadia. If there is such a difference this cannot however be considered as being of any importance.

The river thus flowing must in consequence be taken as being the river Mathabhanga to which the description in Annexure A of the award refers. The award, Annexure A, says that the boundary line shall be a line running along the channel of the river Mathabhanga and that the middle line of the main channel shall constitute the actual boundary.

The Annexure A, must by that mean an existing river. The river with a channel as traced on the Annexure B map in reality does not exist. The Government of India, however, has contended that the fact that a river with a channel, which takes off from the river Ganges drawn on the Annexure B map, must, even though there is no river at that place, be deemed a reality, the correctness of which cannot be challenged.

This would mean that where there is a divergence between what the description means in this case an existing river, and what the map indicates viz., a river existing though the river does in fact not exist, the map should prevail. This cannot be the meaning of the award.
To accept the line delineated on the Annexure B map as the boundary line would also mean to give this delineation of a line on the map the force of a description as mentioned in Annexure A. Nor would this be in conformity with the award as long as there is a description which is sufficient to give the necessary solution.

The contention of the Government of India that the point in the northwestern corner of the district of Nadia where the channel of the river Mathabhanga takes off form the river Ganges can be ascertained by reference to the Annexure B map can therefore not be accepted.

According to my opinion the beginning of the boundary line shall therefore be the point in or close to the north-western corner of the district of Nadia where the channel of this river takes off from the river Ganges.

There has been some difference of opinion concerning the place where the off-take of the river Mathabhanga is situated. According to my opinion the river Mathabhanga must be held to take off from a loop which forms a part of the river Ganges. This off-take is situated west-south-west of the police station and the camping ground of Jalangi village as these are shown on the air photograph map (Document No, 164). The river Mathabhanga then flows from that off-take southwards to the northernmost point where it meets the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur.

There is not, as in Dispute I, any expression in the award indicating that the boundary line should not follow the line of a flowing stream, with, as is said in the printed statement of the case of Pakistan, such geographical variations of that stream as may result from changes occurring in the course of the river.

There is of course the fact that in the description of the award the channel of the river Mathabhanga is mentioned as taking off from a point in the north-western corner of the district of Nadia. But the purpose of mentioning the area from which the river is flowing should be taken as being made more for an identifying purpose than for establishing any fixed point of off-take.

The boundary line in question shall therefore follow not a rigid line from the off-take of the river Mathabhanga but the middle line of the main channel as it is flowing, down to the northernmost point where the channel meets the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur.

The boundary line running along the boundaries between the districts of Rajshahi and Murshidabad and the districts of Rajshahi and Nadia must be connected with the boundary line beginning where the channel of the river Mathabhanga takes off from the river Ganges. The whole boundary-line must of course be continuous. A connecting boundary line must therefore be drawn, from the boundary line going along the district boundaries aforementioned, to the beginning of the boundary line formed by the middle line of the main channel of the river Mathabhanga beginning at the off-take of the river Mathabhanga as described. This connecting boundary line must follow the shortest way from the beginning of the middle line of the main channel of the river Mathabhanga to the boundary line between the districts of Rajshahi and Nadia.

My conclusion is therefore that the boundary between India and Pakistan shall run along the middle line of the main channel of the river Mathabhanga which takes off from the river Ganges in or close to the north-western corner of the district of Nadia at a point west-south-west of the police station and the camping ground of the village of Jalangi as they are shown on the air photograph map of 1948, and then flows south-wards to the northernmost point of the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur.

The point of the off-take of the river Mathabhanga shall be connected by a straight and shortest line with a point in the midstream of the main channel of the river Ganges, the said latter point being ascertained as on the date of the award or if not possible as on the date of the demarcation of the boundary line in Disputa I. The said point so ascertained shall be the south-eastern-most point of the boundary line in Dispute I, this point being a fixed point.

Appendix IX

The Opinion of the Chairman on Dispute No. III

The case submitted in this dispute on behalf of the Government of India is that India claims the portion of the forest being to the west of the boundary line demarcated on the map ‘A’ attached to the award. The case submitted on behalf of the Government of Pakistan is that the true interpretation of paragraph 13 in the award is a boundary running along the eastern boundary of the Patharia Hills Reserve Forest from the point at which the boundary between thanas Kulaura and Patharkandi, as determined by the award, cuts the south-eastern boundary of the Reserve Forest northward up to the point at which the eastern boundary of the Reserve Forest meets the southern boundary of thana Karimganj.

According to the award the line shall be drawn along the boundary between the thanas of Patharkandi and Barlekha, and then along the boundary between the thanas of Karimganj and Barlekha, and then along its boundary between the thanas of Karimganj and Beani Bazar.

The thana of Patharkandi did not exist as such until 1922 and the thana of Barlekha was constituted in 1940. Before that there existed two thanas, viz.,
Jaldhup and Karimganj, which had a common boundary. This boundary coincides with the line delineated on the map ‘A’ by Sir Cyril Radcliffe. In 1920 the Patharia Hills Reserve Forest was formed. It appears from the description of the boundaries of the forest that the boundary line of Jaldhup thana cut the forest into two, the major portion being to the east of the boundary line and a small portion to the south-west. In 1922 Patharkandi which was till then an outpost of the Karimganj thana was converted into a thana. The west boundary of Patharkandi was described inter alia as Patharia Hills in thana Jaldhup, In the same notification the east boundary of Jaldhup was described inter alia as Patharia Hills of thana Karimganj and Patharia Hills of thana Patharkandi. By a notification of May 28th 1940 the thana of Jaldhup was split up into two thanas, namely Barlekha and Beani Bazar. The eastern boundary of thana Barlekha was described inter alia as the western boundary of the Patharia Hills Reserve Forest. The Jaldhup portion of the forest was not included in the thana of Barlekha or in the thana of Beani Bazar. No corresponding notification of the thana of Patharkandi was made including this portion within its ambit.

The Government of India base their case on the facts that when the thana of Jaldhup was split up into two thanas, namely, Barlekha and Beani Bazar, and when the notification of 1940 constituted these thanas and described their boundaries, the Jaldhup portion of the forest was excluded from the new thana of Barlekha. Sir Cyril Radcliffe has in his award described the Inter-Dominion line in terms of thana boundaries. The line shall run along the boundary between the thanas of Patharkandi and Barlekha. Sir Cyril’s line of demarcation in his Map ‘A’, which is attached to the award, leaves, however, the portion of the forest thus excluded from Barlekha as if it were in Barlekha. For the purpose of illustration Sir Cyril adopted the map of 1937. But he has provided that in case of any divergence between the map and his description, the description will prevail.

The Government of Pakistan submits as a basis for their claim to the whole of Patharia Hills Reserve Forest as follows: For a number of years up to the date of the award and thereafter when occasion arose for the exercise of police jurisdiction within the boundaries of Patharia Hills Reserve Forest, such jurisdiction was exercised by thana Jaldhup up to 1940 and thereafter by thana Barlekha. In the year 1934, when a circle map of Patharkandi Circle was made, that circle did not extend to any part of Patharia Hills Reserve Forest. In the year 1941, the official Census Report included in thana Barlekha persons resident within the boundaries of that forest.

As regards especially Barlekha the Government of Pakistan Submit:

(a) That while the expression “along the boundary between the thanas of Patharkandi and Barlekha” in paragraph 13 of the Award is unambiguous, the delineation of that boundary in the map ‘A’ attached to the Award is incorrect in that it does not show the boundary as stated in the Award; and that, in accordance with the terms of paragraph 14 of the Award, the description of the boundary in paragraph 13 of the Award must prevail;

(b) that the description of the eastern boundary of thana Barlekha in the preliminary notification, dated 2nd September 1938 and in the final notification, dated 28th May, 1940, was made by error; and the said notification was not made in accordance with the requirements of Rule 203 of the Assam Police Manual and the form thereby prescribed and was therefore illegal; and that it was also not acted upon.

(c) that if, on the other hand, the said notification is a valid and effective notification to alter the boundaries of thana Barlekha, there was, in such a case at the date of the Award, no common boundary between thana Barlekha and thana Patharkandi.

As regards the claim of India to the Jaldhup portion of the forest excluded from Barlekha by the notification of 1940 and Pakistan’s claim to that same portion it is established that there does not exist nor did it exist at the time of the award any such common boundary between the thanas of Patharkandi and Barlekha as provided in the award.

The boundary cannot therefore be decided only by reading the description in the award. It is true that generally the map ‘A’ attached to the award only serves the purpose of illustration, but this principle involves a description in the award which is complete and which makes it possible to draw the line after it.

If the description is incomplete we must be allowed to use the map not only as an illustration to the description but also as affording the necessary completion of the description.

The Government of India has submitted that regard should be had to the prescription in the award that so much of the district of Sylhet as lies to the west and north of the described boundary line i.e. inter alia, the line running along the boundary between the thanas of Patharkandi and Barlekha, shall be detached from the Province of Assam and transferred to the Province of East Bengal. This submission does not seem to solve the difficulty, as no such common boundary between the thanas: Patharkandi and Barlekha does exist and the boundary line as demarcated on the map has been drawn along the old common boundary line between the thanas of Patharkandi and Jaldhup. With regard to that fact and to the fact that the description provides a common thana boundary line the Jaldhup portion of the forest must be treated as if it belonged to the thana of Barlekha.
As to the claim of Pakistan to the portion of the forest situated in the thana of Karimganj, I cannot find that what has been put forward as arguments for such a claim are convincing. Even if there may have been police jurisdiction by the thana Barlekha exercised somewhere in the forest neither this nor the other circumstances relied on by the Pakistan Government can be considered to constitute a boundary thana line as provided in the description of the award. Even here replies what has been said as regards the portion of the forest claimed by India, (sic)

My conclusion is therefore that the line indicated in the map market ‘A’ attached to the award is the boundary between India and Pakistan.

Appendix XII

The Opinion of the Chairman on Dispute No. IV.

The case submitted in this dispute on behalf of the Government of Pakistan is that the black line on the map marked ‘A’ attached to the award, going from Gobindapur to Karimganj town, just passing under a figure 32 on the map ‘A’ shall form the boundary line between East Bengal and Assam. As to the boundary line delineated on the map from Karimganj to the boundary between the districts of Sylhet and Cachar the Government of Pakistan concede that this part of the boundary line is following a river which for equitable reasons may be deemed to be the river Kusiyara.

The case submitted by the Government of India is that the red line delineated in the map ‘A’ attached to the award as going from Gobindapur over Birasri to Karimganj town and continuing to the boundary between the districts of Sylhet and Cachar shall be the boundary line between East Bengal and Assam.

The base of the contention of the Government of Pakistan is that the course of the river Kusiyara is running as shown by the black line aforementioned on the map ‘A’ until the little stream Noti Khal which is joining the river Kusiyara with the river which further on meets the boundary between the districts of Sylhet and Cachar and which river for equitable reasons may be deemed to be the river Kusiyara.

The base of the claim of the Government of India is that the course of the river Kusiyara is running along the red line aforementioned, delineated on the map ‘A’. There is in fact a certain confusion as regards the name of the river which according to the description and the map shall be taken as the boundary between India and Pakistan from the point where the boundary between the thanas of Karimganj and Beani Bazar meets this river until the point where the river meets the boundary between the districts of Sylhet and Cachar.
The river which the boundary delineated on the map ‘A’ is following, has, according to evidence produced, been called from time to time Kusiyara or Boglia or Barak, and the last stretch of the river which according to the Government of Pakistan ought to be taken as the boundary for arriving at a just and reasonable implementation of the dominant intention of Sir Cyril Radcliffe is on the map itself called the Boglia river.

On the other side the name of Kusiyara has been used also for the river relied upon by the Government of Pakistan which river through a stream called Noti Khal is connected with the river which on the map ‘A’ is marked Boglia.

It seems to me that under such circumstances the name of the river used in the description does not give in itself a sufficient guidance. The fact, that Sir Cyril Radcliffe has in delineating the boundary followed the first-mentioned river, must then be taken as a sufficient proof that, this river is the river referred to in the description.

My conclusion in therefore that from the point where the boundary between the thanas of Karimganj and Beani Bazar meets the river described as the Sonai river on the map ‘A’ attached to the award (Gobindapur) up to the point marked ‘B’ on the map (Birasri) the red line indicated on the map is the boundary between India and Pakistan.

From the point ‘B’ on the map the boundary between India and Pakistan shall turn to the east and follow the river which according to the map runs to that point from the point on the boundary line between the districts of Sylhet and Cachar which has been marked ‘C’ on the map.

(3) Administrative difficulties arising in connection with the East Bengal enclaves in Cooch Behar and vice versa were considered. The Chief Secretaries agreed to recommend to their respective Governments that in the interest of administrative convenience the question of exchange of these enclaves should be considered at a very early date. 2750. Letter from Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs to Ministry of External Affairs.
Karachi, June 19, 1950.

No. I A.7/20/49

Government of Pakistan
Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations.
Karachi

From: The Secretary to the Government of Pakistan,
Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations,
Karachi.

To: The Secretary to the Government of India,
Ministry of External Affairs,
New Delhi.

Subject: Demarcation of the disputed boundary between East Bengal and Assam.

Sir,
With reference to paragraph 24 of letter from the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, No.IA.7/20/49, dated the 27th April 1950, I am directed to say that in dispute No.III, i.e. the dispute regarding Patharia Hills Reserve Forest, the red line indicated in the map ‘A’ attached to the Award given by Sir Cyril Radcliffe on the 13th August 1947, has been fixed by the Bagge Tribunal as the boundary between East Bengal and Assam. It is necessary to demarcate the line as early as possible. In the absence of the demarcation of the boundary, which runs through the forest, it is difficult for both the Governments to administer their parts properly, and difficulties and misunderstandings arise every now and then.

2. In the dispute regarding the course of the Kusiyara River, the decision of the Tribunal is as follows:

“From the point where the boundary between the thanas of Karimganj and Beani Bazar meets the river described as the Sonai river on the map ‘A’ attached to the Award given by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in his Report of August 13th, 1947, (Gobindapur) up to the point marked ‘B’ on the map (Birasri) the Red line indicated on the said map is the boundary between India and Pakistan.

From the point ‘B’ the boundary between India and Pakistan shall turn to the east and follow the river which according to the said map runs to that point from the point ‘C’ marked on the said map on the boundary line between the districts of Sylhet and Cachar”.

3. It is also necessary that the boundary line as fixed by the Tribunal from near Gobindapur on the River described as Sonai up to Birasri on the bank of the northern river which has been found by the Tribunal to be Kusiyara River should also be demarcated by clear boundary marks in order to remove all doubts and misunderstandings in the minds of the local people and the two Administrations regarding the boundary between East Bengal and Assam in this area.

4. In these circumstances, I am to request you to be good enough to take early steps for a joint demarcation of the boundary between East Bengal and Assam in the disputed areas according to the decisions of the Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Tribunal. According to para. 2(3) of Appendix V of the Agreement concluded between the representatives of the two countries at New Delhi in December 1948, demarcation of these boundaries may be made jointly by the experts of both the countries. Subject to the above stated general principles to be followed in demarcating the boundaries, the other details of survey and demarcation may be settled by the survey experts of Pakistan and India by a joint discussion. For this purpose the Survey General of Pakistan may be allowed to correspond direct with the Surveyor General of India, if the Government of India have no objection.

5. An early reply will be much appreciated.

I have the honour to be
Sir
Your most obedient servant

Office of the High Commissioner for India in Pakistan,

Subject :- Facilities for survey staff of Assam Government for survey on the left bank of Surma River and the boundary between Cachar and Sylhet Districts.

The Indian High Commission present their compliments to the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations and with reference to the Ministry’s Note No. IA.3/3/50, dated the 10th April, 1950, have the honour to state there is no question of demarcation of boundary between Assam and East Bengal. All that the Government of Assam require is that their survey and settlement staff may be afforded facilities by the Government of East Bengal to cross over to the stages of resettlement Operations in Cachar District.

In view of the position as explained above, it is hoped that the Government of Pakistan will instruct the Government of East Bengal to give the required facilities to the Survey and resettlement staff of Assam.

The High Commission avail themselves of this opportunity to renew to the Government of Pakistan the assurances of their highest consideration.

Note from High Commission of India in Pakistan to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Karachi, July 20, 1950.

Office of the High Commissioner for India in Pakistan,
New Town, Karachi.

No. Poll. I/50.-II 20 July, 1950

Subject: Facilities for survey staff of Assam Government for survey on the left bank of Surma River and the boundary between Cashar and Bylhet Districts.

The Indian High Commission present their compliments to the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations and in continuation of this High Commission Note of even number dated the 30th June, 1950, have the honour to state that the Government of India have received a report from the Government of Assam which says that the deputy Commissioner Sylhet has raised a claim to a portion of the Stream of Surma River from Katagaonmukh to Natanpur. It is not understood on what grounds the claim has been advanced. The entire Surma River (from Katagaonmukh to Natanpur) where it is the boundary between Cachar and Sylhat Districts falls entirely within the Cachar District. The District notification of 1928, the settlement report of 1914-18, village Maps, Ferries, Fisheries, etc. bear this out conclusively. Although the Survey of India have shown in their typographical map that the mid-stream is the district boundary and although Mr. Creed's map of 1937 used by Sir Gyrl Radcliffe for the purpose of illustrating his award repeats the mistake made by the Survey of India, these mistakes do not affect the actual position. According to the Radcliffe Award where there is a divergence between the description and the map used for purposes of illustration, the description will prevail.

2. In view of what is stated above and since the entire Surma River has been within the jurisdiction of India, the local authorities have been directed by the Government of India to take effective steps to maintain this jurisdiction. It is requested that the Government of Pakistan may kindly instruct the East Bengal Government and the Deputy Commissioner, Sylhet, to maintain the status quo pending demarcation of the boundary.

3. The High Commission would further be very grateful if the Government of Pakistan could kindly arrange the grant of facilities required by the Survey and Resettlement staff of Assam.
The High Commission avail themselves of this opportunity to renew to the Government of Pakistan the assurances of their highest consideration.

Commonwealth Relations,

The Conference first of all decided that the discussion should be separate; first on the points in dispute before Bagge Tribunal and secondly as regards the rest of the Indo-Pakistan boundary extending from the trijunction of Cooch

2. As regards the Kusiyara dispute before the Bagge Tribunal, India representatives stated that the dispute was with regard to the identity of the Kusiyara river and that the red line drawn by Sir Cyril Radcliffe symbolised the common thana boundary between Karimganj and Beanibazar and that point B represented the point where the common thana boundary between Beanibazar and Karimganj cut the Kusiyara river. The Bagge decision was relevant for determining the identity of the Kusiyara river and the demarcation in regard to that decision should be taken up to the point where the common thana boundary cut the Kusiyara river.

3. The view expressed by the Pakistan representatives was that the red line on Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s map was the boundary and that point B as it stands on the Radcliffe map was in fact accepted by the Bagge Tribunal as being near Birasri. The opinion of the Indian Member of the Bagge Tribunal in this regard was clearly stated by him in paragraph 18, Appendix X of the Award of the Bagge decision which is as follows: -

“I may add a word about the boundary line proceeding north from the north-western corner of the Patharia Hill Forest up to the point B in the map (near Birasri). There are no adequate grounds for holding that this is not a correct delineation of the boundary. Therefore, this portion of the western boundary line as shown in Sir Cyril’s award map will also stand."

They stated that the dispute No.4 before the Bagge Tribunal did in fact affect the whole boundary from Sonai river to point C of Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s map and the alignment of the boundary between river Sonai and Kusiyara was therefore a material and essential part of dispute No.4. They had no brief to interpret the words of the Bagge decision in any way other than literally, that is, that the red line indicated in the map A is the boundary between India and Pakistan.

4. The India representatives said that from the decision of Bagga Tribunal it was clear that the boundary was the common boundary between Beanibazar and Karimganj and the red line remained to symbolise this.

5. So far as the Patharia Reserve was concerned the India representatives said that the Radcliffe line represented a common thana boundary between Patharkandi thana and its western neighbour. Since the abolition of Jaldhup and the constitution of Barleka in this portion, the Jaldhup portion of the forest had been neither in Barleka police station as notified nor in Patharkandi police station as notified. The map used by Sir Cyril Radcliffe was prepared in 1937 and showed the then existing common boundary between Patharkandi and its western neighbour Jaldhup. Lord Justice Bagge had also stated that the line on the Radcliffe map corresponded to the common boundary line between Jaldhup and Patharkandi. The Bagge line therefore meant the old Jaldhup - Patharkandi line for the demarcation of “which the thana notification illustrated by thana jurisdiction maps on the 1" to 1 mile scale were the relevant material.

6. The Pakistan representatives said that they had no authority to argue a case or to discuss the interpretation of the Bagge decision. Their brief was to implement the literal interpretation of the Bagge decision which was understood by them to be the legal interpretation.
7. The India representatives asked whether it was the Pakistan case that the Bagge line had no connection with the thana jurisdiction and the Pakistan representatives replied that they had nothing to further to add to what they had already stated.

8. After some discussion it seemed quite clear that the only hope of progress lay in the Indian Government and the Pakistan Government agreeing on the correct interpretation of the Bagge decision in respect of disputes III and IV as Pakistan stood for acceptance of the red line in its position on the Radcliffe map whereas India maintained that it only symbolised the common thana boundaries described in the Radcliffe award.

9. As regards the demarcation of the undisputed portion of the entire Assam-East Bengal boundary it was contended on behalf of India that the boundary notifications valid on the 15th August, 1947 together with the connected records and maps should be the basis for demarcating the boundary. The Pakistan representatives maintained that these records should be the guiding principle but not necessarily the sole basis for demarcation.

10. The Surveyor General of Pakistan and the Director, Eastern Circle agreed that technical implementation of decision reached by the Governments of India and Pakistan as to the alignment of the disputed portions of the boundary would not be difficult and could be settled at a later date.

Subject: Demarcation of the disputed boundary between East Bengal and Assam.

Sir,

I am directed to refer to your letter No. IA.7/20/49 dated the 19th June, 1950, on the subject mentioned above and to say that the Government of India agree that the boundaries in dispute No.III regarding the Patharia Hills Reserve Forest and in dispute No.IV regarding the course of the Kusiyara river, which were referred to the Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Tribunal, should be demarcated as early as possible and that, in accordance with paragraph 2(3) of Appendix V of the Inter-Dominion Agreement of December, 1948, the demarcation of these boundaries should be made Jointly by the experts of the two countries.

2. As regards dispute No.III concerning the boundary in the Patharia Hills reserve forest, the Government of India consider that it will be a simple matter for the boundary to be laid on the ground. This is to be done in accordance with the description in the Radcliffe Award and as illustrated on the map annexure ‘A’ to that Award. It would assist the survey experts of the two countries in carrying out the demarcation if they could be provided with the relevant Thana notifications and Thana jurisdiction maps relating to the common boundary between Thana Patharkandi and the Thana lying immediately to its west in this part of the forest at the time the map used by Sir Cyril Radcliffe for purposes of illustration was first prepared and printed by Assam Survey Department. The Government of India will shortly forward to the Government of Pakistan details of these notifications etc. for their concurrence.
3. As regards Dispute No. IV concerning the course of the Kusiyara river, the Government of India are surprised that while no mention is made regarding the demarcation of the boundary along the course of the river Kusiyara, which was the point in dispute, the Government of Pakistan have suggested the demarcation of the boundary “from near Gobindpur on the river described as Sonai up to Birasri on the bank of the northern river which has been found by the Tribunal to be the Kusiyara river”. The dispute referred to the Tribunal concerned and was limited to the boundary along the course of the river Kusiyara. The portion of the boundary between the river Sonai and the river Kusiyara was never in dispute, was not referred to the Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Tribunal for adjudication and was at no time mentioned in the arguments advanced on behalf of India or Pakistan before the Tribunal. Although the Tribunal have in the first Paragraph of their decision regarding this dispute mentioned that the red line indicated on the map annexure ‘A’ to the Radcliffe Award is the boundary between India and Pakistan, this part of the decision is merely by way of recital, goes beyond the scope of the reference made to the Tribunal, forms no part of the decision and is consequently not binding on the parties. The position is that the red line on the map annexure ‘A’ to the Radcliffe Award does not correctly represent the boundary between the thanas of Karimganj and Beani Bazar as described in the Award. The correct boundary runs from a point on the river Sonai a little to the south west of Gobindpur to a point on the river Kusiyara a considerable distance west of the point marked ‘B’ in the map annexure ‘A’. According to the Radcliffe Award where there is a divergence between the description and the map which has been used for purposes of illustration, the description will prevail. This portion of the boundary must, therefore, be demarcated in accordance with the description contained in the Radcliffe Award and the demarcation in accordance with paragraph 3(2) of Appendix V of the Inter-Dominion Agreement of 1948, is to be made jointly by the Directors of Land Records of East Bengal and Assam. It may be added that the Government of Assam are and have throughout been in possession of the entire area up to the boundary as described in the Radcliffe Award.

4. Although the Government of Pakistan have not mentioned the demarcation of the boundary along the course of the river Kusiyara in their letter under reply, the Government of India consider that the decision of the Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Tribunal in respect of this dispute should be implemented by the demarcation of this boundary jointly by the experts of the two countries as early as possible.

5. The Government of India have no objection to the Surveyor-General of Pakistan and the Surveyor-General of India corresponding directly with each other to settle the details of survey and demarcation. They may also hold such joint discussions on the subject as may be necessary. The Government of India is issuing instructions to the Surveyor-General of India accordingly and it is requested that similar instructions may kindly be issued by the Government of Pakistan to the Surveyor-General of Pakistan.

5. The Government of India believe that the earliest and most suitable time for the demarcation of the boundary in these two disputes will be the cold weather of 1950-51 and trust that the survey experts of India and Pakistan will complete their arrangements and be able to carry out the demarcation during this period. The Surveyor-General of India is being instructed accordingly.

Yours, faithfully

for Secretary to the Government of India

2755. Extract from the proceedings of the Seventeenth Chief Secretaries Conference held at Dacca on the 29th and 30th August, 1950.

I (m) —Difficulties regarding Enclaves (Cooch Behar - Rangpur).

As regards visits by officers of Cooch Behar, Dinajpur & Rangpur to their respective enclaves, it was agreed as follows:—

(1) That officers likely to pay such visits should be given identity cards (bearing the Photo of the holder) by their respective District Officers.

(2) That whenever any such officer wants to visit an enclave situated in the territory of the other Government, the District Magistrate concerned or the Deputy Commissioner will telegraph to his opposite number stating the name and designation of the officer who wants to visit the enclave, the name of the enclave and the route which the officer will follow, at least 15 days before the projected visit. The District Magistrate or Deputy Commissioner, as the case may be, will thereupon arrange for such officer to be escorted to the enclave in question through his own territory. Similar arrangements will be made for the return journey.

Whenever under these arrangements, it is necessary to send a police party to an enclave, such a party should be accompanied by a police officer not below the rank of A.S.I. who should hold an identity card and carry with him a list of names of members of his party who should all be in uniform but should not carry any arms. The same procedure should be followed in regard to sending supplies of mustered and kerosene oil, sugar, matches, cloth and medicines and medical appliances, provided that such supplies are sent in bulk at intervals of not less than one month. The Officer (either Government or of a local body) accompanying the consignment should carry an identity card and a list of commodities indicating the quantities in each case of the goods he is carrying.

As regards revenue collections, the total amount in respect of each enclave will be intimated to the other Government, and Revenue Officers’ visits to enclaves under the arrangement described in para (2) above will be at intervals of not less than six months, to take out of the enclaves amount not in excess of the revenue demands from that area, provided also that such amounts are verified and sealed at the border in the presence of the officer of the Government through whose territory the money will pass.

Note from the Editor:

The above decisions were taken in view of the under mentioned difficulties pointed out by Pakistan at the 16th Chief Secretaries Conference held from May 23 to May 26, 1950.

Item 5:—Difficulties experienced in the matter of administration of enclaves.

The Chief Secretary, East Bengal, stated that in connection with the administration of Pakistani enclaves in Cooch-Behar the following difficulties were reported to have been experienced:—

(i) Pakistani officers are not allowed to visit those enclaves since they have to pass through Indian territories.

(ii) The inhabitants of Pakistani enclaves are prevented from visiting hats in Pakistan wherever they have to do so by crossing Indian territory.

(iii) Essential commodities such as mustard oil and salt cannot be dispatched from Pakistan to these enclaves in Cooch-Behar where they are reported to be in short supply since they have also to cross Indian territory. The Chief Secretary, West Bengal, said that he would look into these difficulties.

Subject:- Demarcation of the disputed boundary between East Bengal and Assam.

Sir,

I am directed to refer to your letter No.F.22-10/ 50-Pak-III, dated the 17th August 1950, on the above subject, and to say that while in para 3 of their letter No. IA.7/20/49, dated the 19th June, 1950 the Government of Pakistan emphasised the need for demarcating the boundary line from near Gobindapur on the river described as Sonai upto Birasri, in para 4 of that letter they requested the Government of India to take early steps for the joint demarcation of the boundary between East Bengal and Assam in the disputed areas according to the decisions of the Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Tribunal.

2. Pursuant to the Inter-Dominion Agreement of 14th December 1948, the Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Tribunal was set up for the adjudication and final settlement of the following East Bengal and Assam boundary disputes in addition to the other two East Bengal and West Bengal Boundary disputes arising out of the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award and for demarcating the boundary accordingly:-

(i) the Patharia Hills Reserve Forest; and
(ii) the course of the Kusiyara River.

With regard to the dispute at (i) above, the Tribunal having carefully considered the cases, oral arguments, documents and maps presented by either side gave the following decision:-
“The red line indicated in the map ‘A’ attached to the Award given by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in his report of August 13th, 1947, is the boundary between India and Pakistan.”

In the circumstances, the Government of Pakistan consider that it is not open to either party to dispute the decision or decisions of Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Tribunal add, therefore, regret that they cannot accept the Government of India's contention that the boundary in this case is to be demarcated in accordance with the description in the Radcliffe Award and as illustrated on the map annexure ‘A’ to that Award. The Government of Pakistan further, consider that the survey experts of the two Governments should strictly follow the literal interpretation, which is the correct and legal interpretation of the Tribunal’s decision and lay down the boundary on the ground in the position the Red line indicates on the said map.

3. Similarly, the Government of Pakistan are unable to accept the contentions of the Government of India with regard to the decision of Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Tribunal in the case of 2 (ii) above; viz;

“(a) The dispute referred to the Tribunal concerned and was limited to the boundary along the course of river Kusiyara.”

“(b) Tribunal’s decision so far as it refers to the boundary from near Gobindapur on the river described us Sonai upto to Birasri, is merely by way of recital, goes beyond the scope of the reference made to the Tribunal, forms no part of the decision and is consequently not binding on the parties.”

As regards (a) above, the Government of Pakistan consider that the dispute regarding the identity of River Kusiyara really involved a dispute regarding the triangular area of land bounded on the south by the River which the Bagge Tribunal found to be the River Sonai, on the north by River which the Bagge Tribunal found to be the River Kusiyara, and on the west by the red line from Gobindapur to Birasri which was shown in the Radcliffe map as the boundary between East Bengal and Assam in this area. That being so; it; was very necessary for the Bagge Tribunal to make an Award regarding the boundary between East Bengal and Assam in this disputed area. India never stated at any time before the Bagge Tribunal that this red line shown in the Radcliffe map was incorrect. As a matter of fact, in the claim map signed by the Chief Secretary, Assam, which was filed by India before the Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Commission (Moazzamuddin Hossan -Rohini Choudhury Commission) on 21st April, 1948, this red line from near Gobindapur to Birasri was shown as the line claimed by India as the boundary between East Bengal and Assam in this area. On 22nd February, 1948 again a second map signed by the Chief Secretary, Assam, on behalf of India, was filed before the same commission in modification of the previous claim map, but on that the same red line from Gobindapur to Birasri was shown by India as the boundary line between Pakistan and India as claimed by India.

As Assam claimed before the Indo-Pakistan. Boundary Disputes Commission this red line (from Gobindapur to Birasri) as shown in the Radcliffe map as the boundary between East Bengal and Assam in this area, and as India did not contend at any time during the hearing of dispute No. IV by the Bagge Tribunal that this red line shown in the Radcliffe map was not the correct line, it is obviously not open to India now to dispute the decision of the Bagge Tribunal regarding the boundary between East Bengal and Assam in this area. As a matter of fact both India and Pakistan argued the case before the Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Tribunal in dispute No. IV on the assumption that in this area the red line from Gobindapur to Birasri as shown in the Radcliffe map would be the correct boundary line between Pakistan and India if the northern river were held, by the Tribunal to be the Kusiyara River. Even Mr. Justice Chandrasekhar/Aiyar, India representative in the Bagge Tribunal, observed as follows, In his opinion regarding the dispute No. IV,

“I may add a word about the boundary line proceeding north western corner of the Patharia Hills upto the point ‘B’ in the map (near Birasri). There are not adequate grounds for holding that this is not a correct delineation of the boundary. Therefore, this portion of western boundary line as shown in Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s Award map will also stand”.

With reference to (b) above the Government of Pakistan wish to invite the attention of the Government of India to the following observation of Mr. justice Chandrasekhara Aiyar which seems to provide an answer to this contention:–

“The argument that under our terms of reference we have only to find out the course of River Kusiyara and not to determine whether BC was properly determined as the boundary by Sir Cyril needs no serious attention, much less refutation. It is because of dispute between the two Dominion as regards BC that we have been asked to state or determine what is the course of the river. It is not for purposes of abstract geography of history or in the interests of antiquarian research that this Tribunal has been constituted,”
4. The wordings of Indo-Pakistan Boundary Dispute Tribunal Award are quite clear and the Government of Pakistan have accordingly instructed the Surveyor General of Pakistan to settle with the Surveyor General of India the details of survey and demarcation of the boundaries in the above two areas in accordance with the literal interpretation of the Award and hope that the Government of India will also reconsider the matter and in view of the importance of the early implementation of the decisions of the Indo-Pakistan Boundary Disputes Tribunal similarly instruct the Surveyor General of India.

Subject: - Facilities for survey staff of Assam Government for survey on the left bank of Surma river and the boundary between Cachar and Sylhet Districts.

The Indian High Commission in Pakistan present their compliments to the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, and in inviting a reference to this High Commission Note of even number dated the 14th July, 1950, have the honour to state that while a reply to this Note is still awaited, a report received by the Government of India from the Government of Assam Indicates that Pakistan boats have been attempting to force a passage along the Surma between Kataganjmukh and Natanpur without submitting themselves to Indian Customs and other examinations. As already intimated to the Government of Pakistan in this Mission’s Note of 14th July, the whole of the Surma River between Kataganjmukh and Natanpur falls within the Jurisdiction of India. The local authorities have, therefore, been instructed to take effective measures to maintain the jurisdiction.

Sub: Question of exchange of Cooch Behar enclaves

Sir,

I am directed to address the Government of India on the subject of the exchange of the enclaves of Cooch Behar in East Bengal with those of the Government of East Bengal in Cooch Behar.

2. As the Government of India are aware, there are enclaves of the Cooch Behar district which are situated in Pakistan and enclaves of Pakistan territory inside the Cooch Behar district. As will be seen; from the enclosed maps these enclaves are like small islands and their administration presents a great deal of difficulty. Cooch Behar Officers are not able to visit enclaves in East Bengal and for this reason land revenue and rents of these enclaves have remained uncollected over many years. The inhabitants of the enclaves find themselves in great difficulty in regard to essential supplies such as kerosene and matches and practically live by smuggling these articles. Crimes committed in the enclaves are seldom investigated. Both the Governments of West Bengal and East Bengal appreciated these difficulties and agreed at the 14th Chief Secretaries' Conference held at Calcutta on the 21st and 22nd April, 1950 to consider proposals for their exchange An extract from the decisions recorded therein will be found in Annexure I to this letter.

3. The Administrative difficulties, however, became acute in recent months and, as a short term remedy, an agreement was made with the East Bengal Government at the 17th Chief Secretaries Conferences held on the 29th and 30th August, 1950 at Dacca. A copy of this agreement is enclosed for the information of the Government of India (Annexure II).

4. The total number of Cooch Behar enclaves in East Bengal is 130 with an area of 20,957 acres with a total population of 12,602. The number of East Bengal enclaves in Cooch Behar is 93 covering 12,152 acres. The figures of the population are not known but are estimated to be to the order of 11,000. The details of the enclaves will be found in the enclosed Annexure III. The population of the Cooch Behar enclaves in East Bengal consists mostly of Hindus while that of the East Bengal enclaves in Cooch Behar mostly of Muslims.

5. The several Departments of this Government concerned with matters relating to the administration of police, revenue, food and, other supplies and justice and other ancillary subjects in the enclave were consulted and the consensus of opinion, as indicated in the enclosed Annexure IV, is that without an exchange of these Indian enclaves in East Bengal with those of East Bengal in Cooch Behar there can be no satisfactory solution of the problem.

6. The main points for consideration are the following :-

(a) Since the Indian enclaves in East Bengal have an excess area of about 8,800 acres, any exchange must be accompanied by the Government of East Bengal ceding to this Government an additional area of 8,800 acres including the two portions of East Bengal which make inroads of Pakistan territory at the south-eastern and south-western sides of the Cooch Behar district so that the southern boundary of the Cooch Behar district may be straightened out.

(b) A major problem that will arise is the transfer of nationality of the inhabitants of these enclaves. On the Indian side, this Government would certainly encounter opposition to the transfer of their nationals to Pakistan, since, as already mentioned in paragraph 4 above, the population of the Indian enclaves in East Bengal consists mainly of Hindus and the inhabitants of the Pakistan enclaves in Cooch Behar are mostly Muslims. If the areas are exchanged without exchange of the inhabitants there is the danger that these pockets will remain permanently as small pockets containing disloyal citizens. Therefore, along with the exchange of territory, the question of exchange of population should also be seriously considered.

7. I am now to request that the matter be placed before the Government of India and their views communicated to this Government at as early a date as possible. The detailed examination of the question will be taken after the views of the Government of India have been received.

Yours faithfully
Chief Secretary
To the Government of West Bengal

2759. SECRET
Note recorded by Secretary in the Ministry of External Affairs S. Dutt on the exchange of enclaves with East Pakistan.
New Delhi, March 7, 1951.
Government of India
Ministry of External Affairs
New Delhi
Note for the Cabinet
the 7th March 1951.

Subject: Exchange of Cooch Behar Enclaves in East Bengal with those of East Bengal in Cooch Behar
There are 130 enclaves of Cooch Behar, with an area of 20,957 acres and a population of 12,602, situated in East Bengal. Similarly, there are 93 enclaves of East Bengal, with an area of 12,152 acres and an approximate population of 11,000, situated in Cooch Behar (West Bengal). The population of the Cooch Behar enclaves within East Bengal consists mostly of Hindus while that of the East Bengal enclaves within Cooch Behar consists mostly of Muslims.

2. Ever since partition the administration of the Cooch Behar enclaves, situated within East Bengal, has been presenting a great deal of difficulty. The enclaves are small islands of West Bengal territory completely surrounded by East Bengal territory so that officers from Cooch Behar have not been able to visit the enclaves and land revenue and rents have remained uncollected for several years. The inhabitants of the enclaves find themselves in great difficulty in regard to essential supplies, such as kerosene and matches, and practically live by smuggling. Crimes committed in the enclaves are seldom investigated. Similar difficulties, must have been experienced by the East Bengal Government also in administering their enclaves situated within West Bengal. At the 14th meeting of the Chief Secretaries of West and East Bengal, held on the 21st and 22nd April, 1950, it was decided therefore, to examine the question of the exchange of the enclaves, and the West Bengal Government have now come up with a proposal for the exchange of these enclaves between India and Pakistan.

3 If it is decided to proceed with the proposal, for the ex-change of the enclaves; a proposal to which there appears to the no alternative due to the difficulty of administering the enclaves the following points will have to be considered:

(i) Whether we should insist upon Pakistan giving us, in addition to the area covered by their enclaves in West Bengal an area, of 8,805 acres adjoining Indian territory to equalise the territories to be exchanged. The view of the Government of West Bengal is that this should be insisted on as not only will such a request be entirely fair, but an exchange of equal area will also be necessary if the persons to be displaced are to be given an equal area, in exchange. The Ministry of External Affairs are inclined to agree with this view.

(ii) Whether an exchange of the enclaves should be accompanied by an exchange of population. The view of the West Bengal Government is that since an exchange of territories will result in a exchange in the nationality of their residents, the Governments of India and Pakistan must enable those residents of the enclaves, who so wish to retain their nationality by bringing them within the revised territorial limits of each State. The most convenient method of affecting this will be by an exchange of population of the enclaves. The Ministry, of External Affairs agree with this view.
4. If an exchange is decided upon it is proposed that the preliminary negotiations for the transfer of the enclaves may be left to the Government of West Bengal to settle with the Government of East Bengal subject to the general guidance of the Government of India. The two Central Governments may reach, a formal Agreement later. Legislation to give effect to the Agreement will have to be executed both by the West Bengal Government and the Government of India in accordance with Art. 3 of the Constitution.

5. The Prime Minister, is in general, agreement with the views mentioned above and has directed that the decision of the Cabinet should be obtained.

2760. Note from Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs to High Commission of India in Pakistan.

Karachi, April 16, 1951.

Government of Pakistan
Ministry of Foreign Affairs
& Commonwealth Relations
Karachi

No. I (I) – 3/3/50 16 April, 1951

Subject: Facilities for the survey staff of the Government of Assam for the survey of the left bank of Surma river and the boundary between Cachar and Sylhet districts.

The Ministry of Foreign affairs and Commonwealth Relations present their compliments to the High Commission for India in Pakistan and with reference to the correspondence resting with their Note No.Poll/1/50.(II), dated the 20th November, 1950, have the honour to state as follows.

1. According to notification No.60, dated 1st July 1880 of the district of Sylhet, the boundary line between Sylhet and Cachar districts runs “along the Barak (or Boglia) river to the junction of the Surma river at the village of Kandigarh, and thence along the Surma river to the village of Karrabella as defined by the Revenue Survey maps of 1864-65”. This divides the Surma river half and half between Sylhet and Cachar. In regard to the Cachar district notification No.3314-R dated 4th October 1928, on which the Government of India base their claim for the whole of the river Surma in the Cachar district, it is pointed out that the modification of the boundary of Cachar district also involved a corresponding change in the boundary of Thana Karimganj in Sylhet district on the Cachar district border, but no notification was issued modifying the boundary of this Thana. The eastern boundary of Thana Karimganj is defined in the notification No.176-G.J., dated the 10th January 1922 as “Surma river, Boglia river, Kachua Nadi…….” As no new notification of the boundary of Karimganj Thana was made, half the Surma river in that area continued to be included in Karimganj Thana of Sylhet District after 1928 just as before. Again, as late as 1941, defining the boundaries of thana Kanairghat notification No.12550 H, dated the 2nd December 1941, describes the eastern boundary of the Police Station Kanairghat as follows:-

East :The Cachar district boundary to Sylhet the midstream of the Surma river at the South East corner of Nij Karballa (Pargana Mulagul) where it meets the North Sylhet - Karimganj Sub-Division boundary”

The implication of the words “midstream of the river Surma” in this notification is that the common boundary between Sylhet and Cachar in that area was still the midstream of the Surma river. This notification shows that the notification of 1928 was, never acted upon.

(2) It is also not correct to say that Mr. Creed’s map of 1937 used by Sir Cyril Radcliffe for the purpose of illustrating his Award repeats the mistake made by the Survey of India, in as much as the map used by Sir Cyril Radcliffe is not the 1937 edition but the corrected 1947 edition of the official map of Government of Assam published under the authority of the Government and supplied to Sir Cyril Radcliffe.

While defining these boundaries of Cachar District, the notification of 1928 put the whole of the Surma river within the Cachar District. This would of necessity have involved a corresponding change in the boundary of Thana Karimganj in the Sylhet District along the common boundary, but no notification to this effect was issued, nor have the Government of India ever claimed this. If at all this notification of 1928 is accepted as valid (which is doubtful), it is but logical also to accept the later notification of 1941 as valid. Although this notification of 1941 does not refer to that of 1928, yet it is expressly stated therein that the “Government of Assam hereby notify the following more accurate description of the boundaries of the Police station”. From this sentence it is clear beyond doubt that the Government of Assam’s intention was to make the description more accurate, and the Government of Pakistan trust that the Government of India will agree that, therefore, this notification of 1941 is to prevail.

(3) The Government of Pakistan are not in possession of the Settlement Report of 1914-18 and the village maps referred to by the Government of India. As regards the ferries and fisheries referred to by the Government of India, in the absence of details about particular ferries and fisheries referred to or of the documents relating thereto the Government of Pakistan are not in a position to make any comment, and would be glad as to have copies of such documents as the Government of India may have in support of their contention.

2. As regards the facilities required by the Survey and Settlement staff of Assam, survey and settlement operations have also been started by the Government of East Bengal in the district of Sylhet for the preparation of village maps on the scale of $16" = 1$ mile and records of rights under the Tenancy Act for villages in the district. In the course of the survey operations it be necessary for the East Bengal survey staff and settlement staff to cross the border between Sylhet and Assam and to work on the soil of Assam, where necessary. If, therefore, the East Bengal survey staff is allowed to cross the border, where necessary, and to work on the soil of Assam for the Survey of villages in Sylhet district on the border of Assam, there would be no objection to the survey staff of Assam crossing to Surma river and working on the soil of East Bengal for the facility of their survey work in the district of Cachar.

3. In regard to the statement by the High Commission in their note dated the 20th November 1950, it is pointed out that since partition, the part of the Surma river flowing on the boundary between Cachar and Sylhet district has been used by the nationals of Pakistan as a common water way without any hindrance from Indian nationals and has been treated all along as a common waterway between Pakistan and India. As a matter of fact the river is the main means of communication for Pakistan nationals in the area. It has been reported that, without warning, the rice control staff of Cachar, aided by the police have been blocking the passage of boats of Pakistan nationals along the Surma river. This interference with free passage has caused great hardship to the villagers of the area. The Government of Pakistan therefore, request that instructions should immediately be issued to the Government of Assam to maintain the status quo and not to interfere with the free passage of the boats of Pakistan nationals along this portion of the Surma river till the boundary in the area has been finally demarcated in accordance with para 3(2) of Appendix V of the Inter-Dominion Agreement of December 1948.

The Ministry avail themselves of this opportunity to renew to the High Commission the assurances of their highest consideration.

My dear Bidhan,

As you know, we have had a good deal of trouble in regard to the Indian enclaves in Pakistan territory and the Pakistan enclaves in Indian territory. These are mostly situated in Cooch-Behar and in East Bengal. We can hardly reach our enclaves or deal satisfactorily with them, and the people there suffer a great deal of inconvenience...

I understand that there are 130 enclaves of Cooch-Behar with an area of 20,957 acres and a population of 12,602 (mostly Hindus) in East Bengal. On the other side, there are 93 enclaves of East Bengal with an area of 12,152 acres and a population of 11,000 (mostly Muslims) in Cooch-Behar.

In March 1951, our Cabinet agreed in principle to the exchange of these enclaves on the following basis:

(a) that East Bengal should transfer, in addition to the area covered by their enclaves in West Bengal, an additional area of 8,805 acres adjoining Indian territory to equalize the territory to be exchanged.

(b) that since an exchange of territories would also result in a change in the nationality of their residents, the residents of the enclaves, if they so desired, should be enabled to retain their nationality by bringing them in the revised territorial limits of each State; in other words, in order to effect the exchange, there should be an exchange of population.

There has been little progress since then. In June 1951, the West Bengal Government asked the East Pakistan Government to obtain the Pakistan Government’s approval to the principle of exchange. In answer, the East Pakistan Government in February 1952 asked for proposals formulated by the West Bengal Government. The latter replied that no proposal had so far been formulated because the agreement of the Pakistan Government to the principle was awaited.

On the 16th December 1952, the Pakistan Foreign Office has written to the External Affairs Ministry asking for information about “the terms and conditions which the Government of India would suggest for the proposed exchange.”

We have thus to put forward some definite proposals. We can presume that the principle of exchange is agreed to. It seems to me clear, however, that if we put forward the conditions mentioned in our Cabinet resolution, the Pakistan Government will not agree to the transfer of the additional area of 8,805 acres. Is it worthwhile, therefore, our putting forward this proposition?

It seems to me that we should suggest a pure exchange of the enclaves as they are. If there is some petty corner on the border which might conveniently be transferred to us, we might suggest that also. But I doubt very much if even that is going to be agreed to.

The only feasible course appears to be to exchange the enclaves as they are, making some special arrangements for the populations. It may be that Indian sentiment might not like the handing over of 8,805 additional acres to Pakistan, although the area is really small. The alternative is to allow things to remain where they are and this is most unsatisfactory.

Before I put this matter up before our Cabinet, I should like to have the views of your Government.

Yours
Jawahar

2763. Extract of a Letter from Commonwealth Secretary B.F.H.B. Tyabji to High Commissioner for India in Pakistan Mohan Sinha Mehta.

New Delhi, July 1, 1953.

D.O. No. CS (T)/365, 1st July, 1953

Subject: Settlement of Indo – Pakistani disputes.

My dear High Commissioner,

Please refer to your d. o. letter N0. H. C./53/PMC/194 dated the 28th June and Atal's d. o. letter No. DHC/53/PV dated the 20th June 1953.

6. You will notice as the last item on the enclosed list of items for discussion “Exchange of Enclaves in East and West Bengal”. Regarding this the position is, as you probably know, that the total area of the Indian enclaves in East Bengal is greater than the total area of the Pakistan enclaves in West Bengal.
by about 6 sq. miles. The original proposal of the West Bengal Government was that these enclaves should be exchanged, and the Pakistan Government should be pressed to compensate us for the extra 6 sq. miles of territory, by allotting us territory elsewhere. Naturally, this proposition did not appeal to the Pakistan Government; and no progress on those lines was feasible. Now, however, the West Bengal Chief Minister has suggested that the adjustment in territory should be carried out by an adjustment of the boundary line between the two Bengals. This seems to be an eminently reasonable proposition. Dr. B.C. Roy, we believe, has written to the Pakistan Prime Minister about it; we do not know with what result. We should like you to find out informally what the reactions of the Pakistan Government are in regard to it. This should be done as informally as possible, as we are consulting the Defence Ministry about it, and would like to have their views on the suggested boundary adjustment before we take it up more formally with the Pakistan Government. I enclose a copy of Dr. B.C. Roy’s letter dated the 14th May, 1953, to the Prime Minister for your personal information*. I shall send you the map mentioned in it later. We are getting copies of it prepared.

Yours sincerely
(B.F.H.B. Tyabji)

High Commissioner for India, Karachi.

* The High Commissioner, in his letter dated July 7 gave the reaction of the Pakistan Prime Minister to the proposal of Dr. B. C. Roy on the question of exchange of enclaves as under:

"With regard to the last paragraph of your letter on the “Exchange of Enclaves in East and West Bengal” I had a brief talk with the Prime Minister. He told me that he had placed Dr. Roy’s letter and the map accompanying it before his Cabinet. The proposal was in principle accepted by his colleagues. He had sent the papers to East Bengal and the Map also has gone with them. I am hoping to meet Mohammad Ali again before he leaves for Dacca. I shall discuss this subject informally again with him. But I understood from him that so far as he and his Cabinet are concerned, the proposal made by Dr. Roy was reasonable and acceptable to them."

In putting up the letter to the Prime Minister containing the above reaction the Commonwealth Secretary described it as “encouraging.”
Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Chief Minister of West Bengal Dr. B. C. Roy.

New Delhi, July 29, 1953.

My dear Bidhan,

I have just come back after three days in Karachi. The first impression that I received was one of great popular welcome. The Government there went all out to welcome me and show me every consideration. But more than the Government, the people did so. I could not have been welcomed more warmly by the people in any city in India. There was a friendly and expectant atmosphere. Everyone was anxious and eager that we should put an end to our conflicts with Pakistan, and they seemed to think that perhaps I could do so. Pakistan's position has been bad politically and economically. There are all kinds of intrigues afoot and there is no real stability. Mohammad Ali is, in a sense, popular, but he has no roots and no basic strength. It is quite possible that his present popularity may fade away soon, if he does not show any results. In effect he is not the most important man there.

It was really rather pathetic to see and experience the desire of the people there for a settlement with India. One old man in the street shouted out to me: Aye Hindustan ke Badshah, Pakistan ko apnao (O' you the King of India, adopt Pakistan).

The refugees there are still in a terrible way. There are, I believe, four or five lakhs of them round about Karachi, all living in miserable huts which are in various stages of collapse. In fact the refugee picture there was what we saw in India five years ago. I should imagine that given the chance, a vast number of these people would return to India, as they see no future for themselves in Pakistan.

All this, of course, has exerted a powerful pressure on the Government of Pakistan. Also other events. I think the leading people there are fully convinced now that there is no hope for them in carrying on conflicts with India, and they are prepared to go pretty far in resolving them. Certainly that is the feeling of the people. Many persons spoke to me with tears in their eyes on this subject.

The main stumbling block is, of course, Kashmir. I talked at length on this subject, but it was obviously not possible for us to find a way out of impasse. I shall be seeing Mohammad Ali again after a month here in Delhi.

Among the other subjects discussed were evacuee properties, the Cooch-Behar enclaves, and general trade and communications and travel facilities between East Bengal and West Bengal and Assam, etc. About evacuee properties, for the first time during the last few years, we are having a real and earnest talk with them. I could not go into the details, but we have left some of our senior officials there who are carrying on these discussions. I hope they would result in some good.

In regard to the Cooch-Behar enclaves, Mohammad Ali told me that both his Central Government and the Bengal Government had agreed to exchange them. He mentioned that there was an excess of about seven square miles on the Indian side and that your Government had asked for additional territory to that extent. He said that this would be difficult, but he was prepared to give compensation for this additional territory (how to compute the compensation for seven square miles, I do not know). I said that there was another possible approach. Instead of a chunk of additional territory, perhaps we might try to straighten out our frontiers which should be convenient for both parties. Mohammad Ali said that he would like to examine this and it might be possible. Thus, the position is that these enclaves have to be exchanged. This is agreed. As for the additional territory, there might be either some kind of compensation or some straightening out of the frontiers. I remember your writing to me something to this effect once. I have suggested to Mohammad Ali that this matter might well be examined at a conference consisting of representatives of West Bengal and East Bengal. This conference might be held in Calcutta. He liked the idea. We can have Central representatives at that conference also. If you agree, as I am sure you will, you might proceed with arrangements for such a conference. I am writing to Mohammad Ali formally about this and certain allied subjects. A copy of this letter will be sent to you.

This conference of East and West Bengal and, of course, Assam also might well consider various other matters relating to the Eastern Zone, such as trade, travel facilities, visas and the like. I had pointed out to Mohammad Ali the difficulties in border trade, more especially with Assam and Tripura. You could deal with almost any matter relating to that area in this conference. I would suggest that the approach might be somewhat informal and not too rigid.

Yours affectionately
Jawaharlal
Excerpts from the Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Mohammad Ali relating to Enclaves and other border issues.

New Delhi, July 29, 1953.

My dear Prime Minister,

In the course of our talks in Karachi, we discussed the question of the Cooch-Behar enclaves. You told me that you had decided that these should be exchanged. You mentioned, however, that the enclaves in Pakistan at present are somewhat bigger, from the point of view of territory, than the enclaves in India. The difference is really a small one and, according to what you told me, is about 7 square miles. Thus, if an exchange is made, Pakistan would get 7 square miles of additional territory. The West Bengal Government had suggested that this surplus area might be given to them somewhere else so as to make this exchange an even one. You told me that you would prefer giving some compensation for the surplus area.

I then suggested to you that it might be desirable to consider, in this connection, minor rectifications of the border which might be advantageous both to India and Pakistan. You said that this could be enquired into.

This matter really relates to East Pakistan on the one side and West Bengal on the other. We agreed that the proper course to adopt would be for representatives of East Pakistan and West Bengal to meet and consider this question and make their recommendations to the respective Governments. If they agree, there would be no difficulty in the Indian and Pakistan Governments also agreeing.

I suggest, therefore, that a conference might be arranged in Calcutta to consider this question. This would consist of representatives of West Bengal and East Pakistan Governments and also, if necessary, some representatives of the two Central Governments.

There were a number of other matters relating to the Eastern Zone comprising East Pakistan, West Bengal, Assam and Tripura, which we also discussed. These related to travel facilities and visas, trade, more especially border trade, and other matters relating to that area. These could also be considered conveniently at the conference in Calcutta. But that conference should consist of, apart from those mentioned above, representatives of Assam and Tripura also.

Perhaps the first conference could extend itself and deal with these other problems later. I should like your views on this matter.

Yours sincerely,

Jawaharlal Nehru

2766. Record Note of Discussion at the Indo-Pakistan (Eastern Zone) Conference.

First Plenary Session held at Raj Bhawan, Calcutta, at 10-30 a.m. on Wednesday, the 30th September, 1953.

Mr. Tyabji (Commonwealth Secretary, leader of the Indian delegation) welcomed the Pakistan Delegation (headed by J. A. Rahim, Foreign Secretary)) and expressed the hope that the Conference would deal with the problems before it in a practical manner so that agreed decisions may be reached on them and concrete results achieved in the interest of both countries. He suggested that they had a heavy agenda before them. It would be more expeditious if allied groups of items on the agenda were discussed in sub-committee. These sub-committees would record their decisions and report to the Plenary Session.

2. In regard to press relations, Mr. Tyabji suggested that it might be desirable to adopt the procedure followed by them in the past. The leaders of the two delegations might inform the press of the progress made at the end of each day's work.

3. On the agenda Mr. Tyabji stated that in regard to the principal items, namely, items 1 to 4, there was already agreement in principle between the two countries. On item 1. Exchange of Enclaves—the two Prime Ministers had agreed that this should be done and that details of such exchange should be worked out at the present conference. As far as item 2. Boundary Demarcation—was concerned, the main disputes had already been settled by the Bagge Award, and it was for the Conference to decide upon the method and procedure of implementing the Award. Similarly, in regard to item 3, it was also the agreed policy of the two Governments to liberalise restrictions on freedom of movement. There was also a Conference at Delhi between the representatives of the two Governments in March 1953, and a committee on Border Trade had worked out a general outline. It was on the basis of these principles that the Conference would discuss details regarding Border Trade (item 4) between the two countries.

4. Mr. Rahim thanked the Government of India for their hospitality, and stated that it would be the endeavour of Pakistan Delegation to reach agreement on outstanding issues before them in a spirit of co-operation and friendship. Mr. Rahim agreed to the suggested procedure of discussing the various items on the agenda in sub-committees, and to the release of information to the press.

The following sub-committees were formed:-Appendix “A”

COMMITTEE NO.1.

2. Exchange of Enclaves

India proposed that advantage should be taken of the exchange of enclaves to straighten out the boundary between Cooch Behar in India with Pakistan, and that with this view the Patgram P.S. of Rangpur District which contained as many as 50 Cooch Behar enclaves should be ceded to India and further that India should be cede sufficient territories as shown in the map prepared by them to make up for the excess area involved in the total exchange. It was pointed out by India that in the correspondence between the two Prime Ministers after their meeting at Karachi, it was mentioned that proposals for rectification of the boundary should also be considered along with the question of exchange of enclaves. Pakistan stated that any proposal involving transfer of as large an area as Patgram P.S. did not constitute “minor rectification of boundary” contemp-lated by the two Prime Ministers and therefore could not be considered. India then proposed that the enclaves should be exchanged and that Pakistan should cede to India the excess of approximately eight square miles of territory to make up for the difference in area between what was going to Pakistan and what was coming to India. Pakistan stated that an out and out exchange should be affected without ceding further territory by them to make up for the excess in area. Pakistan’s view was that as the population involved in the two sets of enclaves was more or less equal, the exchange involved equal values on both sides, since the number of inhabitants of the area affected represented a truer value of the area, which might comprise lands of varying kinds, and qualities, than mere measurement of area. The above proposal for an out and out exchange was found unacceptable to India who pointed out that West Bengal was already a very small state with a large population and West Bengal could not afford to lose any area however small.

It was agreed on both sides that if exchange was effected, nationals of these enclaves must not be persecuted harassed or forced to migrate. They must be given the option to acquire citizenship of the country to which the enclave will fall after exchange, and that those remaining on in the enclaves should suffer no disability in the matter of acquisition of citizenship rights. It was also agreed that any Government servants in the enclaves should be withdrawn by their mother country after the exchange.

It was decided by the Sub-Committee that discussions be terminated at this stage and the door be left open for further discussions at some later date.

2. Boundary Demarcation

Dispute No.I of the Bagge Decision

The dispute over the method of connecting the river boundary and the land boundary in the Kaliachak (West Bengal) - Shibganj (East Bengal) Section was discussed and the following decision reached.

The boundary between India and Pakistan shall run along the boundary between the thanas of Kaliachak and Shibganj up to the southern corner of Plot No.656 of village Deonapur (J.L.48, P.S. Kaliachak) and thence by a straight line to the point (Grid No. N.841225, E.2780653- Lambert Grid IIB) on the bank of the river Ganges as agreed upon by the D.L.Rs. of both countries in 1951, and thence by the shortest line to the median line of the main channel of the river Ganges. The bank of the river Ganges and the median line of the main channel will for the purpose of this demarcation be as determined by the joint Indo-Pakistan air survey of 1951.

(2) Dispute No.I of the Bagge Decision (Continued).

The dispute relating to the method of connecting the river boundary at both ends of the fixed land boundary on the char opposite Rajshahi was discussed and the following decision was reached.

The terminal point at the Western end of the land portion of the boundary as referred to in the decision of the Bagge Tribunal in Dispute No. I shall be a point, the Grid Co-ordinates of which are N 794300, E 2840015 (Lambert Grid IIB) from which the boundary shall be joined by a straight line to the South-east corner I of Char Majherdiar (J.L.231, P. S. Rampur Boalia, Distt, Rajshahi) as surveyed in Cadastral Survey of 1915-16.

The terminal point at the eastern end of the land boundary shall be the north-east corner of Plot No.205 of Mouza Char Rajanagar (J.L. 99, P.S. Raninagar, Distt. Murshidabad).

The above eastern and western terminal points shall be joined by the shortest straight lines to the median line of the main channel of the river Ganges as determined jointly by the Survey experts of both countries in 1951.

The land boundary shall be converted to straight segment on exactly the same principle as in the case of the boundary following the median line of the main channel of the Ganges.

(3) Dispute No. II of the Bagge Decision regarding the boundary along the Mathabhanga river was discussed and the following decision reached.

That the line joining the off-take point of the river Mathabhanga in the position agreed upon by the representatives of both countries in 1951, with the median line of the main channel of the river Ganges as determined by the joint survey of 1951, together with the median line of the main stream of the river Mathabhanga as shown in the joint survey of 1951 up to the point where it cuts the boundary between the Thanas of Daulatpur and Kerimpur shall constitute the boundary between India and Pakistan according to the decision of the Bagge Tribunal, and that the boundary so determined shall be a fixed boundary; that the boundary between the Thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur shall be transferred from the latest cadastral maps of undivided Bengal to the jointly prepared 8 inch air survey of 1951; and that the above median line of the river Matha-bhanga shall be reduced to a series of straight segments on exactly the same principles as in the case of the median line of the main stream of the river Ganges. The determination of these segments to be carried but jointly by the Surveyor General’s Departments of both countries.

(4) Berubari, and, Hili disputes

The dispute over the boundary in Berubari, J.L. No.23 of P.S. Jalpaiguri of undivided Bengal and the dispute over the boundary in Hili were discussed and left over for further discussion at a later date.

DISPUTE III

In the sector of the Patharia Reserved Forest the Red Line drawn by Sir Cyril Radcliffe on the map at Annexure ‘A’ to his Award of 1947 shall, in accordance with the decision of the Bagge Tribunal form the boundary between India and Pakistan. In the absence of any large scale revenue map of this area, the Red Line will be transferred from the above Radcliffe map to the Survey of India/Pakistan one-inch map of the area and the alignment so transferred will be reduced to a series of straight segments by joint agreement between the Surveyor-Generals of India and Pakistan, the segments being so located as to ensure that neither country receives a smaller area of the Patharia Forest than it would have received if the international boundary had followed the actual curved course of the Red Line.

DISPUTE NO. IV — KUSHYARA.

It was agreed that this dispute should be referred to an impartial Tribunal (not the Bagge Tribunal) consisting of one Indian judge, one Pakistani Judge, and one independent Chairman jointly agreed upon by the two Governments.

Bholaganj and Surma River Disputes

It was agreed that both sides shall endeavour to settle these disputes by correspondence or conference but failing a settlement these disputes shall be referred to the Tribunal to be set up for settling dispute No. IV.

It was agreed that where areas belonging to one country that have so far remained in the possession of the other and are delivered to the country to which they belong, the inhabitants of those areas must not be persecuted, harassed or forced to migrate. They must be given the option to acquire citizenship of the country to which the area is transferred. The inhabitants who migrate shall have the right to dispose of their immoveable property by sale, exchange or otherwise.

It was further agreed that deliberate destruction of immoveable property within the area to be transferred must not be allowed to take place.

It was agreed that every effort should be made by both countries to implement the decisions of this Conference regarding Bagge Disputes I, II and III before 5th February, 1954.

Extract relevant to exchange of Enclaves in East/West Bengal from a letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Mohammad Ali.

New Delhi, October 8, 1953.

My dear Prime Minister,

3. (i) Exchange of Enclaves: When we met in Karachi in July, 1953, we agreed that the Cooch Behar enclaves in East Bengal should be exchanged with the East Bengal enclaves in West Bengal. This was reiterated in the Joint Press Communiqué which we issued after we met again Delhi in August last. Certain proposals were also made to you by Dr. B. C. Roy, Chief Minister of West Bengal, suggesting that advantage could be taken of the exchange of enclaves to straighten out the boundary of Cooch Behar between India and Pakistan. It was proposed that the Patgram P.S. of Rangpur District which contained as many as 50 Cooch Behar enclaves should be ceded to India, in lieu of which India should cede sufficient territory as shown in the map furnished for the purpose, to make up for the excess area involved in the total exchange. In our subsequent correspondence after our meeting at Karachi a specific suggestion was made that proposals for the rectification of the boundary between East Pakistan and West Bengal should also be considered along with the question of the Exchange of Enclaves.

These proposals were made by us obviously with the intention of ensuring that the exchange of territory between India and Pakistan should take place on an equitable basis not specifically favouring either country, but in a manner which would be advantageous to both. As you know, if there is a straight exchange of the existing enclaves between the two countries, it would mean that India would cede approximately 8 square miles of territory in excess of the territory that she would receive from Pakistan in return.

You will easily appreciate that a small over-populated State that West Bengal is now, cannot possibly afford to give away such excess territory without being compensated in kind elsewhere. This is so obvious that it seems hardly worth while discussing the subject on any other basis. Unfortunately, however, this is exactly what the Pakistani Delegation at Calcutta did. They were not prepared to consider the proposal made by us, namely, that communicated to you by Dr. B.C. Roy, referred to above. Moreover, they had no alternative suggestion to make regarding the manner in which they proposed to compensate west Bengal for the extra 8 square miles of territory which it would be called upon to yield by the exchange of enclaves. This really meant that no real consideration of this question could take place at Calcutta, and the matter stands exactly where it did when we first discussed it, except that much time and effort has been needlessly wasted in the meantime. I, therefore, request you to look into the matter, and to make any alternative proposals that you may have in mind for giving West Bengal territory equal to that which she will be called upon to surrender to East Pakistan by the exchange of enclaves. This may be at any place along their common frontier that you may judge most convenient.

4. I have written to you very frankly about all these matters. I hope you will write to me equally frankly, as only then shall we be able to cut away the dead wood which has been hampering the growth of normal friendly relations between our two countries for all these years. Unless we do this, our future negotiations will be bogged down in the same way as our attempt to restore to the common man on this sub-continent the rights and privileges to which he is entitled by all that you and I stand for.

Yours sincerely

Sd/- Jawaharlal Nehru

October 10, 1953.

Government of India,
Ministry of External Affairs.
New Delhi.

Summary for the Cabinet

Subject: Indo-Pakistan (Eastern Zone) Conference.

In pursuance of the agreement reached between the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan during their discussions held in New Delhi last August, an Indo-Pakistan officials Conference was held in Calcutta on the 30th September and the 1st, 2nd and 3rd October 1953 to discuss the exchange of Cooch-Behar and East Bengal enclaves, travel and trade facilities and other issues relating to the Eastern Zone.

The Indian delegation was led by the Commonwealth Secretary Mr. B.F.H.B.
Tyebji, and the Pakistan delegation by Mr., J. A. Rahim, the Pakistan Foreign Secretary. The agenda of the Conference and the composition of our delegation are attached (Annexures ‘1’ and ‘2’) (not included here).

2. As the Agenda was heavy, it was decided that the Conference should break up into sub-committees to discuss allied groups of items; the sub-committees then reporting back to the Plenary Session. Annexure ‘3’ gives the composition of the three sub-committees which were formed at the first Plenary Session of the Conference held on the 30th September 1953. The sub-committees met on the 30th September and the 1st, 2nd and 3rd October 1953. The second Plenary Session was held on the evening of the 3rd October 1953 and approved the reports of the sub-committees. The minutes of the Plenary Session and of the sub-committees are at Annexure ‘4’ (Please see the previous document).

3. Even though not much progress was achieved on some of the important issues like the exchange of Enclaves, Border Trade, facilities to minorities, financial settlement and reorientation of the existing Passport and Visa Scheme, the Conference did make some progress on most of the outstanding boundary disputes, on the further liberalization of travel facilities, the amelioration of customs and currency restrictions, and in securing a greater understanding of each other’s points of view on the treatment of minorities, and on outstanding financial issues.

4. For the sake of clarity, comments are offered on the subjects discussed at the Conference in three parts:

I: Issues on which agreement was reached.

II: Issues on which there was complete dis-agreement, and

III: Issues open for further discussion and on which assurances were given.

Part I, Issues on which agreement was reached

5. Boundary disputes

The most significant achievement of the Conference was the solution of three of the four major disputes in the Eastern Zone. These four disputes were referred to the Bagged Tribunal, who gave their sward in January 1950, but even then, the actual demarcation of the boundary could not be under-taken as differences arose between the two sides on the interpretation of the Award.

(i) Dispute No.(1)- West Bengal border.

Agreement was reached:
(a) on the method of connecting the river boundary and the land boundary in the Kaliachak (West Bengal) - Shibganj (East Bengal) Sector; and,

(b) on the method of connecting the river boundary at both ends of the fixed land boundary on the river island (char) opposite Rajshahi.

(ii) Dispute No.(II) – West Bengal border.

Agreement was reached on the demarcation of the boundary along the Mathabhanga river.

(iii) Dispute No. (III)- Assam border.

Agreement was reached on the demarcation of the boundary between India and Pakistan in the sector of the Patharia Reserve Forest, viz. in accordance with the red line drawn by Sir Cyril Radcliffe on the map appended to his Award as decreed by the Bagge Tribunal.

The decisions of the last Indo-Pakistan Passport Conference held in New Delhi came into effect on the 25th July 1953; That Conference had recorded considerable progress in liberalising travel between the two countries. The Calcutta Conference was held only about three months after that date, but it was still found possible to make some further progress in this direction.

(i) An important agreement was on the exchange of information between the two Governments about the issue of visas by them. So far the Government of Pakistan has been to bucking this.

(ii) Agreement was also reached on several other points, chiefly on the procedure for the grant of travel facilities for the re-union of divided families, and for the repatriation, of nationals belonging to the other country, and on facilities to be granted to officials on the two sides to cross and re-cross the border on official business. The latter agreement will remove irksome restrictions and delays suffered by our Posts & Telegraphs officials and the Survey staff in particular on the border.

Some progress was also achieved on financial issues, particularly in the direction of getting by an agreed time, the data on which it will be possible for the two Central Governments to resolve their differences.

(i) Balance sheet of undivided Bengal.

Agreement was reached on the procedure to the followed for the finalisation of the balance sheet.
(ii) Wrong debits against undivided Bengal.

It was agreed to submit a final report to the two Governments (East and West Bengal) by the 31st December 1953.

(iii) Financial settlement between East Bengal and Assam.

It was agreed that the balance sheet with their recommendations should be prepared by the two Governments (East Bengal and Assam) and forwarded to their respective Central Governments by the 31st December 1953.

(iv) Transfer by Assam of Provident Fund of East Bengal Optees.

It was agreed that the matter should be further progressed on the basis of payments due on this account being set off against payments due to Assam from East Bengal for certain supplies of foodstuffs and irregular debits, and a report made to their respective Governments by the 31st December 1953.

Part II. Issues on which there was complete Disagreement.

8. Border Trade.

On most of the important issues, however, it was not possible to reach agreed decisions. On Border Trade and Freedom of Travel, in particular, there was a complete divergence of views between the two delegators.

9. Border Trade.

There was a complete deadlock on this issue which was all the more surprising as (1) the Committee on Border Trade of the Indo-Pakistan Trade Conference held in March 1953 had agreed on the general principles which should govern border trade between the two countries, and the Calcutta Conference was expected to work out the details of their implementation and (2) the two Prime Ministers had discussed in Karachi and New Delhi the general question of Border Trade. Annexure 5 is the report of the Committee on Border Trade and Annexure 6 is an extract of a minute by the Prime Minister on his talks with the Prime Minister of Pakistan in Karachi on the 25th July 1953.

For three days the Pakistan delegation were not prepared to discuss the question of border trade which was one of the first to be included in the agenda for the Conference. On the evening of the third day, one of the officers of the Pakistan Commerce Ministry flew to Calcutta with apparently a rigid brief on the subject.

When the problem was discussed on the morning of the fourth and final day of the Conference, the Pakistan delegation affirmed their general acceptance of the principles agreed to in the sub-committee at Delhi and wanted only minor procedural changes to enable the two Governments to make a rough assessment periodically of the volume of border trade with a view to ensuring that a balance was maintained between the two countries. For this purpose, they suggested that a distinction should be made between

(a) Actual producer-cum-consumer and
(b) petty traders.

The Pakistan delegation wanted (b) to operate under a system of licences and to be accorded freedom of movement with goods only on Hat (market) days. No questions in regard to liability to pay customs duty or restrictions on movements only through specified routes or check-posts were raised during the early part of the discussion. On this basis, details of commodities and quantities were discussed and agreed over a large sector of the border trade. But in the concluding stages of the discussion, the Pakistan delegation raised the issue of liability to pay customs duties and the consequent need to impose restrictions on movement only through specified routes and check posts. It was argued by the Indian delegation that this suggestion involved a radical departure from the principles agreed to by the sub-committee on border trade, as far back as March 1953. It was urged that if the arrangements to facilitate border trade were intended to alleviate the hardship of the people living on either side of the border, it was essential that provision should be made to free completely the export/import of specified goods in agreed quantities from import/export, and foreign exchange restrictions and customs rules and regulations. If even the goods forming part of the border trade were to be subjected to the payment of customs duties, it would be necessary to impose harassing restrictions on movement and to provide for numerous routes and check posts. This was administratively impracticable. Pakistan was reminded that when so far they had been unable to organise as many customs posts on their side as have been established on the Indian side of the border, it was impossible to expect that the two Governments would be able to organise detailed customs regime for border-trade along the whole length of the border. No agreement could be reached on this point, and the Conference was unable to work out a scheme for border trade within the ambit of the principles agreed to by the sub-committee of the Indo-Pak Trade Conference in March 1953.

10. Freedom of Movement.

As stated in para 5 above, some progress was made in liberalising travel between the two countries. It was not, however, possible to secure from the Pakistan delegation any agreement on a re-orientation or a simplification of the existing passport and visa scheme. They refused to consider the abolition of the visa system in the Eastern Zone or its simplification in both the zones. Concrete suggestions made by the Indian delegation in this regard for the automatic grant of visas at the check posts for visits up to two months and for the reduction of the number of categories of visas so that the system would conform to inter-national or Commonwealth practice were also rejected by the Pakistan delegation.

No agreement was reached on some of the financial issues raised by the Government of East Bengal, e.g. an on-account payment by West Bengal pending the finalization of the balance sheet between the two Governments, payment of pre-partition claims against undivided Bengal.

Part III. Issues open for further discussion and those in which assurances were given.

12. Liberalization of restrictions regarding currency and customs.

Even though no definite agreement was reached in these matters, it was agreed that the suggestions made at the Conference should be discussed further between the representatives concerned of the two Governments. These suggestions related mainly to the publication of a uniform set of baggage rules by the two Governmental, the opening of additional customs check-post by the Government of Pakistan and the grant of additional exchange facilities to travelers.

The Pakistan delegation proposed a direct exchange of enclaves, while the Indian delegation suggested that in addition to the enclaves, Pakistan should also transfer to India approximately 8 sq. miles of Pakistan territory, as the area of the enclaves to be transferred by India was larger than that to be transferred by Pakistan. The Pakistan delegation promised to consider the Indian suggestion further.

14. Agreement on river navigation.

The Pakistan delegation also promised to consider the West Bengal Government’s suggestion for an agreement on the navigational use of rivers by vessels of both countries in cases where the median lines of the rivers formed the international boundary.

15. Boundary Disputes.

(I) Dispute No.IV - Assam-Border.

No agreement was reached on this dispute. It related originally to the course of the river Kushiyara in Assam, which was disputed by Pakistan. A decision on this was given in India’s favour by the Bagge Tribunal, but, unfortunately, in doing so, Lord Justice Bagge indulged in some uncalled for obiter dicta, which gave rise to a dispute in other parts of this area, The confusion in this matter was also increased by similar obiter dicta by Mr. Justice Chandrasekhar, the Indian judge in the Tribunal. No compromise was possible as the territory involved was not small. It was, therefore, decided that this matter should be referred to another Tribunal consisting of one Indian judge, the Pakistani judge and one neutral judge (other than Lord Bagged) jointly agreed upon by the two Governments.

(ii) Other local disputes

(a) Bengal border: No agreement was reached on the Berubari and Hili disputes, but it was decided that they should be discussed further between the two Chief Secretaries,

(b) Assam border: Here again, no agreement was reached on the Bholaganj and the river Surma disputes. It was decided that they should be discussed between the two Chief Secretaries concerned, and failing an agreement between them, they should be referred to the Tribunal to be constituted for Dispute No, IV.

16. Items arising out of the Prime Ministers Agreement on Minorities.

The Indian delegation had raised several questions of breaches of the agreement by the Government of East Bengal in regard to requisitioning and derequisitioning of properties, meetings of the Minority Boards and Minority Commissions, etc. The East Bengal representatives assured the Indian delegation of their observance of the Agreement. It was not, however, possible to make any progress on legislation to be enacted by the East Bengal Government regarding forcible conversion and search and the recovery and custody of abducted women. The Pakistan delegation suggested that, this matter was of sufficient importance for discussion between the two Minority Ministers. They also suggested that the question of provision of certain safeguards for members of the minority community while requisitioning land belonging to them should also be discussed by the two Ministers.

17. Issue of Clearance Certificates to intending Migrants.

Pakistan has been anxious to secure our agreement to their proposal under which migrants from Pakistan to India would have to obtain clearance certificates from them in addition to migration certificates from the Indian Deputy High Commissioner at Dacca. No agreement was reached on this issue at the Conference, and it was decided that it should be pursued further by correspondence.

18. To sum up:

(a) Agreement was reached on three of the four disputes in the Eastern Zone referred to the Bagge Tribunal.

(b) Agreement was also reached on a few matters relating to the visa system, and,

(c) Some progress was achieved in formulating agreed procedures for processing of financial claims by the two sides.

(ii) No agreement was, however, reached on—

(a) Working out of an agreed procedure for border trade within the ambit of the principles laid down at an earlier Indo-Pakistan Conference.

(b) A re-orientation or a simplification of the existing passport and visa scheme, and

(c) on some financial issues,

(iii) On the following issues, the door was left open for further discussion and formal or informal assurances were given of sympathetic consideration:

(a) The Indian proposal of equal transfer of territory in connection with the exchange of enclaves,

(b) Unsolved border disputes,

(c) liberalization of restrictions regarding currency and customs,

(d) facilities to members of the minority community in East Bengal and

(e) agreement on navigational use by vessels of both countries of rivers whose median lines formed the international boundary.

19. The decisions of the Conference are subject to ratification. They are accordingly submitted to the Cabinet for their approval. The approval of the Cabinet is also sought for further negotiation by correspondence or conference, as convenient, of the issues on which no agreement was reached at the Conference.
20. The Minister for External Affairs has approved the summary and the proposal made in Para 19 above. The Ministries of Finance and Commerce & Industry have concurred.

2769. Joint Communiqué issued after the ratification of the decisions of the Eastern Zone Conference between the Representatives of Governments of India and Pakistan.

New Delhi, October 15, 1953.

The Governments of India and Pakistan have ratified the decisions reached at the Indo-Pakistan (Eastern Zone) Conference held at Calcutta from the 30th September to the 3rd October 1953 in pursuance of the Agreement reached between the two Prime Ministers at New Delhi in August 1953.

The two Governments agreed on the following matters; they are taking steps to give immediate effect to the decisions:

(1) Boundary Disputes
(a) Dispute No.1 before the Bagge Tribunal.
   The method of connecting the river boundary and the land boundary in the Kaliachak (W.Bengal) – Shibganj (East Bengal) sector and on the method of connecting the river boundary at both ends of the fixed land boundary on the char opposite Rajshahi.
(b) Dispute No. II before the Bagge Tribunal.
   The boundary along the river Mathabhanga referred to in this Dispute.
(c) Dispute No.III before the Bagge Tribunal-Patharia Hill Reserve Forest.
   The demarcation of the boundary in this sector.
(d) Dispute No. IV before the Bagge Tribunal The course of the river Kusiyara.

To refer this dispute to another impartial Tribunal consisting of one Indian judge, one Pakistani judge and one independent Chairman, jointly agreed upon by the two Governments.

(e) Berubari and Hilli Disputes.

The dispute over the boundary in Berubari I.L.No.23 of P.S. Jalpaiguri of undivided Bengal and the dispute over the boundary in Hili were discussed, and left over for further discussion at a later date.

(f) Bholaganj and the River Surma Disputes.

Both sides to endeavour to settle the disputes by correspondence or Conference, failing which to refer them to the Tribunal set up for settling Dispute No. IV referred to above.

(g) That where area belonging to one country which have so far remained in the possession of the other are delivered to the country to which they belong, the inhabitants of those areas should not be persecuted, harassed or forced to migrate. They should be given the option to acquire the citizenship of the country to which the area is transferred. Those who choose to migrate should be given the right to dispose of their property by sale, exchange or otherwise.

Further, that deliberate destruction of property within the area to be transferred should not be permitted.

(h) Every effort should be made by both countries to implement the decisions of this Conference regarding the Bagge Disputes. I, II and III before the 5th February, 1954.

(2) Liberalisation of travel facilities

(a) ‘A’ Category visas:

Instructions to be issued to visa-issuing authorities that medical practitioners, lawyers and other professional men resident in the border zone were eligible to receive Category “A” visas, if they practised their professions within that area,

(b) “B” Category visas.

Nephews and nieces of the first degree should be included in the list of near-relations for the purposes of the grant or “B” visas.

The present regulation requiring visa-holders of “B” category to leave at the end of two months should be liberalised. They should be allowed the facility available to holders of visas of other categories to obtain extensions of stay, if required, during the validity of their visas. The visa-holders would, however, have to apply for the extension of the period of stay during a single visit at the expiry of every two months.

It was explained that the Deputy High Commissioner for Pakistan at Calcutta insisted only when in doubt that Indian nationals having an interest in immovable properties in East Bengal should produce some kind of satisfactory evidence in support of their claim for “B” visas. Indian visa-issuing authorities would not insist on bona fide applicants desirous of applying for forest permits producing forest permits before visas were granted to them.

(c) “D” Category visas.
“D” (Diplomatic) and “D” (Official) visas should, on application, be made valid for a maximum period of one year and for repeated journeys during that period.

(d) Photographs for renewal of applications.
It would not be necessary to affix photographs on the application forms for the renewal of any category of visa during the validity of the passport, if the renewal application was made to the original visa issuing authorities.

(e) Reports of arrivals and departures to the Police.
It should be re-emphasised by both the Governments by the issue of fresh instructions and publicity that holders of categories “C”, “F” and “E” visas (except transport workers) who are required to report their arrivals and departures to the Police, could do so by letter, and that there was no need for them to make these reports in person.

(f) Multi-journey transit visas.
The Government of Pakistan would issue detailed instructions to the grant of multi-journey transit visas in accordance with the previous agreement between the two Governments, if their present instructions were inadequate.

(g) Excessive references.
Both the Governments should issue fresh instructions emphasising that there should not be unnecessary or excessive reference to them by their visa-issuing authorities.

(h) Registration with Intelligence Branch of Police.
The Government of Pakistan would instruct the check post officials that, as long as the visas on the passports of Indian nationals were issued by authorities within East Bengal at the time of the departure of Indian nationals from Pakistan, they should not insist on their registering themselves with the Police or on their producing duplicate copies of their application forms to verify the legality of their original entry into Pakistan.

(i) Exchange of information.

As decided at the last Indo-Pakistan Passport Conference in January-February 1953, information of the issue of visas by the two Governments should now be exchanged, and that, as the dates specified in the passport agreement had expired the information to be exchanged should for the following two periods and should be done by the 31st October, 1953:-

(a) from the introduction of the passport scheme till the 31st January 1953; and

(b) from the 1st February 1953, to the 31st August 1953.

The two Governments may later exchange this information on a quarterly basis. Before the end of each quarter the two Governments would fix the date for such exchange.

(j) Repatriation of nationals belonging to the other country.

The following procedure will be followed in lieu of the one agreed to at the Indo-Pakistan Passport Conference held in February 1953:

1. If a person is convicted and sentenced to imprisonment by a court of law for the contravention of the Passport Regulations, and his passport expires during this period of the sentence, then within the shortest possible time, not exceeding ten days, of his release he should be allowed by the check posts of both the countries exist end entry on the production of his expired passport, and the release order issued by the Superintendent of the jail (in which he served his sentence) together with a certificate by the latter to the effect that he had been in jail undergoing imprisonment on conviction for a contravention of the passport regulations.

2. If a person, having entered one country from the other, without any passport or anything equivalent travel document is convicted and sentenced by a Court of Law for illegal entry all the relevant facts will, immediately in such conviction, be communicated to the nearest Diplomatic Mission of the country from which the person had entered in the country where he is convicted, together with a certified copy of the judgment of the Court convicting him of illegal entry. If the Diplomatic Mission to which the references is made does not within a forthright refuse in writing to acknowledge the convicted person as its national, on expiry of the sentence such person shall be allowed exist and entry. (If the refusal is communicated within the fortnight stipulated above, the convicted person will not be repatriated until the matter is settled between the two Governments).

(i) If a sentence of imprisonment has been imposed, he shall be allowed exit and entry within the shortest period not exceeding thirty days of his release on production of the release order issued by the Superintendent of the Jail (in which he has served his sentence) together with a certificate by the latter to the effect that the person had been in Jail undergoing imprisonment on conviction for contravention of the Passport Regulations; and,

(ii) If the sentence is of fine, or discharge or acquittal, he shall be allowed, exit and entry within the shortest period not exceeding thirty days of the payment of the fine or other order of the Court which will be supplied to the convicted person free of charge.

(3) There will be no bar to the prevention of illegal entry or the expulsion of illegal entrants while attempting to enter illegally either country.

(K) Re-union of divided families.

The grant of the following facilities for the re-union of divided families:-

(a) If the persons concerned are, under the law of the country from which they wish to migrate, its nationals and as such are eligible for being issued with passports of that country, they will be required to produce such passports with appropriate visas for admission into the other country.

(b) If, however, the persons affected are not, under the law of the country from which they wish to migrate, eligible for the grant of passports of that country, the Government of the country giving re-union facilities will admit them on the strength of appropriate visas given on Emergency Certificates issued by the other country which will, for this purpose, be recognized as valid travel documents by both the Countries. For the above purposes, visas will be issued for a period of one year, and extended from time to time until the holder has acquired the citizenship of the country to which he or she has come to rejoin his or her family.
(1) Lapse of visa for non-utilisation within six months.

If a visa expires because of its non-utilisation by the holder within six months of its issue, the visa holder will be allowed to apply for its extension on payment of the visa fee only, without having to submit an application for extension in the usual form with photographs. The duplicate copy of the original application returned to him will, however, have to be produced for revalidation.

(3) Liberalisation of restrictions regarding customs

The Government of Pakistan would give wide, publicity to their baggage rules and migrants’ concessions. The customs representatives of the two countries shall get together as early as possible to work out a revised set of common baggage rules based upon reciprocity, and considerations of public convenience, for implementation simultaneously by the two Governments by December 1953. It was emphasised that as it was the policy of both Governments to ensure the utmost free-flow of traffic between the two countries these revised rules should provide as liberal a treatment as possible to the passengers.

The customs representatives of the two countries will consider the concrete proposals made by the Government of India for the opening of parallel land customs stations on the Pakistan side, corresponding to the land customs stations on the Indian side in accordance with para 3(ii) of the Indo-Pakistan Agreement of April 1948, as modified by the Agreement of December 1948.

The Government of Pakistan will issue instructions to the customs authorities in the Eastern Zone that they should not insist on sealing certain in-transit goods, like bamboo and bamboo kanchis, and that so long as the quantity declared in the in-transit documents accompanying the goods agree with the quantity and goods in transit, the movement of such goods should not be interfered with.

4. Review of some of the items from the Prime Ministers’ Agreement of April 1950 and its August Annexure.

(a) Legislation regarding forcible conversion and search and custody of abducted women.

This matter should be considered further by the Ministers for Minorities of the two countries.

(b) Minority Commissions and, District and Sub-Divisional minority Boards.

The Minority Commissions and Beards should meet regularly. In regard to the Minority Boards, the monthly meetings should be held even if there was no formal agenda for the meeting. The proceedings of the meetings of the Boards should be maintained, and the practice of confirming the proceed-ings of a meeting at the subsequent meeting should be adopted.

(c) Requisitioning of rural properties.

It was explained that the Government of Pakistan requisitioned only fallow land when required.

The two Minority Ministers should discuss the suggestion that blocks of land in which minority interests were more than 50% should not be requisitioned.

The suggestion that when requisition-ing, a minimum area for the actual subsistence of the owner should be exempted, would be considered.

5. Financial Issues.

The procedure for the finalisation of the balance-sheet for undivided Bengal.

In regard to the financial settlement between East Bengal and Assam, the balance-sheet with their recommendations should be prepared by the Governments of East Bengal and Assam and forwarded to their respective Central Governments by the 31st December 1953.

On the question of wrong debits against undivided Bengal, the Application Committee should complete the scrutiny of the debits in dispute and submit a final report to the two Governments by the 31st December 1953.

In regard to the question of transfer by Assam of Provident Funds of East Bengal optees, the matter should be progressed further on the basis of the payments due on this account being set off against payments due to Assam from East Bengal for certain supplies of foodstuffs and irregular debits, and a report made to the respective Governments by the 31st December 1953.

6. Exchange of Enclaves

The general question of the exchange should be discussed further at a later date. If the exchanges were affected, the nationals of those enclaves must not be persecuted, harassed or forced to migrate. They should also be given the option to acquire the citizenship of the country to which the enclave would fall after the exchange, and those continuing to remain in the enclaves should suffer no disabilities in the matter of acquiring citizenship rights. Government servants working in the enclaves should be withdrawn by their parent country of the exchange.
We, the Plenipotentiaries of the Governments of India and Pakistan do hereby accept the alignment of the boundary between India and Pakistan from Point No: 1 in Map Sheet 68 to Point No: 9 of Map Sheet 53; and from Point No: 1 of Map Sheet 4 to Point No: 6 of Map Sheet 4; and from Point No: 1 of Map Sheet 89 to the Off-take of the Mathabhanga in Map Sheet 85 of the India-Pakistan Boundary (Ganges Area) Series as defined by the co-ordinates of the agreed list which is herewith attached, in witness of which we have signed each of the pages of the said list.

We accept as correct the delineation of the parts of the said India-Pakistan Boundary on Map Sheets Numbers 68, 69, 64, 65, 60, 61, 56, 57, 53, 4, of the India-Pakistan Boundary (Ganges Area) Series prepared by the Air Survey Company Limited of London, in witness of which we have jointly signed each original copy of the above mentioned sheets.

We accept as correct the alignment of the part of the said India-Pakistan Boundary entered by hand in red ink on Map Sheets 85 and 89 of the above mentioned map series, and we accept the deletion of the descriptive remark “Fluctuating Boundary 18th January 1951” printed in Sheets 84 and 85 alongside the line joining Point No.1 of Map Sheet 84 with the Off-take of the Mathabhanga, this line being now a fixed boundary; and we also accept the deletion of the note “Boundary follows the middle line of the main channel” printed alongside the Mathabhanga River in Map Sheet 85; in witness of which we have signed each of the two copies of Map Sheets 84, 85 and 89.

Letter from Pakistan Prime Minister Mohammad Ali to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

My dear Prime Minister,

I regret I was not able to deal with your letter dated October 8, 1953, earlier. It is only now that I have been able to study the subjects dealt with in it in some detail and am in a position to write.

1. Although I agree that much progress was not made during the Calcutta Conference, I do not think that it would be at all fair to say that the Conference had failed properly to appreciate the issues involved or that they had been mishandled. It is true that you and I had agreed that the enclaves should be exchanged and that border trade and travel should be facilitated. But in considering the actual mechanism for giving effect to these general agreements we have to be realistic and must take into account certain practical considerations. A settlement which did not take full account of the practical difficulties involved would only serve to create more problems than it solved. Let me take the three matters specifically mentioned by you.

2. (i) Exchange of Enclaves: You propose that since a straight exchange of the existing enclaves between the two countries would mean that Pakistan would receive 8 sq. miles of territory in excess of the territory she ceded to India, we should make over to West Bengal 8 sq. miles of East Bengal territory in addition to the enclaves exchanged. This is a proposition which I fear my Government are unable to accept. It involves not merely the handing over to India of 8 sq. miles of territory which has since Partition constituted part of Pakistan, but also of Pakistan nationals living in such territory without even the justification that might be urged for such a transfer in the case of an enclave. You can well imagine the public out-cry that is bound to arise against any such proposal. My Government does not feel that they could justify such a proposition before the public. We could however, support a straight exchange of enclaves since it would involve exchange of an approximately equal number of nationals of both countries.

(ii) Border Trade: I regret that there was delay in the arrival in Calcutta of our representative from the Ministry of Commerce with Government’s brief on this subject. This arose out of delay in putting certain administrative formalities through owing to my personal preoccupation with other matters. I do not think however that any serious harm was done by this delay because although he arrived on the last day of the conference there was no reason why the conference could not have continued for another day had there been some possibility of agreement being reached. Nor do I think it was at all material that this particular officer had no personal knowledge of local conditions, since the Delegation included five senior officers from East Bengal (including the Chief Secretary to that Government) who were fully conversant with local conditions and the background of this subject.

The main difficulty in appreciating the Pakistan Delegation’s approach to this question of border trade appears to me to have arisen out of a misunderstanding. It seems to have been assumed that the principles enunciated at Delhi by the Indo-Pakistani sub-committee on border trade in March last had been accepted by the Government of Pakistan and that these were later being repudiated by the Pakistan Delegation in Calcutta. I would invite your attention to the report of that sub-committee where it was made quite clear that the conclusions reached were provisional and subject to acceptance by the two Governments in principle. My Government has at no time accepted them. At the same time, since it had been decided that this subject should be discussed again at the Calcutta Conference, it was considered unnecessary to convey our inability to accept those principles to the Government of India, it being assumed that our reactions to these principles would be conveyed at the conference itself when the matter came up for further discussion. I regret that our omission to inform the Government of India of our reactions in advance had given rise to the mistaken belief that the principles enunciated by the sub-committee in Delhi had been accepted by us. While at the Calcutta Conference the Pakistan Delegation was therefore right in agreeing to let discussion proceed on the basis of the recommendations made by the subcommittee on border trade, it was unfortunate that this should have created the impression in the mind of the Indian Delegation that those recommendations had been accepted and that they were being subsequently repudiated. In fact nothing of the kind had happened.

I come now to the mechanism for promoting border trade discussed at the Calcutta Conference. We are anxious to promote legitimate border trade but could not possibly agree to a system that would lead to large scale abuse and smuggling. Looked at from this point of view the principles set out by the sub-committee on border trade in Delhi are wholly unsuitable. Any proposal that involves that the nationals of either country should be allowed freely to take even limited quantities of goods at every point across the border without being subject to import, export or foreign exchange regulations, or customs control would only mean that we would be opening the flood-gates of smuggling and no machinery that we could devise could ensure that the import and export account in terms of the quantities and values of goods moving thus across the border would, as envisaged by the sub-committee, be balanced. I would earnestly request you to consider our difficulties in the matter. It is difficult enough already to stop smuggling from and into East Bengal along the 1700 miles of land border of that province. The Indian proposal, if accepted, would not only make it absolutely impossible to stop smuggling but would in fact directly encourage it and the persons who would take advantage of the situation would be not so much the inhabitants of the border areas in question but the professional smuggler with his army of small agents operating along numerous points on this border. It seems to me that if our intention is to promote legitimate border trade for the convenience of the residents in border areas we should have to give this matter further consideration and think along lines different from those recommended by the border sub-committee.

(iii) Freedom of Movement: Here again I am constrained to find that the approach of the Pakistan Delegation was helpful and realistic. The time for doing away with the visa system has not come and, in my opinion, will not come until all Indo-Pakistan disputes have been resolved and Indo-Pakistan relations have been placed firmly on a friendly and cooperative basis, free from the suspicions, the antagonisms and the bitterness that now cloud the atmosphere between the two countries. On the other hand, even the alternative proposal of the Indian Delegation that a passport holder anywhere in India or in Pakistan could visit the other country for two months without obtaining a visa amounted virtually to the abolition of the visa system and was, as pointed out by the Pakistan Delegation, administratively impracticable. The Delegation was right in taking the line that since the passport scheme had been only recently introduced and had been already revised and liberalized twice during its short existence and seemed to be working well, it would be better to watch its operation for some time before considering any major modifications. In the meantime, however, they were prepared to consider further liberalization of the existing system so as to facilitate travel between the two countries. Accordingly they did in fact agree to a number of suggestions put forward by the Indian Delegation designed to achieve that end. On the other hand, I am sorry to note that in cases where relief is urgently needed and could be given without prejudice to any security considerations involved e.g. grant of category ‘A’ visas by the Border Indian District Magistrates (instead of the Indian High Commission) as is being done in Pakistan, and seamen’s visas – matters which have been raised time and again at the Passport Conference with India, the Pakistan Delegation was able to obtain no more than an agreement that India would examine the suggestions made. It seemed to me that even without altering the very basis of that existing scheme which the Indian Delegation sought to do, there is considerable scope for improving it and provided this is done and the scheme is worked with a determination to promote rather than obstruct legitimate traffic, there should be no reason why any serious inconvenience should be felt by bona fide visitors from either country. I suggest that the operation of the scheme should be kept under close review by both Governments with a view to improving and liberalizing it in the light of experience as and when conditions warrant it.

3. I was greatly disappointed at the attitude of the Indian Delegation towards Dispute No. IV concerning the Bagge Award. The award in this case is absolutely clear, intelligible and unambiguous. Under the Inter-Dominion Agreement of December 1948 both the Governments of India and Pakistan bound themselves to accept it and carry it out. Nevertheless, a dispute has arisen simply because the Government of India are not willing to accept this award and have decided to repudiate it by arguing, I gather, that in giving this award the Bagge Tribunal had exceeded its terms of reference. A dispassionate study of the terms of reference and of the award itself will show how wholly untenable the Government of India’s stand is and it was my hope that now that both countries were determined to resolve their disputes it would be possible for our Delegation to persuade yours in Calcutta to agree that the Bagge Award be implemented. Our Delegation met with stubborn and unreasoning opposition to this suggestion from the Indian side. They were eventually left with no alternative but to agree that the dispute concerning the implementation of the Bagge Award be submitted to another tribunal, although under the Inter-Dominion Agreement of 1948 which I have above quoted this award was to be “final”, and its implementation by both Governments was mandatory. An attitude such as this is I consider most unhelpful and makes your task and mine in resolving Indo-Pakistan differences only the more difficult.

4. If the general propositions I have set out above are acceptable to you, I should be agreeable to another meeting of the representatives of the two Governments to consider questions of exchange of enclaves, border trade, and any other matters left over from the Calcutta Conference which you consider need further examination.

Yours sincerely,

Sd. Mohammed Ali

The Hon’ble Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru,
Prime Minister of India, New Delhi.
Secret

Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Mohammad Ali.

New Delhi, March 6, 1954.

My dear Prime Minister

Thank you for your letter of the 3rd February, regarding the subjects discussed at the officials’ Conference in Calcutta in September-October 1953.

2. I confess I do not know how to deal with these problems when you suggest that you are agreeable to another meeting of the officials only if the general propositions you have set out in your letter are acceptable to me, particularly when I find that the general propositions you have now set out are so completely at variance with our previous agreements and the positive cooperative approach in Indo-Pakistan discussions laboriously built up during the last year.

3. I do not propose to repeat here what I had written in my letter of the 8th October 1953. I may, however, invite your attention to the concluding part of my letter where I had said that unless we are able to cut away the dead wood which has been hampering the growth of normal friendly relations of our two countries, our future negotiations will be bogged down in the same way as those of the past. Unfortunately, what we wished to avoid is exactly what is happening on these problems.

4. I am attaching herewith a detailed note which deals with the various points mentioned in your letter. No meeting of officials can make any progress unless we both agree on the main objective in dealing with these matters, viz., the restoration of normality in the Eastern Zone and give specific directives to the officials to implement this objective in their discussions and recommendations.

Yours sincerely

Sd/- Jawaharlal Nehru

The Hcn’ble Mr. Mohammed Ali,
Prime Minister of Pakistan, Karachi.

*********************
Note attached to the above letter setting out Indian position on various issues.

1. Exchange of Enclaves: On this issue, instead of making any progress, the latest proposal takes matters a step backward.

This question has been under the consideration of the two Central Governments as well as the two Bengal for a long time. The 14th Chief Secretaries’ Conference in the Eastern Zone held in 1950 had recommended that the Governments of East Bengal and West Bengal should consider exchanging these Enclaves. There was then some correspondence between the two Central Governments, when the Government of India accepted the proposal in principle and the Government of Pakistan stated that they would first like to know the terms and conditions which India would suggest for the proposed exchange.

It was in this context that the two Prime Ministers met in Karachi. The intention was to have done with this cautious jockeying for positions and non-committal arguing in circles. Immediately after the talks in Karachi, the Indian Prime Minister wrote on the 29th July 1953, in continuation of the discussion between the two Prime Ministers and referred to Pakistan Prime Minister’s ideas on the question of compensation for the excess area of West Bengal enclaves and his own suggestion regarding the desirability of considering minor rectifications of the border in this connection.

There never was any question of a straight exchange either before or after the Karachi meeting. The Pakistan delegation in Calcutta formally put forward such a plea for the first time in the long history of Indo-Pakistan discussions on the subject, summarily rejected the proposals regarding minor rectifications of the border handed over to the Pakistan Prime Minister by Dr. B.C. Roy in May 1953, which our delegation put forward for consideration and declined to consider or put forward any alternative proposals. They refused to consider the question of compensation or of rectification of the border, despite the two Prime Ministers’ agreement to consider these.

The latest proposal for a straight exchange of enclaves not only ignores completely the discussions between the two Prime Ministers on the subject and the tentative principles agreed to but is more retrograde than any position taken up by the Pakistan Government in the past and seems obviously intended to sabotage all efforts at solution. Nor do the arguments advanced in defence of this new proposition have any validity.

The objection that the Indian proposal involves not merely the handing over to India of eight square miles of territory which has since partition constituted part of Pakistan but also of Pakistan nationals living in such territory, without the justification that might be urged for such a transfer in the case of an enclave, can hardly be sustained in the light of the agreed item on the agenda, exchange of enclaves. i.e. transfer of territories which had since partition constituted part of Pakistan and India. No objection could be raised on the general principle of transfer of sovereignty only in respect of these additional eight square miles. Abundant justification for such a transfer also exists and is equally valid both in regard to the enclaves themselves as well as in regard to the rectification of the border and equalization of exchange between India and Pakistan.

Secondly, straight exchange of enclaves is advocated as it would involve exchange of an approximately equal number of nationals of both countries. It is true that the discrepancy in population in the enclaves is proportionately smaller than that in area. The Indian enclaves are about 27 square miles; the Pakistani enclaves are about 19 square miles. The population in Indian enclaves is about 12,600; that in Pakistani enclaves is about 11,000. This, however, is not the main point. As far as the population in the two areas is concerned, an agreement was reached at the Calcutta Conference and it was that the nationals of these enclaves must not be persecuted, harassed or forced to migrate. Further, they must be given the option to acquire the citizenship of the country to which the enclave will fall after the exchange and that those remaining on in the enclaves should suffer no disability in the matter of acquisition of citizenship rights. Thus, it was decided that the citizens of the enclaves were the masters of their fate. They could stay on or migrate and in either case, they should get the rights they want.

The argument that the exchanges will be fair because the populations in the two groups of enclaves are equal has neither any force nor relevance as it refers to populations before the exchange.

2. Border Trade; The Karachi communiqué of the Prime Ministers’ Conference recorded their agreement that the restriction on travel and trade should, as far as possible, be removed or minimized, the whole approach to the problem being to bring back normality. The latest proposal is that the nationals of the two countries should not be allowed to carry even limited quantities of goods in the border zone without being subject to export, import and foreign exchange regulations as well as customs control.

The frontier is 1700 miles long. There are only a limited number of check-posts on this border and even with the imposition of the Passport Scheme, it has been agreed that people can move about freely in the border zone with ‘A’ visas and cross the border wherever they like without passing through a check post or without any formality of registration or reporting to the police. Nevertheless, it is suggested that for the purpose of carrying a basketful of local produce, these people must come within the rigours of our respective export control, import control and exchange control laws and be subjected to customs examination at the small number of check posts established on this long border.

There is a misunderstanding in the Pakistan Prime Minister’s letter which requires clearing. It is stated with reference to the Delhi Agreement that “since it had been decided that this subject should be discussed again at the Calcutta Conference, it was considered unnecessary to convey our inability to accept those principles to the Government of India”.

The chronology of events is all wrong. The Delhi Agreement was reached in March 1953. The plenary session of that particular Indo-Pakistan Conference recorded the agreement that “on approval by the respective Governments of the principles recommended in the report, a conference to implement them and to work out the details should be convened not later than the 30th April 1953”. India duly communicated her approval of the principles recommended in the Border Trade Committee’s report and requested the approval of the Government of Pakistan. To this a reply was received on the 16th April to the effect that the matter was receiving attention. Nothing further was since heard on this subject from the Government of Pakistan and no conference was held before the 30th April 1953 as agreed to at the Delhi Conference.

The Calcutta Conference was conceived only during the end of July 1953. As a matter of fact, a formal proposal for a conference was sent from us only on the 4th August 1953 and no reply had been received from the Government of Pakistan even to this proposal till the 5th September 1953.

There was no idea of a Calcutta Conference till the end of July and there could be no question of the Government of Pakistan postponing the communication of their decisions on the principles recommended by the Delhi Border Trade Conference of March 1953 as the same subject was going to be discussed at the Calcutta Conference.

The main point, of course, is that the proposition now put forward is entirely contrary to what the two Prime Ministers had in mind and what the Indo-Pakistan Conference held in Delhi had in mind. What is now proposed is not a return to normality but a complete negation of border trade.

3. Freedom of Movement; Apart from misunderstandings on the two points discussed below, the proposition new put forward is contrary to the agreed and express desire of the two Prime Ministers to minimize restrictions and to restore normality as far as possible.

(i) ‘A’ Visas: It is proposed that the border district magistrates should be authorized to grant them. This is not new. Before the introduction of the passport system, when an agreed scheme was being worked out by representatives of the two countries, this suggestion was made and considered very carefully by the Indian representatives and found impracticable. Since then the Government of India had reiterated their considered findings in the matter several times. The main difficulty is in regard to the presentation of applications and payment of visa fees. A Pakistani national, applying to the Indian District Magistrate, cannot reach the magistrate unless he has a visa. He can only apply to the Indian visa offices which are situated in his own country. Even if it is arranged that the Pakistani District Magistrate should collect all such applications from Pakistani nationals and pass them on to the Indian District Magistrate across the border and even if the difficulty of letting the courier cross the border with application forms and substantial amount of currency is surmounted, there will be question of currency difficulties as the fees would be in Pakistani currency. The Indian District Magistrate cannot accept this currency. The Indian Visa Offices in Pakistan can, of course, accept it. The Government of India therefore suggested that the most practical method of dealing with this problem was for the Indian Visa Officers in Pakistan to grant ‘A’ visas. If the applicants need any assistance, there could be no objection to the Pakistani District Magistrates collecting the applications and the fees and forwarding them to the Indian Missions, as we do not insist on personal presentation of applications.

In this connection, it may be relevant to point out that till the 31st August 1953; Indian Visa Offices had issued 19,462 ‘A’ Visas to Pakistani nationals, while according to the information so far supplied to us by the Government of Pakistan, only 36 ‘A’ visas have been issued by Pakistan to Indian nationals.

Indian authorities have always adopted a liberal attitude in regard to travel restrictions in theory as well as in practice and Pakistan practices have been the other way as illustrated by these figures.

(ii) Transit Visas for Pakistani Seamen; Even through the minutes of the Conference state that the Indian delegation promised to examine the suggestions put forward in this regard by the Pakistani delegation, just after the Conference broke up, the Pakistan delegation was informed that the position had been verified from the Shipping Master in Calcutta and that the Pakistani proposals had already been implemented by India. The Pakistan Foreign Office is aware of the position and has already confirmed it in a letter written by them to our High Commission in Karachi.

4. Boundary Demarcation: It is surprising that this particular item has been mentioned in the Prime Minister's correspondence. The facts are different from those stated in the Pakistan Prime Minister's letter. The correct position in respect of Dispute No. IV is as follows:

   The dispute referred to the Bagge Tribunal was regarding the course of the river Kusiyara mentioned in the Radcliffe Award. The Government of Pakistan described some other river as the Kusiyara. The Bagge Tribunal settled that dispute and confirmed that the river Kusiyara was the one that India maintained to be the Kusiyara. That was the only point of dispute in this region as is abundantly clear from the Agreement reached at the Indo-Pakistan Conference held in New Delhi in December 1948 referring this and three other boundary disputes on the Eastern Zone to an independent tribunal.

   The misunderstanding has arisen because the Tribunal, while giving the Award on the point in dispute mentioned, by way of recital, the boundary in other places near the river. That part of the border, namely, from the river Sonai to the river Kusiyara was never in dispute and was not referred to the Bagge Tribunal. The question of implementing the Bagge Award in this matter therefore does not arise.

   The Pakistan Delegation at the Calcutta Conference had themselves apparently accepted the Indian point of view. It was because of this view that the Calcutta Agreement states that this dispute should be referred to a Tribunal other than the Bagge Tribunal. The Indo-Pakistan agreement of 1948, referred to above, dealing with the Bagge Tribunal provides that, if there is any disagreement between the two countries on actual demarcation after the Tribunal has adjudicated upon the disputes, such disagreement should be referred to the Bagge Tribunal itself. The Calcutta Conference agreed to refer this particular issue, namely, the boundary from the river Sonai to the river Kusiyara, to a new Tribunal. It is therefore admittedly a new dispute of interpretation of the Radcliffe Award and has nothing to do with the Bagge Award.

5. Ratification of the Calcutta Agreement: The Calcutta Conference took place from the 30th September to the 3rd October 1953. The Government of India communicated their ratification soon thereafter. We have not yet received the ratification of the Government of Pakistan. All that has been received is a recent letter going back on the Agreement on boundary demarcation.

My dear Ray,

Please refer to your D.O.No.1718-CR/2B-11/54, dated the 5th April, 1954, regarding boundary demarcation and exchange of territory.

The position regarding formal exchange of territory immediately after demarcation in any particular area is completed has never been in doubt. The West Bengal Govt., had conveyed their formal confirmation of this position vide their letter No.6029-CH, dated the 26th June, 1951. That the Govt., of West Bengal suggested in their letter No. 587U-CU, dated the 4th September, 1952, was, I am afraid, not quite consistent with the agreed decision, and the position as understood and accepted by both East Bengal and West Bengal. Mr. Altaf Gauhar has already sent a detailed reply to that letter with his letter No.3370-ComreJ, dated the 1st July, 1954, of which I enclose a copy herewith.

The introduction of an entirely new meaning and interpretation of the word ‘sector’ by West Bengal is clearly beyond the accepted meaning and definition. In this connection, I would like to invite your attention to three successive Chief Secretaries’ Conferences held in 1951 (21st, 22nd and 23rd). In the 21st Conference the Chief Secretary, West Bengal, agreed to the change-over of territory, as soon as the pillars were finally checked by the two Directors of Land Records, “as agreed to at the previous conference.

In the 22nd Chief Secretaries’ Conference it was decided that as soon as fixing of the pillars was completed “the change-over of any territory involved would then be carried out under joint supervision of the District Magistrates and the Superintendents of Police simultaneously on a date to be mutually agreed upon”. The area to be exchanged was not co-extensive with the area of the ‘sector’ as now defined by West Bengal. Hence the interpretation now given is not consistent with the previous understanding, and the distinction which is being made between ‘popular sense’ and ‘correct sense’ is really stretching the point and putting on an entirely different, construction to the one already accepted.
It was in the 26th Chief Secretaries’ Conference held in November, 1952, that a difference of opinion arose regarding the change-over of territory as the entire sector according to West Bengal could not be taken to have been demarcated because of the two chit lands of Cooch Behar which intervened. This, as you would appreciate, was at best a more technical objection. The area agreed upon to be demarcated between East Bengal and West Bengal had, in fact been demarcated. The chit lands were not a part of West Bengal at the time the two directors of Land Records were directed to undertake the demarcation of the boundary between West Bengal and East Bengal in the Dinajpur-Jalpaiguri sector. They could not be originally included in the demarcation because Cooch Behar had not till then merged with West Bengal, and was therefore, not a party to the agreement on the demarcation of its boundary with East Bengal. In any case, it would be seen that the word ‘sector’ in the context meant the boundary between East Bengal and West Bengal from one given point to the other between Dinajpur and Jalpaiguri and not sector or sectors in which the entire boundary between the two States has been divided by the two D.L.Rs. merely for the convenience of their work. The agreement related to West Bengal territory at the time the demarcation, was agreed upon; and as such any subsequent accretion to West Bengal territory could not reasonably justify the postponement of change-over of an area which was agreed to be demarcated and had been finally demarcated. Chief Secretary, West Bengal, did, however, agree to examine the matter further but it is regretted no further progress has been made. I am, therefore, directed to request that the matter may kindly be examined quickly, if indeed it has not already been done, and the area in Dinajpur-Jalpaiguri sector should be exchanged as early as possible. If the Govt., of Bengal still insist that the change-over in this area should take place after the chit lands are also demarcated, I would request that instructions should issue so that the work may be taken up in the next cold whether. The area of the two chit lands intervening is quite small and can be easily demarcated in a short time.

Now in regard to demarcation of boundary between Jibannagar in Kushita District and Krishnaganj in Nadia, I am to inform you that we have already issued instructions for the maintenance of status quo until territories involved are exchanged on a date to be agreed upon soon after the demarcation in the area is completed. The District Magistrate, Kustia, has already informed his opposite number of the instructions issued by him.

Finally, I would urge that the Govt. of West Bengal may kindly be moved to have the areas exchanged as early as possible. It does no good to delay exchange of areas which have been demarcated and found to lie in the other country. The delay in exchange creates unnecessary friction and bitterness.
I shall be grateful to have an early reply.

Yours sincerely

2774. Joint Communiqué announcing the ratification of the decisions of the India – Pakistan Eastern Zone Conference held in Calcutta from September 30 to October 3, 1953 in pursuance of the agreement reached between the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan during their meeting in August 1953.

March 11, 1955.

The Governments of India and Pakistan have ratified the decisions reached at the Indo-Pakistan (Eastern Zone) Conference held at Calcutta from the 30th September to the 3rd October 1953 in pursuance of the Agreement reached between the two Prime Ministers at New Delhi in August 1953.

The two Governments agreed on the following matters; they are taking steps to give immediate effect to the decisions:

(1) Boundary disputes

(a) Dispute No.1 before the Bagge Tribunal.

The method of connecting the river boundary and the land boundary in the Kaliachak (W. Bengal)- Shibganj (East Bengal) sector and on the method of connecting the river boundary at both ends of the fixed land boundary en the char opposite Rajshahi.

(b) Dispute No. II before the Bagge Tribunal.

The boundary along the river Mathabhanga, referred to in this Dispute.

(c) Dispute No. III before the Bagge Tribunal — Patharia Hill Reserve Forest

The demarcation of the boundary in this sector.
(d) Dispute No.IV before the Bagge Tribunal— The course of the river Kusiyara.

To refer this dispute to another impartial Tribunal consisting of one Indian judge, one Pakistani judge and one independent Chairman jointly agreed upon by the two Governments.

(e) Beriberi and Hili Disputes.

The dispute over the boundary in Beribaru

I. L.No.23 of P.S. Jalpaiguri of undivided Bengal and the dispute over the boundary in Hili were discussed, and left over for further discussion at a later date.

(f) Bholaganj and the River Surma Disputes.

Both sides to endeavour to settle these disputes by correspondence or Conference, failing which to they refer them to the Tribunal set up for settling Dispute No.IV referred to above.

(g) That where areas belonging to one country which have so far remained in the possession of the other are delivered to the country to which they belong, the inhabitants of those areas should not be persecuted, harassed or forced to migrate. They should be given the option to acquire the citizenship of the country to which the area is transferred. Those who choose to migrate should be given the right to dispose of their property by sale, exchange or otherwise.

Further, that deliberate destruction of property within the area to be transferred should not be permitted,

(h) Every effort should be made by both countries to implement the decisions of this Conference regarding the Bagge Disputes, I, II and III before the 5th February, 1954.

(2) Liberalisation of travel facilities.

(a) ‘A’ Category visas.

Instructions to be issued to visas-issuing authorities that medical practitioners lawyers and other professional men resident in the border zone were eligible to receive Category “A” visas, if they practiced their professions within that area.

(b) “B” Category visas.

Nephews and nieces of the first degree should be included in the list of near relations for the purposes of the grant of “B” visas.

The present regulation requiring visa-holders of “B” category to leave at
The end of two months should be liberalised. They should be allowed the facility available to holders of visas of their categories to obtain extensions of stay, if required, during the validity of their visas. The visa-holders would, however, have to apply for the extension of the period of stay during a single visit at the expiry of every two months.

It was explained that the Deputy High Commissioner for Pakistan at Calcutta insisted only when in doubt that Indian nationals having an interest in immovable property in West Bengal should produce some kind of satisfaction evidence in support of their claim for “B” visas.

Indian visa-issuing authorities would not insist on bona fide applicants desirous of applying for forest permits producing forest permits before visas were granted to them.

(c) “D” Category visas.

“D” (Diplomatic) and “D”(Official) visas should, on application, be made valid for a maximum period of one year and for repeated journeys during that period.

(d) Photographs for renewal of applications.

It would not be necessary to affix photographs on the application forms for the renewal of any category of visa during the validity of the passport, if the renewal application was made to the original visa issuing authority.

(e) Reports of arrivals and departures to the Police.

It should be re-emphasised by both the Governments by the issue of fresh instructions and publicity that holders of categories “C”, “F” and “E” visas (except transport workers), are required to report their arrivals and departures to the Police, could do so by letter, and that there was no need for them to make these reports in person.

(f) Multi-journey transit visas.

The Government of Pakistan would issue detailed instructions for the grant of multi-journey transit visas in accordance with the previous agreement between the two Governments, if their present instructions were inadequate.

(g) Excessive references.

Both the Governments should instructions emphasising that there should not be unnecessary or excessive reference to them by their visa-issuing authorities.
(h) Registration with Intelligence, Branch of Police.

The Government of Pakistan would instruct the check post officials that, as long as the visas on the passports of Indian nationals were issued by authorities within East Bengal to the time of the departure of Indian nationals from Pakistan, they should not insist on their registering themselves with the Police or on their producing duplicate copies of their application forms to verify the legality of their original entry into Pakistan.

(i) Exchange of information.

A decided at the last Indo-Pakistan Passport Conference in January-February 1953, information of the issue of visas by the two Governments should now be exchanged, and that, as the dates specified in the passport agreement had expired the information to be exchanged should be for the following two periods and should be done by the 31st October, 1953:-

(a) From the introduction of the passport scheme till the 31st January 1953; end

(b) from the 1st February 1953, to the 31st August 1953.

The two Governments may later exchange this information on a quarterly basis. Before the end of each quarter the two Governments would fix the date for such exchange.

(j) Repatriation of nationals belonging to the other country.

The following procedure will be followed in lieu of the No. 5 agreed to at the Indo-Pakistan Passport Conference held in February 1953:

(1) If a person is convicted and sentenced from imprisonment by a court of law for the contra-vention of the Passport Regulations, and his passport expires during the period of the sentence, then within the shortest possible time, not exceeding ten days, of his release he should be allowed by this check posts of both the countries exist and entry on the production of his expired passport, and the release order issued by the Superintendent of the Jail (in which he served his sentence) together with a certificate by the latter to the effect that he had been in jail undergoing imprisonment on conviction for a contravention of the passport regulations.

(2) If a person, having entered one country from the other, without any passport or any other equivalent travel document is convicted and sentenced by a Court of Law for Illegal entry, all the relevant facts will, immediately on such conviction, be communicated to the nearest Diplomatic Mission of the country from which the person had entered in the country where he is convicted, together with a certified copy of the judgment of the Court convicting him of illegal entry. If the Diplomatic Mission to which the reference is made does not within a fortnight refuse in writing to acknowledge the convicted person as its national, on expiry of the sentence such person shall be allowed exist and entry. (If the refusal is communicated within the fortnight stipulated above, the convicted person will not be repatriated until the matter is settled between the two Governments).

(i) If a sentence of imprisonment has been imposed, he shall be allowed exit and entry within the shortest period not exceeding thirty days of his release on production of the release order issued by the Superintendent of the Jail (in which he has served his sentence) together with a certificate by the latter to the effect that the person had been in Jail undergoing Imprisonment on conviction for contravention of the Passport Regulations; and,

(ii) If the sentence is of fine, or discharge or acquittal, he shall be allowed exit and entry within the shortest period not exceeding thirty days of the payment of the fine or other of the Court which will be supplied to the convicted person free of charge.

(3) There will be no bar to the prevention of illegal entry or the expulsion of illegal entrants while attempting to enter illegally other country.

(k) Re-union of divided families.

The grant of the following facilities for the re-union of divided families:—

(a) If the persons concerned are, under the law of the country from which they wish to migrate, its nationals and as such are eligible for being issued with passports of that country, they will be required to produce such passports with appropriate visas for admission into the other country.

(b) If, however, the persons affected are not, under the law of the country from which they wish to migrate, eligible for the grant of passports of that country, the Government of the country giving re-union facilities will admit them on the strength of appropriate visas given on Emergency Certificates issued by the other country which will, for this purpose, be recognised as valid travel documents by both the countries. For the above purposes, visas will be issue for a period of one year, and extended from time to time until the holder has acquired the citizenship of the country to which he or she has come to rejoin his or her family.
(1) Lapse of visa for non-utilisation within six months.

If a visa expires because of its non-utilisation by the holder within six months of its issue, the visa holder will be allowed to only for its extension on payment of the visa fee only, without having to submit an application for extension in the usual form with photographs. The duplicate copy of the original application returned to him will, however, have to be produced for revalidation.

(3) Liberalisation of restrictions, regarding customs.

The Government of Pakistan would give wide, publicity to their baggage rules and migrants’ concessions. The customs representatives of the two countries shall get together as early as possible to work out a revised set of common baggage rules based upon reciprocity, and considerations of public convenience, for implementation simultaneously by the two Governments December 1953. It was emphasised that as it was the policy of both Governments to ensure the utmost free-flow of traffic between the two countries these revised rules should provide as liberal a treatment as possible to the passengers.

The customs representatives of the two countries will consider the concrete proposals made by the Government of India for the opening of parallel land customs stations on the Pakistan side, corresponding to the land customs stations on the Indian side in accordance with para 3(1.1) of the Indo-Pakistan Agreement of April 1948, as modified by the Agreement of December 1948. The Government of Pakistan will issue instructions to the customs authorities in that Eastern Zone that they should not insist the sealing certain in-transit goods, like bamboo and bamboo kanchis, and that so long as the quantity declared in the in-transit documents accompanying the goods agree with the quantity and goods in transit, the movement of such goods should not be interfered with.

4. Review of some of the items from the Prime Ministers Agreement of April 1950 and its August Annexure.

(a) Legislation regarding, forcible conversion and search and custody of abducted, women.

This matter should be considered by the Ministers for Minorities of the two countries.

(b) Minority Commissions and District and sub-Divisional Minority Boards. The Minority Commissions and Beards should meet regularly. In regard to the Minority Boards, the monthly meetings should be held even if there was no formal agenda for the meeting. The proceedings of the meetings of the Boards should be maintained, and the practice of confirming the proceedings of a meeting at the subsequent meeting should be adopted.

(c) Requisitioning of rural properties.

It was explained that the Government of Pakistan requisitioned only fallow land, when required.

The two Minority Ministers should discuss the suggestion that blocks of land in which minority interests was more than 50% should not be requisitioned.

The suggestion that when requisitioning, a minimum area for the actual subsistence of the owner should be exempted, would be considered.

5. Financial Issues.

The procedure for the finalization of the balance-sheet for undivided Bengal. In regard to the financial settlement between East Bengal and Assam, the balance-sheet with their recommendation should be prepared by the Governments of East Bengal and Assam and forwarded to their respective Central Governments by the 31st December 1953.

On the question of wrong debits against undivided Bengal, the Application Committee should complete the scrutiny of the debits in dispute and submit a final report to the two Governments by the 31st December 1953.

In regard to the question of transfer by Assam of Provident Funds of East Bengal optees, the matter should be progressed further on the basis of the payments due on this account being set off against payments due to Assam from East Bengal for certain supplies of foodstuffs and irregular debits, and a report made to the respective Governments by the 31st December 1953.

The general question of the exchange should be discussed further at a later date.

If the exchanges were affected, the nationals of those enclaves must not be persecuted harassed or forced to migrate. They should also be given the option to acquire the citizenship of the country to which the enclave would fall after the exchange and those continuing to remain in the enclaves should suffer no disabilities in the matter of acquiring citizenship rights. Government servants working in the enclaves should be withdrawn by their parent country the exchange.

My dear Trivedi,

Please refer to your d.o. No: P(III)/53/19335/1 dated the 19th August, 1954, regarding ratification of the decision reached at the Indo - Pakistan (Eastern Zone) Conference held at Calcutta from 30th September to 3rd October, 1953.

2. The Government of Pakistan are prepared to ratify the decision taken at the Calcutta Conference subject to the reservation that what is being referred to the new Tribunal is not the original Dispute No. IV for de novo adjudication but the subsequent dispute concerning the implementation of the Bagge Award in respect of Dispute No. IV.

3. The Government of India have declined to implement the Bagge Award in respect of BC on the ground that in giving this Award the Bagge Tribunal had exceeded its terms of reference. Pakistan’s contention, on the other hand is that the Bagge Tribunal having been set up for the adjudication and final settlement of boundary disputes arising out of the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award and for demarcating the boundary accordingly, where the decision of the Chairman was to be final in all matters, and the challenge to the jurisdiction of the Tribunal which was raised before the Tribunal itself by the Indian side having been overruled by the Indian Judge and by the Tribunal itself, and the Tribunal thereafter having come to a decision both as regards its terms of reference and on the matters in dispute, its decision became final under the Indo-Pakistan agreement or 1949 and cannot be questioned. The challenge, therefore, to the Bagge Tribunal’s jurisdiction cannot now be raised again and the Bagge Award must be implemented. It is this dispute that is being referred to the new Tribunal.

If, however, the new Tribunal should hold that the Indian contention is justified, and that of Pakistan is not, the Tribunal may proceed to determine where the Indian boundary in Sector B-C should be.

Yours sincerely

My dear Baig

Will you please refer to your letter dated the 11th March 1955, regarding the ratification of the decisions reached at the Indo-Pakistan (Eastern Zone) Conference held in Calcutta from the 30th September to the 3rd October 1953?

2. We have considered the matter carefully and regret to note that the Government of Pakistan wish to introduce certain reservations in the decisions reached at the Conference, before they signify their ratification of these decisions. The Conference was held in September - October 1953 and the ratification of the Government of India of the decisions reached at the Conference was communicated to the Government of Pakistan on the 31st October 1953. It is now nearly two years since the representatives of the two Governments reached an agreement on the boundary dispute in question, and it would obviously not be correct to introduce, at the time of ratification, any reservations in the agreement. The merits of the case have been gone into in great detail during the discussions at the Conference and the only action now pending is for the Government of Pakistan to ratify the decisions reached at the Conference. You will no doubt appreciate that it is not possible for the Government of India to accept any reservation at this stage as proposed by you.

3. We shall be grateful if you please have the matter re-examined and communicate to us the ratification of the Government of Pakistan without any reservations.

4. An early reply is requested.

Yours sincerely

Letter from Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs to Ministry of External Affairs regarding ratification of the decisions of the India – Pakistan (East Zone) Conference held in Calcutta from 30th September to 3rd October 1953.

Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Karachi

No. I (I) 12/20/53 September 21st, 1955

My dear Trivedi,

Please refer to your demi-official letter No.F.4(ll)Pak-III/55, dated the 18th June, 1955, regarding the ratification of the decisions reached at the Indo-Pakistan (Eastern Zone) Conference held at Calcutta from the 30th September to 3rd October, 1953.

2. As already explained in my letter of 11th March, 1955, the decision of the Bagge Tribunal cannot be questioned by either party and has to be implemented. That being the case let us consider what was the point at issue that was discussed at the Calcutta Conference. Surely it was not and could not be the Dispute No.IV itself because that Dispute had already been adjudicated upon by a competent tribunal, which gave its award in unambiguous terms after taking fully into consideration the view points of both the parties. Under the Indo-Pakistan Agreement of 1949, the tribunal’s award is final and binding on both parties; Dispute No.IV could be reopened only if that Agreement was revised, and this clearly the Calcutta Conference had no authority to do. Thus the point in issue at the Conference was and could only be, the difference of opinion which had arisen between the two Governments over the implementation of the Bagge Award in respect of Dispute No.IV. It is the dispute and not the original dispute No. IV, which the parties agreed to refer to a new tribunal. Thus you will agree that there can be no question of referring the original dispute No.IV to the proposed tribunal for de novo adjudication and all that we wanted was to clarify the position with a view to eliminating the possibility of any mis-understanding on this issue in future.

There is no intention on our part to delay the ratification of the Calcutta decisions; the delay that has occurred is due largely to the unreasonable, attitude adopted by the Government of India in trying to read into those decisions what was not and could not be discussed or agreed to at the Conference.

3. I hope the Government of India will reconsider the matter in its true perspective and agree to our point of view so that the Calcutta decisions can be ratified without further delay.

Yours sincerely

2778. Letter from Foreign Secretary Ministry of External Affairs C.S. Jha to Foreign Secretary Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs M.S.A. Baig.

New Delhi, October 24/28, 1955.

D.O.No.F.4(II)-Pak III/55. 24th October, 1955

My dear Baig,

Will you please refer to your letter No.I(I)12/20/53 dated the 21st September 1955, to Trivedi, regarding the Kusiyara dispute in connection with the question of ratification of the decisions of the Indo Pakistan (Eastern Zone) Conference held in Calcutta in September-October 1953?

2. We agree with you that Dispute No.IV before the Bagge Tribunal was not the point at issue at the Calcutta Conference. This dispute, namely, the course of the river Kusiyara, has already been adjudicated by the Bagge Tribunal. As far as that question is, the Bagge Tribunal has stated that the river Kusiyara is the river which India maintained was the river given in the Radcliffe Award. It is that part of the Bagge Award which is to be implemented. What Justice Bagge stated about other matters in this area is not a part of the Award as the other matters were not referred to the Tribunal for adjudication. For disputes other than “the course of the Kusiyara river”, we have to depend only on the Radcliffe Award. In order to avoid any confusion in the matter, it is essential to separate the question of that portion of the boundary which was referred to the Bagge Tribunal from that of other portions which were not referred to that Tribunal and were clearly decided upon by the Radcliffe Tribunal. We do not, therefore, agree with you that the point at issue at the Calcutta Conference was the difference of opinion between the two Governments over the implementation of the Bagge Award.
This would be quite clear if the agreement reached at the Calcutta Conference as well as the Indo-Pakistan Agreement of April (December)
1948 setting up the Bagge Tribunal are studied carefully. The 1948 Agreement stated quite clearly as under.

“(3) After the Tribunal has adjudicated upon the disputes, the boundaries shall be demarcated jointly by the experts of both Dominions. If there is any disagreement between the experts regarding the actual demarcation of the boundary in situ, such disagreement shall be referred to the Tribunal for decision and the boundary shall be demarcated finally in accordance with such decision.”

If there was any difference of opinion on the demarcation of the boundary arising out of the interpretation of the Bagge Award regarding the course of the Kusiyara, the two countries were bound to refer the matter to the Bagge Tribunal itself for decision. There was nothing else that either Government can do. That was, however, not the position. What was discussed at the Calcutta Conference was, different. This is evident from the fact that it was agreed by the representatives of the countries that the issue in question be referred to a new Tribunal. As a matter of fact, the signed minutes even emphasise the fact that this Tribunal should not be the Bagge Tribunal.
There should, therefore, be no scope for any doubt on this point.

3. If the issue before the Calcutta Conference was not that of interpretation of the Bagge Award as regards the course of the river Kusiyara, which was the issue referred to that Tribunal, the question to determine is what was then the issue. Obviously, the issue was in regard to the difference of opinion between the two Governments regarding another portion of the boundary, namely the sector from near Gobindpur to the point where the line meets the river Kusiyara, as finally determined by the Bagge Award.
This is the only other dispute in this area, and the Indo-Pakistan Conference reached an agreement on that issue.

4. I think that the exposition made above makes the position clear. In any case, the issue at the moment is simple, namely, that of ratifying the decisions of the Calcutta Conference. The decisions are embodied in the minutes, which have been signed by the representatives of the two Governments. It is the normal expectation that the two Governments will ratify them. If the matter has to go to a new Tribunal, let it go in the form in which the decision has been recorded in these minutes.
5. As the matter has now been delayed for over two years, I shall be grateful if the ratification of the Government of Pakistan is now communicated to us and without any reservations. We have ourselves ratified the decisions of the Calcutta Conference without any reservations.

Yours Sincerely

No. I (I)/20/53 20th December, 1955

My dear Jha,

Will you please refer to your D.O letter No. F.4(11) Pak-III/55 dated October the 28th, 1955 regarding ratification of the decisions reached at the Indo – Pakistan (Eastern Zone) Conference held in Calcutta in September - October 1953. The Government of Pakistan’s point of view in the matter has already been explained in my D. O. letter to Trivedi No. I (I) 12/20/55 dated September 21sr, 1955, and we adhere to it.

3. The Government of Pakistan regret to note that the Government of India instead of viewing the position in its correct perspective have put on it an interpretation which we never mooted at the Calcutta Conference. The Government of Pakistan would, therefore, urge upon the Government of India once again, to accept the proposal with regard to ratification of the decisions conveyed to the Government of India vide our letter of even number dated February 18th, 1954.

Subject: Chit lands of Cooch Behar State touching the Radcliffe line between Dinajpur (East Bengal) and Jalpaiguri (West Bengal).

Sir,

I am directed to say that in the course of demarcation of the boundary between East Bengal and West Bengal, a dispute has arisen between the authorities of the two Provincial Governments about the chit lands of Cooch Behar State touching the boundary line delineated by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in the Award Map. These chit lands, it may be pointed out, are included in the thana map of Pachaghar, district Dinajpur, and according to Radcliffe Award, fall on Pakistan side of the boundary. These chit lands should, therefore, be rightly included in Pakistan for the purpose of demarcation.

2. I am directed to add that the Government of West Bengal are also in wrongful possession of two hamlets viz, Singhpara and Khudipara in mouza Shikarpur Arazii, J.L. No. 9, P.S. Pachagarh, district Dinajpur, East Bengal. The boundary of the hamlet Khudipara has already been demarcated by erecting boundary pillars as a result of which it has been found to be falling on the Pakistan side of the border. As regards Singhpara, this hamlet is surrounded on three sides by the chit lands of Cooch Behar State. The boundary between the chit lands of Cooch Behar and mauza Shikarpur Arazii was, however, demarcated in 1937-38 jointly by the Survey Officers of Undivided India and Cooch Behar by fixing boundary pillars. According to the demarcation of 1937-38, which still holds good, the entire mouza Shikarpur Arazii, including the hamlets Singhpara and Khudipara, falls on East Bengal side.

3. In the circumstances, I am to request the Government of India kindly to issue necessary instructions to the authorities concerned to agree to the inclusion of the chit lands in question in Pakistan territory as also to instruct the State Government concerned to hand over the two hamlets Khudipara and Singhpara to East Bengal authorities since these hamlets, as explained above, are included in East Bengal territory.

Your obedient servant

SECRET

Letter from Pakistan High Commissioner Ghazanfar Ali Khan to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru conveying his Prime Minister’s message.

New Delhi, March 18, 1956

Office of the High Commission for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

18th March, 1956

My dear Prime Minister,

I have been desired by my Government to convey the following message to you:

Begins “Mohammad Ali for Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

As you are aware, in the last few weeks a series of incidents, of a potentially serious nature, involving (except in the case of Bela) shooting, have occurred in quick succession along the Indo-Pakistan border in the following specific places:

Chhad Bet
Surma River
Ferozepore Bet
Rohiwal
Nagar Aimanpur
Khem Karan and Muthianwala

2. In my view none of these incidents need have taken place. Unless we act immediately to stop the recurrence of such incidents and ensure that the status quo is maintained until the boundary is delimited, they are bound to result in serious deterioration in the relations between our two countries. I am most anxious to prevent this and I am sure it is your desire also to see that Indo-Pakistan relations should remain friendly.

3. In the interest of good relations between the two countries, I would therefore ask you to be good enough immediately to issue instructions to authorities concerned that no resort to force should, in any circumstances, take place along the frontier. Any dispute(s), if and when they arise, must be settled by peaceful negotiations, and in accordance with the procedure already accented by the two Govern-ments. I would further urge that the position existing before these clashes occurred in each case be restored which would enable negotiations for the resolution of any disputes to proceed in a calm and friendly atmosphere. We are, of course, prepared to issue similar instructions simultaneously.

4. As you will readily understand, the basic cause of all such incidents is the fact that the boundary between the two countries in the West Pakistan sector still remain un-demarcated in spite of the decision of the Joint Steering Committee meeting of the 11th and 12th March, 1955 where it was agreed that the demarcation of the Indo-Pakistan border should be taken up with the utmost despatch and completed within one year. This decision, though ratified by both Governments, has yet to be implemented. On March 15 my Foreign Office has instructed our High Commissioner in New Delhi to take up this matter of demarcating the boundary with the Government of India and I trust that you will direct your foreign Office to take necessary measures with all possible speed. To ensure that this work does go forward with the necessary despatch, I suggest that we entrust it to a Boundary Delimitation Commission composed of high powered technical experts of both Governments.

Regarding particular areas where a dispute exists about the exact location of the boundary line, I suggest that an Indo-Pakistan meeting at Ministerial level should quickly take place. Ends.

Yours sincerely,
Sd/- Ghazanfar Ali Khan

The Hon'ble
Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru,
Prime Minister of India,
New Delhi.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

New Delhi, March 21, 1956.

No.604-PMH/55

My dear Prime Minister,

Thank you for your message regarding border incidents, which I received, through your High Commissioner, late on the night of the 18th March.

2. I have since read reports of the statement made by you in your Parliament on the 19th March. Yesterday I made a statement in our Parliament and referred to your letter to me as well as to your speech in Parliament. I am asking our High Commissioner in Karachi to give relevant extracts from my statement to your Ministry of External Affairs and Commonwealth Relations.

3. It has been our misfortune to have these border incidents from time to time and I have been greatly distressed about them. During the past few weeks, however, the frequency of these incidents has increased, involving tragic loss of human life and, I have no doubt, much distress and apprehension both in India and Pakistan. I know that in India there has been great concern and repeated expression to it has been given in our Parliament. Inevitably these incidents on the Indo-Pakistani border impose a severe strain on the relations between India and Pakistan. Since your message was received by me, a fresh clash has occurred this time at Firozpur Bet and this appears to have been a serious one.

4. I agree with you that none of these incidents need have taken place. I cannot imagine how, even from the narrowest point of view, either Pakistan or India can profit by such clashes. Only a very foolish or mischievous person can welcome them. It is obvious that neither of our countries is going to be frightened by petty border affrays or to give up any principle or policy because of them. It is our misfortune that there are controversies and unsolved problems between India and Pakistan. Let us, by all means, try to solve them. In any event, our countries should function with decency and propriety even though we may disagree.

5. This state of tension on our border produces, I suppose, a state of nerves when guns go off at the slightest provocation. This is obviously bad for both sides. I am not, for the present, referring to the merits of any such border clash. According to our thinking, such clashes have been largely due to aggressive behaviour from the Pakistan side. You have said in public that India is responsible for them. From all the evidence we have had, your statement is not based on facts. But, however that might be, these clashes are patently bad and we should cooperate fully in putting a stop to them completely. They solve no problem.

6. I agree with you, therefore, that the first step we should take is to make every effort to prevent a recurrence of such incidents and, further, to punish any subordinate authority of either country for a violation of our instructions. I think it is necessary that these minor officials should clearly understand that their Government will look with strong disfavour at a breach of the peace on the border and will take stern action against the guilty party.

7. You have suggested that where clashes have occurred, the position existing before the clashes should be restored, in order to enable negotiations for a peaceful settlement to be held in a calm and friendly atmosphere. In most areas where clashes have taken place, agreements have been reached between the local authorities concerned, providing for the steps to be taken by each side, pending a settlement of the dispute by peaceful methods and by a detailed demarcation of the international boundary. Such local agreements must necessarily remain till some variation is considered necessary after enquiry. Even in regard to other areas, which may not be covered by such agreements, the only feasible course is to accept the present status quo. Any other course would involve an argument and an agreement between the two countries.

8. In paragraph 4 of your message to me, you have referred to the decisions of the Joint Steering Committee of the 11th and 12th March 1955. The question of avoiding border incidents was subsequently dealt with in the discussions between your Home Minister and our Home Minister in May 1955, and they arrived at an agreement referred to as the Pant-Mirza Agreement. Your Government took no action to ratify this Agreement till the end of December 1955 and then suggested certain amendments to the agreement which, in effect, largely modified it. I would suggest that we should immediately, and without further delay, proceed to implement this Pant-Mirza Agreement in regard to the demarcation of the border. This process of demarcation should proceed and cover ultimately the entire frontier.

9. You have suggested that a Boundary Delimitation Commission composed of high powered technical experts of both Governments should be appointed for this purpose. We may give any name to such a Commission. The most practical approach appears to me to be to ask the Surveyors-General of the two countries to meet and work out a programme of demarcation. Naturally they will be assisted by their technical experts.

10. It is possible that in some cases the two Surveyors-General might not agree, but it is highly likely that there will be no dispute at all in regard to a very great portion of the border. The Surveyors-General should immediately start actual demarcation of the agreed area without waiting for any further reference. At the same time they should refer to their respective Governments those particular areas in regard to which they have failed to agree. The two Governments will take these matters in dispute and deal with them at Governmental level and, where necessary, at Ministerial level, and arrive at early decisions.

11. What I have said above appears to me in full consonance with what you have yourself proposed. We are, therefore, immediately asking our Surveyor-General to keep in readiness for this work and I hope that you will do likewise. As soon as I hear from you, we shall go ahead with this matter.

12. I suggest that both our Governments should issue immediate instructions to all concerned to avoid any kind of clash or conflict on the border. In these instructions it should be made clear that Government views such conflicts with extreme disfavour and considers them harmful. Further that person responsible for taking the initiative in any such conflict will have to be punished. Even without waiting for your reply, we are issuing general instructions to this effect on our side. Naturally this cannot be a one-sided affair and peace on the border can only be maintained by joint effort on both sides.

13. You have suggested in the statement made by you in your Parliament on the 19th March that India and Pakistan should declare that they will never go to war with each other. I warmly welcome this proposal. You are no doubt aware that I made a similar proposal over six years ago, as early as the beginning of 1950, and there was some correspondence with your predecessors in regard to it. Our views were given very fully at the time in my letters.

Yours sincerely
Jawaharlal Nehru

Letter from the Pakistan High Commissioner Ghazanfar Ali Khan to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru conveying a message from his Prime Minister.

New Delhi, March 29, 1956.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India

New Delhi

No. F. 62(7)/55

29th March, 1956

My dear Prime Minister,

I have been asked by my Prime Minister to convey the following message to you:-

BEGINNS: “Thank you very much for your letter No.604 PMH/46 dated March 21st, 1956 in reply to my personal message to you.

2. As you have observed it has been our misfortune to have these border incidents from time to time which have far too often involved tragic loss of human life and have imposed a severe strain on the relations between Pakistan and India. Though it is not my intention of indulge in an apportionment of blame let me assure you that evidence supplied to me points unmistakably to the conclusion that Pakistan Border Police have acted in self defence throughout and have scrupulously avoided taking offensive in any way. Indeed they were given specific orders not to resort to firing except in self defence and to spare no efforts to maintain peace and tranquility at the border. The fact that your forces are today in occupation of Chhad Bet and that they were able to occupy Ferozapore Bela without any opposition, clearly shows that, as far as we were concerned, we wanted to avoid armed clashes. I would not wish to go into details of what happened in Bela but cannot help mentioning the fact that your forces moved into the area in disregard of a solemn undertaking given by your Commanding Officer to our authorities that no Indian military personnel would move into that sector. However I agree with you that instead of raking up past, we should now look to the future and see how best to prevent such regrettable incidents from recurring.

3. I am glad that you have accepted my proposal with regard to instructions that should be issued to all concerned to avoid any future clash or conflict on the border. I am also issuing instructions in line with suggestions made in paragraph 12 of your letter.

4. As regards the question of status quo I regret I am unable to agree with you that only feasible course for us is to accept “the present status quo.” This will mean that although in the case of Ferozepore Headworks your forces will withdraw from the Bela as soon as repairs have been completed, they will continue to remain in occupation, for instance, of Chhad Bet. In other words it will amount to putting a premium on use of force and encouraging an impression that violence after all proves profitable. The only correct course in my view as I have already said in my message is to restore conditions as they were before these incidents took place and I accordingly commend it to you for your reconsideration.

5. As I have already said a most important measure necessary for maintenance of peace at the border is the immediate demarcation of entire boundary. I agree with you that Surveyors-General of two countries should meet immediately and work out a programme of demarcation. Obviously this should cover entire boundary as envisaged in Joint Steering Committee’s decision of the 11th and 12th March, 1955 which was ratified by both Governments. “The Pant-Mirza Agreement” to which you refer was not found acceptable to my Government in its entirety and we have suggested amendments which are still subject of correspondence between the two Governments. I am myself unable to understand why demarcation proceedings should be limited to land boundary whereas in our view and as recent incidents have demonstrated demarcation of riverain boundary is equally urgent. I should therefore be grateful if you would agree to demarcation of whole boundary being taken up as a matter of utmost urgency and importance as recommended by Steering Committee and agreed to by both Governments, within one year. In areas where the two Surveyors-General fail to agree, the procedure set out, in paragraph 10 of your letter may be followed.

6. I am glad that you welcome my proposal for a “No war declaration”. As you may not have seen full text, what I proposed was as follows:

Begins: “Let both countries sign an agreement that they will not go to war against each other and will settle all their disputes by negotiation and mediation and failing these by arbitration.” Ends.

I should be grateful for your further views on this proposal.”

Yours sincerely,

SD/- (Ghazanfar Ali Khan)

Hon’ble Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru,
Prime Minister of India,
New Delhi.
Message from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru sent through the Indian High Commissioner in Karachi to Pakistan Prime Minister.

New Delhi, April 3, 1956.

Thank you for your message conveyed through your High Commissioner on the 29th March in reply to my letter of the 21st March.

2. I am glad to learn that you have issued instructions in terms of the suggestions in paragraph 12 of my letter of 21st March.

3. I had not suggested that only a part of the boundary should be demarcated. What I had said was that a beginning might be made on the lines suggested in the "Pant-Mirza Agreement". I entirely agree with you that the work of demarcation should cover the entire frontier between West Pakistan and India. As this frontier is a very long one, work will naturally have to be undertaken to begin with on a selected sector. I suggest that the frontier of West Pakistan with Punjab (India) should be first dealt with. The Radcliffe Award will naturally be the basis of this demarcation but adjustments might be made, by agreement of the two Governments, so as to avoid as far as possible the international frontier being unnatural and arbitrary, such as when a village might be divided. It is desirable in the interest of both countries that their frontier should be as firm and natural as possible. Any such minor variation would necessarily be by agreement of the two countries.

4. I am anxious, as you are that this work of demarcation should be taken up as a matter of the utmost urgency. I doubt, however, if we can fix a rigid timetable for it as I understand that it is a complicated business which will involve preliminary triangulation work to bring control points nearer the border on each side so that the final demarcation can later be fixed by a traverse with reference to those control points. The Directors of Land Records of the State Governments concerned will also have to undertake, with reference to their revenue records and maps, the fixing of the boundary and putting up of boundary pillars*.

* M.J. Desai Commonwealth Secretary noted on 2 April that, on the most optimistic estimate, the work of demarcation on the entire 1,503 miles of West Pakistan-India border would take 4 1/2 to 6 years, and the 345 miles of West Pakistan-Punjab (India) boundary would itself take about 1 1/2 to 2 years. He further noted that it would have to be made clear to Pakistan that the exchange of territories in accordance with the demarcation could only take place after the demarcation was completed. Nehru, however, stated in his note of 2 April that it was not necessary to mention this in the message. He added, "This matter can be separately dealt with. If the demarcation takes years, as you indicate, it may not be feasible to wait till the end of that period to make such changes as we may consider necessary from time to time."
5. I suggest that a preliminary meeting of the Surveyors-General of India and Pakistan or their representatives should take place at an early date to settle all these preliminaries and prepare the programme of demarcation. If it is convenient to you, we can have this meeting on 11th April in Delhi. Our Surveyor-General will be represented at this meeting by Colonel Gambhir Singh, Deputy Surveyor-General, assisted by his technical staff and an Under Secretary from our External Affairs Ministry. We would like to have the earliest possible intimation whether the date and place of meeting are acceptable to you and also the composition of your Surveyor-General's party. They will, of course, be our guests during this meeting in Delhi.

6. You have referred in paragraphs 2 and 4 of your message to some of the border incidents and to the question of the status quo. It would serve little purpose for us to continue a controversy over a question when obviously we hold contrary opinions. Thus, the Chhad Bet incident to which you refer was in our view a clear violation of our border by Pakistani forces. According to us, Chhad Bet has always been Indian territory and there was not even a border dispute in relation to it. I agree with you, therefore, that it is better for us not to argue about the past but to look to the future and see how best to prevent such regrettable incidents from recurring.

7. As regards the proposal for a "No-War declaration" our views were given fully in the correspondence I referred in paragraph 13 of my letter of the 21st March.

8. I shall await your reply in regard to the time and place of the Surveyors' meeting.

New Delhi, April 8, 1956.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India, New Delhi

No. F. 62(7)/55 April 8, 1956

Dear Mr. Prime Minister,

I have the honour to forward a message addressed to you by the Prime Minister of Pakistan.

 Begins:  "Thank you for your message conveyed to me through your High Commissioner on April 5th in reply to my message of March 29th. I have no objection to work of demarcation starting from the north first with frontier of West Pakistan with Punjab (India). Naturally Radcliffe Award would be the basis of demarcation but minor variations may be made by agreement as proposed by you. I would however invite your attention to the decision of Steering Committee already ratified by the two Governments which provides machinery for adjudication of differences which arise in the course of demarcation. This in my view is fairest and most practical way of dealing with the problem and will enable work of demarcation to be completed with minimum of delay.

2. I should like to add here that any exchange of territory that may be necessary as a result of demarcation on the ground should however take place on an agreed date after the entire boundary with West Pakistan has been demarcated,

3. I agree that preliminary meeting of Surveyors-General of India and Pakistan may be held at Delhi on April 11th. Our team for this meeting would consist of Surveyor-General of Pakistan assisted by an officer of his Department and two officers of West Pakistan Government and an Under Secretary of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs,

4. I regret I am still unable to agree with you that Chhad Bet incident was violation of Indian Territory. I maintain on the basis of reliable documentary evidence in our possession that Chhad Bet is and has been a part of Tharparkar District of Sind and thus part of Pakistan territory. I shall send you through my High Commissioner a copy of my Government's letter to your High Commission at Karachi which is self-explanatory. I would again urge that here as also elsewhere the status quo existing prior to the incident restored pending a decision in the matter.

5. As regards your reply on my "No War" proposal I shall write to you separately." Ends.

Yours sincerely

Letter from Deputy Minister for External Affairs Anil K. Chanda to the Chief Minister of the State of Assam Bishnu Ram Mehdi regarding migration from East Pakistan.

New Delhi, April 10, 1956.

My dear Chief Minister,

Today, there was a question in the Lok Sabha about Muslims’ illicit immigration into Cachar. I am sending you a copy of today’s proceedings with regard to the question. In course of a supplementary question, Shri Debeswar Sarmah made an allegation that we are doing nothing to protect our borders in the eastern sector. Later on privately, Shri Sarmah told me that in his district of Jorhat, there are innumerable Muslim immigrants who have come into India without any legal documents. He further told me that he had discussed this matter with the local Government officials, but nothing seems to have been done. Similarly, Shrimati Khaongmen also said that in Khasia and Jaintia district, in many places Pakistanis have encroached on our territories and the local people are living in fear because of these violations of our territories and zulum on them. She further alleged that the border outpost police people keep themselves busily engaged in drinking and they do not seem to do anything else. I told her if that is her information, she should personally bring these matters to your notice.
Anyway, I think it is desirable that I should tell you frankly what these two important Members of our party in the Lok Sabha from Assam feel about this matter.

With kindest regards.

Yours sincerely

2787. Letter from Ministry of External Affairs to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

New Delhi, July 31, 1956.

Government of India
Ministry of External Affairs
New Delhi

No. F. 4 (7) – Pak-. III/56 31st July, 1956

To: The Secretary to the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations,
Karachi

Subject: Chit lands of Cooch Behar State adjacent to the Radcliffe line between West and East Bengal.

Sir,

I am directed to refer to your letter No. I (I)-3/22/55, dated the 9th January, 1956, and to say that the Government of India do not quite understand your proposal that, the chit lands of the former Cooch Behar State touching the Radcliffe line should, for the purpose of demarcation of boundary between India and Pakistan, be included in Pakistan. They formed part of the former Cooch Behar State and after the accession of that State to India, became part of the West Bengal State. When these chit lands are contiguous to the other areas of the West Bengal and there is no area of East Pakistan lying between them and other areas of West Bengal, your proposal would mean drawing an inter-national boundary across wholly Indian territory. There can be no question of drawing an international boundary line in this manner. The international boundary line must show these chit lands falling within India and demarcation of the boundary between East Pakistan and West Bengal should be made accordingly.

As regard the question of handing over the two hamlets of Singpara and Khudipara, which are in possession of India, the position is that according to the agreed procedure about transfer of areas of one country in the possession of the other, status quo has to be maintained till the boundary in the sector concerned has been finally demarcated. As the boundary in the Sector containing these hamlets has not as yet been finally demarcated the question of their transfer does not arise. The Government of Pakistan has made a mention of demarcation done in 1937-38 in case of Singpara. The boundary has to be re-demarcated as an International boundary according to the procedure agreed to by the Two Governments. When demarcation according to this procedure has completed the Government of Pakistan may raise the question of transfer of the hamlets.

Yours faithfully
(J.L. Malhautra)
for Secretary to the Government of India

2788. Statement made in the Lok Sabha by Deputy Minister for External Affairs with reference to Calling Attention Notice No. 70 under Rule 97 by Shrimati Renu Chakravartty.

New Delhi, September 22, 1956.

The boundary between East Pakistan and West Bengal, in the region of Indian Police stations Sarupnagar and Baduria, runs along the district boundary between Khulna in East Pakistan and 24 Pargnas in West Bengal. The boundary along these two Police Stations is a land boundary. The river Ichamati does not form the boundary between India and Pakistan so far as Police stations Sarupnagar and Baduria are concerned.

A misunderstanding appears to have arisen in regard to the settlement arrived at during the recent meeting of the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan about some minor points of dispute on the West Bengal - East Pakistan border, along the 24 Parganas - Jessor and 24 Parganas - Khulna district boundaries. This settlement refers to a portion of the boundary along the Ichamati river running on the east of the Police Station Galghata. In regard to this portion of the boundary a dispute had arisen between the Survey authorities of India and Pakistan as to the basis of demarcation. The total area involved is about 550 acres. According to the agreement reached, the mean of the respective claims of India and Pakistan in this portion of the boundary would be adopted taking the river as a guide, as far as possible.

The misunderstanding with regard to this agreement appears to have arisen from a belief that the Ichamati river throughout its stretch in the 24 Parganas has been made the Indo - Pakistan boundary. This Interpretation is incorrect.
The agreement in no way affects the boundaries of the Police Stations Sarupnagar and Baduria which will continue to remain within India in their entirety.

2789. Note from High Commission of India in Pakistan to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.
Karachi, December 18, 1956.

High Commission of India
Karachi
No. F. 113 (13)-56 – General December 18, 1956

The High Commission of India presents its compliments to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Government of Pakistan, and has the honour to state that the Government of India have received reports about heavy concentrations of Pakistan police and troops in the areas adjacent to Char Tarapur in Samsheganj Police Station, Char Hasanpore in Suti Police Station and Baniarchar in Mouza Bagdanga in Raghunathganj Police Station
- all in Murshidabad District. These concentrations of Pakistani forces are reported to have been made with the intention of taking forcible possession of the above mentioned areas. At 10.45 hours on the 2nd December 1956, a large number of Pakistani nationals, including armed police and military personnel came in boats with the object of occupying a new char accreted to Char Hasanpore in Suti Police Station, but were unsuccessful because of the presence of the Indian police.
2. According to the latest report received from West Bengal Government, Pakistan police and nationals have actually trespassed into Indian territory and constructed a camp at Baidyanathpur under Char Tarapur, Police station Samsherganj, at a distance of about half a mile from the Indian Char Tarapur Camp, in violation of agreements about maintenance of the status quo.

3. The Government of India take a very serious view of the forcible occupation of the Indian territory under Char Tarapur and the concentration of Pakistani forces in the various areas adjacent to the Murshidabad District and has instructed the High Commission to lodge a strong protest with the Government of Pakistan.

4. The High Commission is to point out that with a view to avoiding disputes about “char” lands which appear almost every year during the cold weather, on the bed of the river Ganges (Padma) between Murshidabad District (West Bengal) and the Rajshahi District (East Pakistan), the Government of West Bengal and East Pakistan came to an agreement for seasonal demarcation in these areas. The proper course to follow, in case a dispute arises about any “char” land in areas where demarcation has been finalised completely, is to carry out the seasonal demarcation according to this agreement. In those sectors of the boundary where areas in adverse possession have still to be exchanged, the status quo must be maintained according to existing agreements. The High Commission therefore requests that the East Pakistan Government may be asked immediately to restore the status quo by removing their camp from Baidyanathpur and withdrawing the forces concentrated in the border area in the Murshidabad - Rajshahi sector.

The High Commission will be grateful if the action taken by the Government of Pakistan is intimated to it very early.

The High Commission avails itself of the opportunity to renew to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations the assurances of its highest consideration.

Editor’s Note: On December 31, 1956, in continuation of the above note, the High Commission presented another note to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs pointing out that according to further reports received by the Government of India, “the Pakistani police had established a new camp within the Indian territory at Mouza Ramanathpur on the patrol line of the Indian police and that they endeavoured by threats to secure withdrawal of the Indian police from the Char Tarapur Camp bad actually challenged them while they were patrolling Ramanathpur mouza within Indian territory.” While lodging another protest, the High Commission sought the “withdrawal of Pakistani forces from the area in question and restoration of the status quo in the interest of maintaining peaceful conditions on the border."

In yet another Note No. F. 113 (13) /56- General dated the 25th January the High Commission in Karachi drew the attention of the Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs to another encroachment by Pakistan on the Indian territory in Char Tarapur, in which about 600 Pakistan nationals, including some armed policemen, had trespassed at Char Tarapur and forcibly cut Amla Jute, lifted 12 heads of cattle and, after causing serious injuries to two Indian nationals kidnapped an Indian national, named Harimohan Sarkar, to Pakistan territory. The High Commission said that “it noted with regret that, despite its protests, acts of illegal trespass into Indian territory and high handiness on the part of Pakistan Police and nationals do not only continue but have been intensified.” The High Commission again protesting strongly against the latest incident, urged on the Government of Pakistan “to issue instructions to the authorities concerned in East Pakistan to put a stop to these activities and return the kidnapped Indian national and the cattle taken away by Pakistanis”.

2790. Note from the High Commission of India in Pakistan to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.
Karachi, February 12, 1957.

High Commission of India
Karachi

No.F113(13)/56-Genl. Dated the 12th February, 1957

The High Commission of India presents its compliments to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Government of Pakistan, and, in continuation of the High Commission’s Note No. F.113(13)/56-Genl. Dated the 25th January, 1957 regarding trespass by Pakistan, regarding trespass by Pakistan nationals into Indian territory at Char Tarapur and kidnapping of an Indian national, named Harimohan Sarkar, to Pakistan territory, has the honour to state that according to a recent report received by the Government of India, Shri Harimohan Sarkar has been murdered by Pakistan nationals and police. The High Commission would be grateful if the Government of Pakistan will cause an immediate enquiry to be held into this matter, and intimate the result thereof, together with the details of the incident, at an early date. The Government of India also reserves the right to claim compensation for the murder of Shri Harimohan Sarkar.

2. The Government of India have also received a report that on the 15th January, 1957 at 13.30 hours, three Pakistan armed policemen along with a Pakistani boatman trespassed into Indian territory at Nirmal Char Police Station Lalgola and caught hold of three Indian nationals who were working in the field. They were, however, later let off. Pakistan police has also been violating the status quo and disturbing the peace in Char Tarapur. On 4th January, 1957 they trespassed twice into Indian territory at Char Tarapur and stopped an Indian national from ploughing his field. They left on the appearance of the Indian police patrol.

3. The Government of India have also received further reports of heavy reinforcements of Pakistan forces at Baidyanathpur and Tarapur in Samsherganj Police Station and digging of trenches there. At Char Hasanpur in Suti Police Station, Pakistan forces were seen patrolling by boat in river Padma and at Char Naushera in Police Station Lalgola, a few rounds of gun shots were fired from Premtali side of Pakistan on the midnight of 28th January 1957.

4. The Government of India take a very serious view of these activities of Pakistan police and nationals which tend to create tension on the border. They have instructed the High Commission to lodge a strong protest with the Government of Pakistan and to request the Government Pakistan to give instructions to the authorities concerned not to disturb the status quo pending demarcation and exchange of areas in adverse occupation.

5. The High Commission will be grateful if the action taken by the Government of Pakistan is intimated to it at an early date.

6. The High Commission avails itself of the opportunity to renew to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations the assurances of its highest consideration.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Government of Pakistan, Karachi.

Editor’s Note: On the contrary the Pakistan Government in its Note No. 1 (1)-3/22/56 dated the 16th February 1957 accused the Indian police of District Murshidabad to have trespassed into Pakistan territory. Indian High Commission replying in its Note No.F.113(13)/56-Genl. Dated the 27th May 1957 reminded the Pakistan Foreign Ministry that while it did not spelled out the action taken by it on the protests of the High Commission, the latter, however, felt gratified that “as a result of approaches made by the West Bengal Government to the East Pakistan Government, local officers met and eventually there was a meeting between District Magistrates of Murshidabad and Rajshahi on the 21st February 1957 at Bairampur at which an agreement was reached regarding maintenance of the status quo pending demarcation of the boundary and exchange of the areas in adverse possession.”

Reminding the Pakistan Foreign Ministry of its note No.F 113(13)/56-Genl. dated the 12th February, 1957 wherein the kidnapping and the murder of an Indian National, Harimohan Sarkar, by Pakistani nationals and Police was reported, it said it was still awaiting to know “whether an enquiry had been held into the matter and the culprits dealt with”.

2791. TOP SECRET

Letter from the Chief Minister of Assam B. P. Chaliha to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru regarding situation on the Assam — East Pakistan border

No. CMS 112/58 1st Feb 1958

My dear Prime Minister,

You are doubtless aware that the Pakistan Government has deployed a large number of troops all along the East Pakistan border from the night of the 17th December last for so-called anti-smuggling operations. According to information trickling to us from across the border, it appears that a veritable reign of terror has been established throughout East Pakistan, particularly on a six-mile deep belt along the border. Persons are being indiscriminately arrested, wholesale searches and seizures are taking place accompanied by occasional whipping and shooting. Perhaps the minority community is coming in for more attention at the hands of the Pak military. You are in a better position to judge the real political and other motives and objectives of this move and decide whether any action on the diplomatic and trade fronts are to be taken. My object in writing to you is to give you a picture of the situation that has developed in our border areas as a consequence of Pak action.

2. All trade, particularly border trade, has come to an absolute standstill which is a flagrant violation of the Indo-Pakistan Trade Agreement. The population on the border, particularly on the hill borders whose living depends on the sale of their agricultural commodities across the border and receiving in exchange certain foodstuffs and essential commodities, has been put to great hardship. We are doing our best to send food grains and also to arrange transport of their produce but, as you may well realize, we can meet only a fringe of the problem. Communications are extremely difficult and the produce grown by them are perishable. Therefore, in spite of our best efforts, we cannot make good to any appreciable extent their total loss of means of livelihood.
3. Apart from the economic problem, the Pak military and other armed formations are indulging in various aggressive acts. I enclose a brief statement of incidents so far reported. The pressure on the K & J Hills border is particularly intense and apart from arrest of our nationals crossing the border with valid travel documents, fire was opened on a boat on the Pyain river on 4th January, 1958, and a particularly bad raid has taken place on 27th January, 1958, in a village well within the Indian Union. In all these cases, protests have been lodged both at district and State level and copies forwarded to your Ministry, but the Pak Government has not had even the courtesy of sending a reply.

4. Our border police which is good for routine border security is not equipped or trained to take effective counteraction against superiorly-armed and trained personnel on the Pakistan side. On top of the economic distress caused, the acts of aggression and raids are creating panic and will lead to wholesale demoralization particularly of the tribal population and their loss of faith in the Government to protect them.

5. In the Cachar border we have two active disputes over the Surma river and Patharia Reserve and acts of trespass are periodically reported from that area of which your Ministry is informed.

6. We have sent some reinforcements of police to both the K & J Hills and Cachar borders, but as I pointed out earlier, our police are not able to take effective counter-action against superior forces and even minor incidents may cause a general flare-up on the borders in which our police is likely to be worsted. In my opinion, the only possible solution is to reinforce our borders, particularly along the K & J Hills and Cachar with strong contingents of the Assam Rifles. In the past also, deployment of the Assam Rifles has always had the necessary deterrent effect. As you are fully aware, the Assam Rifles are committed in the Naga Hills, but as the emergency in the borders is serious, I consider that arrangements should be made by making necessary adjustments between regular troops, police and Assam Rifles in the Naga Hills to make available about ten platoons of the Assam Rifles to mount guard over the East Pakistan border as a temporary measure. I hope this will meet with your general approval on principle. I shall have the details discussed with the G.O.C., Assam, who is expected to visit Shillong very shortly and make necessary arrangements.

7. Apart from the measures which have become necessary to give protection to our people the consequences of the sustained economic hardship of our people on the border areas of Pakistan are frightful. The measures we have adopted so far have not been able to meet the situation. So more positive steps have become necessary. For that purpose I propose to form a Committee to go into the matter and suggest remedies.
8. There was also an incident of dacoity and murder at Dhansiri by Naga rebels on 29.1.58. I have drawn the attention of the Governor to the matter.

9. I had a talk with the Governor who is proceeding to Delhi tomorrow. He will be in a position to discuss with you in detail.

Yours sincerely,
(B.P. Chaliha)

Shri Jawaharlal Nehru,
Prime Minister of India,
New Delhi.

2792. Letter from High Commissioner for India in Pakistan C. C. Desai to Commonwealth Secretary M. J. Desai.

Karachi, March 5, 1958.

High Commission of India
Karachi.

No. D. O. HC/212/58 March 5, 1958

My dear M. J.,

Please refer to Kakar’s letter No.F.4(27)-Pak.III/55 dated the 28th February, 1958. While we shall do our best to take up with the Pakistan Government the question of solution of difficulties of residents of Indian enclaves in East Pakistan, I am almost sure that our efforts would prove to be unavailing. Why should they be interested in removing our difficulties and coming to our assistance? In all these matters reciprocity and corresponding advantages and disadvantages are naturally examined and action determined accordingly. It is clear from our own note that the difficulties are entirely our own and that Pakistanis are more fortunately placed in respect of their enclaves. They must be knowing this as well as we do. In the circumstances, they have nothing to gain and everything to lose by being reasonable and by agreeing to reciprocal facilities.

2. This brings me on to the main question. Although I have been here for over three years, this is the first time that the matter really comes officially to my notice. Once or twice Anil Chanda, when he was Deputy Minister in our Ministry, had spoken to me about the difficulties of the enclaves but there was nothing concrete and I did not send for the papers and look into the case. Now that I have seen the detailed note I am of the opinion that the correct solution in the case is the exchange of enclaves without any claim for compensation or territory. Actually the disparity between the two enclaves is not much. It is the human element which is important and that happens to be more or less equal. The population of our enclaves is 12,000 whereas the population of their enclaves is 11,000 and exchange would, therefore, mean a loss of only 1,000 people which is a drop in the ocean. As regards area, we would be losing 17,157 acres whereas they would be losing 11,725 acres. We would thus be losing 5432 acres. By itself, this is substantial but again in the context of the Indo-Pakistan partition, this is completely insignificant. Our area must be more jungle as in spite of the larger area, the disparity in population has been of the order of only 1,000. It seems to me, therefore, that it would be fair to hold that the totality of the two enclaves is more or less the same. The exchange should, therefore, be equitable and fair and it should not be necessary for us to claim compensation for the additional 1,000 people or for the additional 6,000 acres which Pakistan would be getting under the exchange. This is purely on statistical basis. We must look at the case from other points of view. We know from experience now that our enclaves are as good as lost to us. We cannot have schools there nor can we run police in our enclaves. We are not in a position to discharge our responsibility for law and order. Our people cannot go there and we have no postal or transport facilities. Sooner or later we would lose these enclaves and the people would disappear. On the other hand, if we face the actual position and agree to the exchange, we would get back at least 11,000 people and 11725 acres. Thus, in my opinion, we have everything to gain and nothing to lose by the proposed exchange on the lines already approved by the Pakistan Government. I am not sure that the approval conveyed in April 1950 would still be regarded as binding by the Pakistan Government. If they do it, we should accept it and settle this problem once and for all on a human basis on the only practical basis that I can think of. I would, therefore, advise that we should review the subject and agree to the proposal made by the Pakistan Government when there was correspondence between the two Prime Ministers.

I submit these views for consideration by the Prime Minister.

With kindest regards,

Yours ever

Aide memoire from High Commission of India in Pakistan to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Karachi, March 27, 1958.

Aide Memoire

Difficulties of residents of Indian enclaves in East Pakistan.

The question of solution of the difficulties of the residents of the Indian enclaves in East Pakistan and of the Pakistani enclaves in West Bengal was discussed in April, 1950 at a Conference of the Chief Secretaries of East Pakistan and West Bengal. There are 119 Indian enclaves with an area of 17,157 acres and a population of about 12,000 in East Pakistan; and there are 71 Pakistani enclaves with an area of 11,725 acres in West Bengal and a population of about 11,000.

2. The Chief Secretaries of East Pakistan and West Bengal respectively agreed to recommend to their respective Governments that in the interests of administrative convenience the question of exchange of these enclaves should be considered at an early date. This question of exchange of enclaves is under consideration between the Governments of India and Pakistan but in the meantime, some interim arrangements have become necessary to alleviate the suffering of the residents of the Indian enclaves as, unlike the Pakistani enclaves, the Indian enclaves in East Pakistan are small islands completely surrounded by Pakistani territory. The only means of communication for the residents of these enclaves with the Indian mainland is through the village pathways which pass through Pakistani territory. In the Chief Secretaries Conference of 1950 referred to above a certain procedure was laid down for the grant of permission, on a reciprocal basis, to officials of one country to visit its enclaves in the other country, but this procedure has turned out to be cumbersome and unsatisfactory. The main difficulties of the residents are (1) the lack of facilities to travel through the surrounding Pakistani territory, (2) the law and order question (3) the lack of educational and medical facilities.

3. At another Conference of the Chief Secretaries of West Bengal and East Pakistan respectively, held in July, 1956, it was agreed that the Central Excise Officers of both the countries who had to visit the enclaves in the other country should be granted ‘A’ category visas to enable them to travel freely. The West Bengal Government proposed to the East Pakistan Government that this facility should be extended to the remaining Government officials to enable them to visit the enclaves on duty, but the East Pakistan Government have not replied to that request as yet.

4. The Government of India therefore request that the grant of transit facilities both to the residents of the Indian enclaves in Pakistan as well as to the Government of India officials intending to visit those enclaves on duty may be agreed to by the Government of Pakistan and necessary instructions issued to the East Pakistan Government to afford these facilities with immediate effect.

New Delhi, March 31, 1958.

A number of Calling Attention notices and Short Notice questions have been tabled in the last few days in connection with the Indo-Pakistan border incident along the Surma river between Cachar district of Assam and Sylhet district of East Pakistan. There was also a motion for Adjournment in regard to this incident on 27th to which you, Sir, after some discussion, declined to give your consent. I fully appreciate the concern felt by the House and I am glad to have this opportunity to make a statement on the nature of the border problem involved, the recent firing and the action taken by the Indian authorities.

The Indo-Pakistan boundary, according to the Radcliffe Award, runs along the left high bank of the river Surma for a length of about 13 miles between Cachar district of Assam and Sylhet district of East Pakistan. The entire breadth of the river in this region has been under our control since partition. It was in January 1950 that the Government of Pakistan, while dealing with the request from the Government of India to give necessary facilities to the Assam survey and settlement staff to go across to the left bank of the river in connection with settlement operations in the Cachar district, raised the question that the mid-stream of the river should be the Indo-Pakistan boundary. There have been exchange of notes in this connection and there has been no reply from the Government of Pakistan to our last note dated 3rd March 1956, which established beyond doubt that, under the Radcliffe award, the Indo-Pakistan boundary in this region runs along the left high bank of the river Surma.

Throughout the last few years, Pakistani citizens, encouraged and, in some cases, assisted by Pakistani local authorities in the area, have been attempting to contest Government of India’s sovereignty over the entire breadth of the river up to the left bank, particularly by attempting cultivation of Char lands alongside the left bank of the river. Indian authorities have in each case protested against these attempted violations of Indian territory and, when necessary, fired in self-defence. Incidents similar to the recent one occurred in November - December 1954, February 1956, November 1956 and October 1957. In all these incidents, Indian authorities acted promptly to protect our sovereign rights in the area. Pakistani cultivators encouraged or supported by local Pakistani authorities take advantage of the continuous land connection with Pakistani territory and attempt to raise crops on the char lands in the river bed. Our local authorities, therefore, have to take necessary remedial action by protests and, when necessary, by firing in self-defence to contain these attempted violations of our territory.

The recent incident started on 11th March when Pakistani nationals supported by Pakistani armed forces personnel attempted to harvest crops planted illegally by them in the Char lands in the Surma river. When the Indian police patrol protested, they were fired upon and had to return the fire in self-defence. The unprovoked firing later spread from the Rangpur - Leverputa area to Harinagar, Bhangar, Mahisasur, Barpuna, Latu and Madanpur areas between 11th and 27th March despite a cease-fire agreement arrived at on 21st March. Throughout this period, the District Magistrate of Cachar who had kept in constant touch with his Pakistani counterpart, the District Magistrate of Sylhet, sent several protests against the firing and gave strict instructions to our police personnel not to fire except strictly in self-defence. The Assam Government also sent five protests to the East Pakistan Government at Dacca on 12th, 19th, 20th, 21st and 26th March. Our latest information is that a second cease-fire has been arrived at on 27th and firing has completely stopped in this region since the afternoon of 27th March.

Demarcation of the Indo-East Pakistan boundary of 2480 miles has been going on since 1950. 1017 miles out of a total of 1350 miles of the West Bengal—East Pakistan bor-der have been demarcated. 200 miles out of a total of 609 miles of the boundary between Assam and East Pakistan have been demarcated. Little progress has been made on the demarcation of the boundary between East Pakistan and Tripura. The House will appreciate that demarcation of land boundaries is a complex and laborious process involving agreement on each yard of the boundary, which is determined from revenue records, maps and ground surveys. This process is difficult even in normal disputes between villages regarding their land boundaries. It is more difficult when inter-state boundaries even within Indian territory are involved. It is still more complicated by the nature of the terrain between Assam and East Pakistan, particularly when it is realised that this is a joint operation between the two sovereign Governments of India and Pakistan, relations between whom, for various reasons, have, throughout the last 11 years, been extremely difficult. We are going ahead with the demarcation of the boundary as best as we can but the pace of demarcation is not a matter entirely within our control.

Incidents of this type are unavoidable while the frontier remains undemarcated. We have always been anxious to settle all differences, including differences regarding boundary between India and Pakistan, by negotiation but we cannot surrender rightful territorial claims merely because the other side makes a show of force. At the same time, we are averse to taking any hasty or ill-considered action which would unnecessarily worsen Indo-Pakistan relations further and give rise to graver problems. Our local authorities have acted with firmness and circumspection and there has been no loss of life despite repeated firing between the 11th and 27th of March.

Karachi, August 8, 1958.

E. No. 4240 Karachi, August 8, 1958

“We would like nothing better than the complete elimination of Indo-Pakistan border disputes. We have always worked towards that end but however peaceful our policies may be, we will not be bullied by India or anyone else’, said Syed Amjad Ali, Finance Minister of Pakistan, in a statement to the Press.

“Invariably and always aggression comes from the Indian side, said Syed Amjad Ali. “Take the case of Hussainiwala. In 1956, there was a working arrangement. Everything was going well. There was no dispute, no quarrel. Suddenly on Wednesday night, Bharati forces broke the agreement.

Similarly, said Syed Amjad Ali, “the status quo was contravened by Bharatis in Lakshmipur, which is undisputedly Pakistani territory. And it is they who initiated the firing at Maulvi Chowk, Munshibari, Atgram, Patharia Reserve Forest, and on the Surma River sector.”
Continuing Syed Amjad Ali said, “Pakistan is and has always been willing to settle all border disputes on the East Pakistan - West Bengal - Assam border in a peaceful and reasonable way, and in accordance with the Bagge Award.

Referring to a statement made by Mr. Nehru in his last press conference at New Delhi, Syed Amjad Ali said that the closing down of the East Pakistan - Tripura border “had no sinister implications”, nor was it intended “to create trouble” or “provide upsets” for passengers or cargo. “But, if the border is used for the purpose of infiltrating a part, of India’s ‘armed might’ into Pakistani territory, no alternative is left to us but that of sealing the border. The responsibility for the stoppage of passengers and cargo rests entirely on those who abused the privilege of entry and exit by utilising it for their aggressive purposes”.

Referring to Mr. Nehru’s reported remarks on Indo-Pak- border, disputes – ‘they happen from time to time; what can we do?’ —Syed Amjad Ali said,- “May I say that the answer is very simple. Mr. Nehru himself agreed to call a conference at Secretaries’ level. This Conference is scheduled to be held, on the 23rd of August. He should let this conference take place in an atmosphere of goodwill and amity. I have no doubt that given a proper atmosphere a satisfactory settlement will be arrived at.”

Syed Amjad Ali added that Mr. Nehru’s allegation that Pakistan had violated any agreement about the timing of the exchange of areas after the demarcation of boundaries was “wholly devoid of substance”. Pakistan had never been guilty of any such thing. “In fact, it was decided to exchange the areas on the West Bengal border in 1957 but presumably because such exchange, would have resulted in some territorial loss to India, she refrained from implementing the agreement. It is surprising that, Mr. Nehru should blame Pakistan for what is really Indians own fault.”

New Delhi, August 9, 1958.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

No. 2(53)P/58 Dated, August 9, 1958

Dear Mr. Prime Minister,

In the absence of my High Commissioner, I have been instructed to convey to you the following message of August 8, from the Prime Minister of Pakistan:-

BEGIN:

"In March this year Indian forces opened fire on Pakistan nationals on Surma river. Trouble there had hardly subsided when Indian border forces started shooting in Piyan river and Patharia forest sector. A baseless claim was also improvised to the right bank of Amruka Minor and resulted in serious trouble. More recently heavy concentrations of Indian troops have been taking place on Assm - East Pakistan borders and protests have been made by my Government about this troop activity.

2. I am now unhappy to learn that Indian armed forces occupied Lakshmipur village and the following three points besides some other, in Patharia forest:-

- Madhabchera 480378 map 83-D/2
- Langlichera 477414, and
- Point 482417 map 83-D/2

after July 25th. As a result of this forcible occupation of Pakistan territory, preceded by heavy concentration of Indian troops along its border and your Home Minister's hostile statement of August 1, Government of East Pakistan, fearing further trouble, closed its border with Tripura State early this week. I am sorry further to learn that a clash between your police post which was established at Lakshmipur on July 30th and a Pakistan police patrol took place yesterday, resulting in casualties on both sides.

3. I am trying my utmost to ensure that we should settle all disputes peacefully and live as good neighbours. Please give orders to your men to withdraw immediately from the vicinity of Lakshmipur and not to make any further incursions into Pakistan territory. I shall simultaneously ask the Government of East Pakistan to re-open its border with Tripura State. ENDS.

Yours sincerely,
(Sajjad Hyder)

Prime Minister of India,

2797. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Firoz Khan Noon.

August 10, 1958.

NO. 1914. PMS/58 August 10, 1958

My dear Prime Minister,

Thank you for your message of the 8th August, which your Acting High Commissioner in New Delhi delivered to our Commonwealth Secretary on the morning of the 9th. I was away from Delhi then.

As you have been away in London, from where presumably your message has been sent, I presume that you have not been fully aware of the facts of the various incidents that have occurred on the eastern border during the last week. These facts have been mentioned in detail in various notes presented by us to your Acting High Commissioner, and have also been stated at length in the discussions between your Acting High Commissioner and our Commonwealth Secretary. I shall not, therefore, repeat them here. But, should you so wish it, I am prepared to send you another account of them.

These incidents have pained me greatly, not only because of their nature, but also because of the unfortunate affect they must necessarily have on the India-Pakistan relations. Indeed they have aroused strong feelings in our country. A new session of Parliament is meeting tomorrow, and I have already received a large number of questions and notices under various rules for statements or for a discussion in Parliament on these border incidents. I have been anxious, as I had thought you were also, to settle all border problems so as to avoid anything in the nature of an incident. Unfortunately, instead of going towards a settlement, there has been continuous trouble there and, according to my information and belief, the authorities in East Pakistan have behaved repeatedly in an aggressive manner and, indeed, are continuing to do so from day to day. Daily, we receive reports of aggressive activities from the Pakistan side resulting in loss of life of our people as well as considerable damage to property on our side. We have issued instructions to our local authorities on that border to behave with restraint and to try to settle these border problems as they arise. But you will appreciate that it is not possible for our people there to be silent witnesses to this aggression. They have therefore, sometimes had to take measure in self-defence. These have been on a very small and restricted scale because we are anxious to avoid continuation and an intensification of these border conflicts. To add to all this extraordinary and aggressive behaviour on the part of East Pakistan authorities, the border between East Pakistan and Tripura State has been sealed in violation of the existing agreement regarding in-transit arrangements between the Governments of India and Pakistan. This step, as you will no doubt appreciate, is a serious matter, not only involving a violation of an agreement, but causing great harm to our people and our trade.

In your message, reference is made to some speeches made by our Home Minister, and indeed it is stated that partly because of the Home Minister's statements, this border between Tripura State and East Pakistan was closed. Whatever the Home Minister might have said, this action of the East Pakistan Government appears to me to be wholly without justification. As a matter of fact, I had seen relevant extracts from our Home Minister's speeches. These were taken from the verbatim reports of these speeches which were in English. I am enclosing these verbatim extracts for your information (not included here). The Home Minister, as you will no doubt observe, spoke with considerable restraint and made repeated appeals for a peaceful and neighbourly approach to these problems. He was addressing a meeting of our Eastern Zonal Council held at Shilling, and the members of the Zonal Council had been seriously perturbed and concerned at these repeated border incursions on the part of Pakistan.

You have asked me to issue orders to our people to withdraw immediately from the vicinity of Lakshmipur. The various notes sent by our Ministry of External Affairs to your Government will show how your local authoritative have taken forcible possession of the area of Lakshmipur in violation of the 1949 Agreement between the Governments of Tripura and East Pakistan that exchange of areas should take place after demarcation of the sector is completed.
Our people have been observing this agreement scrupulously and have never made any incursion into Pakistan territory.

It is for your Government to take action to stop this aggressive action on the part of the East Pakistan authorities and, more particularly and immediately, to restore the in-transit arrangements for traffic to Tripura across East Pakistan in accordance with the existing agreement between our two Governments.

I must confess that I am much disturbed at this continuing border trouble. I am writing to you in sorrow and some distress that in spite of our repeated assurances to each other to maintain peaceful and cordial relations, these disturbances and upsets should take place. It is obviously that this kind of thing does not solve any problem; it only embitters our relations and makes solutions more difficult. Neither India nor Pakistan can react favourably to threats, or be coerced by them into any action. Their only consequence is to bedevil our relations still further and to cause suffering to the unhappy people who live on the border. In this atmosphere, it is difficult to conceive that the meeting of our Secretaries will achieve any substantial result.

I would, therefore request you with all earnestness to order the stoppage of this aggressive action on the part of East Pakistan and to have the border between Tripura and East Pakistan opened.

With kind regards.

Yours sincerely

Honourable Malik Firoz Khan Noon
Prime Minister of Pakistan
Karachi
Dear Mr. Prime Minister,

I have been instructed to request you to be so kind as to substitute the following for the message contained in my letter dated the 14th of August 1958 (Message of 14th August not available)

*Begins:

*I am grateful for your message of August 10th. The frequency with which border incidents have taken place in the last few weeks has also greatly perturbed me. I agree that these incidents are having a most unfortunate effect on Indo-Pakistan relations. Although I have been away from Karachi, my Foreign Office has kept me fully informed throughout this period. The notes sent by your Government are under study but I regret to say that they present a singularly one sided picture.

2. The origin of the most recent firings is due to extensive deployment of Indian forces on East Pakistan - Assam borders in respect of which I have already sent you a communication and representations have been made to the Government of India.

3. It was hoped that despite these troop movements the Indian authorities would endeavour to maintain an atmosphere of amity and friendliness in its relations with Pakistan so that this conference between the Secretaries of two Governments could be held in a favourable atmosphere. Unfortunately the Government of India has perpetrated a series of aggressive moves exactly at a time when every effort should have been made to bring an improvement in Indo-Pakistan relations.

4. On July 30th 1958, the Indian border forces made a surprise attack on Lakshmipur village in Brahmanbaria and occupied it by force, thereby seriously disrupting peace on the East Pakistan - Tripura border. So far as I can see there was no justification whatsoever for this action. Lakshmipur has always been in Pakistan territory as records will show that its inhabitants participated in the last provincial election.
5. On 1st of August 1958 came the provocative speech of Pandit G. B. Pant at Gauhati.

6. On August 2nd, 1958 Indian forces were responsible for creating a threatening situation at Hussainiwala on the border of West Pakistan and an armed conflict on that spot was averted only due to the extreme restraint and patience on the part of officials of Pakistan border police.

7. On August 3rd, 1958 the Indian border forces occupied three points in Patharia forest specified in my earlier message, which had been hitherto in possession of Pakistan. Repeated representations in this behalf have been made by the Government of Pakistan to the Government of India requesting withdrawal of Indian troops from these points but the unhappy situation continues to exist. I should be most grateful if you would instruct Indian border forces to withdraw from these points immediately and help to restore the status quo prevailing before that date.

8. Again on August 5th, 1958 another explosive situation created by Indian border forces at Hussainiwala, with considerable show of force, on the plea of sending technical men across the Pakistan side in order to measure stones on right guide bund, was saved through exercise of spirit of accommodation on the part of Pakistan authorities. In this connection I would invite your attention to following remarks of Sir Cyril Radcliffe:

"but I must call attention to the fact that Dipalpur canal, which serves area in West Punjab, takes off from Ferozpore Headworks and I find it difficult to envisage a satisfactory demarcation of boundary at this point that is not accompanied by some arrangement for joint control in the take off of different canals dependent on these headworks."

All attempts, therefore, to dislodge Pakistan from headworks are against the basic principles of Award in this area. The entire Headworks were clearly intended to be jointly controlled by India and Pakistan. As Dipalpur canal serves vast areas of West Pakistan, naturally we would like to be associated with their control.

9. In so far as sealing of the East Pakistan - Tripura border is concerned, I entirely agree with you that border incidents should not normally affect the interest of common-man. But as you know beginning with the forcible occupation of Lakshmipur on July 30th followed by the unfortunate speech of Pandit Pant of August 1st and the Indian occupation of three points in Patharia forest, the East Pakistan Government had no choice but to take certain measures to ensure the security of its borders. Normal relationship or operation of agreement between two countries would naturally be disturbed in such extraordinary circumstances. Now that status quo has been restored at Lakshmipur, I have ordered unsealing of East Pakistan - Tripura border.

10. Let me once again assure you that my Government is very keen to maintain peace on the borders. All our endeavours have been set in that direction. But whenever our nationals or our border troops are attacked or territory of Pakistan is encroached upon, we have to resort inevitably to measures of self defence.

11. I would again urge upon you to instruct the local officials and border forces on the East Pakistan - Assam border to desist from such activities which undermine the interest of peace between the two countries and to withdraw immediately from the three points in Patharia forest pending the settlement of border disputes and orderly exchange of areas on a mutually agreed date. According to latest reports received Indian border troops have been shelling Pakistan with 3-inch mortars, a weapon intended for use in regular warfare, causing loss of life and property among civilian population.

12. You might perhaps recall that in 1957 it was decided by both Governments that certain areas on East Pakistan - West Bengal boundary (Disputes I and II of Bagge Award) would be simultaneously exchanged on a mutually agreed date but unfortunately difficulties were created by officials on your side and they decided subsequently not to carry out the agreement, presumably because such exchange of areas was on the whole slightly beneficial to Pakistan.

13. I have since seen in newspapers your statement made in Lok Sabha on August 11th, 1958 expressing your readiness to discuss border disputes with me. I will be most happy to meet you to discuss border problems at a time and place mutually convenient. The Secretaries meeting which was scheduled to be held in Karachi on August 23rd, 1958 could be held after our meeting in order to consider details." Ends.

Yours sincerely

(Sajjad Hder)

The Honourable
Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru,
Prime Minister of India,
Prime Minister's House, New Delhi.
Pakistan and India to Discuss Border Problem:
Malik Firoz Khan Noon offers to meet Pandit Nehru:
East Pakistan/Tripura Border Unsealed

Karachi, August 16, 1958

On the 8th August 1958, Prime Minister of Pakistan, Malik Firoz Khan Noon, sent a message to Mr. Nehru about the recent border incidents, in which he recounted the encroachments by the Indians in Patharia forest and Lakshmipur village on Tripura Assam border. It also drew the attention of the Indian Prime Minister to the firings on the border which had been incessantly taking place on the Indian initiative beginning from March this year. Malik Firoz Khan Noon made a request for the withdrawal of Indian forces from these areas.

Mr. Nehru replied on the 10th of August and stated that these incidents had pained him greatly not only because of their nature but also because of the unfortunate effect on Indo-Pakistan relations. He expressed himself ready to settle the border problems so as to avoid anything in the nature of an incident. He however, placed the responsibility for these incidents on the East Pakistan authorities. He referred to the sealing of the East Pakistan-Tripura border as causing an interruption of the transit trade and traffic thereby causing hardships to Indian nationals and therefore asked for the unsealing of the border.

Reply to Mr. Nehru’s communication was embodied in a note which was handed over at New Delhi on Saturday the 16th of August 1958. In this note the Pakistan Prime Minister has categorically denied that the East Pakistan Government was responsible for the origin of those incidents. Rather, these were the results of deployment of large scale Indian forces on East Pakistan/Assam borders and of the occupation of points in Patharia forests belonging to Pakistan. In the case of Lakshmipur, where status quo has since been restored, Malik Firoz Khan stated that it had always belonged to Pakistan and in fact its inhabitants had voted in the last Provincial elections. He also referred to the provocative speech of Pandit Pant, Indian Home Minister, on 1st August 1958 at Gauhati in which the latter is reported to have said that India would teach Pakistan a lesson.

On the West Pakistan borders, too, the note states, the Indian border forces attempted to force their way into Pakistan territory on the 5th of August in order to install themselves on Hussainiwala Headworks which is in Pakistan’s possession ever since independence.
The West Pakistan/Tripura border was sealed because of the extraordinary circumstances resulting from the illegal seizure by the Indians of Lakshmipur village. Now that the status quo has been restored, the Government of East Pakistan had been asked to unseal the borders.

The Prime Minister of Pakistan has also drawn the attention of Mr. Nehru to the use of three inch mortars by Indian forces against the civilian population of Pakistan, causing loss of life and property. This weapon in fact used in a regular war only.

The Prime Minister has stressed that Pakistan's endeavour had always been to maintain peace on the borders. He however, pointed out that whenever Pakistan nationals or border troops were attacked or territory encroached upon, steps had to be taken in self-defence.

The Prime Minister has made a reference to an Indo-Pakistan decision (May 1957), according to which certain areas on East Pakistan - West Bengal boundary (dispute I and II of Bagge Award) were to be simultaneously exchanged on a mutually agreed date. Unfortunately, however, difficulties were created by the Indian officials who decided not to honour the agreement as the exchange was likely to result in Pakistan's favour.

Welcoming Mr. Nehru's willingness to discuss the border disputes, Malik Firoz Khan Noon has said that he would be glad to meet the Indian Prime Minister at a time and place mutually agreed. Secretaries' conference could be held later to discuss the details, he added.

Government of Pakistan are now awaiting reply from the Indian Government about the proposed Prime Minister's conference on the border disputes.
Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Chief Minister of West Bengal Dr. Bidhan Chandra Roy.

New Delhi, August 16, 1958.

My dear Bidhan,

You will have seen that there is a possibility of my meeting the Prime Minister of Pakistan in Delhi some time this month. The object of our meeting is to consider border problems.

It has struck me that we might take some further step in regard to the enclaves of Indian territory in Pakistan and Pakistani territory in India. This question has been discussed many times but no decision was arrived at. As far as I remember, the area of our enclaves in Pakistan is somewhat greater than that of Pakistan enclaves in India. Therefore, when a proposal for an exchange was made, the West Bengal Government said that they should be compensated for this extra acreage some-where else. The Pakistan Government did not agree, and there the matter stands.

While we may have some justification for demanding this extra area, which is not very great, I should like you to consider whether the present situation is at all desirable from our point of view. So far as Pakistan enclaves in India are concerned, your Government does not profit by them at all. I suppose they pay no taxes to anybody and they may well be a source of annoyance to your Government from various points of view.

So far as Indian enclaves in Pakistan are concerned, I am told that most of the Hindus there have migrated to West Bengal. There also we cannot collect any taxes. What Pakistan does there, I do not know.

Does it do us any good to hold out on this issue for the sake of a few thousand acres of land? We do not profit by it at all. I think it will be desirable for us to agree to exchange these enclaves with Pakistan as they are, that is, without any farther demand of territory. I do not at all like these little bits of Pakistan territory in the heart of India. To put an end to them would be a greater gain for us than some tiny patch of territory.

Please consider this matter and let me know your views soon.

Yours affectionately

Signed. Jawaharlal Nehru

Chief Minister of West Bengal, Calcutta.

No. 1990 - PMH/58

August 17, 1958

My dear Prime Minister,

Your Acting High Commissioner in New Delhi delivered your message addressed to me yesterday afternoon. This, I was informed, was to be substituted for your previous message which had been delivered to us on the 14th August.

I do not think it will serve my useful purpose for me to reply in any detail to the various points you have raised in your letter. The version of occurrences on our Eastern border which has been supplied to you is different from the information at our disposal. We have already sent full accounts about these regrettable incidents to your Government, and I have also ventured to draw your attention to them. I regret that I have failed to convince you even in regard to some facts which appear to me self-evident.

I shall gladly meet you to discuss these border problems. I would have thought, however, that the better course would be for the Secretaries to meet first and discuss these matters in some detail and then, somewhat later, for us to meet. I would, therefore, recommend this course to you, which appears to me more likely to yield results. If, however, you feel that we should meet even before the Secretaries do so, I shall agree to that also.

I shall be grateful if you will take the trouble to come to Delhi for this meeting. Our Parliament is sitting here from day to day, considering matters of importance which require my presence. It is difficult, therefore, for me to go away from Delhi in the near future. I shall remain in Delhi except for the next week-end.

You will be welcome whenever you choose to come here, and I hope you will honour us by being our guest.

Yours sincerely,

Jawaharlal Nehru

Statement by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru in the Rajya Sabha on Border Incident on the India – East Pakistan border.

New Delhi, August 18, 1958.

Mr. Chairman, Members of this House have been much concerned about recent happenings on our eastern border with Pakistan and many questions have been addressed to me on the subject. This anxiety is natural. Continuous firing across the border should not be a normal occurrence; indeed it should not be even an abnormal occurrence between the countries concerned. Even if there are some border disputes, it is the usual practice of civilised countries to settle them in a peaceful way by negotiation. Aggressive action and repeated firings across the border cannot settle the dispute; these can only create bitterness and upset the life of the people living in the border areas. Occasionally people are hit and killed or get wounded, villages on the border have to be evacuated and economic life in the area is completely disorganised. Apart from the actual damage caused, such action naturally leads to apprehensions as to what the aim of the action is.

So far as the Government of India are concerned, we are anxious to settle all these disputes by peaceful negotiation. These are not what might be called major political disputes and usually the argument is about small areas. If the approach is co-operative, there should be no difficulty in settling them and in having the border clearly demarcated to avoid any controversy in the future. A part of this border has been demarcated but there has been delay in continuing this process. We have not been responsible for this delay.

When this process of demarcation started, it was agreed that whatever changes of territory have to be made, as a result of the demarcation, these exchanges should take place on an agreed date. Till then the status quo should continue. Pakistan has repeatedly violated this agreement.

While we are anxious and eager to settle the border disputes peacefully, it is obvious that we cannot permit forcible attempts on the part of Pakistan to change the status quo. Where, therefore, there has been any aggression or firing across the border, we have had to give orders for that place to be defended.

There are four areas in this eastern border where there has been trouble:

The Surma Sector. This extends twelve to thirteen miles between the Cachar District of Assam and the Sylhet District of East Pakistan. On the night of 6/7 August, Pakistani forces began firing towards Indian posts and villages across the Surma river on a fairly wide scale. At first, our police forces stationed there did not retaliate, but, as the firing continued, they returned the fire. Ever since then, there has been inter-mittent firing over this stretch of the Surma Sector. The casualties on our side, to the best of our knowledge, have been two killed and some persons wounded. We do not know what the casualties on the Pakistan side have been. The people living over this stretch of territory on our side of the border have not only suffered damage, but have had their life disorganised. Some villages have had to be evacuated.

According to our understanding, the boundary falls on the left bank of the river Surma, the whole river lying within India. Pakistan disputes this. Pending a settlement of the dispute, certain de facto arrangements were agreed to by the Deputy Commissioners of Cachar and Sylhet in 1954. Under these arrangements, Pakistani civilians, but not officials or armed personnel, were allowed certain transit facilities on the river, which, according to us, is Indian territory. Pakistan has repudiated these arrangements.

In this sector there is a village called Tukergram or Harigram belonging to India in the loop of the Kushiyara river. On the night of 6/7 August, Pakistani forces, taking advantage of their over-land connection, entered this village and occupied it. There has never been any dispute about this village in the past.

Tripura Border. On the same night, that is, 6/7 August, Pakistani forces surprised a small Indian police picket situated in the Indian part of the Lakhimpur village on the border and killed two, injured two and captured three of our police-men. This part of the Lakhimpur village has been in Indian possession, although, as a result of recent demarcation of the boundary in the area, it will ultimately go to Pakistan.

It will be noticed that the action taken both in the Surma Sector and on the Tripura border was coordinated and took place in the course of the same night, 6/7 August.

Two days earlier, on 4 August, the East Pakistan Government sealed the Tripura-East Pakistan border without consulting Indian authorities. This was a breach of the agreement made by Pakistan with India according to which Pakistan agreed to allow goods and passengers to proceed from India to Tripura. This sudden closure, without previous intimation, led to great inconvenience and loss to the people of Tripura. We consider this a serious violation of the agreement between India and Pakistan.

Khasi Jainti Hills Border. A few days ago I made a statement in the Lok Sabha giving an account of these eastern border troubles. Since then a fresh development has taken place. From 11 August onwards, we received information that Pakistani forces were being moved towards our border opposite our small town of Dawki. On 12 August, Pakistan closed the Khasi Jainti Hills border with Sylhet, presumably to cover these troop movements. We drew the attention of the Pakistan Government to these developments and hoped that they were not part of any aggressive design. On 13 August, Pakistani forces started firing on Dawki town. This was entirely unprovoked and, it must be remembered, that there has been no dispute about Dawki. The status quo in this area is governed by agreements concluded in November 1951 and January 1952.

According to these agreements, forces on one side could not go across the river to the other side, but both sides could ply freely on the river. The Pakistan Government have recently repudiated these agreements and Pakistani forces have been from time to time firing on Indian boats plying on the river.

Our Government have been in correspondence with the Pakistan Government about these border troubles. I have also been in correspondence directly with the Prime Minister of Pakistan. I am afraid this correspondence has not thus far led to any helpful result. What appears to me self-evident, is not accepted by the Prime Minister of Pakistan, and his version of what took place seems to me incorrect.

It had been proposed to have a meeting at Secretaries' level in Karachi on 23 August to consider these border problems. We have now been informed that this meeting will have to be postponed for about a week as the Foreign Secretary of Pakistan is still in New York.

Day before yesterday I received a letter from the Prime Minister of Pakistan, who has been in London and is expected to reach Karachi today. In this letter, the Prime Minister informed me that he had issued orders to open the East Pakistan-Tripura border.

I had said in the Lok Sabha last week that I would be prepared to meet the Prime Minister of Pakistan to discuss the border disputes, should he so wish. He has now informed me that he would like to meet me at a time and place mutually convenient, in order to discuss these border problems. He has suggested that this meeting should precede the meeting of the Secretaries.

I have sent him a reply expressing my readiness to meet him for this purpose and suggesting Delhi as the venue of such a meeting. I have, however, pointed out that it would be more helpful if the Secretaries met at the first instance and discussed these problems thoroughly. Later the Prime Minister could meet. But I have added that, should he still wish that the Prime Ministers' meeting takes place before the Secretaries meeting, I would agree to that also.

August 19, 1958.

My dear Prime Minister,

I have just received the text of your communication dated 17th August 1958, which was handed over by your Commonwealth Secretary to Acting High Commissioner for Pakistan in New Delhi on 18th August 1958.

I accept with great pleasure your kind invitation to come to Delhi and to be guest of your Government.

My own idea also was that Secretaries should meet first although a suggestion was made from here that Secretaries might meet after we have had our discussions. I agree with you that Secretaries should meet in the first instance and cover as much ground as they can and a message to that effect has been conveyed to your Commonwealth Secretary.

Our Parliament is meeting on first of September 1958. The session is likely to last for about one week. Any date between 10th and 15th of September 1958 would suit me for our meeting in Delhi if it is convenient for you. I would leave it to you to fix exact date.

With regards,

Yours sincerely

Sd. (Firoz Khan Noon)

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru,
Prime Minister of India,
New Delhi.

My dear Prime Minister,

Thank you for your message of 23rd August 1958 delivered to me by the Acting High Commissioner for India.

My reply to the points mentioned in your message are as follows:-

(1) I will follow any programme that suits you and which you make.

(2) I am grateful to you and we shall be happy to be your guests. The exact number and names will be communicated a little later but the number will not exceed one dozen.

(3) I agree with you what you have said in this paragraph - there is the Radcliffe Award and the Bagge Award and I hope that we will pay due regard to both, and any other consideration that may be mutually acceptable regarding the boundary.

(4) I agree with what you say in principle. With goodwill on both sides I hope we shall settle all disputed points and if there are any which are unsettled we can lay down principles which will be followed by officers of both the countries.

(5) I could not agree with you more that intermittent firing must stop at once. If you wish to issue any orders before we meet, I am willing to do the same. Any portion of each other's territory which has not been forcibly occupied within the last 12 months should be left as it is to be settled by negotiations. Any territory which has been forcibly occupied during the last 12 months must be vacated immediately.

(6) I agree with you and I will issue orders immediately, and you may also do the same.

I am looking forward to meeting you,

Yours sincerely

(Firoz Khan Noon)

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru,
Prime Minister of India,
New Delhi.

Joint Communiqué issued at the end of the India – Pakistan Secretaries’ Conference to discuss the border disputes on the India – East Pakistan border.

The Indo-Pakistan Conference on border problems was held at Karachi from 30 August to 2 September 1958. The delegations were led respectively by Shri M.J. Desai, Commonwealth Secretary, Ministry of External Affairs (India), and Mr. M.S.A. Baig, Foreign Secretary, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations (Pakistan).

The discussions during the conference were free, frank and cordial and the entire range of border problems were reviewed by the two delegations.

Both the delegations deplored the recent border incidents involving as they did the loss of valuable and gallant lives and the disruption of the social and economic life of the border populations. Both delegations emphasized the full determination of their Governments to maintain peaceful conditions on the border and to issue necessary instructions to take steps that there was no tension or conflict on the border either by attempts at forcible disturbance of the status quo pending completion of demarcation and exchange of areas.

It was decided that prisoners taken by either side during the course of border incidents should be released. Lists of such prisoners were exchanged and it was agreed that prisoners whose names appeared in both the lists should be released at specified places at 11.30 a.m. (local time) on 9 September 1958. With regard to names of prisoners not common to the lists exchanged it was agreed that verification and release should be effected as early as possible. The two delegations were unanimous that this was a human problem and further cases of this type, if any, should be dealt with on the basis of expeditious releases, if possible within 24 hours.

Both delegations agreed that border tension and conflict have a serious deleterious effect on public opinion in both countries and prejudicial to the relations between the two Governments. A clearly defined and clearly recognisable international boundary was a primary requirement of establishing peaceful conditions in the border regions. To this end it was decided that instructions should be issued to the State Governments and the Survey Authorities concerned to take all steps that would help in expediting demarcation.

The following principles were accepted with a view to expediting demarcation and early settlement of disputes:

(a) The entire boundary between India and Pakistan has been divided into
(b) Survey Authorities should select the sectors to be taken up each field season and start demarcating simultaneously from both ends of the sector.

(c) If any disputes arise these should be presented cartographically as far as possible and in writing to the two Central Governments for settlement and decision. The demarcation work should be carried on uninterruptedly from the agreed point, the disputed areas being demarcated later in accordance with the settlement or decision reached.

Several proposals for the settlement of a number of existing territorial disputes were examined during the discussions and some progress has been made. The delegations will in the light of these discussions put up their respective Prime Ministers’ constructive proposals for settlement of the various disputes. The delegations hope that as many border disputes as possible will be resolved during the meeting of the two Prime Ministers next week. Unsolved disputes will be settled in accordance with the procedure accepted by the two Governments viz. by reference to impartial tribunal in terms of the decision of the Indo-Pakistan Steering Committee of March 1955.

Bagge Disputes I & II.

It was agreed that the areas covered by these disputes should be exchanged as early as possible. Pakistan suggested that the date of exchange should be 31st December, 1958 at the latest. India agreed that they would consult their technical officers and will inform Pakistan whether the date suggested would be practicable.

REPORT OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON EASTERN BORDERS

Following the discussion at the morning session of the Indo-Pakistan Secretaries’ Conference on August 30, 1958, and in the background of the points discussed there, Sub-Committees were asked to examine various disputes relating to the border between Pakistan and India. The following officers met to consider the East Pakistan-India borders:-

INDIA

(1) Mr. M.N.Goswami, I.A.S., Commissioner, Plains Division, Assam.
Bagge Disputes I & II

(As above)

Bagge Disputes III & IV

India wanted that the territory covered by Bagge dispute III should be demarcated while Bagge Dispute IV should be referred to a Tribunal in terms of decision of 1953 Conference. Pakistan’s view point was that the disputes should be taken up together for demarcation at once as they were both covered by Bagge Award which also contained a ruling on the terms of reference and that there has been no agreed decision with regard to reference of Dispute IV to another Tribunal.

No agreed decision could be arrived at.

The Indian side proposed that Tukergram should be vacated as in their view Tukergram was undisputedly Indian territory. Pakistan's view point was that Tukergarm was part of Dispute IV.

Other Disputes.

The following disputes were discussed in detail but no agreed decision could be arrived at:-

(i) 24 Parganas/Khulna.
(ii) Ichhamati.
(iii) Hilli.
(iv) Berubari Union.
(v) 2 Chitlands astride the boundary.
(vi) Bholaganj.
(vii) Piyian river.
(viii) Surma river.
(ix) Dispute III.
(x) Dispute IV.
(xi) Railway lines in Tripura/Tippera.

Demarcation and Exchange of territories other than those covered by disputes I & II.

India’s view point is that the exchange of territory should take place when a sector is finally demarcated. Pakistan’s view point is that exchange of territory should take place in all the places as soon as that place is demarcated irrespective of sectors adopted for convenience of demarcation by the Directors of Land Records and Surveys.

Exchange of Prisoners.

India gave a list of 23 Pakistani nationals held in detention in India and of 29 Indian nationals held in detention in Pakistan and proposed straight exchange subject to exchange of further lists to be disposed of on the same basis, viz., that this is a human problem and the normal principle should be expeditious exchange, if possible within 24 hours.

Pakistan gave a list of 42 Pakistani nationals held in detention in India and stated that of 29 Indians they had knowledge of 15 and that they would verify the others.

India stated that out of 42 they had knowledge of 23 Pakistani nationals but would verify the others including eight whose names were not given in the Pakistan list.

It was agreed that the 15 Indian nationals included in the list furnished by Pakistan and 23 Pakistani nationals included in the list furnished by India be released immediately and for the remainder verification and release carried out forthwith. Farther lists to be exchanged may also be dealt with on the same basis.

(6) Pakistan Government agrees to drop their claim on Bholaganj.

(7) Piyain & Surma river regions to be demarcated in accordance with the relevant notifications, cadastral survey maps and, if necessary, record of rights. New Delhi, 10th September, 1958

New Delhi, September 11, 1958.

On the invitation of the Prime Minister of India, the Prime Minister of Pakistan visited New Delhi from 9 to 11 September, 1958. During this Visit, the Prime Ministers of Pakistan and India discussed various Indo-Pakistan border problems with a view to removing causes of tension and establishing peaceful conditions along the Indo-Pakistan border areas.

The Prime Ministers had frank and friendly discussions about these border problems. They arrived at agreed settlements in regard to most of the border disputes in the eastern region. They also agreed to an exchange of enclaves of the former Cooch Behar State in Pakistan and Pakistan enclaves in India.

Some of the border disputes, namely, two regarding the Radcliffe and Bagge Awards in the eastern region, and five in the western region, require further consideration.

The Prime Ministers agreed to issue necessary instructions to their survey staff to expedite demarcation in the light of the settlements arrived at and to consider further methods of settling the disputes that are still unresolved. In regard to the Hussainiwala and Suleimanke disputes, the Foreign Secretary of the Government of Pakistan and the Commonwealth Secretary of the Government of India will, in consultation with their engineers, submit proposals to the Prime Ministers.
The Prime Ministers agreed that when areas are exchanged, on agreed dates, as a result of settlement and demarcation of these disputed areas, an appeal should be made to the people in the areas exchanged to continue staying in their present homes as nationals of the State to which the areas are transferred. The Prime Ministers further agreed that, pending the settlement of unresolved disputes and the demarcation and exchange of territory by mutual agreement, there should be no disturbance of the status quo by force and peaceful conditions must be maintained in the border regions. Necessary instructions in this regard will be issued to the respective States and to the local authorities on the border.

The Prime Ministers agreed to keep in touch with each other with a view to considering various steps to be taken to further their common objective of maintaining and developing friendly and co-operative relations between their two countries.

Karachi, September 11, 1958.

The Prime Minister of India invited me to New Delhi to discuss various Indo-Pakistan border disputes. I gladly accepted the invitation and I am happy that our meeting has yielded results. I must thank Pundit Jawaharlal Nehru and the Government of India for the courtesy and hospitality which was accorded to our Delegation during our stay in Delhi.

I had three meetings with Pundit Nehru at which we were able to discuss in detail all border disputes in a spirit of understanding and goodwill. We did not have much time at our disposal but we were able to come to agreed settlements in regard to most of the border disputes in the Eastern region where there has been considerable tension during the last few months.

We agreed that territories covered by the Bagge Award in West Bengal - East Pakistan sector where demarcation has already been completed should be exchanged by the 15th of January 1959.

The dispute relating to the Beriberi Union in this sector has also been resolved and it has been agreed that the Union will be so divided as to give half the area to Pakistan, the other half adjacent to India being retained by India. This union has been in the possession of India since independence.

In the 24 Parganas - Khulna and 24 Parganas - Jessore Sectors, it was agreed that the mean of the two respective claims of Pakistan and India should be adopted. This should give us the use of the Ichhamati River.

The difficulty regarding the position of the East Bengal Railway which passes through a part of Tripura State has been removed. India has now agreed to give this piece of land in perpetual right to Pakistan.

We have agreed to the exchange of old Cooch Bihar enclaves in Pakistan with Pakistan enclaves in India. This will give us about 11 square miles of extra territory without our having to pay any compensation to India.

The dispute regarding Hili had arisen on account of certain divergence in the description of the boundary in the Radcliffe Award and the delineation of the boundary on the map adopted by Sir Cyril Radcliffe. This dispute has been settled in accordance with the description in the Radcliffe Award. We also settled the Bholagang dispute by adopting the latest district boundary notifications.

It became quite obvious in the course of our discussions that the only effective way to reduce tension in border areas was to complete the demarcation of the boundary without any delay. I am glad the Prime Minister of India agreed with me that we should proceed with the demarcation of the boundary excluding, wherever necessary, disputed areas. It will be recalled that non-demarcation of the boundary recently led to exchange of firing on the Surma and Piyain Rivers. We have agreed that demarcation in this region should proceed in accordance with the Radcliffe Award and the relevant notifications, cadastral survey maps, and, if necessary, the record of rights. Whatever the result of this demarcation might be, the nationals of India and Pakistan will have the facility of navigation in Piyain and Surma Rivers.

As a result of our discussions in Delhi the field of controversy has been narrowed down and the need for immediate demarcation of the boundary and exchange of territory after demarcation has been fully recognised. The total boundary in the Eastern Region is 2489 miles, of which 1514 miles have been demarcated, in the Western Region 162 miles have been demarcated out of a total boundary of 325 miles covered by the Radcliffe Award. I expect that it should now be possible to complete the demarcation of the remaining portion without delay.

We discussed 11 disputes relating to the Eastern region. We were able to settle nine of the disputes. The dispute relating to the Feni River was left over for further consideration. The other unresolved dispute relates to the Kushyara River which was finally settled by the Bagge Tribunal but the Award has not been implemented so far.

This was the one issue on which we were not able to come to an agreement. There has never been any disagreement on the question that border disputes which the two countries are not able to resolve by negotiation should be referred to an impartial Tribunal for adjudication and final settlement. I conveyed it to the Prime Minister of India that the remaining unresolved disputes could be referred for final settlement to a Tribunal only if India agreed to implement in toto the Award given by the Bagge Tribunal. The Indian Prime Minister did not find it possible to agree to this and suggested that the Indian point of view in regard to the findings given by the Bagge Tribunal should also be specifically referred to the Tribunal which may be set up for deciding unresolved border disputes. I endeavored to convince the Prime Minister of India that there was no justification for referring the decision given by a final adjudicating authority to any other Tribunal. The sanctity and finality of an Award given by an impartial Tribunal must be accepted and honoured. If any compromise were made in this matter, no one would have any confidence in any Tribunal which may be set up by us in the future to go into other disputes.

It was on account of this difficulty that we would not agree to constitute an impartial Tribunal to which unresolved disputes of the Western region may be referred for adjudication and final settlement. There are five disputes in this area which require adjudication. Of these, the two major ones apart from the Rann of Kutch, relate to Hussainiwala and Sulemanki Headwords. We have asked our Foreign Secretaries to formulate proposals, in consultation with their engineers, for the settlement of these two disputes.

The Prime Minister of India and I have agreed to keep in touch with each other with a view to considering steps which should be taken for maintaining and developing friendly and cooperative relations between the two countries.
Mr. Speaker, Sir, the House knows the Prime Minister of Pakistan visited Delhi at our invitation. He came here on the 9th of this month and left yesterday morning.

In the course of his stay here, we had talks with each other in regard to border problems principally. At the end of his stay here, a statement, a brief statement, was issued which has already appeared in the daily press, this morning. If you wish I can lay a copy of that statement on the table.

That statement states that a number of border problems relating to the eastern region have been solved, or agreements have been arrived at. Some other matters still remain for further consideration, and some procedures have been laid down.

I am not quite sure if it will be easy for me to explain, and for the House to understand, the specific border problems of villages here and there. Nevertheless, I shall endeavour to refer to them.

In the eastern region there was a boundary dispute between West Bengal and Pakistan, between the districts of Murshidabad and the districts of Rajshahi including the thanas of Nawabganj, Pakistan, Shivganj, which was earlier, in the pre-partition days, in Malda District. This was No. I of the Bagge Award.

I might mention here that just before the actual partition took place, Mr. Justice Radcliffe was appointed to determine the exact line of partition of the frontier. He did so, and that was very largely accepted, but some disputes arose as to the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award. Some time thereafter, another tribunal was appointed presided over by Mr. Justice Bagge and having a Judge from India and a Judge from Pakistan. This Bagge Tribunal considered the disputes in the eastern region, and made certain recommendations or awards rather. Again, most of these were accepted and acted upon. But, unfortunately, some doubts still persisted, and some arguments and controversies went on in regard to some areas, and that has continued all these years. So, on this occasion, we considered some of these disputes still persisting. And one of the decisions arrived at was in regard to this, what is called Bagge Award No. I, which I have just related, and another one, Bagge Award No. 2 between West Bengal and Pakistan, concerning the common boundary between a point on the River Ganges where the channel of the river Matabhanga takes off according to the Radcliffe Award and the northernmost point where the channel meets the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur; this has been decided previously; it has been settled that exchange of these territories should take place by the 15th January.

Then, there was a dispute called the Hilli dispute, also between West Bengal and Pakistan. Pakistan gave up or dropped this dispute, and, therefore, the position has been decided and remains in favour of India.

The fourth was the Barubari Union No. 12. That is also between West Bengal and Pakistan. It was decided to divide the area under dispute by half and half, half going to India and half going to Pakistan.

The next one is about two Cooch-Behar chitlands, on the border of West Bengal which, it has been decided, should go to West Bengal.

The next was some disputes about that border between the 24-Parganas in Khulna and the 24-Parganas in Jessore. It was decided again here that the mean position should be adopted in both these, taking the river Ichhamati as a guide, that is, as far as possible, pursuing this river. These are in regard to the border disputes between West Bengal and Eastern Pakistan.

Then comes the dispute between Assam and Eastern Pakistan. There was the Bholaganj dispute. In regard to this, Pakistan gave up its claim. Then, there are the two rivers, the Piyain river and the Surma river. It has been decided to have a demarcation made according to notifications made, that is, previous notifications; therefore, we cannot be sure where this demarcation will be, but it has been decided that wherever the demarcation may be, full facility of navigation should be given to both sides. That is in regard to navigation in these rivers.

Then, we go to the Tripura-Pakistan border. There was a small bit of territory, a few acres, near the railway, where the railway passes. We have agreed to give this small territory to Pakistan because it is near their railway.

Another Tripura dispute is about the Feny river. This has been decided to be dealt with separately. The course is being laid down.

There is one thing more, which has been long causing us, and I believe, Pakistan, a great deal of trouble. These are the Cooch-Behar enclaves. The Cooch-Behar State had little bits of territory all over, and some of those fell in Pakistan and some in India on partition, as Cooch-Behar State itself. Therefore, the result is that we have some territory in Pakistan, little enclaves, little islands, and they have some here, which is very awkward. They cannot deal with their territory inside India, and we cannot deal with our territory inside
Pakistan. In fact, nobody deals with those territories. In law, we cannot, in practice, we cannot, and they are just odd bits, usually the home of smugglers and other fugitives from the law. So, it has been decided ultimately that we should just exchange them, that is, our Cooch-Behar territory in Pakistan goes to Pakistan, and their enclaves in India come to India.

All these changes involve some exchanges of territory; in some cases, India gains a little territory, and in others, they gain it. These are more or less the decisions arrived at.

Then I might mention those problems that are left over for decision. One is the Patharia hill reserve forest in the eastern region. According to us, of course, that belongs to us. But there has, nevertheless, been some dispute there. We have decided that we should ask the two conservators of forests, that is, of Assam and of East Pakistan, together with the two Chief Secretaries, to meet to draw up provisionally some line there, even previous to a settlement of that dispute, so that there might not be friction. As a matter of fact, nobody lives in this forest.

Disputes arise because of timber; people go over and cut timber in the other area. So, in order to avoid this overlapping, some temporary line may be drawn till such time as we can settle that matter.

Then, there is another matter, and probably one of the more important ones in Assam, on the Assam-East Pakistan border. This was also referred like Patharia reserve forest to the Bagge Tribunal. This is in regard to the course of the Kushiyara river. The Bagge Tribunal decided about the course of the Kushiyara river, but, according to us, some points have not been cleared up and they were due to some confusion about maps etc. and this point has remained. It is an area, containing I believe, or consisting of, about 30 villages. That is in our possession at present, and has been, in fact, all along in our possession. These will have to be decided, that is, both these matters which pertain to the eastern region. In fact, these are the only matters pertaining to the eastern region that have to be decided still, apart from one of the small ones.

In regard to one—which might be called somewhat—bigger matter, of Assam, that is, following from the course of the river Kushiyara, that is yet to be considered by us. The Patharia Forest question is really not a difficult one, but because the one to which I have just referred, the ‘Kushiyara’ has not yet been settled, Pakistan wanted to attach that also for consideration in future. On the western side, there are these head-works etc. and some bits of land.

We thought, and we still think, that the best course to decide any remaining matter, which cannot be decided by talks between ourselves, is to refer it to some independent party—tribunal—to decide, because there is no other way. Either we come to an agreement ourselves or ask somebody else to advise and we will accept whatever decision is arrived at, whether it is in our favour or against us. For the present the Pakistan Prime Minister was not agreeable to this being done in regard to one particular matter. But the matter is open for consideration. In our statement that has appeared in the Press, it is said that these matters are reserved for future consideration between us.

There are two other things. One is that we have said in regard to the exchange of small territories that we do not want migration from them, as far as possible, and we advise the people to continue living there . . . (interruption)

An Hon. Member: It is impossible.

Shri Jawaharlal Nehru: ... and accept the country to which they will now belong. In any event, it is not a question of large numbers. But we see no reason why this idea of people migrating should be encouraged there.

Further, we have said that we hope to keep in touch with each other and try to reduce the areas of difference in this way and find out some way of deciding the points that remain.

On the whole, therefore, I think that the result of our meeting has been satisfactory.
Letter from the Ministry of External Affairs to Heads of Indian Mission abroad conveying them the results of the India – Pakistan talks on the borders.

New Delhi, September 13, 1958.

D.O. No. 541-CS/58 the 13th September, 1958

Ministry of External Affairs
New Delhi

My dear

You must have seen the Joint Communiqué of 3rd September issued after the discussions on Indo-Pakistan border problems between the Secretaries of the Governments of Pakistan and India and the Joint Communiqué of 11th September after the meeting in New Delhi between the two Prime Ministers.

2. The enclosed copies of the minutes of the meeting of the Sub-Committees on the eastern and western border disputes which give the position of the two Governments on the various disputes, will give you some background of the details of these disputes. Preparatory work in resolving some of the minor disputes started at the Karachi Conference and was finalised during the Delhi meeting of the Prime Ministers. The settlements arrived at in respect of some nine disputes are recorded in the agreement between the two Secretaries signed at Delhi on 10th September 1958.

3. The statement made by Prime Minister in the Lok Sabha on 12th September gives the results of the meeting between the two Prime Ministers and also details of the settlements arrived at. Seven major disputes are still unresolved. Fuller notes giving the details of these seven disputes will be forwarded separately a week or two later. Meanwhile the enclosed copy of a note recorded on 13th September 1958, which explains in some detail the existing differences between India and Pakistan on the question of settling the outstanding disputes by reference to an impartial Tribunal, will, I hope, be useful in explaining why the meeting between the two Prime Ministers could not produce more substantial results.

4. I might add for your personal information that the discussions at Karachi and Delhi left one with the impression that the Pakistan Prime Minister, though desirous, for reasons of domestic politics, of negotiating settlements with India on these border matters, was completely tied down to the views of his official advisers and did not have freedom to negotiate any settlements beyond those agreed to by the officials. The officials, on the other hand, particularly those who have been dealing with these various disputes at the State-level, were rigid and totally opposed to make any adjustments. This small disputes settled involved hard and arduous bargaining and though some progress has been made, it is clear that conflicts on border issues will continue to occur in future, as these are the result generally of aggressiveness of local officials.

5. It is likely that Pakistan will try to make a propaganda point out of India’s refusal to carry out Bagge Award IV in toto and try to put us in the wrong with the international community and the press. I hope the note of 13th September 1958, which deals with this point would be useful to you in countering this propaganda. I would request you to ask your officers and P.R.O. to study these papers and explain quietly and unobtrusively the correct position both to the Foreign Office officials and the local press so that Pakistan propaganda, if any, on this point is countered in advance.

With kind regards.

Yours Sincerely

(M.J. Desai)

To Heads of Indian Mission Abroad

Background to Indo-Pakistan Differences in respect of Interpretation of Radcliffe and Bagge Awards in respect of Dispute III & IV in the Eastern Sector.

The Radcliffe Award on the division of the former district of Sylhet between Assam and East Bengal (East Pakistan) was stated in terms of Thana boundaries and the course of the river Kusiyara. A dispute having arisen between India and Pakistan regarding the identity of the river Kusiyara it was decided at the Indo-Pakistan Conference held at Delhi in December, 1948, to refer this as well as three other disputes arising out of the Radcliffe Award to an impartial Tribunal which came to be known as the Bagge Tribunal.

The terms of reference for the Bagge Tribunal, as decided at the Indo-Pakistan Conference of December, 1948, were as follows:

“A Tribunal should be set up at as early a date as possible and not later than 31st January, 1949 for the adjudication and final settlement of the following boundary disputes arising out of the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award and for demarcating the boundary accordingly:-
(A) East-West Bengal disputes concerning:

(i) The boundary between the district of Murshidabad (West Bengal) and the district of Rajshahi including the thanas of Nawabganj and Shibganj of pre-partition Malda District (East Bengal); and

(ii) that portion of the common boundary between the two Dominions which lies between the point on in river Ganges where the channel of the river Mathabhanga takes off according to Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s Award and the northern-most point where the channel meets the boundary between the thanas of Daulatpur and Karimpur according to that Award.

(B) East Bengal - Assam disputes concerning:

(i) The Patharia Hill Reserve Forest; and

(ii) The course of the river Kusiyara.

(2) In the event of disagreement between the members, the decision of the Chairman shall be final in all matters.

(3) After the Tribunal has adjudicated upon the disputes, the boundaries shall be demarcated jointly by the experts of both Dominions. If there is any disagreement between the experts regarding the actual demarcation of the boundary in situ, such disagreement shall be referred to the Tribunal for decision and the boundary shall be demarcated finally in accordance with such decision.

(4) The Tribunal shall prescribe the procedure to be followed for adjudicating upon the disputes as well as for deciding the point or points of disagreement, if any, arising from the demarcation of boundary.

The two Bengal disputes (Disputes I & II) have been settled; demarcation on the ground has been completed and it has been agreed that transfer of areas should take place by January 15th, 1959. By agreeing to this transfer of areas, we will be giving Pakistan a net excess area of 131/2 sq. miles.

The dispute concerning Patharia Forest (Dispute No. III) was discussed at the Indo-Pakistan Conference of 1953 and agreement was reached with regard to the alignment of the boundary on the ground. In pursuance of this agreement, demarcation was begun in January 1955 and proceeded smoothly till January 1956 when the Pakistanis dis-continued operations because it transpired that certain Tea Estates in the area would fall in India. The Government of Pakistan have now linked up demarcation this area with Dispute No. IV stating that demarcation in the Patharia Hill Reserve Forest area cannot proceed till India agrees to demarcation in accordance with map ‘A’ attached to Radcliffe Award which was confirmed by Bagge in his award in Dispute IV.
The Bagge Awards Concerning Disputes No.III and IV are as follows:-

DISPUTE-III
The Patharia Hill Reserve Forest:

“The line indicated in the map marked ‘A’ attached to the award (Radcliffe Award) is the boundary between India and Pakistan”.

DISPUTE - IV
The Course of the Kusiyara river:

“But all my colleagues came to the conclusion that we were intended to divide the Sylhet and adjoining districts of Assam between East Bengal and the Province of Assam on the basis of contiguous majority areas of Muslims and non-Muslims but taking into account other factors, I am glad to adopt this view.

8. The members of the Commission were however unable to arrive at an agreed view as to how the boundary lines should be drawn, and after discussion of their differences, they invited me to give my decision. This I now proceed to do.

9. In my view, the question is limited to the districts of Sylhet and Cachar, since of the other districts of Assam that can be said to adjoin Sylhet neither the Garo Hills nor the Khasi and Jaintia Hills nor the Lushai Hills have anything approaching a Muslim majority of population in respect of which a claim could be made.

12. But a study of the map shows, in my judgment, that a division on these lines would present problems of administra-tion that might gravely affect the future welfare and happiness of the whole District. Not only would the six non-Muslim thanas of Sylhet be completely divorced from the rest of Assam if the Muslim claim to Hailakandi were recognised, but they form a strip running east and west whereas the natural division of the land is north and south, and they effect an awkward severance of the railway line through Sylhet, so that, for instance, the junction for the town of Sylhet itself, the capital of the district, would lie in Assam, not in East Bengal.

13. In those circumstances I think that some exchange of territories must be effected if a workable division is to result. Some of the non-Muslim thanas must go to East Bengal and some Muslim territory and Hailakandi must be retained by Assam. Accordingly I decide and award as follows:-

A line shall be drawn from the point where the boundary between the thanas of Patharkandi and Kulaura meets the frontier of Tripura State and shall run north along the boundary between those thanas, then along the boundary between the thanas of Patharkandi and Barlekha, then along the boundary between the thanas of Karimganj and Barlekha, and then along the boundary between the thanas of Karimganj and Beani Bazar to the point where that boundary meets the River Kusiyara. The line shall then turn to the east taking the River Kusiyara as the boundary and run to the point where that river meets the boundary between the Districts of Sylhet and Cachar. The centre line of the main stream or channel shall constitute the boundary. So much of the District of Sylhet as lies to the west and north of this line shall be detached from the Province of Assam and transferred to the Province of East Bengal. No other part of the Province of Assam shall be transferred.

It will be seen that in the interest of drawing rational boundaries Radcliffe decided that the Muslim majority thanas of Karimganj and Hailakandi must go to Assam, corresponding non-Muslim areas being assigned to East Bengal. Ever since this award was made Pakistan has been trying to undo this part of the Award though local authorities on both sides who knew the limits of the thanas, adjusted the possession in accordance with the written descriptions given in the Radcliffe Award. The following extract from the Dawn dated 10.9.58 will indicate what great pressure is being put on the Pakistan Government by local public opinion to undo this part of the Radcliffe Award:-

“Delhi Talks: PM asked to raise Karimganj issue.
Mr. Nurur Rahman, MP, in a Press statement issued in Karachi yesterday appealed to Prime Minister Malik Firoz Khan Noon to raise the issue of Karimganj district of Sylhet in the current Delhi talks. This district, he said, was given to Bharat under the Radcliffe Award despite the fact that in the referendum the entire Sylhet, division, including this district, voted for Pakistan.

He asked the Prime Minister to get at least an inter-national tribunal set up to examine the scope of the Radcliffe Award — whether the said award was contrary to the clear doctrine of the charter of human rights in the case of giving away a portion of Sylhet to Bharat against the expressed will of the people.

He said: “I would appeal to the Government to utilise the UN for freeing one million Muslims living in the Bharati sector of Sylhet, who are treated by the Government of Bharat virtually as alien and on slight pretext the wrath of the Government of Bharat falls on the poor Muslims of Karimganj.

PROPAGANDA

“Of late the life of the Muslims of that part of Sylhet which is in Bharat has been made miserable by the unchecked propaganda made by the Hindu Mahasabha leaders during the border clashes at the Pakistan-Bharat border in Sylhet district.

“It was fomented and nurtured by the Government of Assam. The Chief Minister of Assam Mr. Chillha, the Opposition Leader, Mf. Hareshwar, and even the sole Communist member of the Assam State Assembly, Mr. Bhattacharjee, made strong plea to arm the Hindu population of the border against the so-called Muslim alien residing in the Bharati part of the Sylhet district.

“Why the integrity and loyalty of the Muslims of Bharati-held portion of Sylhet is in question? Is it not due to the fact that once they chose to be in Pakistan when the referendum was held? Is it not according to “Akhand Bharat” phraseology a crime committed by them when they used their fundamental right of self-determination which is being guaranteed to every human being by the Charter of Human Rights?” — APP.

Radcliffe, while illustrating his award on the Assam – East Pakistan border on the map used a 1937 map which was incorrect and out of date. He had specifically provided for this sort of mistake by laying down the principle in para 14 of his Award quoted above. Actual territorial possession between East Pakistan and Assam in this region has been in accordance with the description given in the Radcliffe Award ever since 14th August, 1947. This was only recently disturbed by Pakistan occupying the village of Tukergram marked ‘X’ by force last month.
Pakistanis first attempted to undo this part of the Radcliffe Award by contesting that the river Kusiyara was the one lower down and not along the line B - C shown in the Radcliffe map. This matter was referred to the Bagge Tribunal who decided that B - C was the course of Kusiyara. In their anxiety to make the decision quite clear they said that A to B and B to C in the Radcliffe map was the correct boundary between Assam and East Pakistan.

Having lost their case regarding the course of the Kusiyara driver, Pakistanis began in interpreting the Bagge Award to their advantage and insisted that Bagge Tribunal, having said that A, B, C on the map was the correct boundary; the principle laid down by Radcliffe in para 14 that description should prevail when the line in the map and description did not tally, was set aside by the Bagge Award. Obviously, this interpretation is far-fetched as the reference to the Bagge Tribunal was only on one point, the course of the Kusiyara river. The decision given on this reference clarifies this point. As regards A, B, C on the Radcliffe map the Bagge Tribunal’s observations regarding this could not, in any way, supersede the principle laid down by Radcliffe in para 14 that the map was only illustrative and that the description of the boundary given in para 13 of the Award should prevail in case of divergence between the line delineated on the map and the written description. It is difficult to say whether the incorrect copy of the map of 1937 was deliberately supplied by some local authorities at the time. This is quite possible as Bengal was, in 1947, under the Muslim League Government and the local authorities in parts of Assam were also heavily biased in favour of the Muslim League and the new State of Pakistan.

The actual boundary between the Thanas of Karimganj and Beani Bazar is as notified in Assam Governments notification No.5133-H, dated May 28, 1940, The map of Beani Bazar thana corresponding to this notification clearly shows that the villages in the disputed area, e.g. Sutarkandi and others do not form part of this thana. Pakistanis do not dispute this factual position but stretch the observations regarding line AB and BC in the Bagge Award to get part of the Thana of Karimganj. Bagge was dealing with the specific reference -- the course of the Kusiyara river and he had no reason for departing from the thana boundaries laid down by Radcliffe in this sector. Since the red line and the thana boundary in the incorrect map of 1937 appeared to coincide on the map referred to by him as well as by Radcliffe, he thought that by confirming the red line, he was confirming the thana boundary as awarded by Radcliffe.

As stated above, Pakistan has linked up this dispute with dispute No.III and has made demarcation of the latter conditional on India, accepting Pakistan’s interpretation of the Bagge Award concerning Dispute No. IV. India has proposed that the deadlock should be resolved by reference to an impartial Tribunal which would take into account the difference of opinion with regard to the interpretation of the Radcliffe and Bagge Awards for this sector. Pakistan, however, does not agree to any form of reference to a Tribunal and insists on demarcation being carried out on the basis of the red line ABC referred to in the Bagge Award.

In brief, Pakistanis want Karimganj Thana, whole or in part, and the previous effort over the course of the Kusiyara having failed, are trying something else. Their whole object is to squeeze India and either get this small area of about 9 sq. miles or give India a bad name for allegedly not accepting the Bagge forward. As pointed out above, we have been in possession of this area in accordance with the Radcliffe Award ever since partition, we have a clear case and yet we are prepared to refer the differences between us and Pakistan to an impartial tribunal but Pakistan does not agree because it wants to get [territory by blackmail or by pinching it forcibly (Tukergram). We have always approached this question of border settlements in a broad and constructive spirit. The minor disputes settled this week have given a net excess area of about 30 sq. miles to Pakistan and we have readily agreed to this but we cannot sacrifice the principle involved in this particular dispute and submit to Pakistan blackmail and threats of force.

New Delhi, September 22, 1958.

The boundary between East Pakistan and West Bengal, in the region of Indian Police stations Sarupnagar and Baduria, runs along the district boundary between Khulna in East Pakistan and 24 Pargnas in West Bengal. The boundary along these two Police Stations is a land boundary. The river Ichamati does not form the boundary between India and Pakistan so far as Police stations Sarupnagar and Baduria are concerned.

A misunderstanding appears to have arisen in regard to the settlement arrived at during the recent meeting of the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan about some minor points of dispute on the West Bengal - East Pakistan border, along the 24 Parganas - Jessor and 24 Parganas - Khulna district boundaries. This settlement refers to a portion of the boundary along the Ichamati river running on the east of the Police Station Galghata. In regard to this portion of the boundary a dispute had arisen between the Survey authorities of India and Pakistan as to the basis of demarcation. The total area involved is about 550 acres. According to the agreement reached, the mean of the respective claims of India and Pakistan in this portion of the boundary would be adopted taking the river as a guide, as far as possible.

The misunderstanding with regard to this agreement appears to have arisen from a belief that the Ichamati river throughout its stretch in the 24 Parganas has been made the Indo-Pakistan boundary. This Interpretation is incorrect. The agreement in no way affects the boundaries of the Police Stations Sarupnagar and Baduria which will continue to remain within India in their entirety.

A number of questions have been tabled by Hon'ble Members in regard to the implementation of the Agreement reached at the meeting of the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan held from 9th to 11th September, 1958. One Hon'ble Member has also tabled a notice under Rule 197 asking for a statement to be made in this regard. In view of the interest evinced by Hon'ble Members, I take this opportunity to explain the present position.

2. The Agreement between the Prime Ministers dealt with the following problems and the lines of settlement to be adopted in each case:

(i) Demarcation of boundaries held up because of differences between India and Pakistan over the interpretation of boundaries as fixed by the Radcliffe and Bagge Awards, or because of differences over the basis of demarcation.

(ii) Exchange of territories consequent on demarcation carried out in accordance with the Radcliffe and Bagge Awards along certain sectors of the boundary between East Pakistan and West Bengal.

(iii) Difficulties created by the existence of Indian enclaves (old Cooch Behar State enclaves) in Pakistan and Pakistan enclaves in India.

3. Agreement was reached on the settlement of the problems of the first type which were holding up demarcation in the following regions:

(i) Hillys.

(ii) Berubari Union No. 12.

(iii) Two Chit lands of old Cooch-Behar State adjacent to the Radcliffe line.

(iv) 24 Parganas district of West Bengal and Khulna and Jessore districts of East Pakistan.

(v) Bholaganj in Assam; and

(vi) Bhagalpur village in Tripura State:

To implement these arrangements, boundaries have to be demarcated on the ground, and boundary pillars erected. The field season for boundary demarcation starts in November.

The State Governments are taking steps for demarcation of boundaries in accordance with these agreements. There have been meetings between the Directors of Land Records of the two sides for drawing up programmes of de-marcation.

The above also applies to disputes regarding basis of demarcation settled at the meeting in respect of the Assam - East Pakistan boundary along stretches of the Surma river and the Piyain river.

Date of exchange of wrongly held areas, if any, will be fixed in consultation with the State Governments concerned after the demarcation work is completed.

No agreement was reached on differences in interpretation of the Radcliffe and Bagge Awards in case of two areas along the Assam - East Pakistan boundary and on differences in interpretation of the Radcliffe Award in case of four areas along the Punjab - West Pakistan boundary. In addition, there was a difference of view regarding the basis of demarcation along the Indian - West Pakistan border in the Cutch - Sind region. The Prime Ministers agreed to consider further methods of settling these disputes about areas in the vicinity of Hussainiwala and Suleimanke Headworks of the Punjab - West Pakistan border, the Foreign Secretary of the Government of Pakistan and the Common-wealth Secretary of the Government of India should in consultation with their engineers, submit necessary proposals to the Prime Ministers. No date for this meeting of the Secretaries of the two Governments has been fixed so far.

4. Agreement was reached on the second problem mentioned above and 15-1-59 was fixed as the date of exchange of territories in certain sectors of the East Pakistan - West Bengal boundary, where demarcation has been completed in accordance with the Radcliffe and Bagge Awards. The Government of West Bengal have been advised to take necessary steps for the exchange of the areas in question by the due date. Necessary action is being taken by them.

5. Lastly there was the question of enclaves. There are 123 Indian enclaves which are completely surrounded by Pakistani territory, and 74 Pakistani enclaves similarly completely surrounded by Indian territory. It is not possible for the local Governments concerned to have direct access to these territories. As this led to serious difficulties in administering these areas, this problem was settled by an agreement to exchange these enclaves. Implementation of this agreement requires legislation as exchange of territory is involved. Necessary steps to that end are being taken by the Government of India. No date for the exchange of enclaves can be fixed till the legislation has been enacted and the State Governments concerned have completed necessary preliminary arrangements to carry out the exchange.
6. The question of vacation by the Pakistani forces of their illegal occupation of Tukergram was taken up during the discussions. The Pakistan Prime Minister suggested that this should go hand in hand with the solution of the difficulties that had recently arisen in the Patharia Hill Forest area where he alleged Indian authorities had made similar encroachments and changed the status quo. It was finally agreed that the two Conservators of Forests and the two Chief Secretaries of Assam and East Pakistan should meet and decide the area to be exploited by each party in the Patharia Hill Forest area without overlapping on each other's areas. This will involve a temporary demarcation and will take into account de facto possession. Since the meeting of Prime Ministers, the Government of India have requested the Government of Pakistan to implement this part of the agreement. Correspondence has also taken place between the Governments of Assam and East Pakistan regarding the meeting of the officials to resolve the difficulties in the Patharia Hills Reserve Forest Area. So far, no definite date for the meeting has been agreed to by the Pakistan authorities.

2813. Extract from the Statement of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru in the Lok Sabha on the border problem with Pakistan while replying to the debate on Foreign Policy.

New Delhi, December 9, 1958.

In regard to our neighbour country, Pakistan, I have tried to be fair. In this attempt to be fair, I have acknowledged often enough what I thought was wrong on our part. But it is a matter of grief to me that in spite of all this effort not too much change is visible on the other side.

Hon. Members sometimes ask me why we do not act with strength, especially in regard to these border troubles. Mr. Jaipal Singh referred to the Chittagong Hill Tracts. I must confess that when I first went through the Radcliffe Award, in which the Chittagong hill tracts have been awarded to Pakistan, I was considerably surprised, because, according to any approach or principle, I saw no reason for doing that. But it was a clear decision and not a question of interpretation. What were we to do? Soon after partition we had accepted him as arbitrator. However much his award went against my thinking, against our interests and against India's interests, we could not break our word.

There is a “calling attention” notice from Mr. Premji Assar. In that notice, he has said that a spokesman of the West Bengal Government had said that it would be physically impossible to prevent the exchange of enclaves by the target date. There is some misapprehension about this matter. So far as the Cooch Behar enclaves are concerned, there is no target date at all. There can be none, because their exchange can only take place after legislation has been passed by this Parliament. The target date was fixed for the other exchanges.

A great deal was said yesterday from both sides of the House about the Berubari Union becoming a matter of dispute. In the Radcliffe Award, the boundary of the Berubari Union was not very clearly described. The matter at that time was not referred to Mr. Justice Bagge. Mr. Bagge finished his work in 1950. But in considering the second Bagge Award, fresh problems arose, there being two interpretations. It was in 1952 that the question of the Berubari Union became a matter of dispute and discussion between India and Pakistan. It is true that the Berubari Union has been in our possession since independence. The House may remember that although possession has been ours, Pakistan claimed a large part of the area around Sylhet - Karimganj as an interpretation of the Radcliffe Award. It is amazing how many difficulties this Radcliffe Award has caused us in interpretation. They claimed huge areas and Mr. Justice Bagge had to deal with this matter together with an Indian judge and a Pakistan judge. The decision of Mr. Justice Bagge in regard to a large piece of territory in Karimganj was in our favour. That part was disposed of. Nevertheless, after the Bagge Award difficulties arose again in interpretation of what Mr. Bagge had said and what Mr. Radcliffe had said. The difficulties arose chiefly because first of all they laid down a rule that we should accept, broadly speaking, the boundaries of districts or ‘talukas’, or administrative areas. When the internal administrative boundaries also become international frontiers, it makes a difference. One side of a river is sometimes described as the other side. Maps are attached to the description, but they do not tally. Sometimes a river is named and there is doubt as to which river is meant.

After the Bagge Award several matters arose in regard to interpretation. We have been holding to certain interpretations of our own and Pakistan to some others. It was after the Bagge Award, after 1952, that Pakistan raised this question about the Berubari Union. We contested their claim and said that in our opinion the whole Union had been awarded to India. It is not a new dispute. It was finally considered at the Prime Ministers’ meeting with secretaries and revenue authorities advising us. The whole agreement between the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan was really arrived at on the official level by secretaries and revenue officials. It was accepted by us after close examination. One of the parts of the agreement was that the Berubari Union, which both claimed in its entirety, should be broadly divided into two parts, northern and southern, the northern remaining with India and the southern going to Pakistan. I cannot obviously enter into the merits of the case. Large maps, charts and revenue records have been studied. I am placing before the House the procedure that was adopted. We accepted the advice chiefly of the revenue authorities and others of West Bengal. I should like to point out that in these various matters of interpretation, there were some in which our case was strong. In some others we felt our case was not very strong. We had to take all these matters into consideration in coming to a give-and-take agreement.

Mr. Jaipal Singh and other Members said we showed weakness in dealing with such matters and that our case had gone by default and we accepted everything that Pakistan said. That is not correct. It might interest the House to know that as a result of the so-called “Nehru-Noon Agreement” the total area that comes to India is 42.4 square miles and the total area that goes to Pakistan is 4.8 square miles. The total area of the Berubari Union is 8.74 square miles, and the agreement is that about half of it should go to them and about half of it should come to us. The total population of the Berubari Union is ten to twelve thousand. I do not know the density of population in each part.

Reference was made to Hilli. As a matter of fact, the whole area of 34.86 square miles comes to India. Pakistan has admitted that it should go to India.

I might now refer to Tukergram. Tukergram has been in India’s possession ever since independence. The dispute about Tukergram arose only this year. Tukergram is part of a larger area about which there has been some dispute. But there is no dispute about Tukergram by itself. It is undoubtedly our territory.

Statement made by Chief Minister of West Bengal Dr. B.C. Roy in the West Bengal Legislative Assembly on the agreement arrived at between the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan regarding East and West Bengal.

The Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan had arrived at an agreement regarding the dispute of Berubari Union No. 12, which is at present included in the Jalpaiguri District and has been entirely under our control.

2. In terms of the Radcliffe Award, Berubari Union No.12 goes almost entirely to Pakistan. But there is a divergence between the map and description of Radcliffe. The description is as follows:-

“A line shall be drawn along the boundaries between Pachagar P.S. and Jalpaiguri and shall then continue along the northern corner of the thana Debiganj to the boundary of the State of Cooch Behar.”

The description is very defective, because a line cannot be drawn “along the northern corner of the thana Debiganj”. How a line can be drawn along the corner is a matter which is puzzling everybody.

3. The Government of West Bengal has been claiming the whole of Berubari Union No. 12 on the following grounds:-

(a) According to Radcliffe Award, whenever there is a divergence in the map and the description, the description should be followed. In the case of Berubari, the description is followed. As I have indicated above, no line can be drawn along the corner of the thana Debiganj to be boundary of Cooch Behar. And, secondly, because between the police station Pachagar and the thana Debiganj, there is another police station called Boda P.S. You cannot possibly draw a line between Jalpaiguri thana and Pachagar thana to come over the corner of Debiganj thana and Cooch Behar without going through the police station Boda, which lies in between.

(b) In the Radcliffe Award, it was usual for a boundary line to be drawn between the boundaries of the two thanas and there is no reason why Radcliffe should cut off one union of Jalpaiguri thana and give it to East Bengal. We, therefore, claim that we should follow the boundary line between Pachagar and Jalpaiguri police stations and in between Jalpaiguri police station and Boda police station until we reach the North-east corner of Debiganj and where it meets Cooch Behar.

4. As against our argument, Pakistan’s arguments are as follows:-

(a) The intention of Radcliffe was clearly indicated in the map drawn by him according to which Berubari Union No. 12 is enclaved in East Bengal.

(b) If Radcliffe wanted the boundary here the thana boundary alone, he should have mentioned Boda P.S. also which he did not. His intention, obviously, was to stop where the boundary line between Jalpaiguri and Pachagar ends and to connect that point with the northern corner of Debiganj P.S. and continue it to the boundary line of Cooch Behar.

(N.B.-The Radcliffe award could not possibly go from the point where the boundary line between Jalpaiguri-Pachagar police stations end and connect that point with the northern corner of Debiganj police station. One must go through Boda thana to do so.)

Radcliffe was shown that the thana boundary maps also and the old map of 1923 of this area erroneously showed Debiganj P.S. as coming in between Pachagar and Jalpaiguri police stations. Radcliffe, obviously, had this map in his mind when he drew the line on the map.

5. The Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan had settled this dispute by agreeing to divide the Berubari Union into two halves. The division will be horizontal, starting from the north-east corner of Debiganj thana, and in such a manner that the group of Cooch Behar enclaves which are contiguous to this union and lies between it and Pachagar thana will remain connected as at present with the Indian territory. The area of Berubari Union No. 12 is 8.75 sq. miles. By this decision, we will have to part with 4.37 sq. miles. The enclaves lying adjacent to Berubari Union No.12 would be the subject matter of discussion at a later stage.

6. How the line dividing the Berubari Union No. 12 will be actually drawn will be decided by the experts of the two countries. No date for the demarcation and change-over of territories has yet been fixed. The horizontal line agreed to need not mean that the demarcation should take place along a straight horizontal line regardless of effects of such division on the existing systems of communication, etc., which should be kept intact as far as possible.

7. The population of Berubari Union is about 12,000, of which the number of Muslims is about 100 only. Of the 11,900 Hindus, about 3,000 are displaced persons.
2815. Letter from Chief Minister of West Bengal B. C. Roy to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Chief Minister
Government of West Bengal
Calcutta.

No.11—C.M  3rd January, 1959

My dear Jawahar,

I have received your letter of the 30th December, 1958, in which you have asked for a verbatim report of the speeches made in the State Legislature regarding Berubari Union. You have also said “So far as I am aware, the State Government had all along been kept in the picture and been consulted. On the occasion of the two Prime Ministers’ meeting, the Chief Secretary of the West Bengal Government and other officials were present here and it is only when we were assured of their agreement that we took any step in this matter.”

Let me give you in seriatim the whole matter regarding Berubari as it was discussed in the Legislature. Three questions were raised regarding the disputes between Pakistan and the Indian Union:-

(1) The incidents that have happened in Murshidabad where persons have been kidnapped and animals and paddy forcibly taken away.

(2) The adjustment of boundaries.

(3) The question of exchange of territories.

I explained to the House that with regard to the disturbances in Murshidabad district, the West Bengal Government were aware of the incidents that had happened and had taken necessary steps and had also informed the Central Government about the incidents. The Central Government had also taken steps to require the Pakistan Government to release those persons who had been kidnapped and restore the animals and paddy forcibly carried away.

As regards the second point, viz., adjustment of boundaries, the matter was discussed by the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan and decisions were arrived at. In this connection, a statement was made by me in the Assembly and in the Council. This statement was made on the 29th in the Lower House and on the 30th in the Upper House.

Previous to the above incident, a point was raised in the Assembly on the 15th December on the day when the Assembly met in this session by Shri Jyoti
Basu enquiring whether in the matter of agreement with the Pakistan, the Prime Minister of India had accepted the advice of the Revenue Officers of West Bengal, as had been declared by the Prime Minister in the Rajya Sabha. Shri Jyoti Basu in his question had confused the two issues, viz., the issue of adjustment of boundaries and exchange of territories.

I explained to them that the exchange of territories was only possible by the Parliament bringing in a Bill, but before such a Bill was brought before Parliament, the President has to take the opinion of the State Legislatures and the Bill would be placed before them for discussion at the appropriate time.

As regards the adjustment of boundaries, I had sent you the following telegram on December 15:

“Notice of adjournment motion in our Legislature refers to your reported statement in Parliament on 9th December last that the decision to transfer parts of Berubari Union in West Bengal to Pakistan was arrived at on the basis of the opinion of the Revenue Officers of West Bengal. Kindly let me know the exact text of your statement in Parliament.”

Before receiving any reply to my wire, I found on enquiry that our Revenue Officers gave no opinion regarding Berubari, nor were they authorised to do so. On the 16th of December, I received the following reply:

“I was referring to the boundary problems and said that we considered those at the official level first with Secretaries and Revenue Authorities advising us. Then the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan met and considered the matter. Among the matters was that of the Berubari Union which both sides claimed as a whole. Thereafter I am reported to have said, “We accepted the advice chiefly of the Revenue Authorities and others of West Bengal that this might be done.” As reported, this might create some misapprehension. I used this phrase broadly in the sense that, we were consulting those people for all those problems. I was not thinking at the time of the Berubari Union only. It is certainly not true to say that we took the decision to transfer parts of Berubari Union only. It is certainly not true to say that we took the decision to transfer parts of Berubari Union on the basis of the opinion of Revenue Officers of West Bengal. Revenue Officers had nothing to do with this particular matter. This was an ad hoc decision taken after consultation between our officers and West Bengal officers. Responsibility was on us, not on the Revenue officers. I am speaking in Rajya Sabha today (16th) and shall try to clear this up.”

This reply is quite categorical and you yourself said, “It is certainly not true to say that we took the decision to transfer parts of Berubari Union on the basis of the opinion of Revenue Officers of West Bengal. Revenue Officers had nothing to do with this particular matter.”
You will see, therefore, that I was quite protected by your telegram and I was quite clear that neither the West Bengal Government nor the Revenue Officers of West Bengal had anything to do with regard to the solution of Berubari Union problem. Every time adjustment of boundary had taken place, whether under Radcliffe or under Bagge, the matter was dealt with by the Centre.

I made a statement in the Lower House on the 29th and in the Upper House on the 30th (copy enclosed—Document No.2814).

You will, therefore, see that the West Bengal Government was not kept in the picture or were consulted regarding division of Berubari and you will also see that the Chief Secretary of the West Bengal Government and other officials, who were present there at the time when the two Prime Ministers met, were not asked for any opinion regarding the proposal to divide Berubari and, therefore, the question of their agreeing to the solution does not arise. I am informed that when the question was being discussed between Desai and Baig, no other person was present in the room and when the two had decided to partition Berubari, the nature of the partition was discussed between them and our officers. It was only with reference to the nature of the partition that their opinion was asked and not as to whether there should be a partition at all.

In the course of the discussion, a point was raised, which, to my mind, is very pertinent. The question is whether in adjusting a boundary between the Indian Union and Pakistan, you can raise the question of transferring a portion of territory which was then and even now being administered as part of West Bengal. One of the members of the Assembly referred to Schedule I in which it is stated under West Bengal that “the territories which immediately before the commencement of this Constitution were either comprised in the Province of West Bengal or were being administered as if they formed part of that Province.” The Legislator argued that you could not alter Schedule I of the Constitution without a formal amendment of the Schedule. It is true that under Article 3, any action taken by the Parliament regarding the transfer of territories or increasing the area of a State or diminishing the area of a State, the matter need not be dealt with by an amendment of the Constitution. But this question that has been raised by the Legislator requires serious thinking as to whether we can transfer any part of a territory which was being administered as part of West Bengal having formed part of the Province before the Constitution came into force, i.e., from 1947 to 1948, could be transferred without alteration of the Constitution. As you will appreciate, this raises a very difficult issue and requires further investigation.
Most of the speeches in the Assembly and in the Legislative Council were delivered in Bengali. I am getting the speeches translated and will send them in proper time. Meanwhile, I thought I should clear up the difficulties mentioned in your letter of the 30th December.

Yours
(Bidhan)

Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Chief Minister of West Bengal B. C. Roy.
New Delhi, January 13, 1959.

No. 55-PMH/59 January 13, 1959

My dear Bidhan,

Your letter of the 5th January reached me when I was at Nagpur. Today I received the West Bengal Assembly and Council proceedings which you have been good enough to send me.

There is not much point in our entering into an argument over this issue. Some of the statements made in the West Bengal Assembly surprise me. What surprises me still more is the whole tone of the debate and some of the speeches made on behalf of Government.

So far as the legal and constitutional requirements are concerned, we have been consulting our Law authorities and we are consulting them again. In regard to the Cooch-Behar enclaves, we have had long correspondence with the West Bengal Government as you know.

As for certain boundary disputes resulting from rival interpretations of the previous Awards, I give below a note prepared by the Commonwealth Secretary:

“P.M. will remember that at the end of the Secretaries’ meeting in Karachi I made certain proposals for settlement of some of the minor disputes to the Pakistan Foreign Secretary. He said that he would consider them in consultation with his colleagues and give the reactions of the Government of Pakistan during the Prime Ministers' meeting at Delhi. The two Prime Ministers directed, after their discussions on the morning of 10th September, 1958, that the two Secretaries should get together and discuss various proposals for settlement. I asked Baig, the Pakistan Foreign Secretary, whether he would like to meet me with his colleagues. He said that he would like to have a meeting between just the two of us and that our colleagues could be called in later. When I met him in my room on the 10th, the Pakistan Foreign Secretary referred to the proposals I had left with him and made counter-proposals which included division of the Berubari Union. After listening to his proposals I told him that I must get the representatives of the State Governments, who had already assembled in the Committee Room, and get their reactions to the counter-proposals. The Chief Secretary, West Bengal, Chief Secretary, Assam, and the Chief Secretary, Tripura, were called in from our side and the Pakistan Foreign Secretary called in the Chief Secretary, East Pakistan. When the counter-proposals made by Pakistan were explained to the Chief Secretaries, the West Bengal and the Assam Chief Secretaries said that they would like to consult their Directors of Land Records and other officials. The Chief Secretary, West Bengal, said that the proposals regarding the West Bengal - East Pakistan boundary were practical but he would consult his colleagues. I told him that there were two Cooch Behar enclaves shown on the map as adjoining the Berubari Union No. 12 and any decision regarding Berubari Union required careful consideration because of the question of access to these enclaves. Shri Ray, Chief Secretary, West Bengal, consulted his colleagues and on return stated that the division of the Berubari Union should be so made as to allow for communications to be maintained with one of the Cooch Behar enclaves to be retained by West Bengal, the other enclave along with half of the Berubari Union going to East Pakistan. This was agreed to by the Pakistan Foreign Secretary and a formula for division of the Berubari Union was worked out in consultation with the West Bengal officials and incorporated in the recommendations of the Secretaries.

While it is perfectly true that the constitutional position was and is as you mention it, that is, that the adjustment of international boundaries is a matter for the Centre, it is obviously desirable and necessary to confer with the State Governments concerned in all such matters. It was never my intention to come to any decision in regard to these matters without the fullest consultation and, as far as possible, the agreement of the West Bengal Government. You will remember the long correspondence we have had with the West Bengal Government about the Cooch- Behar enclaves. We did not wish to take any step unless the West Bengal Government agreed.

I have naturally looked at the maps and charts concerning these boundary disputes on many occasions. But I do not pretend to be an expert on them and I have to rely on the advice given to me. As the Chief Secretary of West Bengal was here throughout our talks with the Pakistan people, I naturally thought that every action that we had taken was with his approval. In fact I enquired on several occasions whether he and other Bengal officials were being consulted or not. I am quite sure that I would not have come to an agreement on any subject with the Pakistan people if objections were raised in regard to it on behalf of the West Bengal Government.

It must be remembered that all these points of dispute stem from the Awards. The question is not, therefore, one of transferring territory, but of interpreting an Award and then adjusting the boundaries accordingly. In regard to the Berubari Union, I was told that our case was by no means clear and it was conceivable that an impartial authority might decide against us. It was because of this that we thought it advisable to accept the proposal made to us.

As a matter of fact, I offered to the Pakistan Prime Minister to refer every undecided point to an impartial authority. I was not very keen on doing so as I was by no means sure of the strength of our case in regard to some matters. When Firoz Khan Noon refused to accept this kind of arbitration, I was on the whole relieved.

In particular, the point to remember is that an adjustment resulting from an interpretation of Radcliffe or Bagge Award is not to be considered a transfer of territory from one country to another. It is only after this interpretation that one can say to what country it should belong. However, the law points will be considered by the proper authorities.

We have been advised that in accordance with this viewpoint the question of the Berubari Union need not be brought up before Parliament as it is one of interpretation. But, in view of what has happened, I propose to bring it before Parliament when we consider the question of the Cooch- Behar enclaves.

Yours affectionately
(Sd) Jawaharlal Nehru

Dr. B. C. Roy,
Chief Minister of West Bengal.

My dear Ray,

P.M. has seat a reply to Dr. Roy’s letter No. 11-CM dated 5th January, 1959 about the controversy over the Berubari Union settlement. P.M. has, in his letter, quoted a portion of my Note. I am reproducing below the further portion to complete the way in which I have presented the case in my Note so that there will be no misunderstanding between you and me in this matter.

“The above represents the facts of the discussions on the 10th September at the official level so far as the question of Berubari Union is concerned. It will be correct to say that the West Bengal officials did not recommend the division of the Berubari Union. As a matter of fact, neither did the officials of the Government of India. The division of the Berubari Union was part of the counter-proposals made by the Pakistan Government and the question was whether we should accept these counter-proposals. The West Bengal officials did not object to the acceptance of the counter-proposals and worked out a formula for the division of the Berubari Union which will retain the area through which the essential communications passed in West Bengal. As mentioned by P.M., this was an ad hoc decision taken after consultation between the officials of the Government of India and the Government of West Bengal, and the responsibility for the decision is that of the Government of India. It is, however, incorrect to say that the Chief Secretary of the West Bengal Government and other officials were not asked for any opinion regarding the Pakistan counter-proposals in respect of Berubari Union.”

2. I am glad the business about the exchange of territory consequent on demarcation in accordance with Bagge Awards I & II has been completed. We were rather anxious about this as we had given a date by which this was to be completed and we did not want Pakistanis, though they put several obstacles themselves, to have a propaganda weapon against us in their international campaign of calumny.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely

(M.J. Desai)

Letter from Chief Minister of West Bengal Dr. B. C. Roy to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Calcutta, January 20, 1959.

Chief Minister
West Bengal

D.O. No. 84/CM. January 20/21, 1959

My dear Jawaharlal,

Your letter No.55-PMH/59 dated the 13th January,1959.

Members of the opposition very often use impolite language, In fact in the course of the discussion, they suggested that this Government should, if necessary, resign in order to restore Berubari to India, But I can assure you that all members of the Assembly belonging to different parties were equally emphatic because they felt that an injustice was being done to West Bengal by the Government of India in agreeing to divide the Berubari Union. As a matter of fact, Berubari Union was being administered by us since partition and as this area had been included in Schedule I as part of the Indian Territory; it was difficult for the members to understand how any proposal for partition of this Union could be made without a Bill being passed by parliament.

I remember very well about the correspondence regarding Cooch Behar enclaves. As you are aware, we were very unwilling to part with any territory which is larger in extent than the territory which Pakistan would have to give us. We also suggested that if we were to part with an area larger than that we would be getting, we should claim compensation from Pakistan but at your instance our Cabinet revised their previous decision and agreed to part with larger territories without compensation. There has, however, been no correspondence, nor any reference, formal or informal, about Berubari before the decision was taken at the Centre.

You have quoted a note prepared by the Commonwealth Secretary. I am sending you a note prepared by my Chief Secretary which gives the actual position of the case so far as he is concerned. From this you will realise that at no stage was any reference made to the State Government regarding Berubari. The part which my Chief Secretary took in the discussion is fully described by him in his note. At the conference at Secretaries level, there was a reference as to the “direction in which partition” of Berubari could take place. No approval of my officers as to whether partition should at all be made was asked for or given. As a matter of fact they could not give such approval without reference to Government. When you held the meeting with the Prime Minister of Pakistan at your house, the West Bengal officers were sitting downstairs all the time and never had any discussion with any of the officers or with you regarding the Berubari question.

I have already written to you and I repeat again that as Berubari was being administered by the province of West Bengal as if it formed part of that province and as in pursuance of this fact the boundary of West Bengal included Berubari within it under Schedule I of the Constitution, it would be difficult for you to avoid discussing Berubari in parliament when the Bill on the issue of Enclaves is discussed there under Article 3 of the Constitution.

I met Asok Sen the other day and I explained to him the position and he agreed that this particular aspect had a great deal of force behind it. Therefore, Berubari will have to be included in the Bill that you propose to bring before parliament.

Yours
Bidhan

Shri Jawaharlal Nehru
Prime Minister

(Note by the Editor: On January 24, Prime Minister in reply described the misunderstanding regarding Berubari Union as “unfortunate” and said that it had been decided to include the question of the transfer of Berubari to Pakistan in the Bill that “will be placed before Parliament”).

Note by Chief Secretary, Government West Bengal.

The day when the two Commonwealth Secretaries of India and Pakistan met at the External Affairs Ministry, the West Bengal contingent consisting of myself, Shri N.N. Chatterjee and Shri Banerjee, were sitting in a waiting room. I was called in to the conference and asked where the line would run if Berubari was divided so as to give half the area to Pakistan and half retained in the Indian Union. I said that I would consult the D.L.R. who was the only person who could give a very rough idea as to how the line would run, but I stated that, if any division was made, then, unless the line ran more or less horizontally, both the Cooch Behar enclaves adjoining Berubari on the west would automatically go to Pakistan which must be avoided. I had no authority to agree to any proposal of division, nor did I give any consent on behalf of the State Government since the division was never referred to either to the Chief Minister or to Cabinet. CM will remember that even in regard to Cooch Behar enclaves, Cabinet twice decided to ask for the excess territory and only at a meeting held just before the conference, on receipt of a letter from Prime Minister, that Cabinet decided to agree to an out and out exchange if that was the only way in which the difficulty of the enclaves could be solved with Pakistan. The State Government officers for years had discussed Berubari with Pakistan officers but could come to no agreement and the Government of India were fully apprised of our case for retaining the whole of Berubari. Our case was made out in printed briefs, dated February, 1951, and which were circulated to the Government of India when the Indian officers met on 14.8.1958 at Delhi before proceeding to Karachi, and long before the Delhi meeting (copy enclosed (not included here)). The West Bengal position regarding Berubari was discussed in detail in this note.

The Commonwealth Secretary has apparently given the impression to the Prime Minister that I, on behalf of the West Bengal Government agreed to the decision to divide Berubari and that it was only after my consent was given that the decision to divide was taken. To this I must answer with an emphatic “no”. Having spent so many years in service and having had innumerable conferences with East Pakistan over many matters, I was fully aware that the State Government would be loath to part with any further chunk of territory, having already lost several square miles as a result of exchange of enclaves and that I was not authorised to speak on behalf of the State Government on a point never referred to them previously. I do not know what proposal was made by the Commonwealth Secretary to the Foreign Secretary to which Pakistan’s counter proposal was apparently to divide the Berubari disputed area half and half. I accept full responsibility for having asked the Commonwealth Secretary to keep the wording of the agreement regarding the line somewhat flexible so that our corridor with the northern enclave on the west remained in tact.
The consultation with West Bengal officials was in regard to how the division line should run, not as to whether the disputed area should be divided. Any consultation in regard to the latter would have been referred to the West Bengal Government and not to our Director of Land Records by me, and no decision was or could be given by me in regard to this major step.

On the day that the two Prime Ministers met, I along with other West Bengal officers was sitting downstairs in the Prime Minister’s House and had no contact either with the Prime Minister or with the Commonwealth Secretary throughout the discussions.

Summary of the proceedings of the Secretary-level Conference held in Karachi from February 23 to 25, 1959.

First Session: 23rd February, 1959 at 11 a.m.

Mr. Iqbal Athar, Joint Secretary in the Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations welcomed the Indian Delegation and stated that Mr. M.S.A. Baig, Foreign Secretary, who was to have conducted this conference, was suddenly taken ill last night with gastritis. He stated that Mr. Baig’s illness was not a diplomatic illness but was genuinely so and they hoped that Mr. Baig would be present at future sessions, possibly tomorrow morning. In Mr. Baig’s absence, the Pakistan Delegation will be led by Mr. Fida Husain, Chief Secretary of West Pakistan.

Mr. Athar further stated that the relations between our two neighbouring countries had been bedeviled by our inability to solve many of the problems which we had inherited from partition. He expressed the hope that in the discussion a fruitful measure of agreement will be found, taking forward the agreement reached at the last meeting, in a spirit of give and take which was always necessary.

Commonwealth Secretary thanked the Government of Pakistan and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations for their hospitality on behalf of the Indian Delegation, and expressed his concern at Mr. Baig’s illness. He hoped that Mr. Baig will recover soon and asked Mr. Athar to convey the best wishes of the Indian Delegation for his speedy recovery.

Fida Husain opened the discussion and said that they would pick up the threads from the point where the Prime Ministers left off the two disputes about Suleimanke and Hussainiwala.

What they had to decide was the definition of head-works. After consulting their experts and engineers they had arrived at their concept of what constitutes head-works, and handed over a paper containing their definition to C.S. C.S. said that the definition of head-works was not relevant to these territorial disputes except perhaps in the Suleimanke region. The main thing was to define the boundary as awarded by Radcliffe and to demarcate this boundary. He was quite clear that Radcliffe had laid down the district boundary as the Indo-Pakistan boundary as clearly stated in paras 4 and 5 of Annexure A of the Award.

After these preliminary exchanges, the meeting took up the Hussainiwala dispute. C.S. reiterated that so far as Hussainiwala is concerned, it is the boundary of the district that is relevant and not the actual course of the river Sutlej.

Fida Hussain stated that there was some discussion of this item during the meeting in August last year that the case was dependent on the last sentence in para 10 of Annexure A – “But I must call attention to the fact that the Dipalpur Canal, which serves areas in the West Punjab, takes off from the Ferozepore head-works and I find it difficult to envisage a satisfactory demarcation of boundary at this point that is not accompanied by some arrangement for joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on these head-works”, and that they could not proceed to demarcate the boundary at Hussainiwala unless they were sure of some sort of joint control of head-works, which Radcliffe had envisaged and that was why they had started with a definition of headworks.

C.S. said that if they referred to the minutes of the Sub-Committee which considered the disputes on the western border during the meeting in August last year, they would find that the Government of India’s position had been made quite clear. The boundary demarcated by Radcliffe is final as stated in para 9 – A & B - of his report. Para 10 on which Pakistan based their claim, did not detract from the Award of the boundary as given in the Annexure A. Radcliffe did suggest in paras 10, 11 and 12 arrangements to be made between the two Governments to run things smoothly but these are matters for the two Governments to deal with in their sovereign competence and have no relevance to the boundary which was clear and unambiguous.
Fida Hussain stated that their point was that the boundary line could not be demarcated till there was some sort of joint control at Husainiwala as they were very concerned with the water supply to the Dipalpur Canal and other canals taking off from Hussainiwala.

C.S. asked Mr. Fida Husain to define what they meant by some sort of joint control.

Fida Husain however said that they meant first to consider as to what constituted head-works before they could define what they meant by joint control.

C.S. said that Government of India's position was that Radcliffe had awarded the district boundary at Hussainiwala and there was no question of joint control of the head-works. As he understood it the position of Government of Pakistan was that though Radcliffe had awarded the district boundary at Hussainiwala as the boundary and not the midstream of the river, yet because of what Radcliffe had said about joint control of intake in para 10 of Annexure A to his Award the Government of Pakistan today claimed the river as the boundary and wanted a modification of the boundary awarded by Radcliffe.

I.U. Khan said that joint control had to come first, demarcation can follow thereafter and they would know what the position was.

C.S. reiterated that the position of the Government of India, so far as this boundary dispute was concerned, was that the boundary awarded by Radcliffe in paras 4 and 5 of Annexure A was firm and final. As to what Radcliffe said in para 10 about hopes for a joint control of the intake etc. was a separate matter to be considered by the two Governments in their sovereign right. That had nothing to do with the boundary.

I. U. Khan wanted to know what was the definition of head-works which will apply at Suleimanke and Hussainiwala.

C.S. said that definition of Head-works had no relevance so far as the dispute at Hussainiwala was concerned. Government of India’s stand on this point was quite clear. Apart from the fact that “some arrangements for joint control of the intake of the different canals” in para 10 of Radcliffe’s report had no relevance to the clear boundary awarded by him and did not in any way detract from the firm award given as stated in para 9. Joint control of intake did not mean joint control of head-works. Since Pakistan had a different view on the joint control of intakes etc., they should define it in terms of territory so that he could report it to his Prime Minister.

I. U. Khan said the meeting could define as to what constituted the head-works at Suleimanke and then they could go on to define what the Pakistan Government meant by joint control of the head-works at Hussainiwala.
C.S. replied that the definition of what constituted head-works at Suleimanke had no relevance at Hussainiwala, since Suleimanke Head-works was entirely under the control of Pakistan. So far as Hussainiwala was concerned, joint control did not come in but since the Pakistan Delegation chose to bring it in, would they define what they meant by such joint control in terms of territory in the light of their definition of head-works.

Mian Ziaud Din stated that their point was to have a satisfactory demarcation of boundary, and unless they knew what they were going to demarcate, they could not proceed, so they had to define first as to what constituted the head-works.

C.S. again reiterated that the joint control of intakes did not mean joint control of head-works in any way. Joint control of intakes has been going on for the last 11 years by exchange of various data etc. That was quite separate from the question of the boundary. There was no basis for Pakistan Government’s demand for joint control of Hussainiwala head-works. Radcliffe’s Award of district boundary in this region was clear and unambiguous. Since the Pakistan Government wanted a variation in the Radcliffe Award by bringing in joint control of head-works, they must define as to what they mean in territorial terms.

Fida Hussain stated that they did not say variation of the Radcliffe Award. Radcliffe had given the joint control of the Ferozepur head-works to them in para 10 of his Award.

C.S. again reiterated Government of India’s position that the boundary was fixed and clear but as Radcliffe realised that there may be difficulties, he had suggested some sort of joint control of intakes, which did not mean joint control of head-works. Government of Pakistan’s position was that demarcation could not take place till joint control had taken place. Government of India’s position was that Radcliffe had been asked to award the boundary, he had done so, and his suggestion about the joint control of intakes had nothing to do with the boundary in this area — nor did it mean joint control of head-works as now alleged by Pakistan.

Fida Hussain stated that there could be no joint control of intakes unless there was joint control of the head-works as well.

C.S. said that joint control of intakes had been going on for all these years. India had been supplying data etc., to Pakistan and that is what was meant by joint control of intakes.

The Pakistan delegation did not agree with this interpretation.

C.S. said that the demand of Pakistan Government was for physical control of Ferozepur head-works by them along with Government of India while the Government of India’s position was that the joint control related only to intakes of the canals. Since the Pakistan Government wanted the joint control of head-works, surely they knew what they meant by such joint control. C.S. summarised the position of the Government of India as follows:-

1. that the boundary as awarded in para 9 of the Award and defined in para 4 of Annexure A was firm and clear
2. that the joint control of the intake etc. referred to in para 10 had nothing to do with the boundary;
3. that the joint control of intakes referred to by Radcliffe meant supply of data etc. to Pakistan, which had been done during the last 11 years.
4. Since the Government of Pakistan had not agreed with this interpretation of the joint control of intakes, they should state what their definition of joint control of intakes was in terms of territory.

I.U. Khan stated that Radcliffe laid down the boundary in the annexure but that was subject to para 10 of the Award, that the views of Pakistan Government on this point were stated in the minutes of the Sub-Committee which considered the Western border disputes in August last year, that the supply of data by India to Pakistan did not mean joint control of intakes, that there was no boundary at this point, and there could not be any unless there was joint control of the head-works and further they would not be able to give a definition of joint control of head-works until the Indian Delegation agreed to define the head-works.

C.S. asked if it meant that the Pakistan Delegation could not define the joint control of head-works in terms of territory.

Fida Hussain replied that this definition was dependent on the definition of what constituted the head-works.

C.S. wanted to know whether Pakistan Delegation by demanding joint control of head-works at Kussainiwala, claimed modification of Radcliffe’s Award giving the district boundary.

Fida Hussain replied that they would not say modification but would say that their interpretation of the boundary at this point in the light of para 10 of the report was different and that they did not agree that the Award as given in para 9 and defined in the annexure was final as claimed by India.

Coming on to Suleimanke, Fida Hussain stated that their stand was quite clear that the whole of head-works including the left marginal bund, which was in India’s possession, should come to Pakistan as given in para 5 of Radcliffe’s Award in Annexure A.
C.S. said that this raised the question as to what constituted the head-works. The respective stands in this regard of the two Governments were stated in the minutes of the Sub—Committee on western disputes which met in August 1958. Fida Hussain stated that though the position was stated in the minutes, it was not in much detail.

C. S. read out various definitions of what constituted head-works, which made it clear the head-works, which made it clear that the handworks did not include Marginal bunds and that no adjustment of the boundary awarded by Radcliffe was necessary except perhaps regarding a short spur of the left guide bund. In this connection, Pakistan delegation quoted some other definitions as to what constituted headwork’s from some other Irrigation Manuals. These definitions included marginal bunds.

At this point Pakistan Delegation wanted to discuss in a working party of engineers what the definition of head-works should be.

C.S. said that the definition of head-works did not concern Hussainiwala but he had no objection to a working party of engineers of both sides going into it with reference to the boundary at Suleimanke.

Pakistan Delegation, however, insisted that they would like to arrive at a general definition of what constituted head-works to which C.S. did not agree as definition of head-works was relevant only at Suleimanke for boundary demarcation. It was then agreed that a working party of engineers will meet to define as to what constituted the head-works at Suleimanke in pursuance of para 5 of Annexure A of the Radcliffe’s Award.

The meeting then dispersed to meet again on 24th February at 11 a.m.

Second Session: 24th February, 1959 at 11 a.m.

Mr. M.S.A. Baig Foreign Secretary to the Government of Pakistan expressed his profound regret at his inability to be present at the previous session owing to a severe attack of gastritis and said that he wished to extend a very warm welcome to the Indian Delegation. Mr. Baig had studied the material given to him by his Delegation on the previous day’s proceedings. Dealing with the report of the sub-Committee of Engineers (Annexure I) of the previous day he stated that the Pakistan Engineers had defined by reference to Irrigation Manuals and text-book as to what was meant by Head-works. Their definition was a comprehensive one. He stated that the definition given by the Indian engineers was a restricted one. They had confined their definition to “headworks proper” whereas Radcliffe’s award mentioned only Head-works.

C.S. said that the Indian Delegation were happy to find Mr. Baig restored to health and welcomed him to the deliberations. He pointed out that the report of the Indian Engineers had also been fully based on reference works and manuals on Irrigation, and that the Indian Government’s stand was that in the circumstances there was no case for the view that a loose interpretation of Head-works had to be given effect to in this case.

Mr. Fida Hussain stated that the definition of the Pakistan Engineers included the Marginal Bund, and he asked whether there could be Head-works without Marginal Bunds. Shri Jaini stated that there was no doubt that Marginal Bunds were not essential for Head-works and pointed to the example of the Madhopur Head-works, Mr. I.U. Khan said that the question was whether the Head-works at Suleimanke could function without Marginal Bunds. C.S., stated that for the last 11 years Pakistan had not put forward the view that the maintenance of the Suleimanke Head-works had been vitiated by the fact that the Left Marginal Bund had not been in their possession. The conclusion could only be that the Left Marginal Bund at Suleimanke was not essential for the maintenance of the Head-works. Mr. I.U. Khan said that the question had to be considered in the light of the language used in the Award, and not in the light of the conditions which obtained several years later, as a result of modern engineering techniques.

C.S. stated that it appeared from the Engineers’ Sub-Committee Report that the definition of Head-works given by the two sides were not similar. He, therefore, wished to state the Indian position on the Suleimanke Head-works Dispute which was that the Government of India would be prepared to discuss some adjustment according to the terms of para, 5 of the Annexure ‘A’ of Radcliffe Award and the definition of head-works given by the Indian Engineers in para. 5 on condition that a settlement of the Hussainiwala dispute was arrived at. Mr. Baig said that Annexure ‘A’ of the Award gave to Pakistan so much of the territory concerned as covered the Head-works and that it was important to know what exactly was the kind of adjustment of boundary that Government of India had in view, C.S. replied that by the phrase “so much of the territory as covered the Head-works”, all that was meant was the territory on which the Head-works stood, and that the Government of India’s position was that, subject to the conditions mentioned above, the Government of India would be prepared to discuss an adjustment of boundary covering that part of the Left Guide Bund which fell in Ferozepur District. Mr. Fida Hussain said that the Pakistan position was that the territory in question covered the area represented by a straight line joining the extreme ends of the two Marginal Bunds.
Shri Jaini said that the object of Marginal Bunds was to prevent the inundation of areas lying behind the Bunds. If international boundaries were fixed with reference to existing alignments of Marginal Bunds, there would be no finality in the matter, since with possible changes in the course of the River, Marginal Bunds may have to be retired at a future date.

Mr. Baig said that the primary purpose of Marginal Bunds was to prevent the midstream meandering and bye-passing the Head-works and that the protection of lands lying behind the Bunds was only incidental. C.S. pointed out the case of Mauza Minor where reinforcement was carried out for the sole purpose of protection of the lands lying behind.

C.S. reiterated that the Government of India’s position was that implementation of para 5 of Annexure ‘A’ could be discussed, subject to an agreement being reached in respect of the Hussainiwala Dispute, that the phrase “territory concerned as covers the Head-works” referred only to the territory on which the Head-works stood. The Pakistan Delegation thereupon suggested that the stands of both the sides might be put down in writing and signed by the leaders. This was proceeded with and the respective stands were defined as in Annexure II.

2. The Conference thereafter considered further the dispute over the Hussainiwala Head-works.

C.S. reiterated the Government of India’s position in the following terms:

(i) Radcliffe in para 9 of his forwarding letter to Government pointed out the difficulties of delimiting the boundary in the Punjab, particularly in view of the existence of canal systems developed under the conception of a single Administration. He had made it clear that it was after full consideration of these difficulties that he made his Award. Radcliffe had also been clear that criticism could be made of it, but he had pointed out that any other decision would also have been open to criticism. The Award described in para 4 of Annexure “A” was, therefore, a final and definite one. The remarks made in Para 10 of the forwarding letter regarding some arrangement for joint control of the intake of different canals were no different from those in paras 11 and 12 and had no relevance to the boundary awarded but could only be regarded as a matter for separate arrangement between two sovereign states in the interests of keeping things working smoothly.

Koreshi said that paragraph 9 of the forwarding letter referred only to the area between Beas and the Sutlej rivers on the one hand, and the river Ravi on the other, and that the Ferozepore Head-works area was not covered. C.S. replied that it could not be understood how one can argue with any validity that, if the Ferozepore Head-works were on the Sutlej River where Radcliffe gave the district and not the river as the boundary, Radcliffe had not awarded the boundary in the Hussainiwala region.

(ii) The Pakistan Delegation had raised the question as to how there could be joint control of the intake of the canals without joint control of the Head-works. The fact to be borne in mind was that some arrangement had been in existence for the last 11 years and there was no evidence to show that this arrangement was working unsatisfactorily.

(iii) The Indian Delegation asked the Pakistan Delegation for a definition in terms of territory of their position on joint control of the Head-works, since that position really amounted to a modification of the Radcliffe’s Boundary Award.

Mr. Baig stated that the Pakistan Government’s stand was that para 9 of the forwarding letter was incomplete without para 10, that para 4 of the Annexure ‘A’ was not applicable to the Hussainiwala Headworks area. He cited the Oxford dictionary definition of “control”.

C.S. intervened and requested the Pakistan Delegation to refer to the Dictionary definition of “decision” and “Award” and convince themselves of the finality of these terms. The Pakistan Delegation stated that their stand was that para 4 of the Annexure had to be viewed as excepting the Hussainiwala Headworks area. They then produced their statement on what constituted joint control in the area of the Ferozepore Head-works. This is reproduced on page 4 of Annexure III on Hussainiwala. This indicated that the midstream of the river should generally be the boundary. C.S. asked how the Pakistan Government could reconcile this with para 4 of the Annexure which awarded “district boundary and not the course of the Sutlaj as the boundary between East and West Punjab”. The reply was that para 4 of the Annexure just did not apply to this area. Mr. I.U. Khan asked as to what was the Indian view of the joint control. C.S. replied that according to the Indian view, the question of joint control did not arise in considering the settlement of the boundary, and reiterated the position that para 9 of the forwarding letter was decisive and that para 10, 11 and 12 were only suggestions for consideration of the two Governments. A sub-Committee consisting of Shri Mangat Rai, Shri Mukarji and Shri Jaini on the Indian side and Mr. I.U. Khan Mr. Koreshi and others on the Pakistan side will meet in the afternoon to define the position of the two Governments.
Summary of proceedings: 25th February, 1959

Mr. Baig read out the report of the Sub-Committee constituted the previous day to define the positions of both Governments on paras 9 to 12 of the Radcliffe Award (Annexure III). This over, C.S. stated that he had two observations to make on the report. Firstly, that since the Pakistan members of the committee had made a reference to the Oxford Dictionary definition of the word “control” he would like to bring to notice the dictionary definition of the words “decision” and “award”. These definitions may be seen in Annexure IV. Secondly, the statement by the Pakistan members of the committee that the letter dated 27.10.50 from the Pakistan High Commission in New Delhi admitting that there was no boundary dispute in the region of Hussainiwala Head Works had not been brought to the notice of the Pak. authorities was not correct since the Pakistan Foreign Ministry had been informed about it in the High Commission of India letter No.F.80 (7)/55-Genl. dated 19.10.1956. C.S. asked that the latter matter might be added to the report of the Sub-Committee as an observation of the Leader of the Indian Delegation, Mr. Baig said that he would also like to add the observation that the Pak. High Commission’s letter dated 27.10.50 was written or the understanding that there was no boundary dispute at that time in that particular area. This was agreed to and the necessary endorsement made on the Sub-committee’s report and signed by the leaders of the two delegations. The report may be seen at Annexure III.

C.S. said that it would be desirable to have an agreed statement for the press on the Secretaries’ Conference. A draft, which C.S. suggested as a joint communiqué, (Annexure V), was agreed to by the Pakistan side. Mr. I. U. Khan suggested that it should specifically be stated in the communiqué that the two Secretaries had visited the site of the Head Works separately, but this was overruled by the Leader of the Pak. Delegation as being unnecessary. The joint communiqué was then initialed by the leaders of the delegations. It was agreed that joint communiqué should be released only subject to an embargo until the midnight of February 25-26.

C.S. said that he would like to be clear as to whether the report of the Sub-Committee on paras 9 -12 of the Radcliffe Award should be regarded as a confidential document for the time being, or not. He explained that in Parliament demands would be made for a fuller statement on the Conference than what was contained in the joint communiqué, and that if for any reason the details of the Sub-Committee Report were not to be stated publicly he would want to be sure that the Pakistan Government would also view the matter in the same light on their side. Mr. Baig said that the Secretaries were to report to their governments, and further consideration was to be given by the two governments to the matters in dispute. Therefore, until the governments came to a contrary decision, the Sub-Committee’s Report should be regarded as a confidential one. C.S. however pointed out that our P.M. will have to tell Parliament that no agreed proposals were possible and that the differing stands of the two Governments reported by the Secretary are under consideration.

Before bringing the proceedings to a close Mr. Baig expressed the satisfaction of the Government of Pakistan that a free and frank exchange of views had taken place at the Secretaries conference. He said that although the two sides had not come to agreed conclusions, this was not to be taken as the final word, and that it was the hope of the Pakistan Government that further consideration of the matter would enable the governments to come to an agreement at a later stage. C.S. replied that these discussions had led to a clarification of the respective stands, and that he wished to thank once again the Government of Pakistan and the Pakistan Delegation for their kind hospitality and for the consideration shown to the Indian Delegation.

Mr. Baig then brought the proceedings to a close.

ANNEXURE - I

In the meeting held on the morning of the 23rd February 1959, between the delegations of India and Pakistan, it was decided that the definition of ‘head-works’ was necessary with reference to para 5 of Annexure A of the Radcliffe Award relating to Suleimanke Head-works. The engineers of the two sides were asked to meet and give their views as to what constituted a ‘head-works’

2. A meeting was accordingly held on the 23rd February, 1959, at 3 p.m. which was attended by the followings-

INDIA:
Mr. D.D. Jaini,
Mr. S.N. Ravikant

PAKISTAN:
Mr. S.I. Mahbub
Dr. M.S. Quraishy
Mr. Z.H. Jafri

3. Mr. Mahbub stated that ‘head-works’ consists of the followings-

“(a)– Barrage or weir, canal head, regulators, under sluices, fish ladders, navigation locks, and divide walls.
(b) – The guide bunds to guide the flow of the river to the barrage or weir.

(c) – The marginal bunds, the retired marginal bunds, spurs etc. which are meant to control the flow of river and to prevent the out flanking of the works at (a) and (b).

(d) – The railway lines which are constructed to feed material like stone for the maintenance of the head-works.

(e) – Other ancillary works like the head-works colony containing maintenance workshops, power-house, telephone, telegraph and wireless offices, silt analysis laboratory, stores, material dumps, canal railway yards, station buildings, approach roads, canal dispensary, buildings for housing the administrative and operational staff, their offices, and inspection bungalows.

(f) – The areas occupied and bounded by the above works, the area under the head reaches of the off-taking canals included in the area acquired for the head-works, along with the area marked for annual river surveys upstream and downstream of a weir or barrage so as to enable a close watch of the river behaviour for some miles upstream (generally 10 to 15 miles) and some distance downstream (generally 7 to 10 miles) of the barrage or weir. A sufficient width of land is also necessary along the marginal bunds and railway line for proper, maintenance and operation of these works.

4. He explained his concept under each of the six sub-paras (a) to (f) above, and indicated that all these items constituted essential parts of head-works. In support of his explanation regarding the marginal bunds forming an integral part of the head-works, he quoted relevant extracts (copy enclosed as annexure I) from the following:

(i) Roorkee Treatise on Civil Engineering, Irrigation Work in India.

(iii) Irrigation Engineering, by Sharma.

(v) Irrigation Works in India, by Bukley.

(vi) Annual histories of various head-works.

5. This was followed by a discussion, and the Indian representatives explained that ‘head-works’ proper constitute the barrage of weir across the river, head regulators of off taking channels, under-sluices, fish ladders, navigational locks, silt excluders, etc., which form part of the structure of the barrage or the weir and the guide bunds on the upstream and the downstream sides which guide the flow of the river over the barrage or the weir.

6. In support of their views, the Indian representative quoted extracts as given in Annexure II.

SECRET

Letter from Chief Minister West Bengal Dr. B. C. Roy to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Calcutta, March 1, 1959.

Chief Minister
Government of West Bengal,

Calcutta the 1st Mach, 1959

My Dear Jawaharlal Nehru,

You know that according to the Bagge Award, the demarcation on site has been completed indicating the midstream boundary between, Murshidabad and Rajshahi districts. The fishermen, mostly refugees of the Indian Union, who used to fish in the waters of Padma and Bhagirathi before, have now been deprived of their livelihood because they cannot fish in those waters any more due to the implementation of the Bagge Award. Large tracts of the Padma River have now fallen to Pakistan and the fishermen of the upper reaches of the Padma which fully fall within the Indian Union, also find it very insecure to fish in the river because during fishing they easily may run into Pakistan waters and get their boats, costly nets and themselves also seized by the Pakistani Police or nationals. In short all along the Padma river, Indian fishermen, mostly refugees, of the district of Murshidabad have stopped fishing and have been facing acute distress verging on starvation.
Many of the fishermen who lived so long under the jurisdiction of West Bengal have now been transferred to Pakistan as a result of the Bagge Award. It is therefore necessary to take early steps to relieve the distress of these people. There are about 14,500 families or about 60,000 people involved—probably more. We have given them some temporary relief but they are in such acute distress that they are selling their household goods and utensils in order to meet the pangs of hunger. Some of them stated that their boats had been stolen by Pakistanis in this melee. At the present moment they are being employed on test relief work and also gratuitous relief is being given to those who are not able to do any work.

One way to solve this might be for the Government of India to approach the Pakistan Government to allow these fishermen to continue to fish in that area and to bring their catch for sale in India. I doubt very much whether Pakistan would agree but even if they agree in principle, in actual practice they will not allow the fishermen to take away their catch. The other alternative is to try and put them in some other fishing areas. There are a few Government fisheries in that area which have not yet been settled with others and these may be given to the Bagge Award affected fishermen. If all of them cannot be employed in such Government fisheries, it may perhaps be found out if they cannot be taken to Dandakaranya for the purpose of continuing their vocation. There are not many sweet water fisheries in West Bengal and therefore the only way to relieve them is to take them to some places where they can catch fish. Thirdly, a question has been raised as to whether those persons who were living in this area but now on account of the Bagge Award have to migrate to India could not be given refugee rehabilitation benefits.

I am sending a copy of this letter to Shri Mehr Chand Khanna.

An early decision in the matter is necessary.

Yours affectionately

Bidhan

Shri Jawaharlal Nehru,
Prime Minister,
New Delhi.
Statement by Deputy Minister of External Affairs Shrimati Lakshmi Menon in the Lok Sabha on the Conference of Secretaries of India and Pakistan on border dispute in the Hussainiwala and Suleimanke area on the India – West Pakistan border.

New Delhi, March 3, 1959.

A meeting at the level of Secretaries was held in Karachi from the 23rd to the 25th February, 1959. This meeting was held as a consequence of the meeting of the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan in Delhi in September 1958. At this Prime Ministers’ meeting, a reference to the unsettled disputes and their further consideration was made in the following terms:

“Some of the border disputes, namely, two regarding the Radcliffe and Bagge Awards in the eastern region, and five in the western region, require further consideration.

Our Commonwealth Secretary had visited the Hussainiwala and Suleimanke areas in November 1958 and had then discussed technical and other details with the engineers and the local officers on the spot. The Karachi meeting in February 1959 discussed these two disputes relating to Hussainiwala and Suleimanke areas. The Indian Delegation consisted of engineers and other experts and was headed by our Commonwealth Secretary.

The discussions at Karachi disclosed a divergence of views between the two Delegations.

Both sides stated the position of their Governments regarding these disputes, and no agreed proposals for settlement emerged as a result of these discussions.

During his talks with the Pakistan Foreign Minister in Karachi, the Commonwealth Secretary referred to the serious increase in the number of incidents on the eastern border which have been caused by irresponsible and aggressive firing by Pakistan authorities. Representations in this connection have been made repeatedly to the Government of Pakistan at various levels through our High Commissioner in Karachi.

It is our policy to endeavour to settle border disputes peacefully and to restore normal conditions in border areas. At the same time, any aggressive action or pressure on the part of Pakistan authorities and any violation of our territory has to be resisted. Measures necessary for the protection of the life and property of our citizens living in the border areas have been taken.

New Delhi, March 7, 1959.

No. 558-PMH/59. March 7, 1959

My dear Bidhan,

Your letter of the 1st March about demarcation of the mid-stream boundary between Murshidabad and Rajshahi districts according to the Bagge Award.

In this, as in like cases I think it will not be desirable for us to make any statement undertaking the responsibility for rehabilitation of all those persons who might be displaced. Nor should we open any relief camps for the purpose as we used to do previously in connection with displaced persons from East Pakistan. If we do that we shall get entangled in difficult operations which may go on indefinitely. We should however, give relief where it is considered absolutely necessary.

We can certainly approach the Pakistan Government to allow these fishermen to continue to fish in that area. But I agree with you that it is unlikely that Pakistan will agree to any such proposal. The question of fishermen is more difficult than others. The only real way to help them is to find some sites where they can fish. Where there are any Government fisheries, we might try to put these people there. I do not see how they can be accommodated at Dandakaranya. So far as I know, there are no fisheries there.

My anxiety is that we should not do anything which encourages people to migrate to India because of the consequences of the Bagge Award. If we proclaim that they will be given the normal refugee rehabilitation benefits, this will be an immediate inducement to them to migrate and they will suffer a great deal by this. I realise that many of them may migrate and we shall not be able to leave them un-helped.

2823. SECRET

Letter from Chief Minister of West Bengal Dr. B. C. Roy to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Chief Minister
Government of West Bengal
Calcutta

My dear Jawaharlal

I have received your secret letter No.558-PMH/59 of the 7th March.

The present problem so far as I can see is that over 60,000 fishermen, the majority of whom are refugees, now find it quite insecure to fish in the waters of the Padma and Bhagirathi. They apprehend that as a result of this adjustment of midstream boundary, there is a great risk of their fishing implements and boats being seized if they cross the Indian boundary into Pakistan water and this they have to do to get a good catch. The only answer to the problem is to approach the Pakistan Government to allow these fishermen to continue to fish in these waters undisturbed.

As there is little likelihood of Pakistan agreeing to this arrangement, the only other alternative is to settle them in areas where there is scope and possibility of fishing, but such areas are very rare in this State. Therefore, I would strongly urge that the Government of India should draw up schemes to re-settle these people in areas outside this State where they can continue their avocations.

In the meanwhile, the State Government have already arranged for employing over 5,000 people in relief works, but it is reported that these people are not suited for earth work. Doles have also been given to the vulnerable section of those people. We, however, intend to find work for these people temporarily till they are settled properly. We, expect that the entire expenditure on this account should be borne by the Central Government. We have not publicly made any statement undertaking any responsibility for rehabilitation of people affected by adjustment of boundaries.

Yours affectionately
Bidhan

Prime Minister,

2824. Statement by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru in the Lok Sabha while replying to an Adjournment Motion on the reported firing by the Pakistani troops across the West Bengal – East Pakistan border on March 11, 1959.

New Delhi, March 12, 1959.

Mr. Speaker, Sir, you were pleased to admit this motion on a specific issue, but it has tended to be discussed on much broader lines. Even in regard to the border issues reference has been made to a large number of past issues on the Assam border etc. and some other border considerations have been brought in also.

It is true of course, that every issue involves a background, involves considerations that bring it about. Obviously, a border issue between India and Pakistan involves the fact that Pakistani was partitioned from India and certain consequences followed, consequences which, in spite of every effort, seem to pursue us still and create not only insecurity on the border regions but a great deal of ill-will and bitterness.
You know, Sir, and the House knows, that we have tried our utmost, keeping in view the security of India, to deal with these matters so as to put an end to to these troubles, to solve these problems as they arise, and not to do anything which was likely to create bitterness. I have often spoken about this in this House. And yet, it has been our misfortune to see these big and small issues going on day to day and year after year. I must confess to a feeling, a sense, of great disappointment. I do not mean the big issues now, for the big issues could hardly be dealt with when the two Prime Ministers met, and they are in a different category. But we thought, and I thought that the smaller border issues at any rate could be tackled and if all of them cannot be settled immediately we can at least settle them one by one or in certain groups. But I confess to a feeling of grievous disappointment that it has not led to that peace in the border which I hoped for.

I can very well understand the concern and the anxiety of all the Members in this House about this continuous situation. This is not a matter which can be considered from a party point of view because we are all concerned with the security of our border and the security of our fellow-citizens in that border.

Now, I can, in so far as this narrow issue is concerned, read out a statement of the facts which have been supplied to me by the authorities in West Bengal, in fact by the District Magistrate of Murshidabad who was concerned with this and who was enquiring into it. I shall do so if the House so wishes. I gave some broad idea about it this morning.

There are two other matters to which I would like to refer; although perhaps they are slightly outside the scope of the motion before the House there has been some indirect reference to them. There are many Members in this House or some of them who connect these borders issues or border troubles, firing, etc., in some way or other, with the recent military aid pact between the United States and Pakistan and some other countries. Now, on the last occasion when I spoke about this matter, I said that we would enquire further into this. We have had some further enquiries made. In fact, we are still continuing it. By enquiries I mean explanations. I hope tomorrow morning to place a paper before this House on this subject, giving the text of the assurances and the other matters connected with that. Perhaps even that may have to be followed up, because we are pursuing this line of action. So, I shall not say anything more about that except to say that paper will be placed before the House, which will contain, if I may say so, nothing very new but it will, in a connected form, give the text of these pacts as well as the other papers which may help Hon.
Members to see the whole thing in the right perspective.

I can only say this now in regard to it that on further enquiry from the United States Government we have been given categorical assurances that the aid pact has absolutely nothing to do with any idea of Pakistan attacking India. In fact, the assurances in that respect are as categorical as they can be. Of course, as the Hon. Member pointed out, the assurances, though satisfactory to the extent as they may be, cannot be wholly satisfactory, because the other party concerned, instead of giving any assurances, makes statements to the contrary statements made by Pakistan repeatedly. However, I shall not deal with the matter any more.

Secondly, reference has been made once by me in a general way and subsequently by some other Members, about the military equipment from the United States which is said to have been used by Pakistani forces.

I think that I should place the exact facts as we know them, before the House, so as to prevent misapprehensions from arising. I have nothing to say about the item of news appearing in the Statesman newspaper, which was quoted this morning. I have no particular information. But when I previously said about this equipment I was referring to certain types of equipment which came into our possession on the Cease-Fire line in Jammu and Kashmir State and which undoubtedly were of American manufacture. In fact, they could not have come from anywhere else. Again, I cannot say of course, that they formed part of the Aid Programme or were bought in the open market. We have no evidence of American arms being used in border incidents in the East. But some equipment of American manufacture has been found in cases of attempted sabotage across the Cease-Fire line in Jammu and Kashmir. The details are.

Radiosonde transmitters have been recovered. On the 6th of October, 1958, one apparatus marked “U. S. Army Signal Corps, Radiosonde Modulator”, number so-and-so, Johnson service—full particulars.

On the 9th October, another apparatus marked “U. S. Army Singal Corps, Radiosonde transmitter and Radiosonde modulator”.—I might add. Sir, that I do not know what these things are. That is to say, I do not know exactly what they are, in detail; I know broadly what they are.

Then, two plastic explosive charges with American fuse, recovered from the premises of the Panchayatgarh in village Banwat, P. S. Poonch on 21st December, 1958.

Then again, one U. S. A. made wireless set recovered from a place about 9 miles south-west of Rajouri and about 5 miles on our side on the Cease-Fire line on the 16th February 1959.

Now, this American equipment cannot necessarily be related to the Defence Aid pro-gramme, as they could have been easily bought by the Pakistanis. A large number of such recoveries, if made, of course, would put a somewhat different complexion. On many earlier occasions this matter had been taken up with the United States Ambassador as to the question of the plastic bombs used by the Pakistani saboteurs in Kashmir. The Ambassador had categorically denied that they were of USA manufacture and had suggested that the Pakistanis must have bought them from the United Kingdom. This was on the 7th June, 1958.

That is, Sir, in so far as U. S. equipment is concerned.

Then there is one small matter. An Hon. Member referred to our Area Commander in that region being a foreign national, a UK national. I am sorry he made that reference, because he is a gallant and loyal officer. He is an Englishman, but he is not a UK national. He became an Indian national a long time ago and as such has been serving our Army for a long time. He served in Delhi and various places. As a matter of fact, quite apart from all these recent happenings, in the normal course, he is being transferred to another area.

An Hon. Member: I think, Sir, about a couple of months ago, when he was given four years’ extension, the question whether he was an Indian national or not yet an Indian national was talked about here, and I think he has not yet opted for Indian nationality.

The Prime Minister: Sir, the Defence Minis-ter tells me that he is an Indian national.

An Hon. Member: He is an Anglo-Indian gentleman who holds office in the Indian Army, but he has not opted for Indian nationality. About that I am definite. If the Government has any papers, then, of course, I shall stand corrected.

The Prime Minister: That is a matter where if I am incorrect I shall be glad to correct myself. But normally speaking, every Anglo-Indian is considered automatically an Indian national unless he does something to opt out. His home is India; he has no other home, hut.

Another matter. The overall ultimate re-sponsibility for international border protection lies with the army. But, it depends how a particular border is dealt with. If a border situation supposed to be potentially a war situation, then, it is dealt with more from the military point of view. Otherwise, it is dealt with from the police point of view, the military, of course, being in the back-ground which could be summoned by the civil authorities whenever needed. On a great many occasions, mention has been made in this House of border troubles between East Pakistan and India. The House will remember that a great majority of these incidents took place on the Assam border. Generally speaking, West Bengal-Pakistan border was quieter. I say generally speaking, not wholly. The incidents there consist-ed chiefly of cattle lifting and a little trouble in charlands occasionally. Lately there has been a change and there has been much greater activity on the West Bengal side. Because of the recurrence of many of these instances on the Assam-East Pakistan border, it was arranged to put the army more definitely in charge of that area. That was not so in the West Bengal-Pakistan border although the army was, as I said, in overall responsibility and could be summoned when necessary. But, actually, in the normal way it was the armed police that dealt with it. That has been the position. But, certainly in view of these developments this matter has to be reviewed and we are going to discuss this matter with the West Bengal Government as to how to take more effective measures to give security to our people there.

The difficulty has been that, normally, the army is not brought in petty cases of assault however bad they may be. It may be distressing. But, if there is a case of theft or dacoity or kidnapping, it is bad, we should protect him, of course, but the whole army movement is normally not indulged in on such occasions. However, this matter is recurring and the incidents do require a reconsideration of the manner in which we should give such more effective protection in future.

In regard to this particular incident about which this motion was originally moved, on the 6th March, at about 11.00 hours, one Rati Kanta Mondal along with four of his employees (all Chaimandals) of Char Rajanagar and adjoining areas under Raninagar p.s. J.L. No. 91, while harvesting linseeds from their field at Char Rajanagar bordering Pakistan were challenged by the E.P.R. men of Diar Khidirpur Pak B.O.P who fired two rounds from their rifles from a distance of about 200 yards. None was injured. Three Pak nationals armed with followed by 4 Pak E.P.R. armed personnel came there and claimed the plot of land in question to be in Pakistan. The Pak nationals caught hold of one Makhan Mondal of Char Rajanagar passing by that way on a charge of harvesting linseed from the Pak territory “and took him away to Pak B.O.P. at Diar Khidirpur and severely assaulted him on the way. Rati Kanta Mondal was also assaulted by the E.P.R. personnel who trespassed into the Indian territory. He sustained swelling injury on his arm. Necessary steps were taken to guard the border and the police force in the area was reinforced.

On 9th March, our District Magistrate at Murshidabad lodged a protest with the Pakistan District Magistrate of Rajshahi against this trespass and firing into Indian territory. He suggested a joint enquiry on the spot by the two District Magistrates and also asked for stern action against the Pakistan border police and Pakistan nationals responsible for this incident and for immediate return of Shri Makham Mondal, who had been kidnapped and for compensation for assaulting Indian nationals.

On 10th March, heavy and incessant firing by Pakistani border forces continued and our border police returned the fire in self-defence. Two Indian nationals of Char Rajapur were injured by the Pakistan firing.

Our District Magistrate of Murshidabad got into contact with the Pakistan District Magistrate of Rajshahi on the telephone and the latter agreed to stop firing and to a meeting of the two District Magistrates.

Our District Magistrate of Murshidabad went to the place fixed on the border at 4 p.m. to meet the Pakistani District Magistrate, Rajshahi. The Rajshahi District Magistrate, however, did not turn up at the appointed place and the Pakistanis continued to fire and even fired at the messenger sent across to tell the Pakistan District Magistrate of Rajshahi that the District Magistrate of Murshidabad was waiting for him.

On 11th March, Pakistanis stopped firing at 06.00 hours but resumed heavy and intermittent firing on Char Rajanagar later in the day. Adequate measures have been taken to deal with the situation.

I have nothing further to say on this matter, except that we are very much concerned about these developments, not only the incidents in themselves, but the whole background behind them, and we certainly hope to take effective measures.

SECRET

Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Chief Minister of West Bengal Dr. B. C. Roy.

New Delhi, March 16, 1959.

No. 617-PMH/59, March 16, 1959

My dear Bidhan,

Your letter of the 12th March about the fishermen who are said to have been displaced in the Murshidabad District. We shall certainly write to Pakistan on this subject, but, as you say, there is little hope of their being helpful.

Meanwhile I learn from your Chief Secretary that the figure of displaced fisher-men is greatly exaggerated. In your letter you mention that there are 60,000 fishermen who have been displaced. In other accounts, it has been stated that 14,000 fishermen families have been displaced. Your Chief Secretary told us on the telephone that these figures are greatly exaggerated and that the entire region does not have so many fishermen families.

I am waiting for further information from your Government.

Yours affectionately

Jawaharlal Nehru

Dr. B.C. Roy,
Chief Minister of West Bengal,
Calcutta.

2826. Note from the High Commission of India in Pakistan to Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

The High Commission for India in Pakistan presents its compliments to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Government of Pakistan, and has the honour to invite the attention of the Ministry to a statement alleged to have been made by an official of the Ministry in respect of Tukergram, which was reported in the Dawn, Karachi of 19th March, 1959, in the following terms:

TUKARGRAM VILLAGE

“A big agitation was being carried on in connection with the Tukergram village which has a majority of Muslim population and belongs to Pakistan because it was on the Pakistan side of the Kusiyara river.”

2. As the Ministry are aware, Tukergram, which falls within the district of Cachar, has been awarded to India under the Radcliffe Award and had been continuously in possession of India till it was forcibly occupied by Pakistan Armed Forces in August 1958. The Prime Ministers of Pakistan and India, during their meeting in September, 1958, in Delhi, considered the question of withdrawal of the Pakistani forces from Tukergram and accepted the suggestion made by the Pakistan Prime Minister that this should go hand in hand with the resolving of the difficulties that have recently arisen in the Patharia Hills forest area. Further action to be taken in pursuance of this Agreement between the Prime Ministers was indicated in letter No, 534-CS/58 dated 10th September, 1958, from Shri M. J. Desai, Commonwealth Secretary to the Government of India, to Mr. Baig, Foreign Secretary, Ministry of Foreign Affairs & Commonwealth Relations of the Government of Pakistan.

3. This matter has since been taken up several times with various officials of the Ministry by the High Commission, by Shri Maitra with Mr. Ikbal Athar, Acting Foreign Secretary, in October and November, 1958, and by Shri Padmanabhan with Mr., Itaat Hussain in February, 1959. As the Prime Ministers had decided that the withdrawal of the Pakistan Forces from Tukergram should go hand in hand with the resolving of difficulties in the Patharia Hills forest area and as the Conservators of Forests of East Pakistan and Assam were not able to come to an agreed solution of the difficulties in the latter area, the Chief Secretary of Assam approached the Chief Secretary, East Pakistan, on 9th December, 1958, to fix a suitable date for the meeting of Chief Secretaries. As no reply was received from the Chief Secretary, East Pakistan, the High Commission in its Note No. F.10(7)/59-P dated 6th March, 1959, requested the Ministry to issue urgent instructions to the Government of East Pakistan to arrange an early meeting between the Chief Secretaries of Assam and East Pakistan and the High Commission was informed in the Ministry’s Note No. I(1).3/24/59 dated 13th March, 1959, that the matter is receiving attention.

4. It will be seen from the background given in paragraphs 2 and 3 above that, apart from any other arguments that can be advanced, the basic facts that Tukergram being a part of Cachar District had been in possession of the Government of India right up to August, 1958, when it was forcibly occupied by Pakistan Armed Forces, and that the two Prime Ministers during their meeting in September, 1958, agreed that Pakistan Forces should withdraw from Tukergram and restore the status quo, are quite clear. The Prime Ministers had agreed that the withdrawal of Pakistan Forces from Tukergram should go hand in hand with the resolving of difficulties in the Patharia Hills forest area. Action to resolve these difficulties is being delayed by the East Pakistan authorities and the High Commission has requested for the intervention of the Government of Pakistan in this matter,

5. In the light of the above, this High Commission has been instructed to express the deep concern of the Government of India at the attempted repudiation of the agreement between the Prime Ministers of Pakistan and India by the official of the Ministry in respect of Tukergram. The Ministry will appreciate that unilateral repudiation of the agreement between the two Prime Ministers in respect of the withdrawal of Pakistan Armed Forces from Tukergram will undermine confidence in the value of such agreements. The High Commission has been instructed by the Government of India to request the Government of Pakistan to take very early action for withdrawal of the Pakistan
Forces from Tukergram and implement the Agreement between the two Prime Ministers in connection with this case.

The High Commission of India avails of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations the assurances of its highest consideration.

2827. Note from High Commission of India in Pakistan to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

The High Commission for India in Pakistan presents its compliments to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations Government of Pakistan, and has the honour, in continuation of the High Commission's note No. F-9(22)/59, dated the 19-3-59 to state that the Government of India are of the view that a large number of incidents in the river areas of West Bengal and East Pakistan border can easily be avoided in future by working out mutually satisfactory arrangements for the regulation of boat traffic and fishing in the river Ganga where midstream of river forms the boundary between West Bengal and East Pakistan.

2. It will be seen that in the list of incidents on the West Bengal-East Pakistan border attached to the High Commission’s note referred to above, as many as 11 out of 26 incidents pertain to interference with boat traffic and fishing in the river. The length of the river Ganga where the East Pakistan authorities were in control of one bank and the West Bengal authorities were in control of the other bank, was only 13.4 miles up to 15.1.1959 when exchange of areas between the two Governments took place in accordance with the demarcation following the Bagge Awards I and II. Since 15.1.59, the length of the river, on a bank of which is in control of West Bengal and the other in control of the East Pakistan authorities, has increased to 23.1 miles and the chances of incidents connected with boat traffic and fishing in the river midstream of which is the boundary between the two States, have increased further. It is in the common interest of the two Governments of West Bengal and East Pakistan to arrive at mutually satisfactory arrangements for the regulation of the boat traffic and the fishing activity in this portion of the river midstream of which constitutes the boundary between the two States. The High Commission has been instructed by the Government of India to make the following suggestions for the consideration of the Government of Pakistan to deal with this problem:

(i) Fishing on the Ganga between Rajshahi and Murshidabad districts, where the boundary between the two States is formed by the line of midstream channel of the Ganga, should be open and unrestricted for fishermen from both sides on payment of appropriate dues.

(ii) Traffic by country-boats for the nationals of both the States on the river in this sector should also be uninterrupted, provided such boats starting from the Indian side have a destination on the Indian side of the river bank and boats starting from the Pakistan side have a destination on the Pakistan side of the river and, further provided that they do not carry anything contraband like arms etc.

If necessary, some kind of authorisation by local police officials with certificate as to the number of men and type of goods and merchandise carried in such boats may be introduced so that border authorities on either side might have a normal check over the traffic.

3. The Government of India are anxious to do all they can to remove the causes of tension and conflict and establish peaceful conditions along the Indo-Pakistan border regions and are confident that the Government of Pakistan are equally anxious to achieve this objective and will give prompt and sympathetic consideration to the suggestions made in para 2 above.

3. The Government of India propose to request the Government of West Bengal to work out mutually satisfactory detailed arrangements with the Government of East Pakistan in pursuance of these suggestions and will issue necessary instructions as soon as the High Commission is informed that the Government of Pakistan are also issuing similar instructions to the Government of East Pakistan.

The High Commission of India avails of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations the assurances of its highest consideration.

High Commission of India
Karachi

No.9(22)/59-P the 25th March, 1959 4th Caitra, 1881(S).

The High Commission of India in Pakistan presents its compliments to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Government of Pakistan, and, in continuation of the High Commission’s note No.9(22)/59-P, dated the 23rd March, 1959, has the honour to state that it has come to the notice of the Government of India that a very large number of Indian fishermen (involving about 4000 families numbering over 20,000 persons) has been very seriously affected by certain restrictive measures introduced recently by the East Pakistan authorities in regard to facilities for fishing in the river Padma. Previously, these fishermen were fishing in the river continuously from Nimtita to Lalgola, although a stretch of 7 miles of the river fell entirely within Pakistan. They were allowed to ply their boats without any let or hindrance in this part of the river, even though it was exclusively in Pakistan territory. Now these fishermen are not being allowed to proceed beyond the Indian borders. They are also not being allowed to navigate the entire width of the river, where one bank falls within Indian and the other in Pakistan, in order to draw their nets, some of which are one to two miles in length.

2. The High Commission would like to bring to the notice of the Ministry that as a result of the action taken by the East Pakistan authorities, the Indian fishermen cannot carry on their trade and are facing great hardship. The High Commission would, therefore, request the Government of Pakistan that considering the human problem involved and in the spirit of good neighbourlines, they may kindly issue immediate instructions to the Government of East Pakistan to:

(i) allow Indian fishermen, as in the past, to take their boats along the river Padma, where both banks are in the possession of Pakistan, Subject to the condition that the Indian fishermen will not anchor or fish in these waters; and

(ii) allow Indian fishermen to use the entire width of the river for navigation, where one bank of the river falls within India and the other bank falls in Pakistan, subject to the condition that fishing is resorted to only on that stretch of the river which falls within the Indian side.
3. The High Commission would be grateful to be informed of the action taken in the matter.

4. The High Commission of Indian avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, the assurance of its highest consideration.

And Commonwealth Relations,

2829. Aide Memoire presented by High Commission of India in Pakistan to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

AIDE MEMOIRE

At their meeting held in New Delhi from the 9th to 11th September 1958, the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan discussed among others the question of Bholagang Post Office astride the border between Khasi-Janitia District of Assam and Sylhet District of East Pakistan. At this meeting, the Pakistan Government agreed to drop their claim on Bholaganj vide para 2(6) of the decisions of the Conference.

In pursuance of the decisions taken by the Prime Ministers, it is requested that the Government of Pakistan may issue necessary instructions to the authorities concerned in East Pakistan for the return of the Post Office building to the Indian Postal authorities and for the withdrawal of the Pakistani caretaker.

2830.  Aide Memoire presented by the High Commission of India in Pakistan to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Karachi, April 6, 1959.

AIDE MEMOIRE

In the Aide Memoire dated the 30th March, 1959, the Government of Pakistan were requested, in pursuance of the decision taken by the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan at their Conference held in New Delhi in September 1958, to issue instructions to the authorities concerned in East Pakistan for the return of the Bholagang Post Office building to the Indian Postal authorities and for the withdrawal of the Pakistani caretaker.

2. Information has since been received that on the 3rd March, 1959, the Pakistani caretaker of the Bholanganj Post Office building, without authority, sent one boy Sorindra Namsudra, an Indian national of village Chakilabasti, Cherrapunji (India), to Pakistan Camp at Purana Bholaganj with some oranges. They boy on arrival at Purana Bholaganj was arrested by men of the East Pakistan Rifles and sent to Chhatak (Pakistan). The caretaker admitted in his statement that the boy was sent to the Pakistan Camp by him. The Government of Assam has already lodged a protest against this incident with the Government of East Pakistan and has asked for the immediate release of the arrested boy.

As the Pakistani caretaker of Bholaganj Post Office building has become the object of local sensitivity, it would be in the interest of all concerned that he is removed without any further delay. The Government of India therefore repeat their request for the return of the building to the Indian Postal authorities and for the immediate withdrawal of the caretaker.

Karachi, April 6, 1959.

Note: The Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs while replying to the aide memoire on April 13 while stating that the incident was being enquired into, did not feel it justified to remove the Pakistani caretaker and instead requested the Government of India to “ensure the safety of the caretaker’s person and property”.

Karachi, April 13, 1959.

Ministry of Foreign Affairs & Commonwealth Relations
Karachi

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, presents its compliments to the High Commission for India in Pakistan and with reference to their Aide Memoire dated the 30th March, 1959 has the honour to enquire whether the Government of India have since ratified the Prime Minister's Agreement of September, 1958. If not, this Ministry will be grateful if early steps are taken to ratify that agreement so that all the decisions arrived at in the Prime Ministers' Conference may be implemented at an early date.

The Ministry avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the High Commission the assurances of its highest consideration.

2832. Note from High Commission of India in Pakistan to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Karachi, April 25, 1959.

The High Commission of India in Pakistan presents its compliments to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations and has the honour to refer to the note No. I (I) - 3/37/59 dated the 13th April 1959 regarding vacation of the Bholaganj Post Office by the Pakistani caretaker. The High Commission has been instructed to convey to the Ministry the Government of India's surprise that a question should have been raised at this late stage regarding ratification of the Agreement between the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan of September 1958. As the Ministry are well aware, the Agreement was reached at the highest executive level. No question was raised by either side at the time of the discussions leading to the Agreement that ratification would be necessary. Moreover, implementation of the Agreement has already been effected in regard to the one matter in the Agreement concerning which a definite date was set, namely, the exchange on January 15, 1959 of areas held wrongfully according to the Bagge Award in Disputes No.I and II. This was implemented without question by the Indian authorities on the appointed date notwithstanding the fact that India was to hand over to Pakistan about double the area that Pakistan was to hand over to India. The High Commission would point out that, at the time of this mutual handing over of territory, the Pakistan authorities did not think it fit to raise any question of ratification of the Agreement.

So far as concerns other decisions forming part of the Agreement, the Government of India have taken necessary preliminary and procedural measures with a view to early implementation of the Agreement from their side. In particular, the President of India has made a reference to the Supreme Court regarding certain Constitutional issues involved.

The Govt. of India regret to note that the Pakistan Government are, on the other hand, inclined to repudiate the Agreement. Attention in this connection is invited to the High Commission's Note No.F.9 (75)/58-P dated the 23rd March 1959 conveying the deep concern of the Government of India in respect of a statement by an official of the Ministry claiming that Tukergram belongs to Pakistan. It was pointed out in that Note that—

(a) Tukergram fell within the district of Cachar and had been awarded to India under the Radcliffe Award,

(b) Tukergram had continuously been in Indian possession till it was forcefully occupied by Pakistan Armed Forces in August 1958, and

(c) the Prime Ministers of Pakistan and India during their meeting in September 1958 accepted the suggestion made by the Pakistan Prime Minister that withdrawal of Pakistan Forces from Tukergram should go hand in hand with the settling of a line of de facto possession in the Patharia Forest Hills area.

It was further pointed out to the Ministry that unilateral repudiation of the Agreement between the two Prime Ministers in respect of withdrawal of Pakistan Armed forces from Tukergram would undermine confidence in the value of such agreements, and the Government of Pakistan were requested to take early action for the withdrawal of Pakistani Forces from Tukergram.

4. The High Commission have not yet received a reply to their Note No. F. 9(75)/58-P dated the 23rd March 1959 but have noted that official spokesmen of the Pakistan Government continue to make the claim that Tuckrgram belongs to Pakistan.
5. The decision of the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan in September 1958 in respect of Bholaganj was unambiguous and to the effect that the Pakistan Government agreed to drop their claim on Bholaganj. So far as implementation of the Agreement on this matter is concerned, no preliminary action is necessary and all that remains to be done is for the Pakistan Government to withdraw their caretaker from the Bholaganj Post Office.

6. The High Commission have the honour to request that in the light of the above the Government of Pakistan desist from raising issues which are not relevant, and withdraw at an early date their caretaker from the Bholaganj Post Office. The issue in question constitutes a second instance of unwillingness of the Pakistan authorities to implement the Agreement, and the High Commission have been instructed to state that if these situations are not rectified, the Government of India may be compelled to draw its own conclusions as to the present attitude of the Pakistan Government towards the Prime Ministers' Agreement of September 1958.

The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations the assurances of its highest consideration.

2833. Note from Pakistan High Commission in India to Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, April 27, 1959.

Office of the High Commission for Pakistan in India,
New Delhi

No. 11 (8) P/59 the 27th April, 1959.

The High Commission for Pakistan in India presents its compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs and has the honour to invite their attention to the Prime Ministers’ Agreement of September 1958 relating to the exchange of enclaves. The High Commission should be grateful if the Ministry would kindly take early steps to ratify the Prime Ministers’ Agreement and handover the Barubari Union and the enclaves to Pakistan in accordance with the aforesaid Agreement. The favour of an early reply is requested.

The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry the assurances of its highest consideration.

The Ministry of External Affairs,
Government of India,
New Delhi.

2834. Note from Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs to High Commission of India in Pakistan.

Islamabad, July 22, 1959.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Government of Pakistan, presents its compliments to the High Commission for India in Pakistan and with reference; to their Note No.F.10(8)/59-P, dated the 25th April, 1959, has the honour to say that in this Ministry's letter. I No.I(l)-3/57/59, dated the 13th April, 1959, a question was asked whether the Government of India had ratified the Prime Ministers' Agreement of September, 1958, and, if not they were requested to do so in order that all the decisions embodied in the Agreement may be implemented at an early date. The Government of Pakistan regret to note that this simple query has been misunderstood by the Government of India as an indication of an inclination on the part of the Government of Pakistan to repudiate the agreement. This inference is not correct and the Ministry wishes to assure the Government of India that the Government of Pakistan are, and have always been, willing and anxious to implement in toto the decisions of the Indo-Pakistan Agreement, dated the 10th September, 1958, reached during the Prime Ministers’ Conference and are ready to implement them all immediately and simultaneously.

2. The question about the ratification of the Agreement was asked because the press reports quoting official sources in India showed that the authority of the Prime Minister of India to commit his Government in regard of certain important decisions in the Agreement was being questioned. It was also being contended that the Agreement could not be implemented unless it was ratified by the Indian Parliament.
3. The High Commission in their Aide Memoirs, dated the 30th April, 1959, had asked for the implementation only of the item relating to Bholaganj, one of the eleven items listed in the Agreement (copy enclosed for reference). Nothing was said about other and more important decisions relating, for instance, to the exchange of Enclaves and the Berubari Union. The Government of India will appreciate that the negotiated settlement reached during the Prime Ministers Conference, and signed by both the delegations was based on compromise. These decisions were made possible by both sides having agreed to modify their stand on the various issues in a spirit of give and take. All the decisions in the Agreement must, therefore, be considered as interrelated and be implemented in full simultaneously.

4. The High Commission have stated that the Government of India have not been able to complete their “preliminary and procedural measures” necessary for the implementation of some of the important decisions of the Agreement and are not yet in a position to implement them. About a year has already elapsed since the Agreement was signed. The Government of Pakistan would like to know when these “preliminary and procedural measures” will be completed.

5. In view of what has been stated above, it is surprising that the Government of India should choose to blame the Government of Pakistan for being unwilling to implement the Agreement. The Government of Pakistan take exception to this unfounded charge and wish to reiterate that they are willing and ready to implement the Agreement and in its entirety, and request the Government of India to take urgent steps to complete all their necessary “preliminary and procedural measures”, if they have not already done so.

6. As regards the reference made in the High Commission’s Note to the implementation of the decision regarding the exchange of territories in adverse possession in Disputes I & II areas, the Ministry wishes to point out that the entire sector in this area had already been jointly demarcated and there was no dispute about the juridical status of the territory held in adverse possession by either country. In fact as early as in 1957 the two Central Governments and the two Provincial Governments had agreed to exchange the adverse possession on a specified date, namely, May 10, 1957. This exchange however, could not be effected because the D.L.R. & S. of the West Bengal Government was reluctant to do so. (In this connection a copy of letter No.3046-Comrel, dated the 29th May, 1959, from Joint Secretary to the East Pakistan Government to the Secretary to the Government of West Bengal is enclosed for reference). The question of the exchange of adverse possessions in Disputes I & II was again taken up during the Indo-Pakistan Conference on the Border Disputes held in Karachi in August/September, 1958. It will be observed from the Minutes of the Sub-Committee on the Eastern Borders, dated the 31st August, 1958, that "the areas covered by these disputes" i.e., Disputes I & II of the Bagge Award "should be exchanged as early as possible. Pakistan suggested that the date of exchange should be 31st December, 1959, at the latest. India agreed that they would consult their technical officers and will inform Pakistan whether the date will be practicable". During the Prime Ministers’ Meeting the Government of India merely fixed the date as promised at the Karachi Conference.

7. It will, therefore, be observed that in this case no dispute was involved and the Prime Ministers agreed just to fix a date for the exchange of territories in adverse possession which was already agreed to by both the Governments. This decision had no bearing on the other items of the Agreement which are all interrelated in so far as both the Governments had agreed to modify their stand in respect of them in order to arrive at the overall agreement, and it is this Agreement which is required to be implemented in toto simultaneously.

8. The reference to Tukergram in the High Commission’s Note is quite irrelevant in this context. The Government of Pakistan’s position in respect of Tukergram is being conveyed separately.

The Ministry avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the High Commission the assurances of its highest consideration.

Letter from the Deputy High Commissioner of India in East Pakistan to Commonwealth Secretary M. J. Desai.

Dacca, August 21/22, 1959.

Deputy High Commissioner For India In Eastern Pakistan Dacca

No. F. 19 – 1/POL/59

August 21/22, 1959.

My dear Commonwealth Secretary,

I attended the 33rd Conference of the Chief Secretaries of the Eastern Zone on 17th and 18th August in Calcutta. Chief Secretaries of West Bengal & Assam and Chief Commissioner of Tripura represented the Indian States and Chief Secretary Azfar represented East Pakistan. Besides a Deputy Secretary and two officers from the Survey Department, Azfar’s principal Adviser was S.M. Hasan, Member East Pakistan Board of Revenue. Both Azfar and Hasan joined the I.C.S. in 1933, the former in Bihar-Orissa and the latter in Madras. In fact Hasan is senior to Azfar in the gradation list.

2. You must have received by now copies of the minutes and the Joint Press Communiqué. Azfar wanted to go to Banares to see his relations, - I believe his mother is there -, and could not therefore sign the minutes in Calcutta on the 18th evening. He will sign them in Dacca. He also left the drafting of the joint communiqué to S.N.Ray. As you would notice, Chief Secretary, West Bengal, decided to issue an exhaustive communiqué, partly in order, I presume, not to make it short and hence platitudinous.

3. The principal topic of discussion was border problems, both political and economic. S.K. Datta also discussed Patharia Reserve Forest and Tukergram. There was also some discussion on difficulties experienced by travellers, both executive as well as statutory.

4. Azfar gave a great performance, reminding me of Aziz Ahmed during the meeting of the Experts’ Committee on Kashmir in December 1953. You will recollect how Aziz Ahmed talked of non-violence and of following Mahatma Gandhi. Azfar assumed the aspect of sweet reasonableness during more or less the entire proceedings and that also more successfully than Aziz Ahmed, as in most matters he was able to offer conciliatory comments and general promises. Whenever he was faced with cases of Pakistani harassment and violations, he readily agreed to look into them and on numerous occasions suggested that the Indian Chief Secretaries should write to him or telephone him so that he could put things right straightway. For example, on the question of joint enquiries on incidents by District Magistrates, Patnaik pointed out that since he took over administration of Tripura, he had suggested such joint enquiries in ten cases and that the Government of East Pakistan had not replied to any of them. Azfar was nobly condemnatory of his officers and said that all that Patnaik need do in future was to pick up the telephone and talk to Azfar. In fact, on all kinds of issues, Azfar gave liberal promises to everybody to visit places with him or discuss difficulties with him. He accepted the Indian agenda and did not put forward any item from his side. The only matter he raised was the question of the behaviour of the Calcutta press and that too only in sorrow and not in anger. In fact he said it pained him even to refer to it and he realised that the Press in India was free. He even offered to take the relevant paragraph out of the minutes or to tone it down.

5. There is no doubt that Azfar had clear instructions from his superiors in Rawalpindi - he does not feel that he has any superiors in Dacca - for he was piping a different tune from the one played by him when he had talked to Shri Humayun Kabir only a few days earlier. On that occasion, he had castigated India for her specific iniquities and for her general attitude of non-acceptance of Pakistan. But at the conference in Calcutta, he was all respect and cooperation. He said he had great regard for S.N. Ray and for all that was said on the Indian side. Repeatedly, he would scold his Deputy Secretary, sitting next to him, for showing him the Pakistani brief or for pointing out to him the Pakistani side of the argument. He would even tell Hasan to forget the Pakistani case and take into consideration only what S.N. Ray (whom he invariably called “Dada”) had to say. On several occasions, he dramatically offered to tear up his briefs or to give them to me in Dacca.

6. Except on a couple of items, he never shed off this cloak of sweet reasonableness. And yet, beyond promises of rectitude and protestations of friendship, he did not yield on any material issue.

7. The Conference discussed the question of petty violations of the border. The Indian side pointed out that very often Indian nationals crossed the border by a few yards through inadvertence. Again, where the boundary was reverine, boats crossed the midstream either because of the force of wind or because the navigable channel was somewhat beyond the midstream. In such cases, Pakistani authorities apprehended the innocent offenders and sentenced them to imprisonment for violation of passport laws. It was therefore suggested that such people should not be punished but should be sent back to India. Azfar said he agreed but when he was given instances of such people still confined in Pakistani jails, he stated that his hands were tied as far as the Martial law authorities were concerned. Martial law operated in regard to offences of smuggling. When S.N. Ray pointed out that in such cases, the persons concerned should not be considered prima facie to be smugglers but only inadvertent offenders against the passport laws, Azfar was unwilling to pursue the discussion further except to say that his writ did not run in matters connected with Martial law.

8. Azfar was equally evasive regarding the issues of navigation and fishing in the rivers on the frontier. S.N. Ray suggested that in cases where boats had to go from one stretch of an Indian river to another stretch which was also in India and had to transit through, a portion of the river which was in Pakistan, these boats should be allowed the right of transit without any hindrance. Azfar said that as this matter had been taken up by the Indian High Commission with the Central Government of Pakistan, he would like it to be settled at the central level. He even refused to agree to a joint recommendation to the two Central Governments.

9. Then there was the question of the unreasonable restrictions imposed by the Government of Pakistan on travel. As long as Azfar could give promises in these matters, there was no difficulty. On one issue, however, promises would not suffice. S.N. Ray pointed out that recently, Pakistani authorities had cancelled the concession of the meager basic quota of foreign exchange granted to travellers. A traveler from Pakistan could take with him Rs.50 (Indian) and Rs.50 (Pakistani). Now he was not allowed to take the Indian money and if he took the Pakistani money, he was asked to bring it back on his return in its entirety, which meant that the traveller had no money even to purchase his ticket in India, much less to use during his stay there. Azfar said this was done to conserve foreign exchange and applied equally to travellers to all countries, who should approach the State Bank for permission in each case. Ray replied that this was impossible for the tens of thousands of persons who normally visited India, particularly as they came from villages in the interior of East Bengal. Moreover, these restrictions were a clear violation of the Nehru-Liaquat Pact. Azfar was sad but unwilling to give satisfaction.

10. These were, however, minor matters compared to the difficult issues of the Assam border including the question of Patharia and Tukergram. Here, Pakistanis were unbending and Azfar wisely left the exposition of the Pakistani case to Hasan, who showed no compunction in going back on all agreements, culminating in the Nehru-Noon agreement, in relation to demarcation of the boundary.

11. S.K. Datta pointed out that the Indo-Pakistan agreement of December 1948 laid down that demarcation of the border should take place as mutually agreed upon by the Directors of Land Records. In regard to East Bengal and Assam, the D.L.R.s had agreed to demarcate in five-sectors. This agreement was re-affirmed at the Foreign Secretary — Commonwealth Secretary meeting in August-September 58, which you attended and which preceded the meeting of the two Prime Ministers. The Prime Ministers had also approved the decision of the Secretaries. Under these agreements, territory in adverse possession was to be surrendered to the rightful owner after the mechanical work of demarcation had been completed in a sector. Datta said that out of the five agreed sectors on the Assam-East Bengal border, the work of physical demarcation had been completed in two, namely, the Goalpara - Rangpura and the Garo Hills - Mymensingham sectors. The first sector was finished over four years ago and yet Pakistan had continued to occupy the Indian village of Bosoibari despite repeated requests from Assam to vacate it.

12. Azfar was not adequately briefed on this issue. He seemed to think that the agreement to demarcate the Assam-East Bengal border in five sectors was arrived at only by the Directors of Land Records on the two sides and had no higher sanction. He, therefore, stated that this could not be described as an “agreement” as it was not ratified by the Government of East Pakistan. When he was pressed further on this point, he even went so far as to say that the Provincial Government was at liberty to repudiate the agreement of the D.L.Rs. Subsequently, when he was confronted with further agreements including the one signed by you with Baig in September 1958, he said that he was not quite clear on the subject and would refer the matter to his Central Government. Incidentally, Hasan who was the principal spokesman on this issue on the Pakistani side propounded the thesis that exchange of territory should take place only after the entire border between Assam and East Bengal was physically demarcated.

13. It was on the issues of the Patharia Reserve Forest and Tukergram, however, that Azfar completely dropped the veneer of sweetness and light. He said that he would not hear even the mention of the Radcliffe line and asked S.K. Datta not to refer to it. Pakistan was in possession of considerable areas in the Patharia Reserve Forest and she insisted on the implementation of the Nehru-Noon Agreement, as interpreted by her, irrespective of the Radcliffe line. He, therefore, wanted, the Government of Assam to vacate positions in the Patharia Reserve Forest occupied by its forces. For the purpose of determining de facto possession, he wanted to take June 1958 as the crucial date and not September 1958 when the two Prime Ministers met. If Assam agreed to this, Pakistan would consider the question of evacuation of Tukergram. When Datta pointed out that under the 1948 Agreement, subsequently reinforced by other recent agreements, Pakistan had been prohibited from exploiting the Reserve Forest, Azfar stated that he would not take any heed of agreements prior to the Nehru-Noon meeting.
14. Similarly, on another occasion, Azfar stated unabashedly that Pakistan moved into Tukergram when Assam attempted to occupy areas in the Reserve Forest. This was Azfar in his true colours, and even S.N. Ray who did not know much of the Patharia and Tukergram background said subsequently that he felt extremely humiliated to hear the Chief Secretary of East Pakistan talk without compunction of Pakistan’s occupation of Indian territories at her sweet will.

15. There was thus no agreement on the questions of the Patharia Reserve Forest and Tukergram. Eventually, Azfar suggested that the two sides should prepare maps showing their _de facto_ possession in the Patharia Reserve Forest, supported by necessary evidence, so that the matter could be gone into further. The Pakistani line is unambiguous. Azfar is going to produce a map as of June 1958. His contention is that the Prime Ministers have given their blessing to all Pakistani encroachments on the Indian side of the Radcliffe line irrespective of the fact whether these encroachments were in violation of earlier agreements. He wants therefore that Assam should now withdraw from the positions that she is manning now for over a year.

16. There is thus no doubt that the Pakistan delegation was disinclined to be conciliatory in matters of importance. Whatever may be Azfar’s directive from the top, and it is obvious that this directive certainly enjoined him to be co-operative and friendly, he interpreted his instructions to relate only to general, and inconsequential issues except in regard to Dawki where he agreed to evacuate forward positions.

17. At the same time, it would be obvious from the minutes that there were a number of points on which Azfar gave liberal promises, and I think the value of the conference would be judged on the actual performance by the Pakistanis on those promises. For example, there was wide agreement on the question of border disputes. On disputes arising out of attempts at cattle-lifting, kidnapping, etc., it was agreed that the Armed Forces on the two sides should not espouse the claims of their nations and that the disputes should be settled amicably by the civil or police officials concerned. It was further agreed that there should be periodic meetings of these officials besides specific meetings between them to investigate actual incidents. There was also agreement on peaceful solution of disputes relating to cultivation of _Chars_ which were formed in the winter after the floods had receded. The conference finally reiterated the principle that even on serious disputes, _status quo_ should not be disturbed by force.

18. In the past, Chief Secretaries’ Conferences used to confine themselves to financial and administrative issues like pensions, provident funds, trusts, properties, rents, remittances, etc. There was hardly any discussion on these issues at the present conference, as they all await settlement of financial differences between two Central Governments.
19. There was much discussion on travel and petty trade. Azfar gave many promises in regard to removal of harassment to travellers at the Customs check posts, e.g., seizures of jewellery and personal searches by E.P.R. personnel. He also promised to ensure liberal grant of A, B, E and F visas and to examine any cases of hardship brought to his notice. He even agreed to periodic exchange of information regarding the numbers of visas issued by each side. The Communique could thus record full agreement on these matters.

20. It is presently somewhat unrealistic to hope that the East Pakistan authorities will fulfill all these promises. But even if redress is obtained in some matters, there would be considerable improvement in the situation. Azfar has appended his signature to the minutes, and that would assist our State Governments as well as ourselves in this Mission to pursue cases of violation, etc., with greater authority. Moreover, this is not the end of the Chief Secretaries’ Conferences.

21. Now that the institution has been revised, there will be more conferences in future and our Chief Secretaries would no doubt then review Azfar’s promises against his Government’s performances.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

(V.C.Trivedi)

2836. Agreed Decisions and Procedures to end disputes and incidents along the Indo-East Pakistan border areas.

New Delhi, October 23, 1959

The Governments of India and Pakistan reaffirm their determination to implement the Nehru-Noon Agreement in full, the legal and other procedures necessary for implementation being devised as expeditiously as possible. It was agreed that all preliminary work, short of actual work in the field should be undertaken now by both sides so that demarcation to implement the Nehru-Noon Agreement can be carried out expeditiously as soon as the requisite legal procedures are devised. It was also agreed that India, while framing the legislation, if required, to effect transfer of territorial jurisdiction consequent on demarcation, will make a provision in the said legislation which will give government necessary authority to effect such transfers in connection with boundary disputes that may be settled.

2. Detailed Ground Rules for the guidance of the Border Security forces along the Indo-East Pakistan frontier prepared as a result of the deliberations of the Conference—copy attached, Appendix I—will be put into force by both sides immediately. The decisions taken at the Conference of Chief Secretaries in August 1959 for constant contact between the border authorities on both sides with a view to maintaining peaceful conditions, which have been further elaborated at the Conference (Appendix II) should also be implemented by issue of detailed instructions by the Government concerned. It was also agreed that the Chief Secretaries will jointly review the progress of demarcation every quarter.

3. Detailed programmes for demarcation work for the field season should be prepared as usual. Provisions made in the Ground Rules for speeding up demarcation work and for consequential exchange of territorial jurisdiction should be strictly observed. Exchange of all areas already demarcated along the Indo-East Pakistan boundary should take place before 30th June, 1960 subject to the necessary legal and constitutional procedure being worked out.

4. West Bengal-East Pakistan Boundary—Over 1,200 miles of this boundary have already been demarcated. As regards the boundary between West Bengal and East Pakistan in the areas of Mahananda, Burung and Karatoa rivers, it was agreed that demarcation will be made in accordance with the latest cadastral survey maps supported by relevant notifications and record-of-rights.

5. Tripura-East Pakistan Boundary. Exploratory discussions revealed that the problem had not been carefully studied as all the material on each side had not been examined and there was divergence of opinion as to whether the Kar-Creed maps or the revenue survey maps should be taken as the basis of demarcation. It was agreed that copies of the relevant records available with both sides should be supplied to each other and facilities given to see the originals and the experts on both sides should, within a period of two months, be ready with their appreciation of the records and indicate;

(i) the difference in the area involved if either the Kar-Creed or revenue survey maps were adopted as the basis of demarcation;

(ii) their respective positions as to how the boundary should run in the upper and lower reaches of the Feni river with necessary evidence in support of their view.

The two Governments or their representatives will, on receipt of this material, discuss the matter further and decide what should be adopted as the basis of demarcation in these various regions of the Tripura-East Pakistan border.

6. Assam-East Pakistan Boundary. The three pending disputes have been settled along the lines given below in a spirit of accommodation:

(i) The dispute concerning Bagge Award III has been settled by adopting the following rational boundary in the Patharia Forest Reserve region:

From a point marked X (H522558) along the Radcliffe Line BA on the old Patharia Reserve Boundary as shown in the topographical map sheet No. 83D/5, the boundary line shall run in close proximity and parallel to the cart road to its south to a point A (H531554); thence in a southerly direction up the spur and along the ridge to a hill top marked B (H523529); thence in a south-easterly direction along the ridge down the spur across a stream to a hill top marked C (H532523); thence in a southerly direction to a point D (H530517); thence in a south-westerly direction to a flat top E (H523507); thence in a southerly direction to a point F (H524500); thence in a south-eastery direction in a straight line to the midstream point of the Gandhai Nala marked G (H540494); thence in south-westerly direction up the midstream of Gandhai Nala to a point H (H533482); thence in a south-westerly direction up a spur and along the ridge to a point I (H517460); thence in a southerly direction to a point on the ridge marked J (H 518455); thence in a south-westerly direction along the ridge to a point height 364 then continues along the same direction along the same ridge to a point marked K (H500428); thence in a south and south-westerly direction along the same ridge to a point marked L (H496420); thence in a south-easterly direction along the same ridge to a point marked M (H499417); thence in a south-westerly direction along the ridge to a point on the bridle path with a height 587; then up the spur to the hill top marked N (H487393); then in a south-easterly and southerly direction along the ridge to the hill top with height 692; thence in a southerly direction down the spur to a point on Buracherra marked O (H484344); thence in a south-westerly direction up the spur along the ridge to the trigonometrical survey station with height 690; thence in a southerly direction along the ridge to a point height 490 (H473292); thence in a straight line due south to a point on the eastern boundary of the Patharia Reserve Forest marked Y (H473263); along the Radcliffe Line BA.

The line described above has been plotted on two copies of topographical map sheets Nos. 83 D/5, 83 D/6 and 83 D/2.

The technical experts responsible for the ground demarcation will have the authority to make minor adjustments in order to make the boundary alignment agree with the physical features as described.

The losses and gains to either country as a result to these adjustments with respect to the line marked on the map will be balanced by the technical experts.

(ii) The dispute concerning Bagge Award IV in the Kushiyara river region has been settled by adopting the thana boundaries of Beani Bazar and Karimganj as given in Assam Government Notification No. 5133-H dated 28 May, 1940, as the India-East Pakistan boundary in this region, relevant portion of line BA given in the Radcliffe map being varied accordingly.

(iii) Tukergram—The East Pakistan-India boundary in this region given by the Cyril Radcliffe as the boundary between the districts of Sylhet and Cachar is confirmed. India’s territorial jurisdictions in the whole of Tukergram village will be immediately restored.

7. Use of Common Rivers—The need for evolving some procedures for the purpose of mutual consultations in regard to utilisation of water resources of common rivers was recognized by both sides.

The Indian delegation assured that India will raise no objection to the development activities in connection with the Karnafuli dam project in East Pakistan on consideration of submergence of some area in India. It was agreed that immediate steps should be taken for the demarcation of that portion of the boundary where some area might be permanently flooded when the Karnafuli dam in East Pakistan is raised to its full height so that the Governments of Pakistan and India can, in the light of the resulting area flooded, discuss how the claims of the Government of India regarding the loss, if any, caused by the flooding of the Indian territory should be settled.

8. Impartial Tribunals—It was agreed that all outstanding boundary disputes on the East Pakistan-India and West Pakistan-India border raised so far by either country should be referred to an impartial tribunal consisting of three members, for settlement and implementation of that settlement by demarcation on the ground and by exchange of territorial jurisdiction, if any. Any dispute which may have been referred to the tribunal can be withdrawn by mutual agreement.

9. It was also agreed that the decision of the tribunal shall be by majority and final and binding on both the parties.

9. It was agreed that neither country will train its border rivers as to cut into the territory of the other.

10. Press—It was agreed that efforts should be made by both countries to advise their press from time to time to exercise restraint and assist in the maintenance and promotion of friendly relations between India and Pakistan. It was also agreed that false or exaggerated reports in the press which are likely to worsen Indo-Pakistan relations, should be contradicted by the Government concerned.

2837. Joint communique issued at the end of the discussions between Swaran Singh and K.M. Shaikh in New Delhi and Dacca on the question of border settlement and other related matters on the India-East Pakistan border.

New Delhi, October 24, 1959

At their meeting on 1st September, 1959, the President of Pakistan and the Prime Minister of India agreed, in pursuance of their desire to promote good neighbourly relations between their two countries on a rational basis, to an Indo-Pakistan conference at Ministerial level to devise measures to end disputes and incidents on the Indo-East Pakistan border.

This Minister-level Conference, with Sardar Swaran Singh and Lt General K.M. Shaikh leading their respective delegations, started in Delhi on 15th October, 1959, continued its deliberations at Dacca from 18th to 20th and had its concluding session at Delhi on 21st and 22nd October.

The Delegations approached the various questions discussed in a positive and constructive spirit and, while they had full and frank exchange of views, the objectives of arriving at agreed decisions and procedures to end disputes and incidents and establishing and maintaining peaceful conditions on the Indo-East Pakistan border regions throughout guided the deliberations of the Conference.

The fact that there has been no settlement of the respective claims of India and Pakistan in the areas of the Patharia Forest Reserve and the Kushiyara river in accordance with, the Radcliffe Award in spite of these disputes having been referred to an international tribunal which gave awards in 1950 has been one of the principal causes of conflict and tension along these Indo-East Pakistan border areas. The leaders of the two Delegations agreed that these and other disputes between the two countries should be resolved in a spirit of give and take in the larger interest of both countries. With a view to avoiding dislocation in the life of the population of these border areas and promoting friendly relations, the following agreed decisions have been reached in respect of these disputes:

(i) The dispute concerning Bagge Award No. III should be settled by adopting a rational boundary in the Patharia Forest Reserve region.

(ii) The dispute concerning Bagge Award No. IV in the Kushiyara river region should be settled by adopting the thana boundaries of Beani Bazar and Karimganj as per notification No. 5133-H dated the 28th May, 1940 as the India-East Pakistan boundary.
(iii) The status-quo should be restored in Tukergram. It was also agreed that detailed procedures should be worked out to maintain peace on the Indo-East Pakistan border and to bring immediately under control any incident that may occur. Detailed ground rules to be observed by the border security forces of both sides, which among other things, provide that no border outpost will be located within 150 yards of the border, on either side, and other procedures laid down in the ground rules regarding frequent contacts between those in charge of border security forces and other officials of the Governments concerned at various levels, will secure maintenance of peaceful conditions on the Indo-East Pakistan border and ensure that immediate action is taken to re-establish peace should any incident unfortunately occur.

Detailed procedures for expediting progress of demarcation work and for orderly adjustment of territorial jurisdiction, due regard being had to local agricultural practices and the interests of the local border population, have been worked out. It was also agreed that, in their quarterly review, the Governments of East Pakistan, West Bengal, Assam and Tripura will ensure that the target dates for progressing demarcation work are observed.

Both Governments re-affirmed their determination to resolve border disputes by negotiation and agreed that all outstanding boundary disputes on the East Pakistan-India border and the West Pakistan-India border, raised so far by either country, should, if not settled by negotiation, be referred to an impartial tribunal for settlement and implementation of that settlement by demarcation on the ground and by exchange of territorial jurisdiction if any.

Both Governments agreed to appeal to the press to exercise restraint and assist in the maintenance and promotion of friendly relations between India and Pakistan. In furtherance of this objective, both Governments agreed to take early action for a meeting of the Indo-Pakistan Information Consultative Committee which is being revived.

Both Governments are resolved to implement, in full and as expeditiously as possible, the Noon-Nehru Agreement and the present agreement on Indo-East Pakistan border settlements and to that end to devise expeditiously the legal and constitutional procedures necessary for implementation. Both Governments agreed to maintain contact with each other continuously on the progress of implementation of these agreements and to carry out periodical reviews of the working of the procedures adopted to maintain peaceful and friendly relations in the border regions.

APPENDIX—I

GROUND RULES formulated by
The Military Sub-Committee of The Indian and Pakistan Delegations
As instructed by the leaders of the two delegations the Military sub-committee met on the 17th October, 1959. In pursuance of the directive, this joint paper was written by Major General Umrao Khan, S. Pk., G.O.C., 14th Division, East Pakistan, and Lt. General S.P.P. Thorat, DSO G-0-C.-in-Chief, Eastern Command, India. From the Pakistan side Mr. S.M. Koreishi, P.F.S., Under Secretary, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and from the Indian side Brigadier Ghasi Ram, Commander 181 Inf. Bde. also attended the meeting.

For the sake of clarity the paper is divided into two parts—Part I deals with the basic requirements which will have direct bearing on the implementation of the “Ground Rules” which are outlined in Part II. We earnestly feel that unless the basic requirements are fulfilled, the implementation of the Ground Rules will not be as effective as we would like them to be.

The Ground Rules formulated in this paper deal with the Indo-East Pakistan border.

PART—I

2. During the general discussions between the two delegations held from the 15th to 19th October, 1959, it was agreed:

(a) That legal provision must be made for effecting the exchange of territories after demarcation has taken place, wherever it becomes necessary.

(b) That the boundary should be demarcated as early as administratively possible. The progress of demarcation should be reviewed every quarter by the Governments of Pakistan and India with reference to the field programmes settled by the D.L.Rs and necessary action taken to resolve difficulties, if any, and to expedite progress of demarcation work. In case of a dispute, the disputed portion may be left out, the dispute being reported cartographically and in writing to the Chief Secretaries of the Governments concerned who would resolve the dispute or refer to the Central Government concerned and the demarcation should proceed from where the disputed area ends.

To implement this it was agreed that the transfer of territorial jurisdiction should take place on an agreed date which shall not be later than the 31st of December of the year in which demarcation has been completed by the 31st of May. The State Government shall make every attempt to speedily transfer the territorial jurisdiction of these areas in respect of which the following processes have been completed:

(i) The mechanical part of the process of demarcation would be deemed to be completed when the final traverse has been done after construction of pillars and the position of the pillars has been jointly checked and approved by the D.L.Rs concerned;
(ii) Necessary time should be allowed to the farmers to harvest their crops before the transfer of territorial jurisdiction; and

(iii) Before the transfer of territorial jurisdiction, the authorities on the two sides should collect data on the populated and farm areas and on properties held by individuals. This will enable the Governments concerned to exchange these data and ensure that special responsibility is placed on the local commanders and/or police and other officials to provide full protection to the person and property of the people so that their interests are not prejudiced by the transfer of jurisdiction on the agreed date.

PART— II

3. On the Indo-East Pakistan border the security forces of both the countries are located in close proximity of each other. Owing to a variety of reasons there have been occasional firings across the border. The causes which usually lead to firing are:

(a) Often, border security forces on both sides do not know where the International Boundary lies on the ground. Therefore, when nationals of the other country cross into what they think is their territory, fire is opened to prevent the ingress.

(b) Where the boundary in the riverine area is criss-cross and portions of land on the home side of the river are owned by the other country, fire is opened when these lands are cultivated or attempts are made to dispossess their rightful owners.

(c) When a char land is formed after the floods, whether in the bed of the river or as an accretion of the mainland, attempt is made by nationals of both countries to seize the newly formed char lands. This leads to claims and counter-claims as to which side owns the char lands. Firing is resorted to support claims of the respective sides.

(d) When the river falls on the international boundary, fishing and navigational disputes occur and fire is opened to stop cattle lifting or other raids by local inhabitants on either side.

(e) Occasionally fire is opened because of suspected movement in the vicinity of border security posts—this happens usually at night.

(f) Sometimes a build-up of border security forces leads to a race between the two countries and tempers are frayed. A “trigger happy” person lets off a round and this develops into a shooting match.
4. The problem is how to prevent such firings. Most of the causes for the firing can be eliminated or at least considerably lessened if the security forces on either side ‘keep out’ of each others way. (This does not apply in the case of commanders as stated in para 6 to 8 below).

5. We think that the possibility of fire being opened will be considerably reduced if border security forces on both sides observe the following simple rules:

(a) Where the international boundary is not properly demarcated by pillars, a “working boundary” which can be easily identified on the ground should be decided between the commanders of the border security forces of both sides. The working boundary will be decided upon as under:

(b) The working military boundary may or may not coincide with the International boundary and its acceptance by both sides will not commit the two Governments in any manner in respect of their de jure claims. The working military boundary should, if necessary, be marked in some simple manner and the demarcations should be shown jointly and recorded on one inch maps.

(c) After an identifiable boundary line whether real or working has been demarcated, neither side will have any permanent or temporary border security forces or any other armed personnel within 150 yards on either side of this line. Also no permanent posts will be constructed till the final demarcation has been done.

(d) This will not prevent either side from patrolling up to the ‘real’ or ‘working’ boundary provided:

(i) Where possible adequate warning is given to the other side;
(ii) Patrols are small in numbers, i.e. not exceeding a section (1 and 10); Patrols will invariably move with flags.
(iii) Nothing but non-automatic small arms are carried by the patrol.

(e) If defensive works of any nature including trenches exist in the stretch of 300 yards (150 yards on each side of the working boundary) they must be destroyed or filled up.
(f) It will be the duty of the border security forces on either side to prevent armed civilian entering the 300 yards stretch of the border (150 yards on either side of the working boundary).

(g) Border security forces of both sides are charged with the responsibility of preventing smuggling in their respective areas. Therefore it is incumbent upon them to arrest smugglers of any nationality, whether armed or unarmed, and to deal with them under the law of the land.

(h) Wherever the boundary “real” or “working” runs through mid-stream of a river, the facilities to use the main channel will be provided by both sides. The following procedure will be adopted to regulate traffic and ensure that the nationals of both the countries are not harassed:

(i) Joint check-posts will be established on the bank if possible or in the main channel where it leaves or enters the mid-stream boundary.

(ii) A check will be made and manifests of commodities will be prepared at the Joint Check-post. Manifests signed by Joint Check-posts will be accepted as the permit to use the main channel for navigation purpose only.

(iii) The boats using the main channel in the other country will not be allowed to touch the bank or exchange goods or engage in any other transaction with the nationals of other side.

(i) Border forces on both sides shall on no account participate in any quarrels between nationals of the two countries living on the border. If nationals of one country ingress the working boundary and enter illegally and commit or attempt to commit an offense, the border security forces would be at liberty to take appropriate action in the exercise of the “right of private defence” preferably without resorting to fire. In case fire has been opened the local commander will intimate his action to opposite commander and to his own higher authorities.

(j) In case of inadvertant crossings, after satisfying themselves that the crossing was done inadvertently, the border security forces shall immediately return the persons concerned to the opposite commanders at the officers’ level. Similarly, the cattle straying across the border will be handed over to the authorities on the border side.

(k) Certain bona fide governmental bodies, e.g. survey parties, forest guards etc. will be operating in the near vicinity of the international borders. Border security forces shall not interfere with their working—in fact they are expected to help. The existence of such parties will be notified to both sides, by the department concerned.
6. For the practical implementation of the above, the border on both sides shall be divided into Sectors/Sub-sectors. The existence of the Headquarters of these sub-sectors will be intimated to each other and attempt should be made to link the Headquarters of both sides with telephone.

7. The sub-sector commanders should be of the rank of Capt / Major or of equivalent ranks in the police.

8. The duties of the Sector / Sub-sector / Post Commanders in their respective areas of responsibility shall be as under:

(a) They will maintain close liaison with their opposite numbers;

(b) They will pay frequent visits, make themselves known both to the border security forces of the opposite side and to own local populations.

(c) They shall receive all complaints regarding territorial disputes referring to title to any land, immovable property lying on the other side of the border, char lands, navigation facilities and difficulty of harvesting. They will immediately hold a joint enquiry not later than 24 hours of the information report.

(d) They will immediately enforce a status-quo e.g. if a national of one country lays a fresh claim to land and takes any step in furtherance of that claim which is objected to by the other side, then the two commanders will hold a joint enquiry on the spot and restrain the person from enforcing his claim until the matter is settled at the appropriate level;

(e) The two commanders shall be responsible for referring disputes to the appropriate authorities and for seeing that they are progressed with a view to bringing the disputes to a final settlement;

(f) Similarly the military commanders on both sides will keep close in touch with the progress of survey parties working in their areas. Where in their opinion the progress is not according to the programme or work is stopped on account of difference of opinion or for any other reason, immediate reports by quickest means will be submitted to the G.O.C.-in-C. / G.O.C. concerned who will report the matter to their respective Governments with a copy to the Chief Secretary concerned.

9. We suggest that the tension on the borders will be greatly minimized if there is close personal touch between commanders of the two border security forces particularly military commanders on either side. We recommend that they should meet periodically to discuss matters of mutual interest. Sector Commanders or their senior representatives will normally meet each other at the time of routine DMs/DGs' meetings. The brigade commanders shall also meet as and when the situation demands and whenever they consider it necessary.
In any case when it is apprehended that trouble is likely to occur they must meet. We further recommend that in case the situation is likely to become serious, the G.O.C. 14th Div, East Pakistan and G.O.C.-in-C., Eastern Command or their representatives of sufficiently high rank should meet to discuss the situation and evolve means of eliminating the tension.

10. We attach great importance to such contacts for we feel that they will contribute substantially towards the good relations between the two forces, and help in removing misunderstanding about moves by both sides.

11. If in spite of this, unfortunately firing does start, the other side shall refrain from replying. The local commanders will get in touch with each other by telephone and will meet with a view to implementing the cease-fire forthwith. After every firing incident, it is necessary for both sides to carry out an investigation, fix the responsibility and submit the report for information of their higher authorities.

12. Communications: In order to maintain close liaison between the border forces of the two countries, it is essential that adequate telephone and other communications are provided at various levels.

13. Telephone: G.O.C.-in-C., Eastern Command and G.O.C. 14th Div. East Pakistan, should be able to talk to each other directly without any formality. Similarly, D.G., E.P.R. and Comdr. 181 Inf. Bde, I.G.P., West Bengal and I.G.P., Tripura, should be able to talk to each other whenever necessary. Telephones between the two opposing Coy/Wing Headquarters and between important border posts of either side should also be installed, which will be done as early as possible, in any case, not later than January 1960.

14. Communication by Flags: In the absence of telephone conversation/contact whenever any comdr. on either side wishes to meet his counterpart, he will wave a flag, of the specifications given below and will proceed to the border unarmed without any escort to a prearranged place. The opposite Comdr. or the Senior Officer present on seeing the flag hoisted, will acknowledge the signal and proceed to the place of meeting, also unarmed and without escort. The use of flags shall be introduced by 15 November, 1959.

15. All pickets and patrols on both sides will have flags of the following description:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Pickets</th>
<th>Patros</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Pole</td>
<td>Cloth</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Size</td>
<td>7 ft. 3 ft.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Colours:</td>
<td>Indian: Orange</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Colours: Indian: Orange.
Pakistan: Blue.
16. At night flags will be substituted by light signals (two red vary lights) or signal by torches as arranged between the two commanders.

17. In the past, tension has mounted on false rumours and exaggerated reports to such a pitch that the movement of extra forces and reinforcements to the affected areas was undertaken. Repetition of such moves in future is inadvisable from all points of view. To prevent such contingencies in the future, it is necessary that whenever there are reports of concentration and build up of forces on either side, Military Commanders of all levels, including the G.O.C.-in-C. Eastern Command and G.O.C. 14 Div., East Pakistan should meet and ascertain the authenticity of the reports if necessary even by a visit to the affected area. Similarly joint inspection will also be applicable to any fresh digging which is likely to create unnecessary misunderstandings.

18. Whenever there is a joint enquiry by D. Ms or Commissioners on the two sides, the respective overall commanders of security forces shall also attend the meeting and submit for the information of the higher respective military commanders their assessment of the situation created by the particular incident.

19. Finally, we think that much harm is caused by alarming reports which are occasionally published in the press. We recommend that the press on both sides be persuaded to exercise restraint and not to publish material which is likely to inflame the feelings of the population on both sides. Should incorrect reports be published we recommend that contradiction on a governmental level be issued at the earliest opportunity.

APPENDIX—II

MONTHLY MEETINGS

It was agreed that with regard to the meetings of D.M.s./S.Ps. with their opposite numbers in the two countries the following additional provision should be made:

(a) Monthly meetings should be held in the second week of every month;

(b) Invitations for the meetings should issue alternatively from each side, beginning with India;

(c) In case a date in the second week cannot be fixed due to unavoidable reasons it must be fixed within the following week on a mutually agreed date;

(d) When a border incident occurs and it becomes necessary for the two D.M.s/SPs. to meet, either of them can ask his counterpart to meet him at a particular place. Immediately on receipt of the request for a meeting the invited D.M. should proceed to the appointed place within 24 hours. If he cannot present himself personally due to unavoidable circumstance, he may send his S.D.O./S.P. or the local Magistrate/ A.S.P. as may be appropriate under the circumstances;

(e) If for any reason a move cannot be made within 24 hours the matter should be reported by both sides to their Chief Secretaries. The Governments of West Bengal, Assam, Tripura and East Pakistan should issue instructions to their officers that these instructions should be scrupulously followed;

(f) It was agreed that so far as Tripura and the bordering Pakistan districts are concerned, the monthly meeting should be held between the S.P., Tripura, and the D.I.G. of Chittagong Range.

DAWKI

As regards Dawki, Sonatilla/ Latangtilla the decision taken at the Chief Secretaries’ Conference was reviewed. It was decided that this should be dealt with under the Ground Rules which provide for withdrawal of BOPs from within 150 yards of the “real” or “working” boundary.

Shri V.C. Trivedi, Deputy High Commissioner for India in Dacca and Mr. Ahmed Ali, Deputy High Commissioner for Pakistan in Calcutta, were also present.
1. A review of the progress made in the implementation of the Indo-Pak agreement of October, 1959, particularly with regard to demarcation of boundaries between the two countries, was taken up first.

II. East Pakistan - West Bengal Boundary

2. Member, Board of Revenue, East Pakistan stated that the proceedings of the joint conference of the Directors of Land Records & Surveys showed that West Bengal had raised a new dispute. He referred to the fact that although nearly half the length of the boundary along Hanker Khal was demarcated without difficulty in 1952, the remaining half was held up because West Bengal desired that the principle of the mean of two claims agreed upon in the case of Ichamati river in the Noon-Nehru Agreement should also be adopted in the case of Hanker Khal boundary. He pointed out that the case of West Bengal was that the boundary should be demarcated according to latest Cadastral Survey. East Pakistan accepted this principle in as much as the Revenue Survey description tallied with the Cadastral Survey boundary. He pressed for the boundary demarcation being completed on the same basis on which the first half of this Khal was demarcated in 1952 and said that the principle of mean of the two claims was not applicable to Hanker Khal. Chief Secretary, West Bengal stated that the D.L.R., West Bengal had not as yet referred the dispute to the Government of West Bengal and that he could not make any suggestion without getting the full facts of the dispute and the relevant maps.

3. The D.L.R. & S., West Bengal raised the question of demarcation of boundary along Baikery Khal in Khulna – 24 Parganas sector and said that demarcation strictly in accordance with Noon-Nehru Agreement would result in some homesteads, gardens and tanks adjoining home-steads being cut across. He desired that the two Directors of Survey should be authorised to shift the boundary in such a way as to avoid this. Chief Secretary, East Pakistan was inclined to agree if readjustment was done in such a manner that on the whole it did not result in loss of country to either side. Chief Secretary, West Bengal suggested that this matter should be reviewed by the two Governments and that he will send up his proposal to East Pakistan after the dispute was referred to him by his D.L.R. along with relevant maps.

4. The Conference noted with satisfaction that the survey experts of the two provinces had a firm programme for completing demarcation of the boundary along the three rivers of the Mahananda, the Karatoa and the Buruang during this working season and hope that the demarcation would be satisfactorily completed.

5. During discussion it was brought out that in some sectors particularly along East Pakistan-West Bengal boundary, there were a number of places where the boundary did not consist of straight segments but was either curved or had far too many bends at short distances. In these regions for reasons of economy boundary pillars had not been erected at every bend. Instead they were planted at reasonable intervals. This caused confusion to border security forces and resulted in mistaken arrests of persons who were within their own territory under the misconception that they had crossed the border. It was considered desirable that small subsidiary pillars should be put in between the two adjacent main pillars so as to remove any doubt as to the correct position of the boundary. It was accordingly resolved that along with the demarcation and erection of main pillars subsidiary 'T' shaped pillars embedded in masonry base should be planted on minor bends. Similarly where the boundary was a curved line it should be demarcated by small pillars at short intervals. The extra cost involved in this pillar construction shall be shared by the two Governments on a fifty- fifty basis. Where the boundary has already been demarcated, minor pillars should be erected as early as possible according to programme.

III. East - Pakistan – Tripura State

6. Chief Secretary, East Pakistan, stated that the original Kar-Creed maps which were at Shillong should as agreed to in 1953 between Assam and East Pakistan be handed over in original to East Pakistan. Chief Commissioner, Tripura, stated that this was the copy which belonged to the Tripura State. Without conceding this claim of Tripura State, it was agreed by East Pakistan that D.L.R., East Pakistan, will arrange to send his men to Calcutta next week to take copies.

Feni Dispute

7. The Chief Commissioner, Tripura State then took up the question of the boundary demarcation of the Feni river. Chief Secretary, East Pakistan, accepted the proposal that East Pakistan officers should go to Agartala between 23rd and 30th April, 1960 to examine the papers regarding the Feni river and have a preliminary discussion.

Old Pillars

8. Mr. Patnaik stated that it had been brought to his notice that old pillars were being uprooted soon after the erection of new boundary pillars but before the completion of the subsequent stages of demarcation. He added that he felt unhappy about this. The D.L.R. & S. West Bengal stated that the newly erected pillars did not have any legal validity before the strip maps were signed by the survey experts of the two countries and that till then the old pillars continued to indicate the international boundary and should not therefore be interfered with. The Chief Secretary of East Pakistan stated that the existence of two sets of boundary pillars side by side, one of which was old and the other of which was new, was bound to cause confusion and that as was done in the case of Assam-East Pakistan border, it was desirable to obliterate the old pillars so that the border security forces may not make any mistakes. In deference to the wishes of Tripura State it was resolved that as soon as the new boundary pillars had been erected the old pillars should be marked with a cross in black paint and should be covered up with earth and allowed to remain there until the strip maps had been jointly signed, after which, the old pillars could be removed.

Railway Line Dispute

9. Mr. Patnaik pointed out that transfer of area covered by this dispute was governed by the recent ruling of the Supreme Court of India and they had to wait for appropriate parliamentary action before the question of transfer could be taken up. Member, Board of Revenue, East Pakistan, stated that before that stage came the question to be decided was as to how much area should be transferred and that the E. B. Railway authorities were of opinion that all the land that had been acquired under the Land Acquisition Act for the Railway Company was so acquired because it was actually needed for the maintenance of the railway line and that none of the area was acquired in excess of the actual requirements. He said that all such area plus the area which was to be the west of the Railway line should be transferred.

Mohuri River Dispute

10. Mr. Patnaik stated that there was some dispute in connection with the Mohuri river. The survey experts of East Pakistan were not even aware of the nature of the dispute. It was decided that the matter should be referred in writing by Tripura to East Pakistan.

Demarcation of the Assam – East Pakistan Border

11. The progress of demarcation on the Assam-East Pakistan border on all sectors was discussed. It was decided that where demarcation had been held up due to difference of opinion arising between the two D.L.Rs. those instances would be discussed at a meeting between the Chief Secretary, East Pakistan and Chief Secretary, Assam, at Shillong on the 9th April, 1960.

12. Instructions will be issued by the Governments concerned to the Customs authorities to –

(a) avoid indiscriminate body search,

(b) arrange for complete privacy while searching women travellers by women officials, and

(c) ensure that every check post should display prominently the Customs and Currency Regulations.

13. Instructions should also be issued by all Governments to their officers that lenient view should be taken of minor violations in respect of currency regulations, baggage rules and violation of passport and visa regulations. Whenever the Customs authorities are satisfied that minor breaches were caused under circumstances beyond the control of the travellers, such minor violations may be condoned.

14. Instructions should be issued by Governments on the following lines:

(a) At the joint meeting of District Officers, the S.P. and the E.P.R, Sector Commanders will meet their counterparts;

(b) Joint meetings between the E.P.R. officers and border Commanders of adjoining Indian districts shall be held as provided in the Ground Rules;

(c) Border incidents and violations of the border, crime situation and all other outstanding matters, including matters of importance concerning the border, should be discussed in the monthly meetings of the District Officers which should ordinarily be held in the second week of every month;

(d) Border crime, action against local bad characters and release of persons who deliberately violate the border are matters with which the police are concerned. These should also be discussed in the monthly meetings of District Officers. Superintendents of Police should attend these meetings and no separate meetings for this purpose need be held between the Superintendents of Police;

(e) Border incidents as well as the safeguarding of territorial integrity, ad hoc decisions regarding territorial disputes subject to subsequent settlement of appropriate Government authorities, maintenance of peace between nationals of the two countries at the border, prevention of conflict between the armed forces of the two sides, prevention of smuggling and illegal trespass may be discussed in the joint meetings between E.P.R. Officers and the border Commanders of adjoining Indian districts;

(f) The question of release of persons who might have crossed the border inadvertently and of cattle straying across the border may also be discussed in the meeting of the E.P.R. Commander and his opposite number. All cases which have not been disposed of as provided in the Ground Rules may be discussed and settled at monthly meetings between the District Officers;

(g) At the monthly meetings of the District Magistrate, information about detention, arrest, prosecution, conviction of persons belonging to the districts concerned will be exchanged by the District Magistrates in whose area the detention, prosecution, etc. have taken place;

(h) Joint meetings shall be arranged wherever one District Officer of either country has to meet more than one District Officer on the other side. Joint meetings should be arranged between D.M. Tripura, D.C. Sylhet, D.M. Comilla and D.M., Noakhali, and another meeting may be arranged between D.M., Tripura, D.C. Chittagong Hill Tract and D.C. Chittagong. D.C. Chittagong Hill Tracts and D.C Lushai Hills will, however, meet once a quarter. There is no need for D.I.G., Chittagong Range to meet S.P. Tripura.

GROUND RULES

24. In order to remove the present suspension of boundary demarcation work due to interference of border staff with the survey teams, it was agreed that instructions should be issued to border staff that facilities and protection should be provided to survey staff of both sides so as to expedite demarcation work. The Chief Commissioner, Tripura State, mentioned that there were instances where the Indian Survey staff had been man-handled by East Pakistan policemen. The Chief Secretary, East Pakistan said that only one such instance had been brought to his notice and that in that case the person responsible had been promptly suspended and departmental proceedings were drawn up against him.

25. On the whole, the ground rules were working satisfactorily. Reference was made by Assam representatives to a case in which 59 heads of Indian cattle had been seized by E.P.R. D.G., E.P.R. stated that he will look into this case and deal with it expeditiously. It was agreed that requests for meetings should be complied with expeditiously.

26. In order to establish quicker contact between the border officers on both sides it was considered desirable that the provisions under the ground rules for establishing telephone contacts in the border areas should be quickly implemented.
27. The Chief commissioner, Tripura, raised the question of demarcation of working boundaries and he mentioned that in all sectors except the Feni sector, the working boundary had been more or less settled. The Sector commanders in the Feni area had not been deputed by D.G., E.P.R. The working boundaries in other sectors had not been ratified by the I.G.P. of Tripura, and D.G., E.P.R., as the D.G., E.P.R., was not available.

28. D.G., E.P.R., raised the question of level of the officers who should meet him in Tripura. He pointed out that though the Chief Secretary was the I.G., the S.P., Tripura was discussing matters with him. He wanted that the meetings should be held between him and the I.G.P., and not the S.P., Tripura.

It was agreed that the meetings in future with D.G., E.P.R., will be held by the Chief Secretary, Tripura, who will, of course, be assisted by the S.P., Tripura. It was also agreed that the working boundaries wherever settled among Sector Commanders would soon be ratified by the D.G., E.P.R. and I.G.P., Tripura. D.G., E.P.R. also agreed to depute his Sector Commander to the Fein sector to settle a working boundary there.

29. The question of in transit goods was raised by the Chief Commissioner. He pointed out that the matter was pending for quite some time, causing some hardship to traders in Tripura. Chief Secretary, East Pakistan repeated his earlier suggestion that the Chief Commissioner may visit Dacca when a meeting would be held wherein the representatives of the Railway would also be present. The points raised by Tripura would be considered at that meeting. It was tentatively decided that the Chief Commissioner would visit Dacca again in the first week of May, 1960.

30. The Chief Secretary, East Pakistan raised the question of difficulties being faced by the Ziratia tenants in going to Tripura and in cultivating their lands. The Chief Commissioner, Tripura said that if he is given a note on those difficulties he will look into them. East Pakistan agreed to do so.

31. The Chief Secretary, Assam, also raised the question of a footpath between Bagmara and Maheshkhola in Garo Hills on the Mymensingh border which went through a small strip of Pak territory and was used by Indian nationals. Recently there had been instances of persons being arrested for using the footpath. He stated that a new road was being built through Indian territory and the footpath was being realigned. In the meantime he requested that status quo might be maintained and Indian nationals allowed to use the footpath as before until alternative arrangements were made. He understood that similar arrangement existed in Tripura State where Pakistanis used a road through Indian territory. Chief Secretary, East Pakistan, stated that he had no objection but let this matter be decided between the border Commanders of both sides who could make the necessary working arrangements in this behalf.

2839. Statement of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru in the Lok Sabha on Berubari.

New Delhi, December 5, 1960.

Mr. Speaker, two or three days ago when the House was meeting last, the question of Berubari came up, and I promised to make a statement in regard to the various matters which had been referred to. The way this question came up here and the way it has been brought up by the West Bengal Government and the West Bengal Assembly has been in regard primarily to certain legal approaches and legal issues. I shall endeavour to deal with those matters. I fear I may have to seek your indulgence and the indulgence of the House for some time in order to do so.

When a State Government and a State Assembly express their opinion challenging the legality of some step that we have taken, it is only right that we should give full thought to it and give a considered reply. Therefore, I have to deal with this matter at some slight length.

The issue of Berubari, apart from the pure merits, has various questions of legality involved—how far we have acted in pursuance of the Supreme Court’s advice, and further, how far the reference made by the President in this matter to West Bengal was the correct method or not. The West Bengal Assembly and the Government have challenged that reference and I shall come to that later.
As regards the pure legality of it, the West Bengal Legislative Assembly has passed a resolution moved by the Chief Minister of the State expressing the opinion that the Acquired Territories Merger Bill 1960, which was referred by the President to the State Legislature under the proviso to Article 3 of the Constitution for expressing its opinion thereon is invalid and unconstitutional. The resolution sets out the grounds on which the State Legislative Assembly has formed its opinion. I shall deal with those grounds.

May I add that as I thought that many Hon. Members might like to refresh their memory about the Supreme Court’s advice on this matter, I have had it printed and sent this morning enough copies for supply to all the Members so that, when the House would be considering it right here, it is available to all the Members (Some Hon. Members : We have not got it). I know that, The House had begun sitting when it arrived. But it is available to all the Members.

In order to examine the points raised by the West Bengal State Legislative Assembly regarding the validity and the constitutionality of the aforesaid Bill, it would be helpful to recapitulate, at the outset, the events leading to the proposed legislation. With a view to remove causes of tension and establish peaceful conditions along the Indo-Pakistan border areas, the Prime Ministers of Pakistan and India discussed various Indo-Pakistan border problems in September, 1958, as a result of which an agreement was arrived at between India and Pakistan on the 10th September, 1958 relating to 10 items. Certain other outstanding disputes and doubts were also settled later by two other agreements, one dated 23rd October, 1959 and the other dated 11th January, 1960. The agreements dated the 10th September, 1958 and the 23rd October, 1959 dealt with border problems with both East Pakistan and West Pakistan while the agreement dated the 11th January, 1960 related to border problems with West Pakistan only. All the settlements made under the three agreements involve transfer by India of certain areas in India to Pakistan and the acquisition by India of certain territories in Pakistan as well as certain minor border adjustments.

West Bengal is concerned with the first two agreements only. The items in the first agreement respecting West Bengal are:

1. equal division of Berubari Union No. 12 between India and Pakistan;
2. exchange of all Cooch-Behar enclaves in Pakistan and Pakistan enclaves in India;
3. adjustment of boundaries between Khulna in 24 Parganas and Jessore.

The items in the second agreement affecting West Bengal relate to the demarcation of the boundary between West Bengal and East Pakistan in the areas of Mahananda, Bruhum and Karkatua rivers.

A doubt having arisen regarding the method of implementation of the agreement relating to Berubari Union and the exchange of Cooch-Behar enclaves, the advice of the Supreme Court under Article 143 of the Constitution was sought on the question, inter alia whether if any legislative action was necessary for the implementation of the agreement relating to these items, a law of Parliament relatable to Article 3 of the Constitution was sufficient for the purpose or whether an amendment of the Constitution was necessary in accordance with Article 368 of the Constitution.

It may be mentioned that when the reference was heard by the Supreme Court, the State of West Bengal was given an opportunity to place its views on the reference, and the Advocate-General of that State appeared at the hearing for the State of West Bengal. Several political parties also intervened in the matter and were represented by Shri N.C. Chatterjee, Senior Advocate. The opinion of the Supreme Court was reported in the Supreme Court Journal 1960. For the purposes of this the following views, as expressed by the Supreme Court are relevant:

1. There can be no doubt that under international law, the essential attributes of sovereignty are the power to acquire foreign territory as well as power to cede national territory in favour of a foreign State;

2. Acquisition of a foreign territory by India in exercise of its inherent right as a sovereign State automatically makes the said territories part of the territory of India. After such territory is thus acquired and factually made part of the territory of India, the process of law may assimilate it either under Article 2 or under Article 3 (a) or (b);

3. As an illustration of the procedure which can be adopted by Parliament in making a law for absorbing newly acquired territory, reference may be made to the Chandernagore Merger Act, 1954;

4. Article 3 deals with the internal adjustment inter se of the territories of the constituent States of India. The power to cede national territory cannot be read in Article 3 (a) by implication;

5. Agreement in respect of Berubari Union involves the cession of the territory of India. A fortiori the agreement in respect of the exchange of Cooch-Behar enclaves also involves the cession of Indian territory;

6. Accordingly, acting under Article 368, Parliament might make law to give effect to and implement the agreement covering the cession of part of Berubari Union No. 12 as well as some of the Cooch-Behar enclaves which by exchange are given to Pakistan. Its implementation would naturally involve the alteration of the content of and the consequent amendment of Article 1 and of the relevant part of the First Schedule to the Constitution.

(7) Parliament may, however, if it so chooses, pass a law amending Article 3 of the Constitution so as to cover cases of cession of the territory of India in favour of a foreign State. If such a law is passed, then, Parliament may be competent to make a law under the amended Article 3 to implement the agreement in question. On the other hand, if the necessary law—is passed under article 368 itself, that alone would be sufficient to implement the agreement.

I have given you a summary of the various points referred to in the Supreme Court’s opinion. It will be observed that according to the opinion of the Supreme Court, India has the power to acquire foreign territory as well as power to cede part of its territory, within the framework of the present Constitution. The cession of territory has to be implemented by an amendment of Article 1 of the Constitution and the First Schedule under Article 368, while the territory acquired automatically becomes part of the territory of India and can be assimilated by law under Article 2 or 3 (a) or (b).

The Supreme Court also suggested that Article 3 might be so amended as to cover cases of cession of the territory of India and after such amendment the cession of territory could be implemented by ordinary law passed by a simple majority in Parliament.

Government was not in favour of this suggestion of amending Article 3, as suggested by the Supreme Court, because this would make it easy in future to enable cession of territories. We wanted this to be difficult and that it should not be done by a bare majority of Parliament because if that amendment suggested by the Supreme Court is adopted, then, the Parliament, by a bare majority, could cede territory. We thought that the cession of territory should be made a difficult operation and not easy. The only course open then was to give effect to a cession of territory by an amendment of Article 1 of the Constitution and the First Schedule in accordance with Article 368 and to assimilate the acquired territory by an order relating to Article 3, as pointed out by the Supreme Court. This procedure necessarily involves two Bills, one for amendment of Article 1 of the Constitution and the First Schedule and the other appropriating the added areas of the States, namely Pakistan Enclaves, under Article 3. The Supreme Court itself has indicated the necessity of two Bills, one necessitating the amendment of Article 1 and the First Schedule and the other involving an ordinary Bill only. The two Bills cannot be rolled up into one as the procedure for the two and the conditions for passing are different.
I am saying this because the West Bengal Government has laid stress that there ought to have been one Bill and not two. According to the advice given to me and my own views, this could not have been done and if we had tried to do that, it would not have been in conformity with the Supreme Court’s advice in the matter. The Attorney General of India was also consulted in the matter and he too advised that two separate Bills should be prepared.

The Bill relating to article 3, the Acquired Territories Merger Bill, 1960, was required to be referred to the State Legislatures concerned under the proviso to article 3. The order of reference was accordingly made by the President and was transmitted to the Chief Secretary to the Government of West Bengal with a covering letter in which he was requested to bring the matter to the notice of the Chief Minister and make arrangements for the reference to be considered by the State Legislature. 400 copies of the Bill were sent to the State Government for circulation among the Members of the State Legislature. 400 copies of the other Bill—Constitution Amendment Bill—were also sent to the State Government. Both the Bills were examined by the State Government and they submitted certain comments.

As regards the Acquired Territories Merger Bill, 1960, they stated that no comment is called for except that there was no provision relating to the citizenship of the residents of the territories acquired. The question of validity or constitutionality of the Bill was not at all raised. The grounds on which the West Bengal Assembly had passed the Resolution that the Bill is invalid and unconstitutional may now be examined.

The first ground is a statement of fact and calls for no comment.

The second ground is also a statement of fact but it describes the agreement as one and indivisible. The agreement cannot be aptly described as indivisible as it cedes certain territories and acquires certain other territories. The provision regarding the cession of territories is separable from the provision regarding the acquisition of territories. By advising two separate methods of legislation to implement cession and acquisition of territories, the Supreme Court itself has indicated that the agreement is not indivisible and the opinion of the Supreme Court necessarily involves two separate Bills, one for cession of territory and the other for absorption of the acquired territories.

The third ground is not in conformity with the opinion of the Supreme Court, the third ground of the West Bengal Assembly Resolution. As stated above, the Supreme Court has held that Parliament can make a law relatable to article 3 for the purpose of implementing the agreement in so far as it relates to acquisition of territories. It in only in respect of cession of territories, that the Supreme Court has held that the law relating to article 3 is not competent.
As regards the fourth ground, the Supreme Court has suggested two ways for implementing the agreement: one by amending article 1 and the First Schedule of the Constitution in accordance with article 368 to implement the agreement for cession of territory and a law under article 3 to absorb acquired territories. While passing, they mentioned another way, namely amendment of article 3 itself so as to cover cases of cession of territory and enabling after such amendment cession of territory by an ordinary Act under the amended article 3. The latter method has not been accepted by Government who have, therefore, adopted the former. It has not been accepted, as I have said before, as we do not wish to make it easy to concede territory by a law by a simple majority. It is, therefore, not correct to say that none of the methods indicated by the Supreme Court had been adopted in drafting the Bill.

With reference to the fifth ground, it is true that the provisions of article 3 are being utilised to give effect to part of the agreement only in so far as it relates to the acquisition of territories and this method is in accordance with the opinion of the Supreme Court.

It is said that the acquisition of territories is nothing but the result of an exchange involving cession of territories and that to give effect to the agreement by piecemeal legislation relating to matters which are inseparable is unconstitutional. It is not wholly correct to say that the acquisition of territory is the result of exchange involving cession of territory. The exchange of territories is in respect of Cooch-Behar enclaves only. The other items of cession of territory and acquisition of territory are decided on merits. It necessarily follows from the opinion of the Supreme Court that there are to be two separate laws and the two Bills drafted in accordance with that opinion are not therefore unconstitutional. Whether the agreement can or cannot be said to be inseparable is unimportant, in view of the Supreme Court opinion necessitating the passing of two separate Bills.

The sixth and the last ground states that the method of implementing the agreement by two Bills is objectionable since the State Legislature is deprived of the right to express its opinion in respect of the cession of a part of its territory. Such a result flows from the provisions of the Constitution itself. While a Bill under article 368 does not require reference to the State Legislature, the Bill under article 3 alone requires such a reference. The Constitution does not give the State Legislature an opportunity to express its opinion in respect of cession of territory. Dealing with this aspect, the Supreme Court has observed that this incidental consequence cannot be avoided. In defence of such a position, the Supreme Court adds:

“The Bill has to be passed in each House by a majority of the total membership of the House”
That is the Central Legislature.

“………and by a majority of not less than two thirds present and voting.”

That is to say, it should obtain the concur-rence of a substantial number of the House which may normally mean the consent of all the major parties of the House and that is the safeguard provided by the article in matters of this kind.

It may be mentioned that with a view to enabling the State Legislature to have an idea of the complete picture, sufficient number of copies of the Constitution (Ninth) Amendment Bill were also sent to the State Government. It is not known if these copies were circulated to the Members of the West Bengal Legislative Assembly. It is thus submitted that the Acquired Territories Merger Bill, 1960 has been framed in accordance with the opinion of the Supreme Court and cannot be regarded as invalid or unconstitutional.

Sir, I have taken so much time over this point because they have said in the West Bengal Assembly that this is unconstitutional and I have to point out that we have acted in strict accor-dance with the advice given by the Supreme Court.

Now, there is another point viz. the procedure adopted by the President was not correct: that is what they say. At the end of the Resolution of the West Bengal Legislative Assembly, there is an objection to the effect that the procedure that had been adopted in referring the Bill to the Legisla-ture through the State Government is not in accor-dance with the provisions of the proviso to article 3 read with article 168. This proviso to article 3 states that the President shall refer the Bill to the Legislature of the State for expressing its views thereon within such period as may be specified in the reference. In the present case, the order-of the President stated :

“Now, therefore, in pursuance of the proviso to article 3 of the Constitu-tion of India, I hereby refer the Bill to the Legislature of each of the States for expressing its views thereon within a period of one month from the date of this reference.”

The House will remember that there were several legislatures concerned—Assam, Punjab, as well as West Bengal. The President’s reference to the legislature was dated 23rd October. As he gave a month, the period of reference expired on the 23rd November last. There is no doubt that the reference was made to the legislature. It said so, and in fact, it is recognised in the preamble of the resolution of the West Bengal Legislative Assembly which says:

“Whereas the Acquired Territories Merger Bill 1960 has been referred by the President through the State Govern-ment to the Legislature of the State for expressing its views thereon” etc.
The objection taken apparently is that the reference to the legislature by the President was made through the State Government. The requirements of the introduction of such a Bill are two: namely, (a) there must be a recommendation of the President; and (b) the President must refer the Bill to the State Legislatures concerned for their views where the Bill proposes to alter the boundaries, etc. This latter requirement does not specify the procedure by which the President has to refer the Bill for the views of the legislature concerned. It is a settled principle of law that where the principle for the exercise of the statutory power is not laid down, the authority exercising the power can follow its own procedure so long as it is not contrary, arbitrary or capricious.

The procedure followed in the present case for sending the reference through the State Government for obtaining the views of the State legislature concerned was followed throughout, ever since the Constitution came into being, namely, in the case of the formation of the State of Andhra; in the case of the States Reorganization Act; in the case of the alteration of the Bengal and Bihar boundaries; and in the case of Assam and Bhutan boundaries and so on. The same procedure was also followed when the President sent his recommendation to the Lok Sabha under article 117 which he does frequently. The recommendation is sent to the appropriate Ministry for being conveyed to the Lok Sabha, the procedure for sending the recommendation to the Lok Sabha directly not being laid down in the Constitution. There is, therefore, nothing of substance in the objection on this point.

Apart from this, how else is the President to function? Has he to write to the Speaker directly on the subject and in such a case who is to move the motion in the House? Or, has the President to send it to the Governor? If so, the Governor will have to send it to the State Government. It is only the State Government that can take action in the Assembly on such a matter. Thus, from the legal point of view as well as from the common sense point of view and the practice hitherto consistently followed, the sending of the reference by the President to the State Government to be placed before the legislature was correct, and cannot be objected to.

I might add that the rules of business of the West Bengal Legislature even do not provide for any procedure for obtaining its views under article 3.

Thus far, on these legal matters which have been raised, I am sorry I have taken up so much time in a rather dry dissertation on the subject. But I wanted to make it dear that we have throughout taken the greatest care in taking the steps. Originally, when this matter came up, that is, after the agreement, we considered how we have to give effect to it. The House will remember that most of these things—not the Cooch-Behar enclave—were interpretations of the Radcliffe Award. That is, the view of Pakistan and the view of India differed as to the interpretation. In other words, if the interpretation was one, that interpretation was right from the very beginning of the Radcliffe Award. It is not that any step was taken, that is to say, as if an arbitrator or some judicial authority made it clear that this is the interpretation. According to us, that interpretation really applied from the very day of the Partition. It was not a cession of territory as such. Though it resulted in a session, it was recognition of something which Radcliffe had stated.

Replying to an Hon'ble Member, the Prime Minister said: Berubari Union was one of the matters in dispute in regard to the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award. But the interpretation of Pakistan and India differed and this has been before us for a number of years.

I was merely saying how we proceeded with it legally. So, technically, if it was not a cession in that sense, but a clarification of what Radcliffe had decided, the question about cession normally does not arise. Nevertheless, we attached value to this and we decided that this was such an important point that it should be brought before Parliament for Parliament's decision. Later, subsequently,—it was I think on the 1st of April, 1959 or later—on the question of how best to do it, what was the best method to do it, there was some argument. So, we advised the President to refer it to the Supreme Court, and so it was referred and the Supreme Court gave its opinion after about a year.

Then again naturally the question arose. Obviously we had to follow the advice of the Supreme Court. And the Supreme Court gave two or three alternatives how to follow it. As I have already stated, one proposal was that we should change the whole Constitution so as to enable future cases of cession to be decided by a simple majority of Parliament. They did not approve of it but they said this can be done. We did not approve of it, as I said, because we did not want to make this a simple affair.

I want to refer to one fact which has been repeatedly referred to namely, the question how far the West Bengal Government or their representatives were consulted in this matter. As a matter of fact, a year and a half ago nearly, I made a statement in this House. Perhaps Hon. Members have forgotten what I said then about this very matter. So, I would like to go into some detail as to the process of consultation that took place. This dispute about Beriberi as raised by Pakistan in 1952. It had since been the subject of much correspondence, as well as discussion between the Governments of India and Pakistan. Both India and Pakistan claim the whole of the Berubari Union according to their interpretation of the Radcliffe Award. I do not wish to go into every years' correspondence and all that. The West Bengal Government of course was, as other State Governments, often partícipated in this correspondence. There was no two opinion between the West Bengal Government and the Government of India, because our interpretation was that the whole of Berubari Union should come to India. So were theirs in fact. We were following their advice in this matter. Then, ultimately, matters arrived at a stage when all these various disputes between Pakistan and India in regard to the frontier came to a head and we tried to solve them to the best of our ability. Even in Pakistan there was that feeling because, as the House well knows, there were almost daily troubles in the frontier, questions here, motions for adjournment and all that. We thought we should try to settle where the frontiers were, because most of the trouble arose on account of disputed frontiers.

There was a conference in August 1958 at the level of Secretaries. No agreement was reached then, though a number of proposals and counter-proposals were made. In September 1938 the then Prime Minister of Pakistan and the Prime Minister of India met in Delhi. They asked their Secretaries to consider the remaining matters which had not been agreed to and discuss the various proposals made for settlement. The two Secretaries met. Now, when this argument arose with the West Bengal Government, soon after that, that is, a year and a half ago or so, the Commonwealth Secretary, who is most intimately associated with the talks right from the beginning, put down a long note and I am quoting from that.

"The two Secretaries met" that is, Pakistan and Government of India Secretaries.

"After some discussion of the various proposals, the Commonwealth Secretary suggested that the representatives of the State Governments concerned in India (that is, Bengal, Assam and Punjab) should be invited so that their reactions may be taken to these proposals. The Chief Secretary of West Bengal as well as the Chief Secretaries of Assam and Tripura were called in from the India side and the Pakistan Foreign Secretary called in the Chief Secretary of the East Pakistan. The State Chief Secretaries of India said that they would like to consult their Directors of Land Records and other officials. The Chief Secretary of West Bengal stated that the proposals regarding West Bengal-East Pakistan boundary were practical but he would consult his colleagues."

May I say that they were considering a number of proposals, a package proposal, not merely this? This was not the only one but it was a package proposal both in regard to western and eastern sides. Bengal, of course, is concerned only with the eastern one. But there were several matters.

Shri Tyagi: Berubari inclusive?
Shri Jawaharlal Nehru: Oh yes, of course. So, the Chief Secretary of Bengal said—it is not a question of liking or disliking but taking a matter ‘in all its aspects and approving of the ‘deal’ if I may use that word or not.

“The Chief Secretary of West Bengal said that the proposals regarding West Bengal-East Pakistan boundary were practical but be would consult his colleagues. The Commonwealth Secretary pointed out that there were two Cooch-Bihar enclaves shown in the maps as adjoining Berubari Union No. 12 and any decision regarding the Berubari Union required careful consideration, because of the question of access to these enclaves. The Chief Secretary of West Bengal consulted his colleagues and on return stated that the division of Berubari Union should be so made as to allow for communications to be main-tained with one of the Cooch-Bihar en-claves to be retained by West Bengal, the other enclave along with half of the Berubari Union going to East Pakistan. This was agreed to by the Pakistan Foreign Secretary and the formula for the division of the Berubari Union was worked out in consultation with the West Bengal officials and incorporated in the recommendations of the Secretaries.

“The above represents the facts of the case and the discussion on the 10th September at the officials level. So far as the question of Berubari is concerned, according to this it is correct to say that the West Bengal officials did not recommend the division of the Berubari Union; neither did the officials of the Government of India. But the division of the Berubari Union was a part of a number of counter-proposals made by the Pakistan Government and the question at issue was whether we should accept these proposals as a whole. The West Bengal officials did not object to the acceptance of the counter-proposals and worked out a formula for the division of the Berubari Union which would retain the area through which the essential communications passed in West Bengal. That is to say, as stated by the Prime Minister, an ad hoc decision was taken after consultation between the officials of the Government of India and the Government of West Bengal. The responsibility, of course, for the decision is that of the Government of India. It would not, however, be correct to say that the Chief Secretary of the West Bengal Government and other, officials were not asked for any opinion in regard to Pakistan’s counter-proposals in res-pect of Berubari Union.”

I should like the House to remember that these two Chief Secretaries had come here for this pur-pose. They were constantly discussing these matters with them and the Government of India and, naturally their opinions we have been asking for. But Berubari does not stand out; it is a whole scheme of things that we discussed.
Now, it may be, as I said on another occasion, that certain misunderstandings may have taken place; it is very difficult to say. But one thing is quite clear that they were consulted throughout and that they gave the impression, actively or passively; or maybe they have done so because they thought this is the only way, what-ever it may be, even without approving of it. But that is the impression that was given and that is what was conveyed to me. There is no doubt as to what was conveyed to me because I asked a straightforward question on Bengal as to who represented their Government, whether they were senior officials and so on. I was told that there was the Chief Secretary, the Joint Secretary of the Home Department and the Director of Land Records.

Soon after the conference with Pakistan was over, a meeting was held with the Ministry of External Affairs the very next day, 11th September, to consider the implementation of the agreement arrived at. At that time the Chief Secretary of the West Bengal Government had left but the other officials were still there. The following is taken from the minutes of the meeting in regard to Berubari Union:

“With regard to the division of the Berubari Union the Commonwealth Secretary explained that the horizontal division agreed to did not mean that the demarcation should take place along a straight horizontal line regardless of the effect of such a division on the existing system of communications etc. which should be kept intact as far as possible.”

After that, it is noted: “Action to be taken by West Bengal”! Usually there is a note as to who has got to take action. The minutes of the meeting were sent to the State Government on the 18th September 1958, that is, within a week of that conference, together with the documents regarding the agreement reached with Pakistan with the request that necessary action might be taken. Subsequently, a letter was received from the West Bengal Government dated October 10, 1958, from the Chief Secretary. The only question raised in this letter was whether the change in Government in Pakistan—the change had taken place just a little before—whether that changes had made any difference to the implementation of the decisions reached between the two Prime Ministers. The Commonwealth Secretary replied that the new regime in Pakistan had intimated that it will stand by all commitments made by the previous government, and therefore, the implementation of these matters should not be held up. On the 30th October 1958 a request was made to the West Bengal Government for population and other local data regarding the Beriberi Union in answering questions in Parliament. On the 14th November the West Bengal Government supplied the information and added that the Deputy Commissioner at Jalpaiguri had been asked to furnish further information. This further information was supplied with the letter of the 24th November 1958. On the 15th November the West Bengal Government went so far as to propose certain amendments to the schedule to be attached to the draft Bill regarding the exchange of Cooch-Behar enclaves on the basis of the accepted division of the Berubari Union.

I cannot go on taking too much time but I have got a number of letters, long letters, my letters and our Secretary’s letters to the West Bengal Government Chief Minister dealing with this matter. On this basis this has got to be done. It would thus be seen from all this correspondence which followed soon after the decision taken at the conference that the West Bengal Government did not give any indication that the decisions were not acceptable. In fact, the indications were exactly to the contrary.

On the 9th December, 1958, the Prime Minister dealt with the statement on the Berubari Union in the course of a debate here in Parliament on the international situation. On the 15th December a question was put in the West Bengal Assembly by Shri Jyoti Basu about the Prime Minister’s statement. The Chief Minister of West Bengal replied to it to the effect that the Director of Land Records had not suggested a division. He asked me for the text of my statement and I sent it to him. I said, “I take the responsibility for this decision; it is not the Director’s.” I did not wish to drag the poor Director in taking such a big decision.

Then I made a statement in the Rajya Sabha on the 16th December. All that is on the record. On the 29th and 30th December the West Bengal Assembly and Council debated the transfer of Berubari Union and passed resolutions to the effect that the Berubari Union should remain part of India. Subsequently there was a good deal of further correspondence between the Prime Minister and the Chief Minister of West Bengal.

I should like to repeat that throughout this period of our talks with Pakistan, the senior State officials were present in Delhi and obviously in touch with the negotiations. There was no indication at any time from them that the decisions were not acceptable to them. So also in subsequent correspondence even though the West Bengal legislature had passed resolutions disapproving of this. But I accept entirely, of course, that the major responsibility was the Government of India’s and more particularly mine. The point is that I do not think it is at all right to say that people were not consulted. I can understand that as regards giving approval or not, some misunderstanding arose and the parties were not quite clear as to what they agreed to and what they did not. But even so tacit approval was shown throughout—then and in subsequent proceedings.

Legal interpretation of the Radcliffe Award made the position of Berubari rather doubtful. If no settlement was arrived at, not only the question of Berubari but any other questions included in the settlement would have been left over. The matter would have been referred to a new tribunal. We definitely thought that the settlement as a whole was to the advantage of India and West Bengal. I should like to say frankly that we thought that it was advantageous for West Bengal and for India, of course, that this agreement should be arrived at not merely as a whole, but I would like to say even in regard to Berubari itself, that is the division of Berubari. The other alternative was of sending it to a tribunal which may have decided either way, either in favour of Pakistan or in favour of India. If it decided in favour of Pakistan, we would have lost the whole of the Berubari Union. So we thought that it was fair both in the larger context and in regard to this. Naturally, we knew, we did not like it but things which one does not like have to be agreed sometimes. So in the balance we thought that that was right.

This was then. Later, as I said, on the 1st April, 1959, it was referred to the Supreme Court and they gave their opinion on the 14th March—almost exactly a year later. Looking at this matter one has to keep in view that for eight years this was a pending matter on which there was a great deal of correspondence and discussion previously. Later the discussions became rather more pointed because it so happened that both parties, that is, we of course, but even Pakistan, had arrived at the decision to come to a settlement. Many of our conferences, this House knows, have not been productive because the attitudes taken up by Pakistan have not been helpful. In this matter they were definitely helpful. They wanted things to be done and we certainly wanted things to be done to get a peaceful frontier and put an end to it.

I should like the House to look at it in that context. This meeting takes place, each person desiring settlement—West Pakistan, East Pakistan and all that—and as regards Berubari naturally we would prefer the whole of Berubari to remain with us. But it was a question not only of the larger context but of coming to a commonsense decision, which we did not like, in order to avoid something which we liked still less. I still feel, therefore, that the agreement was a right one and a worth-while one both from the point of view of West Bengal and India.

It is unhappily true that, may be, a number of people who might be affected by this would have to leave their homes. The population of Berubari Union is a little over 12,000. Half of whole of Berubari would be about 6,000. There are some Muslims. I do not know the exact figures; in fact, the exact line is not drawn—there are not many Muslims. They may be some hundreds. About two-thirds of that population of this half are refugees from East Pakistan. It certainly is a most unfortunate thing, namely, that persons who have been uprooted once should have to face a contingency which might lead to their being uprooted again. I think all of us anyhow—whatever our views may be—must sympathise with them and consider it our duty to help them if any need arises to the extent possible for us.

All the history that I have placed before the House indicates not some sudden decision suddenly arrived at but after giving consideration to it repeatedly and fairly. I must say that at this conference the discussion was a fair and just one and there were no pressures from Pakistan which would compel us to do something. We agreed to it, to each thing individually and severally and having regard to it we gave our word to Pakistan. We signed that document. Later it came up before Parliament in various ways. All this history I have related.

I need not remind the House that if I functioned there it was not in an individual capacity. Obviously I functioned in the capacity this Parliament has given me, that is, of the Prime Minister of India. Every matter, obviously, cannot come to Parliament as many things are being done daily in that capacity. The word of the Prime Minister of India, apart from being the individual concerned, is not a light thing. An agreement arrived at on behalf of the Government of India also has a certain not only importance but sacredness about it. It is the word of a Government and the word of a country. I do not want anyone in the wide world to say that we do not honour our pledges and our undertakings. I have no doubt in my mind that we must hold to our pledge. I do not like, as has recently been said not in very happy terms, that we do not hold to our pledges. We have been accused that we did not hold to our pledges. So we have to face that issue. Of course, when there is an agreement between two parties, that agreement has to be fulfilled. The only possible way might be some agreement to vary the other agreement. There is no other way to that. Whether that is possible or not, I cannot say at the moment. I do not understand how at this stage we can just say that for this or that reason we resile from that agreement.

The line described above has been plotted on two copies of topographical map sheets Nos. 83D/5, 83D/6, and 83D/2.

“1. West Pakistan—Punjab border—Of the total of 325 miles of the border in the sector, demarcation has been completed along about 252 miles. About 73 miles of the border has not yet been demarcated due to differences between the Governments of India and Pakistan regarding interpretation of the decision and Award of the Punjab Boundary Commission presented by Sir Cyril Radcliffe as Chairman of the Commission. These differences have been settled along the lines given below in a spirit of accommodation:

(i) Theh Sarja Marja, Rakh Hardit Singh and Pathanke (Amritsar-Lahore border)—The Governments of India and Pakistan agree that the boundary between West Pakistan and India in this region should follow the boundary between the Tehsils of Lahore and Kasur as laid down under Punjab Government Notification No. 2183-E dated 2nd June, 1939. These three villages will in consequence fall within the territorial jurisdiction of the Government of Pakistan.

(iv) Suleimanke (Ferozepur-Montgomery border)—The Governments of India and Pakistan agree to adjust the district boundaries in this region as specified in the attached Schedule and as shown in the map appended thereto as Annexure I.

Mr. L.B. Thanga, I.F.A.S., District Magistrate, Tripura.
Mr. H.N. Sarker, I.P.S., Superintendent of Police, Tripura.
Lt. Col. B.S. Dalvi, Sector Commander.
Mr. R. Sankaranarayanan, Superintendent of Surveys, Tripura.

Deputy Commissioner, Chittagong, welcomed the members of the Tripura Delegation and expressed the hope that the deliberations they are now going to commence would help evolve an understanding in order to eliminate growing tension in the upper reaches of the Feni river. He further expected that the Tripura Delegation would make a sincere joint effort to resolve all differences through a frank and friendly discussion.

The District Magistrate, Tripura also expressed similar sentiments and thanked the Deputy Commissioners, Chittagong and Chittagong Hill Tracts and other members of the Delegation for their sentiments and cordial welcome.

2. PAK DWIP (Brajendranagar Taluk According To District Magistrate, Tripura).

The issue was discussed at length. The Deputy Commissioner, Chittagong, stated that Pak Dwip (Brajendranagar Taluk according to District Magistrate, Tripura) is an integral part of Mouza Ramgarh (vide Sheet No.3) under Fatikchari P.S. of the district of Chittagong. The District Magistrate, Tripura, however, maintained that the entire area is a part of Brajendranagar Taluk of Sabroom Sub-Division. It was, however, agreed, in order to ease the present tension to take the following steps:—

(a) The defence works put up by both sides in and around this Islet (area) and those on both flanks of the old and the new course of Feni river be filled up and removed. The border forces of both sides shall revert to their original B.O.P., as existed prior to 16th August, 1962.

(b) Local Commanders of both sides shall meet and fix up the detailed procedure, on morning of the 18th October, 1962, at 9.00 hrs. (9 A.M. East Pakistan Time) i.e. 8.30 hrs. (8.30 a.m. Indian Standard Time) at Pakistan Dwip (Brajendranagar Taluk according to District Magistrate, Tripura). The process of reversion to original position and filling up of defence works put up by both sides will be completed by 12.00 hrs (12 noon) on 21st October, 1962 (East Pakistan Time) i.e. 11.30 hrs. (11.30a.m. on 21st October 1962 (Indian Standard Time). The local Commanders will once again meet at 12.30 hrs. (12.30 p.m.) on 21st October 1962 (East Pakistan Time ) i.e. 12.00 hrs. (12 noon) on 21st October 1962 (Indian Standard Time) and carry out a joint inspection of the ground, of the above agreement, under sub para (a) above.

(c) Rehabilitation, of Wahidur Rahman (a Pakistani National) who is now in Indian custody and the claims of some Indian nationals of possession for cultivation, as well as similar claims of the Pakistanis in the same area, will be enquired into by the District Magistrate, Tripura and the Deputy Commissioner, Chittagong. The Deputy Commissioner, Chittagong stated that the agreed enquiries cannot be initiated unless Wahidur Rahman is released at the first instance and returned to Pakistan.

(d) It would be ensured by both sides the no one enters into the Islet (Area pending enquiry and an agreed decision in respect of matter, as detailed in immediate preceding paragraph 2 sub-para (c) above.

3. Assalong Mouza In Chittagong Hill Tracts (Disputed Area Ghorakapa Tehsil, According to District Magistrate, Tripura

All the aspects of the situation in this area were discussed. According to the Deputy Commissioner, Chittagong Hill Tracts, establishing of the Jalaya B.O.P. on or about 23rd May, 1962, has led to the present situation. Therefore, he suggested that the B.O.P. at Jalaya should be withdrawn thereby restoring the position existing before 23rd May, 1962, in that area. The District Magistrate, Agartala, stated that the B.O.P. at Jalaya is not a new B.O.P. though the site of the B.O.P. was changed to its present site. The District Magistrate, Tripura, however agreed as a gesture of good-will that the site of the present B.O.P. would be shifted to a new location.
It was, therefore, agreed that immediate cease-fire and simultaneous withdrawal of all the border forces of both sides from the Assalong Mouza (Disputed Area in Ghorakapa Tehsil, according to District Magistrate, Tripura) and the shifting of Jalaya B.O.P. from its present site to a new location will be carried out. It was agreed that pending further decision, no patrolling would be done by either side in the Mouza Assalong (Disputed Area in Ghorakapa Tehsil, according to District Magistrate, Tripura). The details of the sequence of withdrawal and shifting area as per Annexure ‘A’.

Both the delegation expressed their sincere appreciation on the frank and forthright manner in which the entire discussion had proceeded and also expressed their satisfaction over the results achieved.

2843.  Note from Pakistan High Commission in India to Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, July 17, 1963.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

No.1 (6)P/63. 17th July, 1963

The High Commission for Pakistan presents its compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India, and has the honour to state as follows:-

According to a decision by the 35th Conference of Chief Secretaries at Dacca, held in August 1962, the demarcation of Berubari was to commence in November 1962, to be completed by the end of May 1963. Unfortunately the work has made very little progress owing to the tactics adopted by the concerned officials of the West Bengal Government as the following will show.

At the 71st Conference of the Directors of Land Records and Surveyors of Pakistan and West Bengal, held in Calcutta on 26th and 27th September 1962, it was decided that the next conference would be held at Dacca from 17th to 19th December 1962. When requested to confirm these dates, the Director of Land Records and Surveys, West Bengal replied that the conference should be deferred till considerable progress had been made in field work. The field work itself was started in Berubari in the first week of November 1962 but remained suspended off and on sometimes due to local agitation and at other times owing, the High Commission regrets to say, to the non-cooperative attitude of the Indian Survey party. The preliminary tracers, which were scheduled to be completed in about a month, took more than two months. Thereafter the holding of the conference of the Directors was further delayed as the Director of Land Records, West Bengal wanted to have the conference at Jalpaiguri, although, according to the accepted convention, the conferences were to be held alternately in Calcutta and Dacca and therefore the next meeting was to be held at Dacca. The correspondence entailed by this served to delay the conference further thereby deferring the demarcation work in Berubari. When a date was finally settled (17th April, 1963) the Director of Land Records and Surveys, West Bengal, cancelled his visit merely because there was a slight delay of an hour in the departure of the PIA plane from Calcutta owing to some engine trouble. The ensuing correspondence also indicated that the West Bengal authorities were in no hurry and it was only on May 20, 1963 that the conference was held. As the advent of the monsoon was imminent, there was no alternative but to postpone the work till November 1963, which means it cannot be completed by the end of this year and will have to be carried into the next year.

2. In these circumstances the Government of Pakistan feel they must once again request the Government of India to take such action as they consider suitable to bring about the early demarcation of the boundary in Berubari in implementation of the agreement already reached between the two countries. In particular, they would appreciate if the concerned authorities in West Bengal can be persuaded to give priority to this work and to deal with it expeditiously.

3. The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry the assurances of its highest consideration.

The Ministry of External Affairs,
Government of India, New Delhi.

2844. Note from Pakistan High Commission in India to Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, August 18, 1964.

Office of the High Commissioner
For Pakistan in India
New Delhi

No. F. 1 (6) P/63 18th August 1964.

The High Commission for Pakistan in India presents their compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India, and has the honour to state that in spite of the categorical assurance contained in para 3 of the Ministry's Note No.4(39)-Pate.III/60, dated the 23rd August, 1963, that the Government of India were very keen to complete demarcation of the entire eastern border with Pakistan, including Berubari and Hilli, as early as possible, the West Bengal authorities have persisted in using one excuse after another for frustrating all moves towards the implementation of Indo-Pakistan decision on Berubari Union.

2. One of the recent excuses preferred by the Director of Land Records, West Bengal, at the 76th Conference of Survey officials of East Pakistan and West Bengal, was that a writ petition was pending before ten Calcutta High Court which debarred the Director of Land Records and Surveys from taking any steps towards construction of boundary pillars in the area. It was also stated that there was an injunction against the Governments of India and of West Bengal directing them not to finalise demarcation till disposal of the petition. It was, however, agreed that construction of pillars would be undertaken by East Pakistan and that necessary protection to the personnel employed by East Pakistan in the construction of boundary pillars would be given by the West Bengal authorities. In spite of this agreement the West Bengal authorities have been obstructing the implementation of the above decision by the Government of East Pakistan on one pretext or the other.

3. The Government of Pakistan are anxious to complete the boundary demarcation in Berubari Union. The next field season begins in November and it is necessary that work parties should be given assurance of protection and facilities necessary well in advance. The High Commission, therefore, requests the Ministry of External Affairs to issue necessary instructions to the Government of West Bengal to extend such assistance as may be necessary to the personnel of the Government of East Pakistan for work connected with demarcation of boundary.
The High Commission of Pakistan avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry the assurances of its highest consideration.

2845. Aide Memoire handed over by the Government of India to the Government of Pakistan.

New Delhi, August 21, 1964.

AIDE MEMOIRE

At the 1959 Minister level Conference on problems regarding the border between India and East Pakistan, the Governments of India and Pakistan approved a set of Ground Rules according to which, “following demarcation, exchange of territories in sizeable stretches of the border should by agreement take place without waiting for the entire length of the border to be demarcated,” (vide para.2(c) of Part I of the Rules). The Indian authorities have accordingly been pressing for the transfer to India by Pakistan of BORIABARI village in Golpara District, the demarcation relating to which was completed in 1956.

2. The Government of Pakistan have advanced the argument that “unless the maps relating to the international boundary between Pakistan and India are countersigned by the representatives of the two Governments, the demarcation of the boundary cannot be deemed to be final and authoritative. The exchange of adversely held territories has, therefore, to pend till such time the boundary maps are countersigned by the representatives of the two Governments,” (vide Note No. POL.II(a)-I/6/62-III dated 18.4.63 from the Ministry of External Affairs, Karachi). However, there is no provision in the Ground Rules requiring the countersignature of the maps to be a condition precedent to the transfer of the adversely held territories. On the contrary, the Ground Rules specify that such territories should be handed over without waiting for completion of demarcation of the border.

3. The condition stipulated by the Government of Pakistan that countersigned maps should be exchanged finds no place in the agreement and, is therefore, untenable in terms of the agreement. The Government of India would, therefore, be obliged if the Government of Pakistan could urgently agree to a date for the transfer of BORIABARI village to Indian jurisdiction.

New Delhi, August 31, 1964.

The Ministry of External Affairs present their compliments to the High Commission of Pakistan in India and with reference to their note No.F.1 (6)P/63 dated the 18th August, 1964 have the honour to enclose a copy of a letter from the Chief Secretary to the Government of West Bengal, No.2121-CR dated 4th July, 1964, to the Chief Secretary to the Government of East Pakistan, wherein the temporary legal difficulties in the way of delineation of the line of demarcation in Berubari Union No.XII, in terms of the Nehru-Noon Agreement of 1959, have been clearly stated and an assurance given that, as soon as these legal difficulties are removed, the Director of Land Records and Surveys, West Bengal, will proceed with the work of demarcation in this area. In view of the facts given in the letter from the Chief Secretary to West Bengal Government to his counterpart in East Pakistan, it is surprising that the Pakistan High Commission should have stated that the ‘West Bengal authorities have persisted in using one excuse after another for frustrating all moves towards the implementation of the Indo-Pakistan decision on Berubari Union.”

2. The RULE issued by the Calcutta High Court, details of which are available in the letter sent by the Chief Secretary to West Bengal to his counterpart in East Pakistan, may appear an “excuse” to the Pakistan High Commission. The High Commission are aware of the high regard paid in India to the supremacy of the judiciary. It is therefore to be regretted that the Government of Pakistan have failed to appreciate the position explained in the letter from the Chief Secretary to West Bengal Government, setting out the temporary legal difficulties that have intervened in the way of further survey and demarcation in Berubari Union No.XII. The Ministry of External Affairs further regret that publicity was given by the Pakistan High Commission and the Government of Pakistan to the note referred to in paragraph 1 above on the very day the note was left with the Ministry of External Affairs.

The Ministry of External Affairs avails itself of the opportunity to renew to the High Commission of Pakistan the assurances of the highest consideration.

2847. Note from Pakistan High Commission in India to Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, November 25, 1964.

Office of the High Commissioner For Pakistan In India
New Delhi

No. F. 1(6) – P/63 November 25, 1964

The High Commission for Pakistan presents its compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India, and with reference to the Ministry’s Note wo.P.1/107/24/64, dated the 31st August, 1964, has been instructed to state the following:-

The demarcation of the Indo-Pakistan boundary is governed by various agreements negotiated between the two Governments. In the Noon-Nehru Agreement of 1958 it was agreed between the Governments of India and Pakistan that the Berubari Union No.XII would be divided so as to give half the area to Pakistan. This Agreement was re-affirmed by the Shaikh - Swaran Singh Agreement of 1959, which furthermore laid down the procedure for the rapid implementation of the Noon-Nehru Agreement. Five years have since gone by and the demarcation and transfer of half of the Berubari Union does not appear to be any nearer. It appears from Indian Press reports that a great deal of hysteria has been whipped up in West Bengal in connection with the Agreement on Berubari and that judicial obstacles, exemplified by the Writ Petition filed in the West Bengal High Court, in the way of the implementation of the Treaty can be expected to multiply. This is contrary to the spirit of the Noon-Nehru Agreement of 1958 and the letter of the Shaikh-Swaran Singh Agreement of 1959, in which it is laid down as under:-
“It was also agreed that India, while framing the legislation, if required, to effect transfer of territorial jurisdiction consequent on demarcation, will make a provision in the said legislation which, will give government necessary authority to effect such transfers in connection with boundary disputes that may be settled.”

The High Commission for Pakistan has been instructed to remind the Government of its duty under the afore-mentioned Agreements to take immediately all such legislative and other measures as would enable it promptly and effectively to fulfil its part of the Noon-Nehru Agreement relating to the demarcation and transfer of Berubari Union No.XII.

The Government of Pakistan wish to recall the fundamental principle of International Law, upon which rests the sanctity of international agreements, that treaties and agreements solemnly entered upon among nations must take precedence over the exigencies of their respective municipal laws and that the implementation of such agreements cannot be made subject to the judicial processes of one of the parties to the agreement.

The High Commission for Pakistan has been instructed, therefore, once again to request the Government of India to take all necessary measures to enable the demarcation to be carried out speedily and the transfer of the territory in question effected at the earliest possible date.

The High Commission for Pakistan avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry of External Affairs the assurances of its highest consideration.

2848. Note from High Commission of India in Pakistan to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Islamabad, January 20, 1965.

No.F.10(11)/60-P. January 20, 1965

The High Commission of India in Pakistan presents its compliment to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Government of Pakistan, and has the honour to refer to the High Commission of Pakistan in India’s Note No. F.1(6)-P/63, dated the 5th November, 1964, addressed to the Ministry of External Affairs, New Delhi.

The Government of India have consistently acted in the letter and spirit of the Nehru-Noon Agreement of 1958 regarding the division of the Berubari Union No.XII. This is evident from the enactment of the Constitution (Ninth amendment) Act, 1960, whereby the Government of India sought to be enabled to give effect to the provisions of the Agreement. Again, when the validity of any transfer of territory was challenged before a Court of Law, the Government of India urged that the Agreement was binding on India and the Calcutta High Court upheld their contention. In short, the Government of India are fully aware of their obligations; they have already acted to meet them and need no reminder.

The observation in the High Commission of Pakistan’s Note that “treaties and agreements solemnly entered upon among nations must take precedence over the exigencies of their respective municipal laws and that the implementation of such agreements cannot be made subject to the judicial processes of one of the parties to the agreement is also otiose. The argument would be relevant only if a party pleaded it to justify non-implementation of its treaty obligations. India has not done so; on the contrary it has amended its highest national law, the Constitution, in order to honour its international commitment. However, the Government of India cannot ignore legal requirements. One of the conditions implicit in any international agreement is that the parties to it shall carry out their respective obligations in accordance with their respective constitutional processes. This practice has also been specifically recognised in the Agreement of 1959, an excerpt from which has been cited in the Pakistan High Commission’s note. In India, a citizen has the right to challenge the legal validity of any Government action, and the completion of the action must inevitably await disposal of the case by the Court. This position is common the world over and should require no explanation.

The Government of India regret that the Government of Pakistan should have considered an imagined “hysteria” in India about the transfer of the territory to be an adequate justification for the insinuations contained in the note of the Pakistan High Commission. As the Ministry of Foreign Affairs are aware, further work to demarcate the boundary in the Berubari Sector has been held up because a Civil Revision case has been filed in the Calcutta High Court by certain residents of the area involved. The Government of India have every intention of proceeding with this work as soon as the case is disposed of by the Court.

The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs the assurances of its highest consideration.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs,
Government of Pakistan.

New Delhi, March 17, 1965.

The Ministry of External Affairs present their compliments to the High Commission of Pakistan in New Delhi and with reference to the Note handed over by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Government of Pakistan to the High Commission of India in Karachi on 14th March, 1965, have the honour to state that enquiries have been made by the Government of India into the allegations contained in the said Note. The facts ascertained by the Government of India show that the allegation of forcible occupation of the Pakistani enclave of Dahagram by “Indian forces in the area” is entirely without foundation. The Ministry of External Affairs regret that the Government of Pakistan should have rushed to make serious allegations without any basis in fact.

2. The Note from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Government of Pakistan States that the so-called occupation of Dahagram follows the alleged provocative and threatening activities of Indian forces, about which the Government of East Pakistan have already protested to the Government of West Bengal. The Government of Pakistan cannot be unaware that the exaggeration and misrepresentation indulged in the communications received from the Government of East Pakistan, have been shown to be such in the replies sent by the Government of West Bengal. The Government of India would like to invite the attention of the Government of Pakistan to telegrams dated 23rd February, 12th March and 14th March, 1965, from the Government of West Bengal to the Government of East Pakistan. The Government of Pakistan seem to have ignored the facts relating to the situation in and around Dahagram, as stated in the telegrams sent by the Government of West Bengal to the Government of East Pakistan.

3. There is no truth whatsoever in the allegation of the occupation of Dahagram by the so-called Indian forces or their concentration around this enclave. The allegation that Indian forces have pushed out the Pakistan Police from Dahagram or that the residents of the enclave have been dispossessed of their homes and made to seek refuge in East Pakistan, is wholly incorrect. In rejecting the protest made by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Government of India hope that the Government of Pakistan would exert their Influence with the Government of East Pakistan and persuade them to agree to an early meeting between the Chief Secretaries of West Bengal and East Pakistan, proposal regarding which has been transmitted by Calcutta to Dacca.

4. The Government of India have received reports of mounting propaganda in East Pakistan calculated to rouse communal passions. The Government of East Pakistan has apparently done nothing to curb such propaganda in the press and on the Government radio. As the Government of Pakistan is well aware, such propaganda can have unfortunate repercussions on the minorities. The Government of India trust that the Government of Pakistan will do everything in their power to put a stop to such anti-Indian and communal propaganda and agree to a meeting between the Chief Secretaries of East Pakistan and West Bengal immediately.

5. The Ministry of External Affairs take this opportunity to renew to the High Commission of Pakistan in New Delhi the assurances of their highest consideration.

New Delhi, March 19, 1965.

High Commission for Pakistan in India

8-B, Tilak Marg, New Delhi,

19th March 1965

Four thousand Muslims have taken shelter in Rangpur district after their forcible eviction from Dahagram and its occupation by Indian police and other military personnel. This is almost the entire Muslim population of Dahagram. There is no truth in allegation that Pakistani forces have fired on Indian position. On the contrary Indian troops opened fire on 17th March 1965 which East Pakistani Rifles were forced to return.

2. The Government of Pakistan accept the proposal for a meeting of the Chief Secretaries, but this meeting can only take place after the Dahagram enclave has been vacated and handed over to Pakistan authorities. Restoration of status quo ante is necessary for establishment of a favourable atmosphere.
3. In order to enable refugees to return to Dahagram Government of India is requested to ensure their safe transit through intervening Indian territory. The refugees would be accompanied by a small contingent of Pakistani police and other officials required for local administration. Transit facilities for them are also requested.

4. After the return of the refugees accompanied by Pakistani police and officials the Chief Secretaries can fix a date for a meeting in Dacca to discuss measures for further easing of tension.

New Delhi, March 20, 1965.

High Commisioner for Pakistan
8-8. Tilak Marg
New Delhi

20th March 1965

In view of the Indian contention that there is no takeover of Dahagram and that Indian police or armed personnel have not entered the territory, the Government of East Pakistan have requested the Government of West Bengal to permit transit of Pakistani officials to verify the statement. They have also asked the West Bengal authorities to withdraw restrictions on the return of some four thousand Muslims, who had left Dahagram in the last few days, to their original homes. This request was made on March 17, but no reply has been received.

Pakistani officials would be going to Dahagram on March 21 for the above mentioned purpose and also to make necessary arrangement for the safe return of Muslim refugees from Dahagram to their homes. The High Commission trusts that no restrictions will be placed to the way of these officials by Indian authorities. Ascertaining of true facts on the spot should help both sides to arrive at a correct appraisal of the latest position and contribute to an early and amicable settlement of the issue which has arisen.

2853. Note Verbale from Ministry of External Affairs to Pakistan High Commission in India.

New Delhi, March 22, 1965.

In their Note dated 19th March, 1965 the High Commission of Pakistan while conveying their acceptance to the proposal made by the Government of India for a meeting between the Chief Secretaries of East Bengal and East Pakistan, had stated that such a meeting could only take place after the Dahagram enclave has been vacated (by India) and handed over to the Pakistan authorities. This conditional acceptance of the Government of India’s proposal for the Chief Secretaries meeting was accompanied with the request for the return of the so-called refugees to Dahagram for transit facilities through Indian territory. The Note states that it was only after the return of the so-called refugees, accompanied by Pakistan police and officials, that the Chief Secretaries could fix the date for a meeting at Dacca.

2. The Pakistan High Commission followed their Note dated 19th March with another Note Verbale dated 20th March in which request was made for the transit of a party of Pakistan officials through Indian territory so that these officials could proceed to Dahagram ’to verify’ the Indian contention that the Indian police or Armed personnel had not entered the territory of Dahagram. The Government of India were informed that Pakistani officials would proceed to Dahagram on 21st March for “ascertaining the true facts on-the-spot” relating to the so-called Indian aggression in Dahagram.

3. The reactions of the Government of India to these the Notes from the Pakistan High Commission were conveyed to the Pakistan High Commissioner by the Foreign Secretary on telephone on 20th March. The Pakistan High Commissioner was informed that since there had been no Indian aggression against Dahagram, the imposition of the pre-conditions by the Pakistan Government for a meeting between the Chief Secretaries of West Bengal and East Pakistan, amounted to a rejection of this proposal. Surprise was also expressed that despite categorical denial of any aggression against or occupation of Dahagram by Indian forces, the Government of Pakistan should persist in making allegations of aggression against Dahagram and should wish to hold an enquiry into this. The Foreign Secretary made the following concrete suggestion to the Pakistan High Commissioner for urgent consideration of the Government of Pakistan:

(i) Immediate stoppage of firing for which orders should be given by both East Pakistan and West Bengal Governments.

(ii) Residents of Dahagram, who have come away to East Pakistan, and Pakistan officials, may apply for permits to the local authorities for transiting through Indian territory.

(iii) Simultaneously, the East Pakistan and West Bengal Governments should specifically agree to a meeting of the Chief Secretaries at a very early date.

(iv) The grant of permits to Pakistani residents and officials under (ii) would be without prejudice to the procedures to be actually agreed upon by the Governments East Pakistan and West Bengal in regard to transit facilities to each other’s enclaves.

4. In regard to the procedures referred to above, the Government of India wish to reproduce extracts from the proceedings of the 17th Chief Secretaries Conference held at Dacca on 29th and 30th August, 1960, and the 35th Conference of the Chief Secretaries, also held at Dacca, on 1st and 2nd August, 1962;

Extracts from Proceedings of 17th Chief Secretaries’ Conference

"1.(i) 1(a) East Bengal Main Agenda- Difficulties regarding enclaves (Cooch Behar- Rangpur).- As regards visits by officers of Cooch Behar, Dinajpur and Rangpur to their respective enclaves, it was agreed as follows :-

(1) That officers likely to pay such visits should be given identity cards (bearing the photo of the holder) by their respective District Officers.

(2) That whenever any such officer wants to visits an enclave situated in the territory of the other Government, the District Magistrate concerned or the Deputy Commissioner will telegraph to his opposite number stating the name and designation of the officer who wants to visit the enclave, the name of the enclave and the route which the officer will follow, at least 15 days before the projected visit. The District Magistrate or Deputy Commissioner, as the case may be, will thereupon arrange for such officer to be escorted to the enclave in question through his own territory. Similar arrangements will be made for the return journey.”

* * * * *

Extracts from the proceedings of 25th Chief Secretaries Conference “Visits to Enclaves.

Chief Secretary, West Bengal, requested that Indian officers including police officers should be allowed to visit Indian enclaves in Pakistan and vice versa on the strength of identity cards issued to them as agreed upon at the 17th Chief Secretaries’ Conference. It was pointed out by Chief Secretary, East Pakistan, that such visits were allowed under the Chief Secretaries Agreement of 1950, but this stands superseded by Indo-Pak Passport Agreement of 1933 and all persons under the law must furnish valid travel documents and no executive orders can go against the requirements of law.”

5. The Government of India would strongly urge the Pakistan Government to respond, in a constructive spirit, to the suggestions made by the Foreign Secretary to the Pakistan High Commissioner on 20th March and to issue instructions forthwith to the East Pakistan Rifles and to their other armed personnel, to stop firing into Indian territory and to desist from aiding or abetting Ansars and other organizations in East Pakistan and Pakistan nationals from illegally crossing over into Indian territory which they have been doing and as a result of which there have been a number of cases of looting and arson by Pakistan nationals in villages and houses situated on Indian territory. The Government of Pakistan would appreciate that the West Bengal Border Police must discharge their responsibility of maintaining law and order on Indian territory and deal firmly and effectively with any attempts by Pakistan nationals, supported by the East Pakistan Rifles, to create conditions of disorder and chaos on Indian territory.

2854. Statement of External Affairs Minister Swaran Singh in the Rajya Sabha on Dahagram Enclave.

New Delhi, March 22, 1965.

From time to time there have been reports of concentration of Pakistani forces within Pakistan territory near Dahagram enclave. Taking advantage of the narrowness of the strip of Indian territory separating the Pakistan mainland from this enclave, illegal movement of Pakistani nationals has been taking place between the enclave and the Pakistan mainland. Patrolling in the adjacent Indian area of Tin-Bigha was intensified to prevent unauthorised passage of goods and movement of Pakistani nationals over Indian territory from the Pakistan mainland to the Dahagram enclave. With the intensification of patrolling in Tin-Bigha by our border police for ensuring that Pakistani infiltration across the Indian border does not take place, the East Pakistan Rifle Units came in strength on the Pakistani side of the border and dug themselves in opposite to the West Bengal outpost of Jhirsingheswar.

Patrolling by the West Bengal police in the area to prevent unlawful movement of Pakistani nationals between the Pakistan mainland and the Dahagram enclave, was given the colour of an economic blockade of the enclave by the East Pakistan Government. Pakistan concentrated its forces all along the border in this sector which gave rise to tension. On the 18th February, 1965, the Deputy Commissioner of Cooch-Behar met his counterpart, the Deputy Commissioner of Rangpur, in order to review the cause of tension prevailing in this border area. Both agreed that all possible steps should be taken to ease the situation.

The Pakistani press, however, came out with baseless stories of India having imposed an economic blockade of Dahagram. The allegations of the East Pakistan Government were denied by the Government of West Bengal, who in their telegram dated the 12th March, 1965, drew the attention of the Government of East Pakistan to the concentration of Pakistani forces on the border. On the 13th March, at about 5 p.m. some residents of Dahagram tried to lift cattle belonging to Indian nationals at a place called Phulkabahri. They were backed by armed personnel of the East Pakistan Rifles from this enclave. The West Bengal police rushed to the scene and prevented the Pakistani nationals from lifting the cattle. There was a brief exchange of fire. Shortly afterwards, a large number of Hindu houses in Dahagram were set on fire and there were reports of some gun shots inside Dahagram. This was followed by Hindu exodus from the Dahagram enclave to the adjoining Indian territory; about 150 Hindus fled Dahagram and came to Cooch-Behar in search of shelter and security. At about midnight on the 13th/14th March, 1965, some residents... of the Pakistan en-clave assembled around the Tin-Bigha area and tried to break through across Indian territory to the Pakistan mainland. Pakistan policemen from the enclave started firing to give cover to these Pakistani nationals, and one Indian policeman was injured. In self-defence, fire was opened by West Bengal police also.

On the basis of interrogation of the Hindu refugees from Dahagram who had come away to the Indian territory, it was learnt that they had been subjected to oppression and harassment. This was taken up with the Government of East Pakistan in a telegraphic protest by the Government of West Bengal where it was mentioned that unless effective steps were taken by the Government of East Pakistan to ease tension in this area, there was likelihood of serious repercussions. There has been no reply to this telegram dated 14-3-1965.

The Chief Secretary, West Bengal Government, sent an immediate telegram on the 16th March evening, to his counterpart in East Pakistan drawing his attention to the baseless accusations that were being made against Indian authorities for alleged atrocities perpetrated in the area and also to the false and highly provocative and inflammatory version of the Dahagram incidents which were appearing in East Pakistan newspapers. The Chief Secretary, West Bengal, suggested that the two Chief Secretaries should meet immediately and discuss the situation. To this a conditional acceptance was received from the Chief Secretary, East Pakistan, on the 18th night. The conditions informed by the Pakistan Government were the vacation of the so-called aggression and occupation of Dahagram by Indian forces and assurance to the residents of Dahagram who had crossed over into East Pakistan to return to Dahagram.

The situation took a turn for the worse with commencement of continuous firing from across Pakistan territory by Pakistani forces from 3.30 a.m. on 17-3-65 in the following areas of the district of Cooch-Behar: Phulkabahri, Tin-Bigha, Bagdokra and Kharkharia.

Heavy and intensive firing by Pakistan forces is continuing in this area. Indian border police has had to return fire when it was indispensably necessary to maintain its posts. Pakistani forces are using mortars and hand grenades.

The Chief Secretary and inspector-General of Police, West Bengal, have visited the area for an on-the-spot inspection of the situation. The Chief Secretary has reported after this visit that there is not the slightest basis for the Pakistani allegation that Indian forces have aggressed against Dahagram or that they have occupied the Pakistani enclave. The Chief Secretary has further reported that firing in the area was started by personnel of East Pakistan Rifles and that the West Bengal border police returned the fire in self-defence.
A strong telegraphic protest was lodged with the Government of East Pakistan by the Government of West Bengal on the 17th March, urging upon that Government to issue instructions to its forces to stop firing forthwith and to desist from further aggressive activities. On the 17th March, a note was also handed over to the Pakistan High Commission in New Delhi, refuting allegations of alleged occupation of Dahagram by Indian forces. The note urged the Pakistan Government to instruct the Chief Secretary of East Pakistan to agree to meet the Chief Secretary, West Bengal, immediately to discuss the situation. It was further stated in the note that the Government of Pakistan should curb anti-Indian and communal propaganda in the press and over the Government radio, since this propaganda could have serious repercussions on the minorities in East Pakistan. On 19th March, 1965 the Pakistan High Commission in New Delhi left a note verbale with the Foreign Secretary, repeating the conditional acceptance of the proposal made by the Chief Secretary, West Bengal, for a conference with his counterpart in East Pakistan to discuss the situation on the Cooch-Behar border. On the afternoon of the 20th March, the Pakistan High Commission left another note verbale with the Foreign Secretary, suggesting that a party of Pakistan officials should be allowed transit facilities over Indian territory so that they can proceed to Dahagram to verify India’s assertion that their forces have not committed any aggression on the Pakistani enclave of Dahagram.

In this note verbale our proposal for a meeting between the Chief Secretaries of West Bengal and East Pakistan was side-tracked. Our reaction to this note was conveyed to Pakistan High Commissioner within two hours. We informed him that there could be no question of the Government of India agreeing to an investigation by Pakistani officials into the alleged aggression which had, in fact, never taken place. The Government of India made the following concrete suggestions:

(i) Immediate stoppage of firing for which orders should be given by both East Pakistan and West-Bengal Governments.

(ii) Residents of Dahagram, who have come away to East Pakistan, and Pakistan officials, may apply for permits to the local authorities for transiting through Indian territory.

(iii) Simultaneously, the East Pakistan and West Bengal Governments should specifically agree to a meeting of the Chief Secretaries at a very early date.

(iv) The grant of permits to Pakistani residents and officials would be without prejudice to the procedures to be mutually agreed upon by the Governments of East Pakistan and West Bengal in regard to transit facilities to each other’s enclaves.
Late last night a message was received from the Government of West Bengal saying that Pakistan Ansars—who are really a para-military organisation trained by Pak Army officials-backed by personnel of the East Pakistan Rifles, made raids on Indian territory in the Bagdokra and other areas and began looting and burning the houses of Indian nationals in these areas. The Pakistani raid was met by the West Bengal Border Police and some of the raiders who were indulging in arson and other such nefarious activities on Indian territory were killed. We are watching further developments. I can assure the House that such lawlessness and brigandage on the part of Pakistani personnel will be suitably and adequately dealt with.

There is no truth whatsoever in the wild Pakistani allegation that Indian troops have committed aggression by marching into the Pakistani enclave of Dahagram. There are no Indian troops in the area. Only personnel belonging to the West Bengal Police are patrolling the Indian mainland in Tin-Bigha, and they have never entered the Pakistan enclave of Dahagram.

It is extremely regrettable that the Pakistan Government should whip up wild and irresponsible propaganda in the Pakistan press and over the Pakistan Government Radio, both in East and West Pakistan, calculated to rouse communal passions. The Government of India have urged the Pakistan Government to do everything in their power to see that such false propaganda is stopped, as otherwise there are likely to be serious repercussions on the minorities in East Pakistan. The Government of India have also impressed upon the Government of Pakistan the need for immediate stoppage of firing, on both sides, so that the matter could be considered in a calm atmosphere between the Governments of West Bengal and East Pakistan. The Government of India are surprised that Pakistan Government should persist in their accusation of Indian occupation of Dahagram enclave in spite of our categorical denial.

New Delhi, March 25, 1965

Ministry of External Affairs

The Pakistan High Commissioner saw me this morning in connection with Dahagram. I complained to him that until 10.30 this morning firing was still going on by Pakistan border forces and that the Commandant of the Pakistan border forces had not contacted that Commandant of the Indian border police. I said that this was against the agreement reached between us and requested him to see to it that there was no further delay in the implementation of that agreement, the first essential step towards which was the cease fire. The Pakistan High Commissioner said that evidently there has been some delay in transmission of cables to Dacca but he hoped that when that Chief Secretary, East Pakistan, returned to Dacca today or tomorrow, he will give that necessary orders. Meanwhile, he would again send a telegram.

2. The Pakistan High Commissioner also requested that visas should be given promptly by the Deputy High Commissioner, Dacca, to the civil and police officials for whom applications for Visas had been made to him. I told him that we had already instructed our Deputy High Commissioner, but that first thing in our agreement was to bring about cease fire. Until this had been done, the other three points of that four-point plan could not be implemented. The four-point proposal hung together. The Pakistan High Commissioner accepted that validity of this. I said that as soon as cease fire was effected, that Deputy High Commissioner will grant that visas.

3. The Pakistan High Commissioner read out from a telegram received from his Government, in which allegations had been made that thousands of rounds of ammunition had been fired by our border police in the Lathitilla-Dumabari area and that the Indian border police had been adopting an aggressive attitude. I told him that this was not correct. Our information was just the opposite. It was the Pakistan border force who was firing away thousands of rounds of ammunition merrily. I added jocularly that Pakistan was much richer in ammunition than we were! The High Commissioner suggested that there should be cease fire all along the border; that is to say, not only in the Dahagram area but in the Lathitilla-Dumabari area also. I asked him whether he was connecting the cease fire in the Dhahgram area, to which we had already agreed to, with the cease fire in the Lathitilla-Dumbari area. I said that I could say that we would be very glad to issue instructions to the Commandant of the border police in the Lathitilla-Dumabari area to meet and arrange a cease fire and restoration of the status quo. The Pakistan High Commissioner said this would be satisfactory. I told him that I would speak to F.M. and confirm this.

4. I also told the Pakistan High Commissioner that it was senseless to have these shooting bouts in the Lathitilla-Dumabari area. This was a relatively small dispute and we should be able to settle it by mutual discussion. We would welcome a very early meeting between the two Governments as Pakistan Government may desire. The Pak H.C. seemed to concur in this.

5. F. M. may see the above and confirm ‘A’ above.

It may be pointed out for record that External Affairs Minister made several statements in Parliament in connection with the firing in the Dahagram. These were on March 19, 22 and on 31st March 1965.

2856. Statement of External Affairs Minister Swaran Singh in Rajya Sabha on Developments on Cooch-Behar Border.

New Delhi, March 31, 1965.

On 22nd March a report was received from the West Bengal Government that personnel of the East Pakistan Rifles were massed opposite South Berubari in Jalpaiguri District. It was reported that there had been rumours in the area that the East Pakistan Rifles were about to organise raids on South Berubari since its transfer to Pakistan was being delayed by India. It was further reported that on 3rd March some members of the East Pakistan Rifles had crossed the Sui River in Jalpaiguri and had trespassed into the adjacent Indian territory. The East Pakistan Rifles threatened some Indian nationals who were cultivating land there and claimed that the territory was Pakistan's. When the West Bengal Border Police reached the area, the East Pakistani Rifles men fled and crossed over in to Pakistan territory. Although the intrusion was easily vacated, the East Pakistan Rifles were reported in some strength on Pakistan territory, opposite South Berubari. At one time it was even feared that they would make an attempt at sustained intrusion into Indian territory in that area.

A message received from the West Bengal Government on 30th March stated that they had received no report that any portion of Indian territory in that area, was under Pakistan's occupation. The West Bengal report further stated that there was some tension at Kajaldigi/Paranigam on the Berubari border but no Indian land had been encroached on or occupied by Pakistan.

I will now report to the House the developments on the Cooch-Behar border, further to what I had stated here on 22nd March.

On 20th March the Pakistan High Commissioner had sent a Note suggesting that a party of Pakistan officials should be allowed transit facilities over Indian territory so that they could proceed to Dahagram to verify India's assertion that their forces had not committed aggression on the Pakistani enclave. As I had stated, our reaction to this Note from the Pakistan High Commission was given out within 2 hours. We made 4 concrete suggestions to end the firing on the Cooch-Behar border, conclude an effective cease-fire there and arrange for a meeting between the Chief Secretaries of East Pakistan and West Bengal.

The acceptance of the Government of Pakistan of our 4-point proposal, was conveyed to the Foreign Secretary by the Pakistan High Commissioner on the afternoon of 22nd March. Our first proposal to which effect was to be given immediately, was that there should be stoppage of firing on the border without any loss of time. It was made clear that once firing had stopped and the cease-fire had become effective, an announcement would be made for a conference between the Chief Secretaries of West Bengal and East Pakistan, at which details for main-taining tranquility on the border and for ensur-ing the return of such residents of Dahagram as had left the enclave, would be worked out. It had been agreed that the Commandant of the East Pakistan Rifles would approach the Com-mandant of the West Bengal Border Police immediately, to effect a cease-fire, on which action would be taken by our Deputy High Com-mission at Dacca to issue visas etc. to a party Of Pakistan officials who intended to transit through Indian territory to proceed to Daha-gram.

From our side there was no ambiguity about this understanding. Unfortunately, the Govern-ment of Pakistan delayed giving instructions to the Commandant of the East Pakistan Rifles to make contact with the Commandant of the West Bengal Border Police, to effect a cease-fire. As the House is aware, firing has continued on the Cooch-Behar border since 17th March and the agreement of 22nd March did not put an end to the firing as it should have done. Indeed, later day reports from the West Bengal Govern-ment indicated that not only had the firing not stopped but that its intensity and extent had increased.

Intermittent firing by Pak forces con-tinued on the 22nd and 23rd March in Jikabari, Tinbigha, Bagdokra, Kharkharia and Permekli-ganj. The East Pakistan Rifles made, use of light machine guns, mortars and grenades. For some time thereafter, firing was subdued but from the night of 24th March, it again became more intense in the Tinbigha area. There was again some relief on the 25th March but on the 26th Tinbigha, Bagdokra and Kharkharia sec-tors were again scenes of firing by the East Paki stan Rifles, who later extended their activities to Satirpul and -Phulkabahri. On the 27th March, the Pakistan forces continued to fire and up to the 28th March firing was intense and conti-nuous at Kharkharia, Bagdokra, Jikabari and Tinbigha.

The West Bengal Border Police naturally returned the fire in self-defence and thus foiled all attempts by the East Pakistan Rifles to dis-lodge our border posts. Encroachment on Indian territory by personnel of the East Pakistan Rifles was effectively prevented through the action of the West Bengal Border Police who gave a good account of themselves in a trying situation.

The intensification of firing surprised the Gov-ernment of India as much as the Government of West Bengal. We had been led to believe that the delay in the non-implementation of the agreement of 22nd March, was not due to any substantive decision by the Government of Paki stan not to honour this agreement, but to the temporary absence from Dacca of high officials of the East Pakistan Government who, we were told, were away to Rawalpindi to attend the inauguration ceremonies of the Pakistan Presi-dent. The impression was conveyed to us that as soon as senior officials of the East Pakistan Government returned to Dacca, there would be no difficulty in implementing the agreement of 22nd March and an immediate cease-fire would be ordered. As an earnest of their intention to abide by the agreement of 22nd March, a group of East Pakistan officials put in visa applications with our Deputy High Commission at Dacca on 24th March. Our Deputy High Commissioner stressed that before facilitating the transit of a party of East Pakistan officials through Indian territory by granting them visas etc., an announcement about the cease-fire should be made and indication given of the date of a conference between the Chief Secretaries of West Bengal and East Pakistan. The question of granting visas and of working out arrangements for the return of such inhabitants of Dahagram as had left the enclave, could only be taken up after the cease-fire had become effective and an announcement of an agreed date for the conference between the Chief Secretaries of West Bengal and East Pakistan had been made.

By 25th March it had become clear that difficulties were being created in Dacca due to which implementation of the agreement of 22nd March was being impeded. From what we could make out here of the local difficulties in Dacca, we came to the conclusion that an argument had developed in Dacca as to whether visas could be given to Pakistani officials desirous of proceeding to Dahagram, even before a cease-fire had been fixed or announced.

To break the deadlock and to put an end to the wanton firing which is causing unnecessary tension and harassment to the civilian population, discussions have taken place with the Pakistan High Commissioner here. It has been agreed that the important thing is for the cease-fire to come into operation at the earliest possible time. Steps would accordingly immediately be taken to fix a time by mutual agreement. Transit visas would be issued by that time, and they would of course become effective from a practical point of view, only when the firing stopped. It was also agreed that negotiations should take place without delay to fix an early date and time for the Chief Secretaries’ Conference. That conference would consider the question of future transit facilities to enclave residents on both sides of the border as well as other matters connected with reducing tension.

It is essential, in order to put an end to the unfortunate situation which has been thrust upon us, and to pave the way for the restoration of normal conditions in the area, for an early announcement to be made of the coming into force of the cease-fire and of the Chief Secretaries’ Conference. It was mutually agreed that this could be facilitated by the two High Commissioners themselves proceeding to Dacca to work out the arrangements after necessary consultation.

Members of this House must have read in the Press this morning that the presence in Dacca of the two High Commissioners has helped to bring about implementation of the decisions taken here on 22nd and 29th March, to end firing on the Cooch-Behar border and to arrange for a conference of the Chief Secretaries of West Bengal and East Pakistan. We have not so far received a report on the discussions that took place in Dacca on the 30th evening, but it is clear that the cease-fire will become effective as from today afternoon, and the two Chief Secretaries will meet on 9th April to discuss wider questions such as future transit facilities for residents of Indian enclaves in East Pakistan and Pakistani enclaves in West Bengal; the ending of tension all along the border; and the establishment of tranquility there. We have agreed to give facilities to officials of the East Pakistan Government to transit through Indian territory on their way to Dahagram. It is obvious that the movement of Pakistan officials over Indian territory will take place only after the cease-fire has become effective.

We hope that with these arrangements, the extremely regrettable and wholly unnecessary conflict on the border will come to an end. I would like to say, in conclusion, that there is no reason at all for such situations to arise, given the minimum of goodwill and good faith and the modicum of restraint. These are matters which can and should be settled around the conference table and not by resort to force, as that only exacerbates the situation and creates tension and excitement, and causes much harm and suffering to the inhabitants of the area.

2857. Decisions taken at the Chief Secretaries’ Conference held at the East Pakistan Secretariat to consider the issues arising out of the Dahagram problem.

Dacca, April 9/10, 1965.

The Chief Secretaries of East Pakistan and West Bengal met in Dacca on 9th and 10th April, 1965, to discuss the following agenda:-

1) Transit facilities for residents of enclaves to mainland and vice versa;
2) Travel facilities to officials of either countries to visit enclaves;
3) Measures for eliminating tension in the border.

The following decision were reached:—
ITEM NO.I : Visits by Residents:

For the facility of the residents of enclaves it was decided that ‘A’ category visa on proper passports would be issued to them on application as envisaged in Paragraph I of Item 2 of the agreed decisions of the Indo-Pak Passport Conference of February, 1953. In other words such visas will be valid for an unlimited number of journeys from the enclave to the mainland and vice versa and would dispense with the procedure for entry through checkpost.

This arrangement will come into force with effect from the 1st May, 1965.

In the meantime working arrangements as set forth in sub-paras (i),(ii) & (iii) of paragraph 2 of Item 2 of the Indo-Pak Passport Agreement of 1953, shall be made. For this purpose the Deputy Commissioner of Cooch Behar and Rangpur should meet on the 17th April, 1965, at Tin Bigha to work out the details of the interim arrangement.

For the ensuing Eid celebrations travel facilities to and from the mainland shall be accorded to the residents of Dahagram on 12th and 13th April in the same manner as was agreed upon on 30th March, 1965, for their entry into Dahagram in the first week of April, 1965.

The returning residents would also be allowed to carry with them cattle, seeds, building materials and Pakistani currency etc. as required by them up to 30.4.1965.

It was agreed that necessary recommendations will be made to the appropriate authorities by both the Governments that residents of enclaves moving to and from the mainland will be given all facilities for carrying with them currency, produce of land etc.

ITEM NO.II; VISITS BY OFFICIALS:

It was decided that officials of both countries should travel to and from enclaves on regular passports and double transit visas. It was agreed that such visas will be issued promptly.

The movement of the personnel of the police camp described as anti-dacoity patrol camp, located at Dahagram, by the Government of East Pakistan, who were allowed to return to Dahagram as per agreement reached on 30th March, 1965, will also be subject to the procedure for movement of officials to and from enclaves agreed upon and mentioned above.

Both the Governments should examine the possibility of granting multiple transit visas to officials required to visit the enclaves.
ITEM NO. III: MEASURES FOR ELIMINATING TENSION IN THE BORDER:

The Chief Secretary, East Pakistan explained that the root cause of tension in most of the places along the border was the fact that the boundary has not been demarcated. In particular he referred to the delay in demarcation of Berubari division line. Further he pointed out that there were numerous gaps along the Pakistan/India boundary in Dinajpur and Rangpur districts. He felt that completion of demarcation work and transfer of jurisdiction would have the effect of obviating tension.

The Chief Secretary, West Bengal, stated that they had certain legal difficulties with regard to demarcation in Berubari area. As regards the remaining portions still left incomplete he felt that the work could be resumed if a programme were jointly made by the Directors of Land Records, West Bengal and East Pakistan, and adhered to. He agreed that the work of demarcation of incomplete portions of the boundary between West Bengal and East Pakistan would be taken up during the forthcoming field seasons commencing from 15th October, 1965, onwards. The entire work of demarcation including transfer of jurisdiction as provided in the Ground Rule 2 shall be com-pleted before the end of May, 1966.

The Chief Secretaries also agreed that want of strip maps for areas where demarcation has been completed long ago gives rise to administrative and local complications. They feel that strip maps, already prepared for areas previously demarcated, should be checked, signed and finally printed by the two Directors of Land Record without delay; and after finalisation and printing, such strip maps should be sent immediately to the respective Central Governments for ratifi-cation.

It was agreed that from Cooch Behar/Rangpur as well as Cooch Behar/Jalpaiguri/Dinajpur border all forces on either side will pull out from forward positions and return to BOPs and resume normal border patrolling. Defensive works will be demolished. Extra force will be pulled out of the BOPs.

In area Squares 5636/5637 map sheet 78 –B/II 1" to a mile map of Survey of India 1931 Edition, forces of either side will pull out from their present positions and return to their BOPs. Deputy Commissioners of Dinajpur/Jalpaiguri with their respective Sector Commanders will mark the present forward positions on ground and on 16 inches-to-a-mile map. This will be the patrolling limits of either side and the land in between will not be cultivated until the demarcation of un-demarcated border in this area referred to above. On the rest of the East Pakistan - West Bengal borders, the border forces will withdraw to their original border outposts.
This agreement shall be reviewed every three months in the light of experience gained regarding the working of the agreement in practice.

14 May, 1965

The Ministry of External Affairs presents its compliments to the High Commission for Pakistan in India and has the honour to say that reports have been received that Pakistani armed forces have concentrated in large numbers along the border between East Pakistan and India and in particular in the area of Dahagram and that they have been indulging in highly provocative and aggressive activities causing tension on the border, in flagrant violation of the recent agreement between the Chief Secretary of West Bengal and the Chief Secretary of East Pakistan at their conference held in Decca on the 9th and 10th of April, 1965. The Government of India take a serious view of this concentration of Pakistani troops and request the Government of Pakistan immediately to withdraw their forces from the border areas in the interest of maintaining peaceful conditions.

The Ministry of External Affairs avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the High Commission for Pakistan the assurances of its highest consideration.

The High Commission for Pakistan in India,

Note from Pakistan High Commissioner in India to Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, May 15, 1965.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

No. 1 ((5)P/64 the 15th May, 1965

The High Commission for Pakistan in India presents its compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs Government of India, and has the honour to express its surprise at the fact that the Government of India should have considered fit to address their Note No.FI/342(I)/65, dated the 14th of May, 1965 on the alleged concentration of Pakistani troops in the area of Dahagram completely disregarding the strong protest lodged by this High Commission with the Ministry on the 10th of May in its Note No. I (5)P/64 against the heavy concentration of Indian troops around the Pakistani enclave Dahagram. The Government of East Pakistan had earlier, on May 8, protested to the Government of West Bengal against the concentration of Indian troops around Dahagram. Two protests were made on May 10 against the extension of this concentration to other areas around Dahagram. Two more protests were lodged again with the Government of West Bengal on May 13.

2. In this connection the attention of the Ministry is drawn to the conversation of the High Commissioner of Pakistan with the Commonwealth Secretary on the morning of May 14 when the attention of Mr. Rajeshwar Dayal was drawn to the increasing activities of the Indian armed forces along the border in the area of Dahagram where new camps were being opened and a wall has been erected. The High Commissioner of Pakistan in a communication addressed the same day (May 14) to the Commonwealth Secretary requested him to take immediate steps to ensure that the Agreement arrived at between the Chief Secretaries of East Pakistan and West Bengal in their meeting in Dacca on April 9-10 is duly honoured.

3. It would be seen that this High Commission, in its communications on the subject, has made it clear to the Ministry where the responsibility for violating the recent Agreement between the Chief Secretaries of East Pakistan and West Bengal lies. The Ministry’s Note of May 14, as the sequence of events outlined above would show, is clearly an after-thought and a feeble attempt at covering up the increasing concentration of Indian armed forces along the border in the area of Dahagram. Under the circumstances, therefore, the High Commission of Pakistan is constrained to reject the Note of the Ministry of External Affairs. In doing so, however, it reiterates its earlier request for immediate action to arrest further deterioration of the situation on the border along Dahagram.

The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry of External Affairs the assurances of its highest consideration.

No. D. 4178/P.I/65 May 21, 1965 Vaisakha 31, 1887

The Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India, presents its compliments to the High Commission of Pakistan in India and has the honour to bring to the High Commission’s notice, reports of systematic arrangement and torture of the Hindu residents of Dahagram enclave by the Pakistani police who have entered this enclave for making the so-called anti-dacoity camp. It is reported that the cattle of the Hindus are being forcibly taken away and punitive fines are also being imposed on the Hindu residents. These incidents have created tension in the border areas. The Deputy Commissioner, Cooch Behar has also drawn the attention of the Deputy Commissioner, Rangpur to this most deplorable situation created by the action of the Pakistani Police.

The High Commission would recall that as recently as on 9th and 10th April, 1965, the Chief Secretaries of West Bengal and East Pakistan had discussed measures for eliminating tension in the border. It is, therefore, surprising and disappointing that these incidents should be allowed to occur, violating the spirit of the Agreement between the two Chief Secretaries.
The Ministry trust that suitable steps would be taken to extend equal treatment to the Hindu residents of the Dahagram enclave and to restore confidence in the minds of Hindu by prevention of these incidents.

The Ministry of External Affairs avail itself of this opportunity to renew to the High Commission the assurances of its highest consideration.

New Delhi, June 25, 1965.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

No. 1. (5) P/64 the 25th June, 1965.

The High Commission for Pakistan in India presents its compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs and with reference to the Aide-Memoire left by His Excellency the High Commissioner of Pakistan with the Foreign Secretary on the 12th June, 1965, has the honour to state that reports have been received that on the 16th of June, 1965, five members of the Indian border forces trespassed into Angarpota, a Dahagram village adjoining Indian territory and while they were in the house of one Mr. B. Barman of Angarpota, Mr. Kafiluddin Pradhan of the same village went to Mr. Barman’s house where the Indian border personnel seized him. He was carried away from Pakistan territory to the Indian police camp at Bhotbari. On the 18th June, four members of the Indian border forces of the Bhotbari camp again trespassed into Dahagram enclave and forcibly took away one Mr. Abdus Sobhan from there. On the same day some Indian nationals backed by Indian border forces trespassed into Dahagram and forcibly cultivated lands belonging to one Mr. Omar Ali of Dahagram. A regular police camp has now been opened at Tinbigha and the camp personnel are harassing ‘A’ category visa holders from Dahagram who move between Dahagram and Pakistan main-land. The visa holders in transit are compelld to go to the Police camp where they are searched and questioned. It has also been reported that new Indian police camps have been set up around the Dahagram enclave at Dhuliarbari, Chaurbagan and Chotakuchilbari under police station Mekliganj of District Cooch Behar. This has created a sense of insecurity among the residents of Dahagram and tension on the border area.

2. The High Commission for Pakistan strongly protests against the activities of the Indian border personnel who trespassed into Pakistan territory and requests the Ministry to take effective deterrent action against the culprits with a view to preventing the recurrence of such incidents and to arrange the return of Pakistan nationals forcibly taken by the Indian border forces.

3. The High Commission also protests against the setting up of new Indian police camps around the Dahagram enclave in flagrant violation of the Ground Rules and the decisions of the Conference of the Chief Secretaries of East Pakistan and West Bengal at Dacca on April 9 and 10, 1965.

The High Commission, therefore, requests the Government of India to take immediate steps to disband these police camps so that peaceful conditions in the border areas may be main-tained.

The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry of External Affairs the assurances of its highest consideration.

Note from Deputy High Commissioner of India in East Pakistan to the Government of East Pakistan.

The Office of the Deputy High Commissioner for India in East Pakistan at Dacca presents its compliments to the Government of East Pakistan and has the honour to state that distressing reports have been received about the persecution and harassment of members of the Minority Community in the Pakistan enclave of Dahagram by the members of the Pakistan police force who are stationed there to man the anti-dacoity camp.

2. It is learnt that cattle belonging to members of the Minority Community are being seized for ploughing the lands belonging to the Muslims and punitive taxes are being imposed upon the Hindu residents by these policemen. Cases of lifting of cattle belonging to Indian nationals living in Indian territory around Dahagram have also been reported. These incidents have created considerable tension in the border areas.

3. The Office of the Deputy High Commissioner for India views with grave concern these acts of oppression and high-handedness of Pakistani police in Dahagram and lodges its most emphatic protest with the Government of East Pakistan against such cruel harassment and persecution of innocent members of the Minority Community.

4. The Office of the Deputy High Commissioner for India would request the Government of East Pakistan to institute an immediate enquiry into the matter and to take stern measures against the delinquent police personnel so that such incidents do not recur and a peaceful atmosphere is maintained in the border areas.

5. The result of the action taken in the matter may please be communicated to the Office of the Deputy High Commissioner for India as soon as possible, if there be no objection.

The Office of the Deputy High Commissioner for India avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Government of East Pakistan the assurances of its highest consideration.

The Chief Secretary to the Government of East Pakistan,

No. DAC(POL)/08/11/65-C, the 3rd July, 1965.

The Office of the Deputy High Commissioner for India at Dacca presents its compliments to the Government of East Pakistan and in inviting reference to its Note Verbale of even number of June 25, 1965 has the honour to state that further reports of highly provocative activities of Major Khawaja of the E.P.R. have been received by this Office.

2. It is learnt that on June 11, 1965 at about 1345 hours, Major Khawaja, Wing Commander of the E.P.R. along with one E.P.R. Jamadar and two other persons in civil dress came to the extreme point of the border at Tinbigha, P.S. Mekliganj, District Cooch Behar near Indo-Pak border pillar No. 812 and rudely asked a Naik of the Indian B.O.P. why and under whose orders the thatched shed for the Indian checkpost staff at Tinbigha was being constructed. It was also noticed that before indulging in this provocative act Major Khawaja had deployed a section of armed E.P.R. personnel in a bamboo clump situated very near the border.

3. The Office of the Deputy High Commissioner for India cannot but take a serious view of this incident and lodges its most emphatic protest with the Government of East Pakistan against these highly provocative activities repeatedly indulged in by Major Kawaka and his men. The Office of the Deputy High Commissioner for India would be grateful if the Government of East Pakistan would kindly cause an immediate enquiry to be instituted in the matter and take firm steps to put a stop to all such irresponsible, highhanded and provocative acts in the interest of peace and amity in the border.

4. The results of the action taken in the matter may please be communicated to the Office of the Deputy High Commissioner for India as soon as possible, if there be no objection.

5. The Office of the Deputy High Commissioner for India avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Government of East Pakistan the assurances of its highest consideration.

New Delhi, August 28, 1965.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

No. 1(5) P/64. the 28th August, 1965

The High Commission for Pakistan in India presents its compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs and with reference to their Note No. D - 4178/P. 1/65, dated May 21, 1965, has the honour to state that the enquiries made about the alleged harassment and torture of the Hindu residents of Dahagram by Pakistan police personnel posted there have revealed that the allegation is entirely without foundation. The report that the cattle of the Hindus were forcibly taken away and punitive taxes were imposed on the Hindu residents of Dahagram has also been found to be completely baseless.

2. The High Commission has the honour to state further that tension in this area was, on the contrary, created by the activities of the Indian border forces in the area who harassed and tortured Muslims of Dahagram in various ways in collusion with the Indian Hindus of the border villages. In this connection the attention of the Ministry of External Affairs is invited to the High Commission’s Note No. 1(5) P/64, dated 25th June, 1965, regarding the trespass by members of the Indian border forces into Angarpotta village in Dahagram, kidnapping of two Pakistan nationals, and the forcible cultivation of lands belonging to a resident of Dahagram by Indian nationals who were backed by Indian border forces in this regard.

The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry of External Affairs the assurances of its highest consideration.

The Ministry of External Affairs
Government of India
New Delhi

The Ministry of External Affairs replying in its Note No. PI/108/57/65 dated the September 8, 1965 rejected the contention of the Pakistan High Commission that its facts were baseless and insisted that its protest was lodged after due verification of facts. The Indian note emphatically denied that the activities of the Indian Border Force or of the residents of Indian villages had created tension in and around Dahagram.

No. PI/108/57/65 September 8, 1965

The Ministry of External Affairs presents its compliments to the High Commission for Pakistan in India and, with reference to the High Commission’s Note No.1 (5)P/64 dated August 28, 1965, has the honour to state that the Government of India cannot accept the contention of the High Commission that the facts mentioned in the Ministry’s Note No.D4178/PI/65, dated May 21, 1965, are baseless. The High Commission’s attention was drawn to these facts after they had been verified and found correct.

The allegations made in the High Commission’s Note No.1(5)P64, dated June 25, 1965 have, on enquiry, been found to be without any foundation. The High Commission will find the correct facts in the enclosed copy of the Government of West Bengal’s letter No.2056-CR/IB-282/65, dated July 28, 1965, to the Government of East Pakistan who had made the same allegations in a series of communications to the West Bengal Government. The Ministry emphatically denies that the activities of the Indian Border Forces or the residents of Indian villages have created tension in and around Dahagram.

The Ministry avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the High Commission of Pakistan in India the assurances of its highest consideration.

2867. Statement made by External Affairs Minister M. C. Chagla in the Lok Sabha regarding forcible occupation by Pakistan of Indian territory in the Lathitilla – Dumabari area.

New Delhi, July 13, 1967.

The Chief Minister of Assam while answering a question in the State Assembly on 6-7-1967 had stated that approximately 748 bighas of land in the Lathitilla – Dumabari area of Assam had been occupied by Pakistan. The Chief Minister was referring to a working arrangement which had been arrived at between India and Pakistan in the Lathitilla – Dumabari area. The circumstances under which this working arrangement was arrived at are given below:

The dispute concerns the interpretation of the Radcliff Award in respect of five villages known as Putnigoan, Karkhana Putnigaon, Borputnigoan, Lathitilla and Dumabari in the Cachar – Sylhet sector of the Assam – East Pakistan border. The total area of these five villages is 1.84 sq. miles. The dispute arose due to divergence between the description of the boundary line in the Radcliff Award and the map showing the line in the accompanying description. Pakistan considers that the description and the map agree inter se whereas India holds that the description in the Award does not tally with the line drawn on the map and consequently that the line is not acceptable in terms of the specific proviso made by Sir Radcliff himself that “in the event of any divergence between the line as delineated on the map and as described, the written description is to prevail”.

As a result of this difference of interpretation of the Radcliff Award, this area became the scene of border firings on quite a few occasions in the past. After some negotiations a military working boundary was agreed upon by the two countries in this region in 1959. It was agreed that until the demarcation has been completed, civilian jurisdiction in the area will vest in the Assam Government. However, Pakistan started violating the status quo through intrusions and encroachments into the villages in question since January 1962. By November 1962, Pakistan had occupied the entire Lathitilla village and by July 1963, she had extended her forcible occupation to part of Dumabari village as well.

Efforts made to bring peace to this area did not succeed and Pakistan maintained the tension by resorting to periodic firings.

In an effort to reduce tension in this area, the offer was made to the Government of Pakistan through diplomatic channels in August 1963 for a crash demarcation of this area by the Central Surveys of India and Pakistan. Two meetings were held between the Surveyors General of India and Pakistan at Dacca and New Delhi in December 1963 and January 1964. The meetings, however, proved infructuous and Pakistanis did not even agree to sign the minutes of the meetings.

No further progress in regard to the settlement of this dispute could be made despite our efforts. The intermittent firings continued. The September 1965 criff intervened meanwhile.

After the signing of the Tashkent Declaration the General Officer Commanding –in –Chief, Eastern Command of India and the General Officer Commanding the 14th Infantry Division of Pakistan met on February 1, 1966 with the object of finding ways and means of reducing tension on the Eastern Border with Pakistan. In pursuance of the agreement reached at this meeting, the Sector Commanders of India and Pakistan held a meeting at Lathitilla on February 8, 1966 at which a military working boundary in respect of these five villages was agreed upon. According to this working arrangement, Pakistan retained possession of about 249 acres (approximately 748 bighas) of various types of land belonging to 4 out of 5 villages referred to earlier. The Village Putnigaon was not affected by this working boundary.

The above working boundary agreement between the Sector Commanders is only a temporary arrangement, and does not bestow any permanent rights on either side. This fact has been clearly mentioned in the agreement itself. It will hold good only as long as the border in this area is not permanently demarcated by the Survey officials of the two sides.

I may state here that the Directors of Land Records and Surveys of Assam and East Pakistan are meeting periodically to draw up programmes for demarcation of the Assam – East Pakistan border. The demarcation in this area is yet to be jointly carried out and that it would finally settle the matter and possession duly transferred to the concerned States.
2868. Note from Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs to High Commission of India in Pakistan.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs, presents its compliments to the High Commission for India in Pakistan and has the honour to draw the High Commission’s attention to the following report in the Indian Express of 14th July 1967 of the Statement made by the Indian Foreign Minister in the Lok Sabha on 13th July 1967 regarding the boundary dispute in the Assam-East Pakistan border.

2 “He said the area had not been transferred to Pakistan....Pakistan unlawfully and violently occupied part of our territory”. If the present efforts to demarcate the border fail other methods would be tried. Towards the end he said, “When it comes to it we will push out Pakistanis”.

3. The Government of Pakistan lodges a strong protest against this threat of use of force and considers it highly regrettable that such a threatening statement should have come from no less a person than the Indian Foreign Minister.

4. Pakistan has not occupied any territory by force. In accordance with the RADCLIFFE award and the map forming annexure to this award the entire area of 1.7 square miles west of the boundary line between East Pakistan and Assam from the point OOY in the north (adopted by mutual agreement at the Indo-Pakistan Ministerial level meeting in October 1959) to the THAL post in the south, rightfully belongs to Pakistan, but the major part of this area has been in adverse possession of India. The area was not in dispute till December 1959 when in the meeting of Survey officials of East Pakistan and Assam the Indian representative raised a dispute over it for the first time. There was unprovoked firing by Indian border forces on the Pakistani positions in the area in June 1963 and firing incidents have taken place periodically since then, creating unnecessary tension and causing suffering to the inhabitants of the area which rightfully belongs to Pakistan. The Government of Pakistan remain prepared to resolve the dispute through any mutually acceptable and universally recognized methods of peaceful settlement.

The Ministry avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the High Commission the assurances of its highest consideration.

2869. Statement by the Spokesman of the Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs on Lathitilla – Dumabari.

A Foreign Office Spokesman on 28.7.1967 stated that the Indian Foreign Minister’s statement in the Lok Sabha on July 13, 1967 regarding Lathitilla, Dumabari and other villages near the East Pakistan - Assam border had grossly distorted the facts in alleging that Pakistan had unlawfully and violently occupied Indian territory. The spokesman deplored Mr. Chagla’s threat that if the present efforts to demarcate the border failed, ‘India would try other methods and when it comes to it will push out Pakistan’. He said that a protest had been lodged.

The facts of the case are that the territory in question measuring 1.7 sq. miles, belongs to Pakistan but the major part of this area is in adverse possession of India. The boundary in Lathitilla sector on the Assam-East Pakistan border was never disputed and has to be demarcated in accordance with the Radcliffe Award and the map forming the annexure to the Award. A dispute concerning this territory was raised by India for the first time at the 29th Conference of the Directors of Land Records and Surveys, East Pakistan and Assam, held at Dacca in December, 1959.

According to the Radcliffe Award, the boundary in this sector should be the boundary between thanas of Patharkandi and Kulaura.

The notification No.I76-G/J dated the 10th January, 1922, of the Assam Government was the latest notification available at the time of Independence, describing the boundaries of the thanas concerned. The relevant thana maps of Patharkandi and Kulaura are also available on which the boundary as described in the thana notification was shown. The district map of Shylet prepared by Assam in 1937 and used by Radcliffe shows the thana boundary between the thanas of Kulaura and Patharkandi and also the configuration of the Patharia Hills Reserve Forest. The Radcliffe line is based on the above mentioned notification and maps. The boundary between the Sub-divisions of Karimganj and South Sylhet on the Survey of India maps 1911 and 1946 editions also show the boundary in this sector as running in a straight line from Thal post to point ‘Y’ (the southern most point of the boundary agreed in the Ministerial level conference of October, 1959).

Assam Government’s claim put forward for the first time in 1959 to an area to the west of the Radcliffe line, is based on the Patharkandi circle map and Ilam (revenue) maps. These maps are not relevant to the demarcation of the boundary in this area in accordance with the Radcliffe Award. The Patharkandi Circle map was produced before the Bagge Tribunal in 1950 in connection with another dispute relating to the Patharia Hills Reserve Forest adjacent to the Lathitilla area but was not accepted by the Tribunal as a basis for the determination of the thana boundaries.

It is significant that after the Radcliffe Award was given, the Government of Assam vide their notification No.AAP.72/4, dated the 15th September, 1947 which described the boundary of the Karimganj sub-division, excluded this area from Assam. Moreover, the district map of Cachar, prepared by Assam Government after partition (in 1950) excludes the area (now claimed by Assam) from Cachar district.

The territory in question thus clearly belongs to Pakistan and the boundary in this sector should be demarcated according to the Radcliffe Award. Pakistan remains prepared to resolve this dispute through any mutually acceptable and universally recognised method of peaceful settlement.

2870. Statement by External Affairs Minister M. C. Chagla in the Rajya Sabha on the incident involving the Deputy High Commissioner of Pakistan in Calcutta.

New Delhi, August 14, 1967.

On 18th July, 1967, the West Bengal Government reported to the Ministry of External Affairs that Mr. Hussain Imam, the Deputy High Commissioner for Pakistan in India at Calcutta, drove in his car, No. CD. 2136, on 4th July, 1967, followed by another car and stopped at some distance from the checkpost of the Customs Office at Jessore Road. Some three or four persons got down from the second car and after taking out something from the boot of the car which could not be distinguished from a distance crossed the un-demarcated part of the border across the fields instead of passing through the checkpost.

The Ministry of External Affairs on 9th August asked the West Bengal Government to furnish immediate a full report on this incident and also to intimate the reasons how these three or four persons who crossed the border were allowed by the Customs and Police authorities to cross the border in such an irregular manner. They were also requested to furnish information re-garding the second car accompanying the Pakis-tan Deputy High Commissioner's car and as to whether it was a diplomatic or a private car and also whether the Deputy High Commissioner’s car flew the Pakistan flag.

According to the latest report received from the West Bengal Government on the afternoon of 4th July, 1967, Mr. Hussain Imam, the Deputy High Commissioner of Pakistan in Calcutta, proceeded to Haridaspur border check-post in his car bearing No. CD—2136. He gave no prior intimation regarding this trip and his car did not fly the Mission’s flag. Another car bearing WBE registration mark joined the Deputy High Commissioner’s car near Gaighata and followed his car on the road to the border check-post. The second car had four passengers. About half a mile before the border check-post, both the cars slowed down and the passengers of the second car slipped out and ran away to the adjoining fields. The Deputy High Commissioner of Pakistan in Calcutta then proceeded to the check-post with his car. His car was identified there and he was asked whether he would like to cross the border. He replied that he had come for a sight-seeing trip only and proceeded back to Calcutta. The check-post staff were caught by surprise and the passengers of the second car slipped away before they could be intercepted. Subsequent investigation reveals that the second car belongs to Hindustan Iron and Steel Co. Of the four passengers in the second car, one was an unidentified Indian tout and the remaining three came from Asian Hotel in Calcutta where they had been registered as three Muslim gentlemen from Bombay.

It was evident that the Pakistan Deputy High Commissioner did not visit the border for sight-seeing purpose but that his visit was to escort the second car which carried the persons who crossed the border and to shield them against scrutiny by the Police. Customs or the public.

The visit was an unscheduled tour of the Deputy High Commissioner as he had not given the usual advance notice of it either orally or in writing to the West Bengal authorities.

The High Commission of India in Pakistan presents its compliments to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Government of Pakistan and with reference to their Note No. In (I)-I/9/67, dated July 28, 1967, in regard to the boundary dispute in Lathitilla-Dumabari area in Assam, has the honour to state that it is regrettable that the Government of Pakistan should have chosen to interpret the statement of the Minister of External Affairs without reference to the context in which it was made. In the course of an interpellation to a statement on the subject on 13th July, 1967, in the Lok Sabha, the Minister for External Affairs, while explaining in detail India's viewpoint in regard to the dispute, was asked by a member: “Why don’t you push out Pakistan from there?” and the Minister stated: “When it comes to it we will push them out, but at present .... we are trying to see with the assistance of the Surveyor General and the Land Records people whether we can draw the line according to the Radcliffe Award. If we fail then the question will come: What is the next step we should take". The Ministry will, therefore, appreciate that the reply given by the Indian Minister of External Affairs was not couched in threatening language: it has in fact re-emphasized India's policy of solving all disputes with Pakistan amicably through negotiations.

The High Commission has been authorised again to reassure the Ministry that this policy of the Government of India, which accords with that of the Government of Pakistan as expressed in the Tashkent Declaration, remains unchanged. The Government of India, therefore, reject the protest of the Pakistan Government.

2. The High Commission does not accept the statement of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs that the entire area of 1.7 square miles west of the boundary line between East Pakistan and Assam from the point 00Y in the north (adopted by mutual agreement at the Indo-Pakistan Ministerial level meeting in October 1959) to the THAL post in the south, rightfully belongs to Pakistan. It has repeatedly been made clear to the Government of Pakistan at various levels that the five villages of Lathitilla, Dumabari, Karkhana Putnigaon, Putnigaon and Borputnigaon belong to India in terms of the description in para 13 of the Radcliffe Award. There are ample records to prove that these villages have been in existence since 1919, if not earlier, when the cadastral maps of these villages were prepared and they have been administered by the Patharkandi Police Station (Assam, India) since long before partition. Sir Cyril Radcliffe drew his line on the Sylhet map of 1937 which, being based on a notification of 1893, does not bear the location of these villages and thus does not tally with the description or the actual position on the ground as it existed immediately before partition. The line on the Sylhet map of 1937 literally cuts across three Mouzas. Such a division, besides being irrational, could never have been intended by Radcliffe for whom the smallest unit which could not be further split was the Mouza. Hence these villages, which form part of Patharkandi Police Station, undisputably belong to India. This view is also supported by para 14 of the Radcliffe Award which says that “in the event of any divergence between the line as delineated on the map and as described in paragraph 13, the written description is to prevail”.

3. The High Commission appreciates the assurance of the Government of Pakistan that they are prepared to resolve the dispute through peaceful methods. As far as the Government of India are concerned, the High Commission would draw the attention of the Government of Pakistan to a meeting of the Foreign Secretary of the Government of India with the Pakistan High Commissioner on the 25th March, 1965, when the Government of India’s readiness to discuss the question of Lathitilla at any level acceptable to the Government of Pakistan was stressed. In an Aide Memoire dated the 9th April, 1965, the High Commissioner for Pakistan conveyed the agreement of the Government of Pakistan to the proposal and suggested that the matter be taken up at the next regular meeting of the Chief Secretaries of Assam and East Pakistan. Such a meeting did not take place in spite of the fact that suitable instructions were immediately issued to the Chief Secretary to the Government of Assam to hold a meeting with the Chief Secretary, East Pakistan. The High Commission would take this opportunity again to propose that the Pakistan Government arrange for a meeting to discuss this matter at any level acceptable to them.

The High Commission of India avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Government of Pakistan the assurances of its highest consideration.

Statement of Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi in the Rajya Sabha regarding the distress of the Indian citizens in Indian Enclaves within the Territory of Pakistan.

New Delhi, November 28, 1967.

There are 123 Indian enclaves in East Pakistan with an area of some 29.4 square miles against 74 Pakistani enclaves with an area of about 18.4 square miles in West Bengal. Under the Nehru-Noon Agreement of 1958, these enclaves are to be exchanged. The Constitution Amendment Act of 1960 and Acquired Territories Merger Act of 1960 provided for the exchange of the enclaves after demarcation. But no exchange has so far taken place owing to Pakistan's insistence that demarcation on the East Pakistan/West Bengal border should take place simultaneously with the demarcation of Berubari, which is itself pending the result of a petition before the Calcutta High Court whose judgment is awaited.

Subsequent to the Indo-Pak conflict of 1965, the Government of India have suggested to the Pakistan Government, the reciprocal grant of facilities for the sending of police parties to these enclaves. A reply from the Pakistan Government is awaited.

According to a report of the Government of West Bengal in August 1967, the condition of our nationals in the Indian enclaves is insecure owing to the activities of certain Pakistani elements in the areas surrounding the enclaves.

The Government of India are continuing their efforts to persuade the Pakistan Government to agree to the sending of police parties to the enclaves on a reciprocal basis.

Note from Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs to High Commission of India in Pakistan.

No. IN (I) – 1/9/67

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs presents its compliment to the High Commission of India in Pakistan and with reference to the High Commission’s Note No. ISL (Pol) -117/66, dated the 6th November, 1967, has the honour to state as follows.

2. The Ministry does not accept the High Commission’s interpretation of the statement made on the 13th July, 1967, by the Minister for External Affairs, Government of India, in the Lok Sabha, on the boundary dispute in the Lathitilla area. The position stated in Para 2 of the High Commission’s note regarding; the Government of India’s claim on certain areas is also unacceptable as it is not supported by facts.

3. However, in order to avoid further controversy the Government of Pakistan is prepared, as they have always been, to resolve the dispute through peaceful methods. In this connection it will be recalled that the Chief Secretaries of East Pakistan and Assam discussed the difficulties in the boundary demarcation in Lathitilla area at Shillong on 9th April, 1960 when it was decided to refer the case to the two Central Governments. The case was then discussed at the level of Surveyors-General of India and Pakistan at Dacca on 19th and 20th December, 1963 and at New Delhi on 8th and 9th January, 1964. The Ministry would suggest that the Surveyors General of Pakistan and India should again meet at an early date to pick up the threads of their discussions. If the above proposal is acceptable to the Government of India, the Surveyor-General of Pakistan will be requested to get in touch with his counterpart in India and settle the date and venue of the proposed meeting.

The Ministry avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the High Commission the assurances of its highest consideration.

Statement by the External Affairs Minister in the Lok Sabha in reply to a Calling Attention Notice regarding the entry of Indian policemen to the Indian Enclaves in East Pakistan.

New Delhi, August 14, 1968.

At a Conference of the Chief Secretaries of West Bengal and East Pakistan held in Dacca on the 9th and 10th April, 1965, it was decided inter-alia that officials of both countries should travel to and from the enclaves on regular passports and that visas for such visits would be issue. In pursuance of this decision, an Indian Police party was posted at Kotabhajni, one of the Indian enclaves in East Pakistan in August, 1965. Similarly, the East Pakistan Government posted a police party in their enclave of Dahagram.

In the days following the 1965-conflict, the Indian party returned to the Indian side, but the Pakistani party was not able to do likewise and continues to remain in Dahagram.

In August, 1965, the Pakistan Government requested transit facilities for the replacement of their police party in Dahagram. After consulting the State Government of West Bengal, this request was agreed to on condition that the West Bengal Government would be allowed similar transit facilities for a police party to be posted in the Indian enclave of Salbari. The Pakistan Government have agreed to this, but the details have yet to be worked out between the Governments of West Bengal and East Pakistan.

As police parties of either country have to transit the territory of the other in order to gain access to their enclaves, any arrangement for posting police parties can come about only on the basis of reciprocity, This, as already explained, has been accepted by the Government of Pakistan.
The dispute over interpretation of the Radcliffe Award relating to the Lathitella area of the Sylhet-Cachar border was last discussed at the level of Surveyors General of India and Pakistan at Dacca on the 19th and the 20th December, 1963 and at New Delhi on the 8th and the 9th January, 1964.

2. The Governments of India and Pakistan agreed in principle in 1967 to further discuss the dispute with a view to settling it peacefully. In an exchange of notes an agreement was arrived at in 1968 that the Surveyors General of the two countries should meet at an early date with that objective in view. Subsequently, the Surveyor General of Pakistan wrote to his Indian counterpart on the 18th January 1969 inviting him for a meeting at Islamabad in February 1969. He subsequently sent reminders to the Surveyor General of India on the 1st of March and one 3rd April, 1969. Meanwhile the Surveyor General of India in his communication of the 2nd April, 1969, has stated that due to “pressing commitments” it would not be possible for him to have a meeting with his counterpart in Pakistan “in the near future.”

3. It would be appreciated that early demarcation of the border near Lathitella on Assam-East Pakistan border will contribute to a great extent to the lessening of the tension in the border areas. The Government of Pakistan have, therefore, instructed the Pakistan High Commission in New Delhi to approach the Government of India with a view to expediting a meeting of the two Surveyors General at an early date in Islamabad A note verbale No.In(I)-I/4/69 dated the 25th April, 1969, has already been addressed to the Indian High Commission in Islamabad to this effect.

No. 1 (8) – CS.VI/68 September 1, 1969.

The High Commission for Pakistan in India presents its compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India, and with reference to the discussions between officials of the High Commission and the Ministry of External Affairs has the honour to state as follows.

2. An agreement between Secretary, Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India, Mr. Kewal Singh and Secretary, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Government of Pakistan Mr. S. M. Yusuf was reached during the former’s recent visit to Pakistan about the demarcation of borders on the Eastern and Western Sectors. According to the agreement the two Surveyors General were to take up demarcation of boundaries in both sectors.

3. The Ministry of External Affairs had suggested that the Officers In-charge of the two Survey Teams should meet at Islamabad from September 8 to 10, 1969 to discuss outstanding work on the Western Sector. The Government of Pakistan have no objection to this arrangement and will be glad to receive Col. Bedi, Officer In-charge of the Indian Survey Team in Islamabad on the said dates. Col. Bedi and Mr. Rafique should prepare for a subsequent meeting between the two Surveyors General, as already agreed upon. The full composition of Col. Bedi’s party may kindly be communicated to the High Commission as soon as possible.

4. Meanwhile, the Government of Pakistan hopes that an early date will be fixed for a meeting of the two Surveyors General about the demarcation of (a) Lathitilla Dumabari Sector and (b) Chittagong Hill Track and Mizo Sector. In this connection, the High Commission has been instructed to emphasise the need for agreeing upon such a date at the Government of India’s earliest convenience.

The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry the assurances of its highest consideration.

SECTION - XII

INDIA-WEST PAKISTAN BORDER
INDIA-WEST PAKISTAN BORDER

New Delhi, August 12, 1947.

L/P&J/10/117:ff 30-39 12 August 1947

REPORT

To: His Excellency the Governor-General.

1. I have the honour to present the decision and award of the Punjab Boundary Commission which, by virtue of section 4 of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, is represented by my decision as Chairman of that Commission.

2. The Punjab Boundary Commission was constituted by the announcement of the Governor-General dated the 30th of June 1947, Reference No.D50/7/47R. The members of the Commission thereby appointed were Mr. Justice Din Muhammad, Mr. Justice Muhammad Munir, Mr. Justice Mehr Chand Mahajan, and Mr. Justice Teja Singh.

I was subsequently appointed Chairman of this Commission.

3. The terms of reference of the Commission, as set out in the announcement, were as follows:

“The Boundary Commission is instructed to demarcate the boundaries of the two parts of the Punjab on the basis of ascertaining the contiguous majority areas of Muslims and non-Muslims. In doing so, it will also take into account other factors.” We were desired to arrive at a decision as soon as possible before the 15th of August.

4. After preliminary meetings, the Commission invited the submission of memoranda and representations by interested parties. Numerous memoranda and representations were received.

5. The public sittings of the Commission took place at Lahore, and extended from Monday the 21st of July 1947, to Thursday the 31st of July 1947, inclusive, with the exception of Sunday, the 27th of July. The main arguments were conducted by counsel on behalf of the Indian National Congress, the Muslim League, and the Sikh members of the Punjab Legislative Assembly: but a number of other interested parties appeared and argued before the Commission. In view of the fact that I was acting also as Chairman of the Bengal Boundary Commission, whose proceedings were taking place simultaneously with the proceedings of the Punjab Boundary Commission, I did not attend the public sittings in person, but made arrangements to study daily the record of the proceedings and of all material sub-mitted for our consideration.

6. After the close of the public sittings, the Commission adjourned to Simla where I joined my colleagues, and we entered upon discussions in the hope of being able to present an agreed decision as to the demarcation of the boundaries. I am greatly indebted to my colleagues for indispensable assistance in the clarification of the issues and the marshalling of the arguments for different views, but it became evident in the course of our discussions that the divergence of opinion between my colleagues was so wide that an agreed solution of the boundary problem was not to be obtained. I do not intend to convey by this that there were not large areas of the Punjab on the west and on the east respectively which provoked no controversy as to which State they should be assigned to; but when it came to the extensive but disputed areas in which the boundary must be drawn, differences of opinion as to the significance of the term “other factors”, which we were directed by our terms of reference to take into account, and as to the weight and value to be attached to those factors, made it impossible to arrive at any agreed line. In those circumstances my colleagues, at the close of our discussions, assented to the conclusion that I must proceed to give my own decision.

7. This I now proceed to do. The demarcation of the boundary line is described in detail in the schedule which forms Annexure A to this award, and in the map attached thereto, Annexure B*. The map is annexed for purposes of illustration, and if there should be any divergence between the boundary as described in Annexure A and as delineated on the map in Annexure B, the description in Annexure A is to prevail.

8. Certain representations were addressed to the Commission on behalf of the States of Bikaner and Bahawalpur, both of which States were interested in canals whose headworks were situate in the Punjab Province. I have taken the view that an interest of this sort can not weigh directly in the question before us as to the division of the Punjab between the Indian Union and Pakistan since the territorial division of the province does not affect rights of private property, and I think that I am entitled to assume with confidence that any agreements that either of those States has made with the Provincial Government as to the sharing of water from these canals or otherwise will be respected by whatever Government hereafter assumes jurisdiction over the headworks concerned. I wish also to make it plain that no decision that is made by this Commission is intended to affect whatever territorial claim the State of Bahawalpur may have in respect of a number of villages lying between Sulemanke Weir and Gurka Ferry.

* The original maps attached to the Report of the Boundary Commission not traceable.
9. The task of delimiting a boundary in the Punjab is a difficult one. The claims of the respective parties ranged over a wide field of territory, but in my judgment the truly debatable ground in the end proved to lie in and around the area between the Beas and Sutlej rivers on the one hand, and the river Ravi on the other. The fixing of a boundary in this area was further complicated by the existence of canal systems, so vital to the life of the Punjab but developed only under the conception of a single administration, and of systems of road and rail communication, which have been planned in the same way. There was also the stubborn geographical fact of the respective situations of Lahore and Amritsar, and the claims to each or both of those cities which each side vigorously maintained. After weighing to the best of my ability such other factors as appeared to be relevant as affecting the fundamental basis of contiguous majority areas, I have come to the decision set out in the Schedule which thus becomes the award of the Commission. I am conscious that there are legitimate criticisms to be made of it: as there are, I think, of any other line that might be chosen.

10. I have hesitated long over those not inconsiderable areas east of the Sutlej River and in the angle of the Beas and Sutlej Rivers in which Muslim majorities are found. But on the whole I have come to the conclusion that it would be in the true interests of neither State to extend the territories of the West Punjab to a strip on the far side of the Sutlej and that there are factors such as the disruption of railway communications and water systems that ought in this instance to displace the primary claims of contiguous majorities. But I must call attention to the fact that the Dipalpur Canal, which serves areas in the West Punjab, takes off from the Ferozepore headworks and I find it difficult to envisage a satisfactory demarcation of boundary at this point that is not accompanied by some arrangement for joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on these headworks.

11. I have not found it possible to preserve undivided the irrigation system of the Upper Bari Doab Canal, which extends from Madhopur in the Pathankot Tahsil to the western border of the district of Lahore, although I have made small adjustments of the Lahore-Amritsar district boundary to mitigate some of the consequences of this severance; nor can I see any means of preserving under one territorial jurisdiction the Mandi Hydro-electric Scheme which supplies power in the districts of Kangra, Gurdaspur, Amritsar, Lahore, Jullundur, Ludhiana, Ferozepore, Sheikhpura, and Lyallpur. I think it only right to express the hope that, where the drawing of a boundary line cannot avoid disrupting such unitary services as canal irrigation, railways, and electric power transmission, a solution may be found by agreement between the two States for some joint control of what has hitherto been a valuable common service.
12. I am conscious too that the award cannot go far towards satisfying sentiments and aspirations deeply held on either side but directly in conflict as to their bearing on the placing of the boundary. If means are to be found to gratify to the full those sentiments and aspirations, I think that they must be found in political arrangements with which I am not concerned, and not in the decision of a boundary line drawn under the terms of reference of this Commission.

CYRIL RADCLIFFE

Annexure A to Appendix 1

1. The boundary between the East and West Punjab shall commence on the north at the point where the west branch of the Ujh river enters the Punjab Province from the State of Kashmir. The boundary shall follow the line of that river down the western boundary of the Pathankot Tahsil to the point where the Pathankot, Shakargarh and Gurdaspur tahsils meet. The tahsil boundary and not the actual course of the Ujh river shall constitute the boundary between the East and West Punjab.

2. From the point of meeting of the three tahsils above mentioned, the boundary between the East and West Punjab shall follow the line of the Ujh river to its junction with the river Ravi and thereafter the line of the river Ravi along the boundary between the tahsils of Gurdaspur and Shakargarh, the boundary between the tahsils of Batala and Shakargarh, the boundary between the tahsils of Batala and Narowal, the boundary between the tahsils of Ajnala and Narowal, and the boundary between the tahsils of Ajnala and Shadara, to the point on the river Ravi where the district of Amritsar is divided from the district of Lahore. The tahsil boundaries referred to, and not the actual course of the river Ujh or the river Ravi, shall constitute the boundary between the East and West Punjab.

3. From the point on the river Ravi where the district of Amritsar is divided from the district of Lahore, the boundary between the East and West Punjab shall turn southwards following the boundary between the tahsils of Ajnala and Lahore and then the tahsils of Tarn Taran and Lahore, to the point where the tahsils of Kasur, Lahore and Taran Taran meet. The line will then turn southwestward along the boundary between the tahsils of Lahore and Kasur to the point where that boundary meets the north-east corner of village Theh Jharolian. It will then run along the eastern boundary of that village to its junction with village Chathianwala, turn along the northern boundary of that village, and then run down its eastern boundary to its junction with village Waigal. It will then run along the eastern boundary of village Waigal to its junction with village Kalia, and then along the southern boundary of village Waigal to its junction with village Panhuwan. The line will then run down the eastern boundary of village Panhuwan.
to its junction with village Gaddoke. The line will then run down the eastern border of village Gaddoke to its junction with village Nurwala. It will then turn along the southern boundary of village Gaddoke to its junction with village Katluni Kalan. The line will then run down the eastern boundary of village Katluni Kalan to its junction with villages Kals and Mastgarh. It will then run along the southern boundary of village Katluni Kalan to the north-west corner of village Kals. It will then run along the western boundary of village Kals to its junction with village Khem Kahan. The line will then run along the western and southern boundaries of village Khem Kahan to its junction with village Maewala. It will then run down the western and southern boundaries of village Maewala, proceeding eastward along the boundaries between village Mahadeipur on the north and villages Sheikhupura Kuhna, Kamalpur, Fatehwala and Mahewala. The line will then turn northward along the western boundary of village Sahjra to its junction with villages Mahadeipur and Machhike. It will then turn north-eastward along the boundaries between villages Machhike and Sahjra and then proceed along the boundary between village Rattoke and Sahjra to the junction between villages Rattoke, Sahjra and Mabuoke. The line will then run north-east between the villages Rattoke and Mabuoke to the junction of villages Rattoke, Mabuoke, and Gajjal. From that point the line will run along the boundary between villages Mabuoke and Gajjal, and then turn south along the eastern boundary of village Mabuoke to its junction with village Nagar Aimanpur. It will then turn along the north-eastern boundary of village Nagar Aimanpur, and run along its eastern boundary to its junction with village Mastke. From there it will run along the eastern boundary of village Mastke to where it meets the boundary between the tahsils of Kasur and Ferozepore.

For the purpose of identifying the villages referred to in this paragraph, I attach a map of the Kasur tahsil authorized by the then Settlement Officer, Lahore District, which was supplied to the Commission by the Provincial Government.

4. The line will then run in a south-westerly direction down the Sutlej River on the boundary between the Districts of Lahore and Ferozepore to the point where the districts of Ferozepore, Lahore and Montgomery meet. It will continue along the boundary between the districts of Ferozepore and Montgomery to the point where this boundary meets the border of Bahawalpur State. The district boundaries, and not the actual course of the Sutlej River, shall in each case constitute the boundary between the East and West Punjab.

5. It is my intention that this boundary line should ensure that the canal headworks at Sulemanke will fall within the territorial jurisdiction of the West Punjab. If the existing delimitation of the boundaries of Montgomery District does not ensure this, I award to the West Punjab so much of the territory concerned as covers the headworks, and the boundary shall be adjusted accordingly.
6. So much of the Punjab Province as lies to the west of the line demarcated in the preceding paragraphs shall be the territory of the West Punjab. So much of the territory of the Punjab Province as lies to the east of that line shall be the territory of the East Punjab.

APPENDIX 'B'

Report of the official Committee on the subject of border incidents between East and West Punjab.

The Committee consisted of:-
Mr. Fida Hussain - Pakistan.
Mr. Sachdev - India.

(1) The position regarding border incidents between East and West Punjab was again reviewed and it was agreed that the decisions already arrived at in the Inter-Dominion Conference of 6/14th December, 1948 in regard to border incidents between East and West Punjab should be implemented forthwith in letter and in spirit.

(2) To achieve this end, detailed instructions shall be issued by the two Governments of East and West Punjab by the 15th April at the latest emphasizing the need for frequent meetings between the Inspectors General of Police of East and West Punjab accompanied by District Magistrates and Superintendents of Police concerned, institution of joint enquiries into all serious incidents and their review at the monthly conferences and in particular, instructions shall be issued:

(a) That F.I.Rs. of all border incidents shall be exchanged between the two I.Gs., these being sent by name. The I.G. of the other province would also be entitled to call for any case diaries and make any suggestions or remarks which would receive full and personal consideration of the other I.G.

(b) When a border raid or incidents occurs, the Superintendent of Police shall inform his opposite number by wireless signal immediately. This will enable the opposite Superintendent of Police to take immediate steps to have the particular incident investigated properly and to take any preventive measures he may consider expedient in those areas where such raids showed an increase.

Each district will nominate one official who would receive all such signals from the opposite side, keep a proper record and bring it to the notice of the Superintendent of Police for necessary action.

(c) Station House Officers, Inspectors and Gazetted Officers posted to border police stations or in supervisory charge of them should as far as possible be officers who have the confidence of the other side. If a Superintendent of Police loses confidence in a border Station House Officer on the other side or has any complaint or lack of cooperation from him he will forward his complaint to the Superintendent of Police of the district concerned and the Station House Officer should then be transferred away from the border.

(d) Strenuous and effective efforts shall be made to restore property stolen or persons abducted in such border incidents. This is imperative in the case of abducted persons particularly women.

(e) When a raider has been definitely named or identified in any particular incident, strong and effective action shall be taken against him.

(f) List of persons who are notorious for committing border raids should be exchanged between the Superintendents of Police of the border districts concerned and strong and effective action shall be taken by the home police against the persons complained against.

(g) Collective penal action in the shape of collective fines or otherwise shall be taken against such villages as are found to have organized or connived at the commission of border raids.
(h) Every effort shall be made by the S.Ps. of border districts and the gazetted officers under them to establish cordial relations with their opposite numbers in these districts.

(i) Facilities shall be provided in the form of permanent permits, etc., to S.Ps. and gazetted officers of border districts to enable them to meet their opposite number frequently and at a short notice.

(j) The Inspectors General of Police will submit a monthly report of their work to their respective Governments for their onward submission to the Dominion Governments.

(k) Copies of these instructions shall be exchanged between East and West Punjab Governments immediately after issue.

(3) A warning shall be repeated by the two Provincial Governments to the local border police, Home Guards and National Guards, etc., asking them to stop giving any direct or indirect assistance to the raiders on both sides. Similar warning should be issued to the military along the border by the two Dominion Governments. Where, as a result of the monthly conferences of the two I.Gs., it appears that the military and police personnel are involved in the raid, immediate disciplinary action shall be instituted by the Provincial or the Dominion Governments concerned; and

(4) The two Provincial Governments shall again take steps to publicise these decisions along the border areas so that miscreants and raiders on either side know that effective steps shall be taken against them in the event of their participation in such activities.

Subject: Raids on Bikaner- Proposal for periodical meetings of I.G.P. Bikaner and the Commissioner of Police, Bahawalpur.

Sir,

I am directed to say that incidents on the Bikaner-Bahawalpur border have of late increased and in view of the seriousness of the more recent raids the situation has, on the whole, deteriorated. The Government of India consider that periodical meetings and closer cooperation between the Heads of Bikaner and Bahawalpur Police Departments is likely to be of immense value in putting a stop to border raids and improving the situation. They therefore request that the Inspector General of the Bikaner State and the Commissioner of Police of the Bahawalpur State should be authorised to meet periodically in just the same way as the Inspector General of Police of East and West Punjab have been authorised to meet under Inter-Dominion Agreement of December, 1948 for the purpose of devising measures to avoid border incidents.

2. The Government of India further considers it desirable that both these officers should be invited, whenever necessary, to the meetings of the Inspector General of Police of the West and East Punjab.

3. I am to request that if the Government of Pakistan agree with the views of the Government of India, necessary instructions may kindly be issued to the Bahawalpur State and to the Government of West Punjab to put the proposals into effect. On hearing from the Government of Pakistan, the Government of India will issue similar instructions to be Bikaner State 2880. Minutes of the meeting held at Circuit House, Amritsar, on the 30th May, 1949, at 11 a.m. to consider measures to stabilize the boundary between East and West Punjab.

The following officers attended:-

West Punjab Government

1. Mr. Akhtar Hussain, OBE, PAS, Financial Commissioner, Colonies and Resettlement, West Punjab.

2. Mr. Nasrullah Khan, Revenue Secretary to F.C., West Punjab.

East Punjab Government

3. Rai Bahadur Gita Ram Garg, Chief Engineer, I.B. (Irrigation Branch)

4. Mr. B.S. Talwani, Under Secretary, I.B.

2. The following decisions were reached subject to the limitations mentioned below :-
(1) Unless where it is specifically so recommended, we do not suggest any permanent change in the boundary as fixed by the Radcliffe Award.

(2) Where the boundary runs near a river, the area of the Indian Dominion, which may be for the time being on the Pakistan side of the river, should be made over for management to the Pakistan Government. Similarly, the area of the Pakistan Dominion, which may be for the time being on the Indian side of a river, should be made over the management to the Indian Government. This arrangement will be subject to the following conditions:-

(a) The arrangement may be in the first instance for a period of five years renewable thereafter, if necessary, for a further period to be then determined.

(b) Each Dominion may exclude any portion of its area across a river from the operation of this arrangement before it is finalized.

(c) Land revenue in respect of the area on the other side of a river made over to a Dominion for management should be adjusted at the end of each year, and credited in favour of the Dominion to which the area belongs under the Radcliffe Award. Cesses should, however, be appropriated by the Dominion in temporary occupation of the area.

(d) Legislation will have to be enacted by each Dominion giving effect to the above arrangement after it is finalized. Both criminal and civil jurisdiction of the area concerned shall vest in the Dominion charged with its management. A copy of the revenue records of the areas made over shall be exchanged. These will include the latest Jamabandi, Khasra Girdawari and the village maps of all the estates involved.

(e) No compensation will be claimed by either Dominion for any works constructed or other developments undertaken in the area in its temporary occupation or on any grounds whatsoever.

(f) A list showing the areas of the East Punjab villages across a river on the Pakistan side (similar to the list attached supplied by the F.C., West Punjab) should be supplied to F.C., R.C., (Financial Commissioner, Resettlement and Colonies) West Punjab should be supplied to F.C., R.C., West Punjab, with as little delay as possible and in any case before the next meeting.

(g) Explanation: The word "river" used in sub-para 2(2) means the Sutlej, Ravi, Ujh, Tarnah or Masto, whichever of these is nearest the boundary fixed by Radcliffe Award.
(h) Detailed statements and plans showing areas to be made over by a Dominion will be prepared by that Dominion as soon as possible and in any case before the next meeting, and sent to the other Dominion.

(i) This arrangement is subject to the confirmation at the next meeting.

(3) The East Punjab Government will propose at the next meeting certain permanent changes in the boundary. These changes will be proposed in the interests of Irrigation arrangements. An advance copy of proposals should be sent to the F.C.R.C., West Punjab.

(4) The F.C.R.C., West Punjab, pointed out that, according to the Radcliffe Award, they were entitled to the area covered by the Sulemanke head-works, and that, according to their interpretation of the word "Head-works", they were entitled to the following:

(a) the two marginal Bunds according to the retired alignments as existing on the 15th August 1947, as well as the weir;
(b) the land situated between the Bunds where their open ends are joined by a straight line;
(c) the land near the weir situated in the old Ferozepore district and originally acquired for use at the time of construction of the Head-works and for the head reaches of the two Bahawalpur State Canals. This land is contiguous to but outside the left marginal bund; and
(d) the head-works, railway land from Sulemanke to Chananwala. The proposition that "Head-works" include all works connected with the "Weir" is one which cannot be denied, especially as the "Weir" is ineffective in the absence of the two marginal embankments, the cost of which has been debited to the Head-works. A reference to technical books and the Project Estimate will clearly support this proposition.

The Chief Engineer, I.B., West Punjab, objects to this interpretation. It is understood that the dispute has been referred to the Government of India through the Pakistan Government, and, therefore, F.C.R., East Punjab thought that he would await the instructions of the Government of India in the matter.

(5) The F.C.R.C., West Punjab, mentioned certain disputes relating to the:

(i) incorrect inclusion of Chak Ladho Ke in the Indian Dominion; and
(ii) boundary near Wagha and Khem Karan.

It was considered that the F.C.R.C., West Punjab, should send papers and plans on each of these disputes before the next meeting to the F.C.R., East Punjab, so that these could be considered by East Punjab Govt., and decisions arrived at the next meeting.

(6) It was agreed that schadas and boundary pillars required to be maintained under the Land Revenue Act along the Indo-Pakistan border between East and West Punjab should be supplied and maintained in a state of proper repair. F.C.R., East Punjab, however, explained that so far as the nationals of the Indian Dominion were concerned the boundary between East and West Punjab was very clear, and there was no need for the erection of any additional boundary pillars. F.C.R.C., West Punjab, however, thought that from the point of view of Pakistan Government additional pillars were required between two consecutive boundary pillars maintained under the Land Revenue Act where the distance between them was considerable. It was decided that Tahsildars of the Tehsils concerned should meet and report the number of additional boundary pillars required at prominent corners along the land boundary where the distance between two consecutive boundary pillars maintained under the Land Revenue Act was considerable. The Tehsildars should also report the sum required for the repairs of the boundary pillars and schadas maintained under the Land Revenue Act, so that cost of maintenance of these repairs may be provided and shared equally between the Governments of India and Pakistan.

Subject: Border incidents.

Sir,

I am directed to refer to your express letter No. F.12-5/49-Pak.1, dated the 26th April, 1949, and to state that the Government of Pakistan agree that it will be of great advantage if periodic meetings are held between the Inspector-General of Police, Bikaner State, and the Commissioner of Police, Bahawalpur State, with a view to devise ways and means for preventing border incidents and improving the situation. They suggest that such meetings should be held between either bordering Provinces and States also, i.e. between Sind, Bahawalpur and Khairpur and Bikaner, Jodhpur, Jaisalmer and Kutch. The military authorities should also be represented at these conferences, but in order to restrict the number of participants and bring about speedy settlement of incidents locally it is suggest that the meetings should be confined to respective bordering States and Provinces only. In the beginning, joint meetings of all Provinces and States concerned may, however, if desired be held to work out details and to evolve as far as possible a uniform procedure.

2. It is suggested that the meetings should be held quarterly or more frequently, if necessary, and the general procedure at present in force for the prevention of border incidents on the East Punjab - West Punjab border vide paragraph 9, sub paragraphs (2) - (5) of Appendix V of the Delhi Agreement of the 4th April, 1949, should also be made applicable to all the borders in the above cases.

3. I am to request that, if the Government of India agree to the above proposals, necessary instructions may please be issued to the appropriate authorities concerned in India and a copy sent to the Government of Pakistan.
so that similar instructions may be issued by them also.

I have the honour to be

2882. Note from Pakistan High Commission in India to Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, April 24, 1950.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India

New Delhi

No. F. 62(6)P/50/1161 24th April, 1950

The High Commission for Pakistan in India present their compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs of the Government of India, New Delhi, and have the honour to say that a reference to the correspondence exchanged between the Governments of India and Pakistan regarding the Suleimanki Headworks will show that the matter has three aspects. The first is the question of applying the Radcliffe award and marking the definitive demarcation of the boundary. The second is the question of withdrawal of police and military pickets from the disputed area pending agreement on the exact line of the boundary. The third is the question of inspection and maintenance of the left marginal bund of the headworks pending withdrawal of the pickets and pending demarcation of the boundary.

The Government of Pakistan have deferred replying to express letter from Foreign, New Delhi, to Foreign, Karachi, No. F.37-2/49-Pak.III, dated the 19th January, 1950, dealing with the first aspect of this matter. A reply on this aspect will be sent shortly. This note deals only with the last aspect which is one of continuing urgency.

It has been appreciated by the Government of India from the very outset that it is of vital importance that the left marginal bund of the Suleimanki Headworks should be urgently inspected and maintained. In Mr. Dutt's letter No. F.12-9/48-Pak.I, dated the 30th May, 1949, it was stated inter alia "However, we are writing to the East Punjab Government drawing their attention to the previous agreement that necessary facilities will be given to the West Punjab staff for attending to the repairs of the left marginal bund and asking for confirmation that no interference is in practice being made." Letters from the Deputy High Commissioner for India in Pakistan to the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, No. IHC-1-Poll/49-XXIII, dated the 1st June, 1949, also said "The Government of India have, however, drawn the attention of the East Punjab Government to the matter and asked them to ensure that West Punjab officials concerned are given the necessary facilities for attending to repairs of the bund and that there is no interference with them." Again Mr. Dutt’s letter No. F.12-9/48-Pak-I, dated the 21st June, 1949, stated "As regards repairs to the bund, however, we have already instructed the East Punjab Government to give necessary facilities to the West Punjab staff and we are not aware that this instruction is not being carried out..................However, no obstruction has been placed in the way of the West Punjab irrigation staff coming over for the maintenance of the bund." Notwithstanding these assurances, the appropriate Pakistan officials have been stopped when they have sought to inspect and repair the left marginal bund of the Suleimanki Headworks.

With the recent happy improvement in the handling of questions between the two countries, the Government of Pakistan are confident that arrangements will now quickly be made by the Government of India to ensure that the necessary inspection and repair may be carried on by Pakistan on the left marginal bund of the Suleimanki Headworks. Such arrangements will, of course, be entirely without prejudice to the contentions of the respective Governments as to the demarcation of the boundary.

It will accordingly be appreciated if assurance can be given that the necessary instructions have been issued so that inspection may be resumed promptly by the appropriate Pakistan officials and repairs, wherever necessary, carried out.

The High Commission take this opportunity to renew to the Ministry of External Affairs the assurances of their highest consideration.

The Ministry of External Affairs,
Government of India, New Delhi.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India

New Delhi

No. F. 62(6)P/50/3101 27th October, 1950

The Pakistan High Commission in India present their compliments to the Government of India, Ministry of External Affairs and with reference to their No. No. 6-3/50-Pak.III, dated the 9th June, 1950, have the honour to state as follows :

2. The Government of Pakistan maintain that the land under the left marginal bund, lying between the two bunds, acquired in connection with the headworks, under the head reaches of the canals and under the railway line from Suleimanki to Chananwala are essential parts of the headworks and have consequently been awarded to Pakistan by Sir Cyril Radcliffe. The Government of India on the other hand maintain that the award is to be interpreted as having given certain of these lands to India. The Government of India have set up in the disputed areas military pickets which have prevented inspection and repair by Pakistan of parts of the left marginal bund essential for the safety of the headworks. Whatever the merits of respective contentions it is clear that there exists a boundary dispute at Suleimanki and that within the disputed area are marginal bunds essential to the safety of the headworks and to irrigation that is exclusively in Pakistan.

3. A suggestion of the Government of Pakistan that this boundary dispute be referred to the Commission already considering other boundary questions was not accepted by the Government of India.

4. There is no similarity between the problem giving rise to the arrangements made at Ferozepore headworks and that at Suleimanki. The arrangements at Ferozepore headworks were made after the boundary was delimited and there is no boundary dispute with respect to the area around Ferozepore.

5. The arrangements made at Ferozepore take into account that the canals taking off from that headworks irrigate areas in both India and Pakistan. At Suleimanki, in contrast, all the canals taking off from headworks irrigate only in Pakistan.

6. The questions first to be settled are, as explained in High Commission's note No. F.62(6)P/50-1161, dated the 24th April, 1950:
(i) The delimitation of the boundary between the two Governments at Suleimanki headworks.

(ii) The question of withdrawal of police and military pickets from the disputed area pending agreement on the exact line of the boundary.

(iii) The question of inspection and maintenance of the left marginal bund of the headworks pending withdrawal of the pickets and pending demarcation of the boundary.

To these the Government of India have suggested there be added the question of the arrangements of a permanent character to be arrived at for the maintenance of the bunds.

Discussions as to the eventual permanent arrangements can only be undertaken after the settlement of the first, second, and third questions. The Government of Pakistan are prepared to take part in a conference with the Government of India for the purpose of settling all questions in dispute.

7. The Government of Pakistan hope that in the present atmosphere of goodwill between the two countries, it will be possible to reach an ultimate settlement of the question at the proposed conference. In case, however, no settlement is reached at the conference, the Government of Pakistan would request the Government of India to agree to refer the matter for arbitration. Prior agreement to such an arrangement is, in the opinion of the Government of Pakistan, bound to enhance the chances of the success of the conferences.

8. The High Commission take this opportunity to renew to the Government of India the assurances of their highest consideration.

The Ministry of External Affairs,
Government of India,

Note from High Commission of India in Pakistan to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

No.Poll.30/50-II. Dated the 22nd/23rd November, 1950

The Indian High Commission in Pakistan present their compliments to the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations and have the honour to state that the Government of India have seen the new map of Pakistan on the scale of 1"-50 miles, issued recently by the Surveyor General of Pakistan. This map according to the Government of India is inaccurate in several essential particulars so far as the delineation of the boundaries between India and Pakistan is concerned. Some of the inaccuracies are detailed below for the purpose of illustrations:-

1. The boundary is taken through the middle of the Rann of Cutch and not along its northern edge which has always been the accepted boundary.

2. The boundary is inaccurate in the neighbourhood of the Sulaimanki headworks at the north-east corner of the Bahawalpur.

3. Jammu and Kashmir and Junagadh are shown as belonging to Pakistan.

4. The boundary immediately west of that which formed the subject of dispute No.IV between India and Pakistan in the Karimganj area has been drawn as Pakistan would like it to be and not as it should be in accordance with the Bagge Tribunal award.

5. The boundary in the vicinity of the junction or the Mathabhanga and the Ganges is slightly inaccurate.

6. Just north of Ferozepore the boundary is inaccurately shown.

The inaccuracies listed above are by no means exhaustive.

2. In the Pakistan map referred to above is the small scale inset map showing Hyderabad as a foreign country. Hyderabad is a constituent state of India.

The High Commission avail themselves of this opportunity to renew to the Government of Pakistan the assurances of their highest consideration.

2885.  Note from the Ministry of External Affairs to Pakistan High Commission in India.

New Delhi, December 13, 1950.

Ministry of External Affairs
New Delhi

No. F. 6 - 3/50 - Pak. III
The 13th December, 1950.

The Ministry of External Affairs present their compliments to the High Commission for Pakistan in India and with reference to their Note No. F.62(6)/P/50-3101, dated the 27th October, 1950, have the honour to state as follows:

2. The Government of India are glad to note that the Government of Pakistan are prepared to take part in a conference for the purpose of discussing the several questions mentioned in para 6 of that note.

3. With reference to paragraphs 4 and 5 of the note, however, the Government of India would invite attention to para 2 of express letter No. F.37-2/49-Pak.III, dated 19th January, 1950, from Foreign, New Delhi, to Foreign, Karachi, and reiterate their view that the exact significance of the terms of the Radcliffe Award with regard to the delimitation of boundary in the vicinity of Suleimanki Headworks cannot be appreciated without reference to the delimitation of the boundary near Ferozepur Headworks made in that award. They consider it essential, therefore, that arrangements for the maintenance of the left marginal bund near Suleimanki should be discussed in the context of the arrangements for the maintenance of the right marginal bund near Ferozepur.

4. The Government of India reciprocate the hope that in the present atmosphere of goodwill between the two countries, it will be possible to reach by negotiation a satisfactory settlement of the questions referred to above. They consider it unnecessary, therefore, to discuss, at this stage, the procedure that may have to be adopted in case the proposed conferences does not unfortunately lead to an amicable settlement of the question involved.

5. The Government of India would be glad if the Government of Pakistan would now intimate the name of their representatives to the proposed conferences and suggest a time and place for the meeting.

6. The Ministry take this opportunity to renew to the High Commission the assurances of their highest consideration.

Note from Pakistan High Commission in India to Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, February 23, 1951.

Office of the High Commissioner
For Pakistan in India
New Delhi

No. F.62(4)P/51-480 23rd February, 1951

The Pakistan High Commission in India present their compliments to the Government of India, Ministry of External Affairs, New Delhi, and with reference to their Note No. F.6-3/50-Pak.III, dated the 13th December, 1950, have the honour to state as follows:

2. The Government of Pakistan are pleased to note that the two Governments are agreed to take part in a conference for the purpose of discussing the several questions mentioned in paragraph 6 of the High Commission’s note No.F.62(6)P/50-3101, dated the 27th October, 1950.

3. With respect to paragraph 3 of the note of the Government of India dated the 13th December, 1950, the Government of Pakistan consider it appropriate that each side should be free to put forward in the conference such matters as it considers to be relevant to the proper delimitation of the boundary at SULEIMANKI pursuant to the Radcliffe Award and to the solution of other questions affecting the safety of the headworks and the irrigation systems they serve. It would not, however, be appropriate for either side to seek to commit the other before the conference as to the significance of any particular matter or the context in which the discussion should take place. It must be understood therefore that each side enters the conference free of any commitment beyond the determination to achieve a proper solution. If this cannot be reached by agreement on the merits, it is to be hoped that the representatives of the two Governments will work out an agreed procedure settling this dispute by prompt and impartial arbitration.

4. The Government of India have asked that a time and place be suggested for the conference. The Government of Pakistan suggest that the conference be held at Karachi. The exact date of the conference and the composition of the Pakistan delegation will be intimated later.

5. The Pakistan High Commission take this opportunity to renew to the Government of India the assurances of their highest consideration.
Ministry of External Affairs in their Note No. F.6(3)/Pak/50 dated the 8th May, 1951 "reiterated" to the Pakistan High Commission "their readiness to discuss the several questions mentioned in paragraph 6 of the High Commission's " above note. New Delhi also expressed "every hope that an amicable settlement will be reached on the various questions to be discussed."]

Office of the High Commissioner For Pakistan in India

3. The factual position of Chak Ladheke was not realised until October, 1948, when, on close examination of the description of the Award and actual delineation on the map, it was discovered that there is only one point on the western and southern boundaries of village Khem Karan where the lines meets its junction with village Maewala and that this point is situated on the north-eastern boundary of Chak Ladheke which clearly means that it is part and parcel of village Ladheke. The Government of Punjab (Pakistan) informed the Government of Punjab (India) accordingly and requested them to make over the possession of the area. Later on this claim was taken up, amongst others, in the meeting of the Financial Commissioners of the Punjab (Pakistan) and India, held on the 30th May, 1949, in pursuance of the Inter-Dominion Agreement of December, 1948. The Financial Commissioner Revenue, Punjab (India), however, declined to discuss the question and suggested a reference to the Government of the Punjab (India). It was decided that this dispute would be considered at the next meeting between the two Financial Commissioners.

4. Neither the two Financial Commissioners have met so far nor has any reply been received from the Government of the Punjab (India) to the Note sent by the Financial Commissioner Punjab (Pakistan) on the 26th August, 1949, despite repeated reminders. The Financial Commissioner, Resettlement and Colonies, Punjab (Pakistan), at last proposed a meeting with the Financial Commissioner Revenue, Punjab (India), early in 1950 at Jullundur to resume discussions, but the latter intimated his inability to do so. On the other hand, a notification NO.922-H-50/1/1375, dated the 24th March, 1950, has in the meantime been received from the Punjab (India) Government, wherein Chak Ladheke is shown as part of the Kasargarh Zail. Particular attention, in this connection, is invited to the report dated the 4th January, 1950, (enclosure to the above notification), made by the Superintendent of Police (Border), Amritsar, wherein it is stated inter alia that "Village Chak Ladheke before partition was in Zail Kasargarh (Kasur) and was in Sadr Kasur Police Station." The actual position is that there was no Kasargarh Zail in the pre-partition period. There were only two villages named Kasargarh A and Kasargarh B in the Kasur Zail of Tehsil Kasur, District Lahore. Both these villages are now included in Pakistan.

5. Thus, it will be seen that there is no justification whatever for the Government of the Punjab (India) to retain possession of Chak Ladheke, and their reluctance to discuss the matter between the two Financial Commissioners and their continued silence to the Note by the Government of the Punjab(Pakistan) is an unneighbourly act designed to delay matters. The Government of Pakistan should be grateful if instructions are issued to the Government of the Punjab(Pakistan) to make over the area in question to the Government of the Punjab(India) without any further delay.

6. The High Commission for Pakistan take this opportunity to renew to the Government of India the assurance of their highest consideration.

The Ministry of External Affairs
Government of India
New Delhi

On May 22nd 1951 the Pakistan High Commission further informed the Ministry of External Affairs that while they welcome the decision of New Delhi that the Financial Commissioners of East and West Punjab meet to discuss the question of village Chak Ladheke, added that the Financial Commissioner East Punjab had not responded to the efforts of West Punjab's Financial Commissioner to arrange the required meeting and requested the Ministry of External Affairs to issue instructions to him to respond to the Pakistan's efforts in this regard.

SECRET

Letter from Chief Secretary, Government of Punjab (India)
M. R. Sachdev to Secretary in the Ministry of External Affairs S. Dutt.

Simla, May 7, 1951.

D. O. No. 975 - PA/51. May 7, 1951

Punjab Civil Secretariat
Simla-2

My dear Dutt,

Will you kindly refer to correspondence ending with my Secret Code Telegram of the 5th regarding the Bund on the Ujh River on our side of the Indo-Pakistan Border in the Gurdaspur District?

2. I had invited our Gurdaspur District officers and the irrigation Engineers responsible for the construction of the Bund to meet me at Amritsar on the morning of the 1st of May, and I discussed the matter with them at considerable length. Our local revenue officials had recently had the measurements carried out on the spot. I enclose a rough plan (not included here) which will show the position. The Bund at A to D, which our Irrigation Engineers had constructed, was designed with the sole object of preventing the flooding of villages on our side of the border, and making the torrent here adhere to its normal course in the River. Last year also, we constructed a somewhat similar Bund, but this was more inwards on our side of the border. We found that this was ineffective, and this year, after surveying the position in conjunction with the local military authorities, our Engineers decided, both in the interests of economy and effective protection, to have the Bund at the present site. Along with the Bund our Engineers had to dig the cunnettes at EF, GH and LH to take the water to its original course. The river-bed here had silted up and without the construction of these cunnettes the water could not flow in the course of the river. The Engineers constructed these cunnettes in the belief - and this was then apparent from the Survey of India Maps - that this area of the river at the site was in our territory.

3. The measurements by the local revenue officials mentioned in the earlier part of paragraph 2 above, however, indicated that while the Bund was entirely in our territory, parts of the cunnettes were not. On the 26th of April, the Deputy Commissioner, Sialkot, rang up the Deputy Commissioner, Gurdaspur, and told him that as a counter-measure, and to prevent flooding on their side caused by our Bund, they had started constructing a similar Bund in their territory. This Bund, which was completed by Punjab (P) Authorities in two to three days’ time is indicated in the enclosed plan at OQP. According to our measurements, a part of this Bund lies in our territory. This Bund, although a very temporary and kacha sort of structure, was intended to prevent water going to its main course of the river, so that the object we had in mind of preventing flooding of our villages stands entirely defeated. There is now a big gap in our Bund at B C on account of the rush of the torrent here and so long as the Pakistan Bund stood at its present site, there was no point in our wasting effort and money on our Bund. The work had, therefore, to be suspended by our Engineers at the end of the last month. The present position on our side is that while the parts of the Bund at A B and C D are intact, the water is flowing through the gap on to our side.

4. I had a discussion with Mr. Majid, Chief Secretary, Punjab (P), at Lahore on the 2nd of May. The Deputy Commissioner, Sialkot, also happened to be there, and I had a talk with him also in the presence of Mr. Majid. The contention of Punjab (P) Authorities is that a part of our Bund, close to D, and the cunnettes were in their territory and the construction of these works had the inevitable effect of directing waters on to their villages, as the old river-bed here had silted up and the water of the river had found another course into our territory even before the partition of the province. They had to put up the Bund at OQP as a measure of self-protection. I told Mr. Majid that our measurements showed that a part of their Bund (particularly the portion at P) was in our territory. Mr. Majid said that they had also had measurements carried out by their revenue staff, and they had found that the whole of this Bund was in their own territory, and actually a part of our Bund and the cunnettes were in their territory also.

5. After some discussion, we agreed that the only solution was for us to have a joint measurement and demarcation of the site carried out at the site in the presence of senior revenue officers. It was agreed that the Commissioners, Jullundur and Lahore, should be deputed to have the joint measurements carried out with the help of their revenue experts. We further agreed that whoever had constructed works in the territory of the other will take immediate steps to dismantle the "Encroachments", unless we could agree on a plan acceptable to both, so that flooding on both sides, if any, could be avoided. In the event of the two Commissioners not agreeing on a common boundary at the site, Mr. Majid and I shall meet again to discuss the situation. Mr. Majid promised to convey this recommendation to the Pakistan Government and I, on my part, promised to convey it to the Government of India, so that their agreement is obtained to our carrying out joint demarcation of about two miles of the border on each side of the gap at B C. I trust you have since heard from the Pakistan Government and will accept this recommendation.
6. The further progress on our Bund, as you will see, is held up. There are now two courses open to us, depending on the actual boundary on the spot, which will be determined by the two Commissioners after carrying out joint measurements. We should either retain the Bunds at A B and C D and leave the gap at B C unfilled and, meanwhile, take steps to "train" this channel in our territory by further diggings. The suggestion has the obvious advantage that we have a source of water supply available to us within our own territory. We should see that the water in this channel is prevented from causing flooding in the neighbouring villages, although this will not be very easy to secure during the monsoons. The other course is to dig a channel along our Bund somewhat as indicated at X Y on the plan right up to the main course of the river in our territory and thereby prevent pressure on the Bund which could then be completed, should, of course, the whole of it, as our own measurements at present indicate, lie in our territory. We have instructed our Engineers to carry out a survey on the lines indicated above.

Yours sincerely
(M.R. Sachdev)

Secretary to the Government of India,
Ministry of External Affairs,
New Delhi.
(1) It is not a fact that the Northern edge of the Rann of Kutch has always been the accepted boundary. The High Commission will be aware that this boundary is under dispute which is borne out not only by the relevant correspondence but also by the 70 mile India First Edition Map, printed at the Survey of India’s Office, in which the word “disputed” is added to this boundary. The map under reference is thus showing the correct position.

(2) The High Commission have used the rather vague term “Inaccurate” and unless details are given the Ministry regret they can offer no comments.

(3) As the High Commission are aware, the State of Jammu and Kashmir and the State of Junagadh are forming the subjects of disputes pending before the U.N., and the Government of Pakistan do not acknowledge their occupation by India. The High Commission are, therefore, wrong in claiming that these states are forming part of India.

(4) The boundary immediately West of that which forms the subject of dispute No.IV between India and Pakistan in the Karimganj area has been drawn in accordance with the Bagge decision as accepted and published by both, the Governments of India and Pakistan.

(5) As the High Commission are aware, the boundary in the vicinity of the junction of the Mathabhanga and the Ganges is being demarcated jointly by both the Governments in accordance with the Award of the Inter-Dominion Boundary Dispute Tribunal.

2. The Government of Pakistan do not recognize the occupation of Hyderabad by India and it is, therefore, correct to show her on the map separately.

3. The Ministry avail themselves of this opportunity to renew to the High Commission the assurances of their highest consideration.

High Commissioner for India
Jahangir Sethna Road
New Town, Karachi

D.O. No.IHC/1/Poll.49/XXII, Dated the July 13, 1951

Subject: Suleimanki Headworks

My dear Puri

Will you please refer to your official Note No.F.6-3/50-Pak III dated 11th July, 1951, to the High Commission for Pakistan in India?

2. The Pakistan contention that “the proposal to go to arbitration was also canvassed with the representatives of the Government of India at the Conference, but they stated that they had instructions from their Government not to discuss this point” is not quite correct. What was stated on our side was that it was not an item on the agenda and that we had no instructions from our Government to discuss it.

3. You are in possession of my views. I feel that we should take a strong line and tell the Pakistan Government that the boundary between the Montgomery and the Ferozpur districts is well-defined and that the Radcliffe Award on the subject is completely unambiguous. There is, therefore, no boundary dispute as such and nothing to go to arbitration for, but we are always willing to meet the representatives of the Pakistan Government if they wish to discuss the position. We should also immediately or after a few days make a formal request for the withdrawal of the Pakistan pickets which have encroached on the geographical limits of the district of Ferozepur.

Yours Sincerely
(Khub Chand)
High Commissioner for India in Pakistan (Acting)

Letter from the Surveyor General of India to the Surveyor General of Pakistan.

Surveyor General's Office
Mussoorie (U.P.)-India

No.C./208/603/2 the 13 August, 1951

From : Colonel I.H.R. Wilson, M.I.S. (Ind),
Surveyor General of India

To : The Surveyor General of Pakistan, Karachi. (Through the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India)

Sub : Demarcation of the Indo-Pakistan Boundary along the Ujh River

Ref : Minutes of discussion held at Lahore on 29th June, 1951 between the Commissioners, Jullundur & Lahore Divisions.

The question of demarcating this small portion of the Indo-Pakistan boundary has been further discussed with the Commissioner, Jullundur Division and the Deputy Commissioner, Gurdaspur.

2. The position is that there is no indication whatever on the ground of the location of the Tahsil boundary, which now forms the International boundary. The Tahsil boundary, as shown on the Survey of India sheet No. 43 P/8 1st Edition 1919 (surveyed 1916-17) is, therefore, to be accepted as correct and re-laid on the ground in the areas under dispute.

3. The existing trigonometrical data in the vicinity of that portion of the boundary consists of traverse carried out by No.22(Riverain) Party (late Punjab Riverain Detachment) during season 1908-09 in connection with settlement operations. The traverse stations consisted, in the main, of village trijunction pillars but it is not known how many of these village trijunction pillars actually now exist on the ground and if they do exist, the fact that they are actually in the same position as when fixed by traverse has to be established. It is doubtful whether many of these villages trijunction pillars in the vicinity of the Ujh River can be established.
4. The Deputy Commissioner, Gurdaspur is letting us know what village trijunction pillars in this area exist and on receipt of this information, an officer of this Department will be sent out to carry out a reconnaissance of the area on the India side of the boundary to ascertain what existing trigonometrical data can be established.

5. If you are not in possession of the existing trigonometrical data extracts relating to the Pakistan side of the boundary can be supplied to you and it is presumed that you will have a reconnaissance of the area carried out as well.

6. On completion of the reconnaissance on both sides of the boundary I suggest that a meeting of Survey representatives be held to decide on the technical procedure to be followed for the demarcation of this portion of the boundary.

7. We hold the F.D.O. of sheet 43 P/S and the trigonometrical data, but we do not hold the original planetable section and connected records. These are presumably with you. Please confirm.

8. It will not be possible for any field work to be carried out during the present monsoon period and for some time after. It is not likely, therefore, that any work can be done until the end of October or beginning of November.

Surveyor General of India

Note from Ministry of External Affairs to Pakistan High Commission in India.

New Delhi, October 4, 1951.

Ministry of External Affairs

The Ministry of External Affairs present their compliments to the Pakistan High Commission in India and with reference to the correspondence resting with this Ministry's note No.F.22(4)-Pak.III/51, dated the 17th August, 1951 regarding the interpretation of Radcliffe Award in respect of Chak Ladheke in Punjab (I) and the meeting of the Financial Commissioners of Punjab (I) and Punjab (P) therefore, have the honour to say that the Government of Punjab (I) are as anxious to settle the dispute with regard to Chak Ladheke and other boundary areas as the Pakistan Government. The facts are the Financial Commissioner, Punjab (I), had called for certain information and document from the Financial Commissioner, Punjab (P), his letter dated the 23rd June, 1950. In spite of four reminders sent to the Financial Commissioner, Punjab (P) and his promise in May last that a reply will be sent in due course, no reply has been received so far. Besides, the Financial Commissioner, Punjab (I) had asked Punjab (P) Government to supply him a list of Punjab (P) areas falling on the Indian side of the rivers which they wanted to exclude from the management of Punjab (I) Government and this list has also not been supplied so far. In the last reply received by Punjab (I) Government in December, 1950, the Revenue Secretary to the Financial Commissioner, Punjab (P), had intimated that the information was still being collected and would be communicated in due course. In this connection, he was last reminded on the 14th August, 1951 by Punjab (I) Government.

2. In view of what has been stated above, it is apparent that the Punjab (P) Government themselves seem to be reluctant to move quickly and there is hardly any justification for the complaint that there has been delay on the part of the Financial Commissioner, Punjab (I) in meeting his opposite number in Punjab (P). The Pakistan High Commission will appreciate that it would have been futile to hold the proposed meeting between the two Financial Commissioners unless the information called for from the Punjab (P) Government was first made available. But in spite of this a meeting was, however, arranged at Lahore on the 9th August, 1951 but it was postponed as the two Financial Commissioners agreed that this was not the opportune time to meet in view of the prevailing circumstances. A fresh date will now be fixed for the meeting between the two Financial Commissioners shortly and will be communicated to the Pakistan High Commission in due course.
The Ministry of External Affairs present their compliments to the Pakistan High Commission in India and with reference to the High Commission's Note No.F.62(4)P/51-2021, dated the 9th July, 1951, have the honour to state as follows:

As the Government of Pakistan are aware, the question of demarcation of the boundary between Punjab(I) and Punjab(P) is being considered by the two Financial Commissioners under the Indo-Pakistan Agreement of 1948. It is possible that in the course of further discussions other disputes on the boundary between the two states may come to light. The Government of India consider that all the boundary disputes should be taken up together with a view to deciding on a suitable procedure for settling them and that further consideration of the particular dispute at Suleimanke should wait till then.

The Ministry take the opportunity to renew to the Pakistan High Commission in India the assurances of their highest consideration.

* Document No.2880.
The results of the discussions are given below:-

3. Item of the agenda - In the preliminary meeting held on the 11th April, 1952, the Financial Commissioner, Revenue, Punjab (India) suggested certain amendments (Annexure 'B') in paragraph 2(2) of the proceedings of the meeting held on the 30th May, 1949. He proposed that the meaning of the word ‘river’ given in paragraph 2(2) (g) should be so amended as to denote the main flowing stream (i.e. carrying biggest volume of water) and that the ‘main stream’ of the river should be determined every year. The Financial Commissioner, Resettlement and Colonies, Punjab (Pakistan) explained that the determination of the main stream every year would only increase the number of disputes. He felt that the difficulties which existed just after partition in regard to some villages belonging to one State being on the wrong side of the river did not now exist to the same extent and that there was no need for any arrangement to make over such areas for management to the other State as contemplated in the meeting at Amritsar on 30th May, 1949. Arrangements should, therefore, be made to facilitate each State taking over possession of such areas. This would avoid day to day difficulties. He mentioned, however, that if, after obtaining possession of such areas, either State felt that it was difficult for it to administer any particular area, it could offer it for management to the other State. The Financial Commissioner, Punjab (India) felt that immediate execution of an agreement of the kind contemplated in the Amritsar meeting on the 30th May, 1949 would be conducive to the prevention of border incidents in certain portions of the border. Both agreed, however, that till the talks continue and the matter is finally settled between the two countries, neither side should disturb the status quo.

4. Item 9 of the agenda - Both the Financial Commissioners agreed that it would facilitate the resolving of disputes if the whole of the boundary between Punjab (Pakistan) and Punjab (India) is demarcated by boundary pillars at appropriate points and intervals. The cost should be equally shared between the two States. The Commissioner, Lahore Division, and the Commissioner, Jullundur Division, were asked to make necessary suggestions for the implementation of this recommendation especially in respect of the following matters, i.e.

i) the total cost involved,

ii) the specification of the pillars to be set up,

iii) the staff required, and
iv) the procedure for resolving such boundary disputes as may arise during the course of demarcation.

They were also asked to submit a joint report by the 15th May, 1952.

5. Item 11 of the agenda - With this item the dispute regarding the occupation of Gatti No.9 (Kamaliwala) referred to the two Financial Commissioners by the two Central Governments, was also considered. The Commissioners of Lahore and Jullundur Divisions were asked to make a joint report regarding both after such enquiries as they may consider necessary, by the 30th April, 1952, to enable the Financial Commissioners to make their recommendations.

6. Items 4, 10, 12 & 13 of the agenda - It was decided that the Deputy Commissioners, Lahore and Amritsar, should meet at the spot and send a joint report to their respective Commissioners before the 15th May, 1952. It was further decided that if there is any difference of opinion among them, the two Commissioners should resolve the dispute and send a joint report by the 15th June, 1952. Meanwhile the two sides should ensure that status quo is not disturbed.

7. Item 1 and 7 of the agenda - The Financial Commissioner, Revenue, Punjab (India) mentioned that this item reached him late for consideration in this meeting and he had no time to ascertain whether any reference from the Chief Secretary or the Government of India had reached him on the subject, although a copy of the Government of India communication available with the Financial Commissioner, Punjab (Pakistan) showed that this reference should have reached him. The Financial Commissioner, Revenue, Punjab (India) promised to write to the Financial Commissioner, Resettlement and Colonies, Punjab (Pakistan) within ten days after seeing the correspondence on the subject whether the title of Pakistan to the area in question is admitted.

8. Item 5 of the agenda - The Financial Commissioner, Revenue, Punjab (India) explained that he had intended to verify the Pakistan claim from certain papers with the Deputy Commissioner, Amritsar, who unfortunately, due to illness, had not been able to attend this meeting. He promised to send his recommendation to the Financial Commissioner, Resettlement & Colonies, Punjab (Pakistan) in ten days.

9. Item 6 of the agenda - The Financial Commissioner, Revenue, Punjab (India) promised to look further into this matter.

10. Item 2 of the agenda - This matter was not considered as it does not concern the Financial Commissioners.

11. Item 3 of the agenda - This question was dropped for the present.
12. With reference to para 2 (3) of the proceedings of the meeting held on the 30th May, 1949, the Financial Commissioner, Revenue, Punjab (India) proposed four permanent changes in the boundary between Punjab (India) and Punjab (Pakistan). The Financial Commissioner, Resettlement and Colonies, Punjab (Pakistan) agreed to consider these proposals provided detailed proposals accompanied by maps were sent to him.

13. The next meeting was fixed for the 15th May, 1952, at 8.30 a.m. (Indian Standard Time) in the Canal Rest House at Ferozepur. The agenda for the next meeting should be exchanged so as to reach the Financial Commissioners by the 5th May, 1952.

ANNEXURE B.

(1) In clause 2(2)(g) of the proceedings of the meeting held on the 30th May, 1949, for "Sutlej, Ravi, Ujh, Tarnah or Masto" we should substitute "Sutlej or Ravi below the point where the boundary of the Gurdaspur Tahsil crosses the Ravi near village Chauntra."

(2) The words "Sutlej, Ravi, etc., used in clause 2(2)(g) of the proceedings, should denote the main flowing(i.e. carrying biggest volume of water) streams of Sutlej and Ravi.

(3) The 'main stream' of the "river" should be determined each year in a particular month say October, by representatives of the Canal Departments of the two Governments. The 'main stream' so determined will then be considered to be the main flowing stream up to the end of September in the following year irrespective of the fact whether during this period it carries the maximum volume of water or not.
Other points proposed for consideration

(1) In the case of areas in respect of which either the interpretation of the Radcliffe boundary award is disputed, or an encroachment is alleged, or there is any other dispute, between the Governments of India and Pakistan this agreement under consideration will not operate to interfere with the existing possession of any Government (Pakistan or India), and the disputes must be settled separately. A list of such disputed areas shall be prepared before an agreement is finalized.

(2) A portion of the area between the changed course of River Ujh and the district boundaries of Gurdaspur and Sialkot districts is offered to Pakistan on a permanent basis in exchange for the Pakistan loop in Indian territory between Husainiwala and Khem Karan.

(3) It was considered that before an agreement is finalised, the Revenue staffs of India and Pakistan should meet at the border (Wagha) and exchange copies of relevant Revenue records in order that areas may be handed over correctly. These records shall include the latest jamabandis, Khasra Girdawari and village maps and also the jamabandi, Khasra Girdawari and village maps for the period ending 15th August, 1947.

Financial Commissioner, Revenue, Punjab (India) mentioned that Revenue staffs of Gurdaspur District had pointed out that villages Sadhial, Daulat Chak, Khanpur Mamin, Khan Lawari, Chanial, Ramwal, Nawanpind etc., which lie on the Indian side or the rivers, had not been included in the statement sent to India by Pakistan.

2. I wish to bring to your notice two questions on which a dispute with Pakistan is apprehended. In the first case, an island called ‘Gatti Kamalewala’ in the Sutlej river, opposite Hussaniwala Headworks, is partly in our possession and partly in possession of the Pakistan forces. The possession of a part of this island is vital to our interests on account of proximity of the Headworks. However, it is feared that we shall have to evacuate our forces because our part of the island is lower and will probably get submerged in water during the floods. This will enable the Pakistan forces to occupy the whole of this island after the floods are over. In this connection, my Chief Secretary, Shri Nawab Singh, has written a D.O. letter No. 3668-Ptn.-52/4873, dated June, 28, 1952, to Shri R.K. Nehru, Secretary to the Ministry of External Affairs. I hope that the Government of India will issue suitable instructions in the matter as early as possible.

The second case relates to the demarcation of the boundary in accordance with an agreement drawn up in the Inter-Dominion Conference held at New Delhi on the 6th December, 1948. Our Financial Commissioner, Revenue, has held some meetings with his opposite number in Punjab (P) and, at first, it was agreed upon by them that the small bits of land belonging to one Dominion, which lay on the other side of the river, should be managed by the Government of the other Dominion on behalf of the first. This would have minimized border incidents. However, later on the Punjab (P) Government has been insisting that these bits of land, which lay on the wrong side of the river, should be managed by the Government to which they belonged. The real object behind this insistence is to get access to the Dera Baba Nanak Bridge which our military officers do not want to concede in any case. In this connection, an official communication will follow shortly.

Subject:- Demarcation of the boundary between Punjab (I) and Punjab (P).

My dear puri,

Will you kindly refer to the correspondence resting with Sachdev's D.O. letter No. 3261-P&M-51/III-1887 dated the 21st July, 1951, on the subject noted above? A further report received from Shri Kaul, Financial Commissioner, Revenue, Punjab State shows that action regarding the setting up of boundary pillars in terms of the agreement drawn up at the Indo-Pakistan Conference of 6th December, 1948, with regard to boundary disputes is being taken separately. With regard to the difficulties that arise on account of some villages belonging to one country being on the wrong side of the river in the other country it has been reported that it has not been possible to arrive at an agreement with the Financial Commissioner, Punjab (P). In this connection copies of paragraph 3 of the proceedings of the meeting held at Lahore from the 11th to 13th April, 1952, and of paragraph 3 of the proceedings of the meeting held at Ferozepur on the 15th May, 1952 are enclosed.

2. From a perusal of these documents it will be seen that in the Amritsar meeting (copy of the proceedings already supplied to you with Sachdev’s D.O. under reference) Shri Kaul and his counterpart in the Punjab (P) had, subject to certain conditions, agreed that where the boundary runs near a river, the areas falling on the wrong side of it should be handed over for management to the Government on whose side they actually lay though not belonging to that Government under the Radcliffe Award. However, in the last two meetings the Financial Commissioner Punjab (P), has changed his attitude on the issue involved. He now feels that the difficulties which existed just after partition in regard to some villages belonging to one State being on the wrong side of the river do not now exist to the same extent and that there is no need for any arrangement to make over such areas for the management to the other State as contemplated in the meeting at Amritsar on the 30th May, 1949. According to him arrangements should, therefore, be made to facilitate each State taking over possession of such areas belonging to it according to the Radcliffe Award, but lying on the wrong side of the river. He feels that this would avoid day to day difficulties. He mentioned, however, that if after obtaining possession of such areas, either State felt that it was difficult for it to administer any particular area, it could offer it for management to the other State.

3. Kaul, however, felt that immediate execution of the agreement of 30th May, 1949, would have been conducive to the prevention of border incidents in certain portions of the border. Our local officers of the Civil, Police and irrigation Departments are also of the same opinion. The General Officer Commanding, H.Q. East Punjab Area, Jullundur Cantt., also favours Kaul's point of view. He is of the opinion that the changed attitude of the Financial Commissioner, Punjab (P), is a move by Pakistan to get access to Dera Baba Nanak Bridge, which General Officer Commanding does not want to lose. A copy of his demi-official letter No. 215/11/G (OPS), dated the 14th June, 1952, to Kaul, is enclosed for perusal. (Not included here).

4. I am, therefore, desired to request you kindly to obtain the orders of the Government of India on the issue involved in view of the resolution of the Inter-Dominion Conference dated the 6th December, 1948*. The State Government suggest that the Government of India may approach the Government of Pakistan and impress upon them the desirability of entering into an agreement of the type contemplated in the meeting held at Amritsar on the 30th May, 1949.

Yours sincerely

(Nawab Singh)

* Document No. 2878.
2899. Letter from the Commonwealth Secretary, Ministry of External Affairs B.F.H.B. Tyabji to Pakistan High Commissioner in India Mohammad Shoaib Qureshi.

New Delhi, December 11, 1952.

D.O. No. D. 6481-P.III/52

Ministry of External Affairs
New Delhi

My dear High Commissioner,

I enclose a copy of an item that appeared in the Tribune of Ambala on the 23rd October, 1952.

I should like to draw your attention in particular to the following statements attributed to your Deputy High Commissioner in Jullundur:

(i) "that 52 border villages at present occupied by the Indian police are a part of our territory" and

(ii) "Pakistan had a claim on this 14 acres of land (in Ranian) and that was why they had occupied the territory."

2. The first statement presumably refers to regions in the Punjab where the river crosses the Radcliffe Boundary at successive points, thus placing Pakistani territory on the Indian side of the river and, conversely, Indian territory on the Pakistani side. As you are aware, both countries found it inconvenient to administer many of these areas; and consequently in 1949 the Financial Commissioners of the two Punjabs entered into an understanding that such areas would remain in the possession and management of the country on whose side of the river they lay, until the final demarcation of the boundary was completed.

3. In view of this position, we cannot but regard your Deputy High Commissioner's statement as misleading. It seems to have been phrased so as to suggest that Indian forces are wrongfully occupying Pakistani territory. In fact, however, these areas, many of which are uncultivated and uninhabited, are in our possession according to a mutual understanding, and there is no question of their being "occupied by the Indian police". Similar areas of ours are in Pakistani possession on the same basis, but I do not recall our Deputy High Commissioner in Lahore ever giving out to the Pakistani Press that Indian territory was being "occupied" by the Pakistani police.

4. The second statement of your Deputy High Commissioner surprises us no less. As far as we know, it is not the policy of your Government to disturb the status quo on the border. In fact, in a recent communication to us your Government referred expressly to "the spirit of the understanding reached between the Financial Commissioners of the two Provinces that pending final demarcation of the Boundary line the status quo should not be disturbed."

5. I regret to have to point out that the Deputy High Commissioner of Pakistan by making such a statement to the Press has exceeded the limits which normally should apply to the utterances of foreign diplomatic Agents in a friendly country.
It is indeed unfortunate that he should have thought it fit, on the eve of a meeting of the Financial Commissioners, to make such a statement.

Yours sincerely,

(B.F.H.B. Tyabji)

2900. Letter from Pakistan High Commissioner in India Shuaib Qureshi to Commonwealth Secretary in the Ministry of External Affairs B.F.H.B Tyabji.

New Delhi, March 9, 1953.

No.F.13(5)/P/53-667 Dated the 9th March, 1953
Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

My dear Tyabji,

Please refer to the correspondence resting with my d.o. letter No. F. 13(7)P/52-3302, dated the 23rd December, 1952, regarding Press Statements attributed to our Deputy High Commissioner of Jullundur.

2. The position as ascertained from the Deputy High Commissioner, Jullundur, is that some-time back the Press in the Punjab (I) started regular propaganda against Pakistan on what they called forcible occupation of Ranian by the Punjab (P) Police. Comments were published almost every day suggesting that the Indian Forces should expel the Punjab (P) Police. One day a local representative of the Tribune approached the Assistant information Officer attached to our Sub-Mission at Jullundur with a view to finding out our reactions to the criticism being leveled against us in regard to the Ranian dispute. The representative was conducted to the Deputy High Commissioner who told him that the matter was being given unnecessary publicity and prominence in the Indian Press and that the criticism against Pakistan was not justified because the final demarcation of the boundary in accordance with the Radcliffe Award was not yet complete. The Deputy High Commissioner further stated that so far as he was aware, there were several villages belonging to Pakistan which were on the Indian side of the river and similarly certain villages belonging to India were on the Pakistan side of the river. The Financial Commissioners of both the Punjabs meet periodically to discuss boundary disputes and a meeting in this connection was to be held in the middle of November 1952 and he hoped that all the disputes including that of Ranian would be settled in a cordial manner.

It will thus be seen that the Deputy High Commissioner, Jullundur, only indicated the correct position existing at that time, and that there was nothing misleading in his statement. The Deputy High Commissioner did neither suggest that Indian Forces were occupying Pakistan territory wrongfully nor refer to any disturbance of the status quo on the border.

Yours sincerely

(Shuaib Qureshi)

SECRET

Note of the Ministry of External Affairs on the Evacuation of Troops of India and Pakistan from Gatti Kamalewala, an Island in the River Sutlej, near the Ferozepur Headworks.

Not dated

Gatti Kamalewala is a long island of an irregular shape in the river Sutlej upstream of the Ferozepur Headworks. This Gatti is divided into two portions by the Radcliffe Line; the northern portion belongs to Pakistan and the southern portion belongs to India. Pakistan and India were in occupation of the respective portions belonging to them ever since the Partition.

2. Attempts had been made by Pakistanis to take possession of the southern portion of the Gatti by force before the 25th March, 1952. A Punjab (I) Armed Police Picket was, therefore, established in the Gatti on the 25th March, 1952. On the 26th March, 1952, a patrol of the Punjab (I) Armed Police was fired upon from the Pakistani side. The Punjab (I) Armed Police were there upon reinforced by a Brigade of Border Scouts. On the 28th March, 1952, Pakistanis renewed their attempt to take forcible occupation of the Indian portion of the Gatti and this resulted in an armed clash between the forces of the two countries. The exchange of firing continued till the 30th March, 1952, when a cease-fire was agreed to and the positions occupied by the forces of the two sides were frozen on the ground as they existed on the 31st March, 1952. As a result of these arrangements, Pakistani forces have been in occupation of about half of the Indian portion of the Gatti and the troops of the two countries are entrenched on the Gatti facing each other at a distance of 400 yards since the end of March, 1952.

3. In the ensuring correspondence between the Governments of India and Pakistan and the conferences held between the Punjab (I) and Punjab (P) authorities, Pakistanis were adamant in their assertion that they had been in possession of the entire Gatti ever since the Partition and that the aggression was initiated by the Indian forces. It was, therefore, not possible to reach any agreement with Pakistan for the restoration of the status quo ante in the Gatti. It was, however, eventually decided that the question of possession and control of the Gatti before the incident in the last week of March, 1952, should be referred to the Financial Commissioners of Punjab (I) and Punjab (P). The two Financial Commissioners have not been able to arrive at any agreed conclusions so far and the negotiations between them are still going on.

4. The position of the troops of the two countries in the Gatti, facing each other at a distance of 400 yards, caused a certain amount of anxiety and in order to avoid any untoward incident, the Army Headquarters of India and Pakistan in an exchange of signals between them agreed that the Gatti should be vacated by the troops as well as the civil armed forces of the two countries, that no patrolling should be undertaken by either side in this area till the question of boundary in the Gatti was finalised and that the two Army authorities should ensure that no civilians are permitted to enter this area. It was, however, not possible to make any progress in the matter as the Pakistan Army Headquarters did not agree to the suggestion made by the Indian Army Headquarters that the Punjab (I) Irrigation personnel, for whom it was essential to take soundings of the channels of the river encompassing the Gatti in connection with the maintenance of the Ferozepore Headworks, should be permitted to enter the area of the Gatti occasionally for the purpose.

5. The Government of Pakistan renewed the proposal in their letter of the 1st April, 1953, without making any reference to the question of permitting the Punjab (I) Irrigation personnel for occasional visits to the Gatti for the purpose of taking soundings of the river in connection with the maintenance of the Ferozepore Headworks. The proposal framed by the Government of Pakistan was a reiteration of the proposal made earlier by their Army Headquarters and is recapitulated below:

i) The area bounded by the two channels commencing at their junction at point 840393 up to a line 875443 - 886433 (map sheet Punjab 22 1/12) should be vacated by all troops and civil armed forces of both sides immediately.

ii) No patrolling of the area should be undertaken by either side.

iii) The military authorities of both sides should ensure that no civilians are permitted to enter the area prescribed in (i) above.

The Government of India accepted the proposal in their letter of the 3rd June, 1953, subject to the exception that the Irrigation authorities of Punjab (I) for whom it may be essential to visit the Gatti and channels of the river encompassing it in connection with the proper maintenance of the Ferozepore Headworks, should be permitted to undertake such visits. The Indian military authorities would give adequate notice of such visits to the Pakistani military authorities and should the latter desire it, a joint patrol may accompany the Punjab (I) Irrigation staff.

This exception was considered necessary as the proper maintenance of the Ferozepore Headworks was of essential importance not only to the canals in Indian territory taking off from the Headworks but also to the Dipalpur Canal in Pakistani territory. If damage occurred to the Headworks on account of the inability of the Punjab (I) Irrigation authorities to carry out proper surveys of the river, the Dipalpur Canal as well as the Indian canals would be seriously affected.
6. The Indian Steering Committee discussed this matter with the Pakistani Steering Committee in the meeting held between them in July, 1953, in Karachi. The Pakistani representatives seemed to be agreeable to the solution suggested by India and they promised to give an early reply to the letter from the Government of India. No reply was, however, received and this matter was again taken up informally with the Pakistani representative (Mr. Hilaly) on the 2nd October, 1953, at the time of the Indo-Pakistan Eastern Zone Conference in Calcutta, who promised to expedite the reply of the Government of Pakistan. No reply was, however, forthcoming from the Government of Pakistan in spite of assurances given by their representatives and the reminders sent to them.

7. Since the settlement of the problem of evacuation for troops from Gatti Kamalewala was being delayed presumably because of some misapprehension on the part of the Government of Pakistan in regard to the necessity of permitting the Irrigation authorities of Punjab (I) to visit the Gatti and channels of the river encompassing it, a fresh approach was made to the Government of Pakistan in a letter dated the 15th January, 1955. The Government of India pointed out in this letter that it was imperative for the Irrigation authorities of Punjab (I) to carry out an annual survey of the river above the Ferozepore Headworks after the monsoons in the interest of proper maintenance of the Headworks, particularly for the purpose of regulating water supplies into the Dipalpur Canal and that if this highly essential facility was not allowed, serious damages might occur to the Headworks, jeopardizing the supplies to the Dipalpur Canal as well as the Indian canals taking off from it. It was emphasised that the proposal was made by the Government of India in a spirit of goodwill and cooperation with a view to further the good-neighbourly relations between the two countries and to safeguard their mutual interests. The Government of Pakistan were, therefore, requested to agree to the adoption of measures, already accepted by the two Governments, for an early evacuation of Gatti Kamalewala by the troops of both the countries. The Government of Pakistan have not, however, conveyed their agreement to this proposal so far.

8. Another important factor which underlines the urgency of reaching an early settlement of this problem with Pakistan is that the positions occupied by the Indian troops on the Gatti are vulnerable to floods. Last year these positions were submerged in two feet of water and it was with great difficulty that the Indian troops were able to maintain their positions. Should the floods prove to be more serious in future, it will not only be impossible to maintain the position on the Gatti but the problem of withdrawing the troops to the safety of territory on the Indian side of the river will also present considerable hazards.
2902. Note containing views of the Punjab Government, on the effects, territorial and strategic, on the Indian border, resulting from the enforcement of the Radcliffe Award.

Not Dated

It has not been possible to get detailed information in regard to Gurdaspur District. A broad view of the effect of such a change-over is only stated on the basis of record up to February, 1953.

(i) Territorial gains and losses.

If Radcliffe Award is enforced, we lose 6041 acres and gain 4356 acres. We will suffer a net loss of 1685 acres, but this area consists almost entirely of banjar (barren) land which has to be reclaimed. The area, which we will gain, consists of two large chunks, one covering two villages of Sakol and Simbal at the uppermost reach of the river and the other covering some villages at the down-most end of river below Dera Baba Nanak Bridge. These areas do not have any approach particularly those below Dera Baba Nanak and during rainy season even boats cannot operate. These areas will remain cut off during Monsoon and it will be rather impossible to keep them under cultivation. The change-over will not only result in loss of 1685 acres of territory, but will also not bring us any benefits from areas which are at present on the 'wrong' side. We will also have to incur additional expenditure on maintaining Border Police for the protection of such areas.

(ii) Strategic value.

It is very important to note that with this change-over, some strategic advantages will be lost to us:-

(1) The Indian forces are holding southern end of Dera Baba Nanak Bridge which is situated in village Khokharke which belongs to Pakistan according to Radcliffe Award. The army consider our hold of this end of the bridge to be of great strategic advantage.

(2) (a) Apart from Dera Baba Nanak Bridge going completely into the hands of Pakistan, Pak Government will also get at least 4 big pockets of area on our side of the river, which are close to largely populated areas in Gurdaspur District. With these pockets going to Pakistan our defensive capacity will be seriously crippled.

(b) The defence of Kashmir entirely depends upon Pathankot. With these pockets falling into Pakistan's hands, it will be easier for hostile forces to cross into Gurdaspur District and thus cut off Pathankot from the rest of India.

(c) In another 10 years, a Dam will be ready at Thayen on river Ravi. The Headworks at Madhopur being in our hands, if and when need arises, this river and the proposed Dam could be turned into an effective natural obstruction against invading tanks and armoured vehicles. If pockets mentioned at (i) above are handed over to Pakistan, this advantage will be lost to us.

The Brigade Commander, who was consulted by our local officers, agrees that the enforcing of the Radcliffe Award will be a loss to India from the strategic point of view so far as Gurdaspur District is concerned.

2. As regards Amritsar District, an area of 18455 acres belonging to India, according to the Radcliffe Award (26 villages with an area of 10651 acres and 29 villages with an area of 7804 acres) which, in fact, belongs to Ajnala Tehsil, is in possession of Pakistan, as it is on the Pakistan side of river Ravi. Similarly, 11 villages of Pakistan with an area of 3442 acres which are on the Indian side of the river are in possession of India since partition. If the Radcliffe Award is enforced, we are entitled to 18455 acres as against 3442 acres which we lose to Pakistan. Strategically however, it would not be safe to part with these 3442 acres of land. It is, therefore, considered that this area should be exchanged with 3442 acres of land on the other side of the river and the balance of the area should be taken from Pakistan.

In case of enforcement of the Radcliffe Award, India is entitled to get villages Pathanke, Rakh S. Hardit Singh, Theh Sarja Marja except 217 acres already in possession of India, 12.60 acres in village Ranian, 60 acres in village Daoke, as Pakistan is in unauthorised possession of them. Pakistan claims these villages and a dispute regarding interpretation of the Radcliffe Award is pending before the Financial Commissioners of the two Punjabs. Similarly, Indian nationals are in possession of about 19 acres of land in village Jharolian belonging to Pakistan which adjoins our village Wan. This area does not have any special strategical importance and may be given to Pakistan if they restore the areas mentioned above.

Ninety-eight acres of land belonging to India are surrounded on all sides by Pakistan territory and it has been in possession of Pakistan since partition. Similarly, 148 acres of land of Pakistan is surrounded on all sides by Indian villages. Strategically, it will not be safe to part with this land belonging to Pakistan which is in possession of India since partition. It is, therefore, considered that we should not claim the 98 acres of Indian land in possession of Pakistan since partition.
3. According to the Radcliffe Award, the boundary line of Ferozepore District with Pakistan should be according to this District boundary before partition, except for adjustment in respect of the Canal Headworks at Sulemanki, which should fall within the territorial jurisdiction of the West Punjab. In actual effect, however, large areas of the District lie on the other side of the river and, similarly, areas of Montgomery and Lahore Districts lie on our side of the river. These areas are in possession of Pakistan and ourselves respectively. Information was collected in early 1955 and, according to this, a total area of 23274 acres of this District was in Pak possession and a total area of 22,631 acres belonging to Lahore and Montgomery Districts of Pakistan was in our possession. A detailed list of such villages is given in the statement enclosed. We are entitled to get 643 acres more of Pak territory if Radcliffe Award is enforced.

In the case of this District, the enforcement of the Radcliffe Award will be of considerable strategic gain to us. At present, at both the Headworks, namely Hussainiwala and Sulemanki, the only two tracts of strategic importance, Pakistanis are better off than warranted by the Radcliffe Award. At Hussainiwala, they are not on the bridge itself but are very near it and have their check-post on the Dipalpur Canal Bridge. At Sulemanki Headworks, they are even better off being right across the bridge. Except for our areas near these two canal headworks in possession of Pakistan, the other area in adverse possession of Pakistan is not of much strategic importance.

The area beyond Hussainiwala Headworks, extending up to about Gandasinghwala Railway Station, now in adverse possession of Pakistan, is of utmost importance for effective protection of Hussainiwala Headworks by our forces. It is, therefore, considered that, in view of its strategic importance, we should make an effort to get it back in full or as much as possible.

Note: In 1956 High Commissioner in Pakistan C.P.N. Singh had taken a similar position that the implementation of the Radcliffe award would from the defence angle, be disadvantageous to India. Prime Minister Nehru agreed with him particularly with reference to the award in Gurdaspur district. But he did not wish to renounce the award in any manner. In his letter dated the 10th May 1956 informed the High Commissioner: “But we cannot advance an argument of this kind in order to retain possession of a particular area. Whether the result is advantageous or disadvantageous to us, we have to abide by some principle. We have accepted the Radcliffe line as the basic approach to this problem and we have to abide by it. We have added, however, that we can vary this Radcliffe line by agreement between the two countries. This is the only straightforward position we can take up, whatever the results might be.”

Subject: Incidents on the Indo-Pakistan Border.

Sir,

In a recent incident on the Indo-Pakistan border, the Pakistan Border Police attempted to occupy by force a stretch of territory under Indian control in a series of aggressive moves which were resisted by the Indian police forces; negotiations were then started between the local Indian and Pakistani civil authorities and while the negotiations were in progress, the Pakistani police forces tried to consolidate their occupation; and finally the compromise arrived at between the two local civil authorities established the Pakistani police forces well in advance of positions held by them before the commencement of the incident. This state of affairs which had continued for some time was not reported to the Government of India who came to know about it after about three months when a protest had been received from the Government of Pakistan which not only made the matter still worse but also put this Government unnecessarily on the defensive.

2. In order to avoid a repetition of such a situation in the future, the Government of India would request the border State Governments to instruct their civil and police border authorities to be on the alert and not to allow any encroachment by the Pakistanis taking place initially, because once that happens, the resulting position is very often worse than before. The State Governments should further ensure that in the case of any aggressive action on the part of Pakistani nationals, police or armed forces on the Indo-Pakistan border, full particulars of such incidents should be immediately reported to the Government of India by an Express letter or in more serious cases by a telegram to enable them to be the first to lodge a protest with the Government of Pakistan whenever considered suitable.

3. The Government of India agree that attempted aggression on Indian territory by Pakistani nationals, police or armed forces should be resisted. At the same time, this Government are anxious to prevent minor disputes developing into serious incidents involving the risk of major conflict with Pakistani forces. The Government of India, therefore, feel that the higher civil authorities should be brought into the picture sufficiently early to ensure that unnecessarily extreme action is not taken by the local forces in the initial stages and that the dispute is resolved by negotiation as early as possible.

4. The receipt of this circular letter may kindly be acknowledged and the instructions issued by the State Governments to their respective civil and police border authorities may also be endorsed to this Government for information.

Yours faithfully

Subject: Indo-Pakistan Border-Incidents and raids involving loss of life and property of Indian nationals--Question of claiming payment of compensation from Pakistan.

Sir,

The question of claiming payment of compensation from the Government of Pakistan in respect of loss of life and property of Indian nationals as a result of raids on Indian Territory by Pakistani nationals, police and armed forces, from across the border, has been receiving the attention of the Government of India for some time past. The data available for the period from after the Partition to the end of 1953 in respect of the entire Indo-Pakistan border, which is by no means complete or exhaustive, shows that the total number of raids by Pakistanis on Indian territory was about 3,531 which resulted in loss of life to 195, injuries to 313 and kidnapping or arrest of 238 Indian nationals, 20,028 heads of cattle were lifted from Indian territory and damage to Indian property amounted to Rs.1,45,44,336.
The policy of the Government of India so far has been to claim payment of compensation only in serious cases from the Government of Pakistan while lodging protests with them. It has, however, not been possible to secure the consent of the Government of Pakistan to any suitable procedure for the settlement of such claims as they pleaded that the question of setting up machinery acceptable to both the Governments was beset with serious practical difficulties. The Government of India also felt that in the present atmosphere it would not serve any useful purpose to pursue the matter further with the Government of Pakistan and that the question of entering into an agreement with them regarding the settlement of claims for payment of compensation should wait till the relations between the two countries became normal.

2. In the meanwhile, State Governments having a common frontier with Pakistan will be interested in the following analysis of the position according to International law:

(1) It is well recognised that the State bears a wide and unlimited vicarious responsibility for internationally injurious acts committed by its police or military personnel. Since such persons are always under the disciplinary control of the State, the acts done by them, even if they are in excess of the authority given to them, are prima facie acts of the State. According to Oppenheim:

"A State bears a wide, unlimited and unrestricted vicarious responsibility for such acts because its Administrative officials and Military and Naval forces are under its disciplinary control, and because all acts of such officials and forces in the exercise of their official functions are prima facie acts of the State. Therefore, a State has, first of all, to disown and disapprove of such acts by expressing its regret or even apologizing to the Government of the injured State; secondly, damages must be paid where required; and lastly, the offenders must be punished according to the merits of the special case."

(2) Where the injurious acts are committed by groups of private persons, the State from which the groups operate can, in the first instance, be charged only with a limited vicarious responsibility. International law impose the duty upon every State to prevent, as far as possible, its subjects or aliens temporarily resident on its territory from committing injurious acts against a neighbouring State. Again according to Oppenheim:

"Whereas the vicarious responsibility of States for official acts of Administrative officials and Military and Naval forces is unlimited and unrestricted, their vicarious responsibility for acts of private persons is only relative. For their sole duty is to exercise due diligence to prevent internationally injurious acts on the parts of private persons, and in case such acts have nevertheless been committed, to procure satisfaction and reparation for the wronged State, as far as possible by punishing the offenders and compelling them to pay damages where required. Beyond this limit a State is not responsible for acts of private persons; there is in particular no duty for a State itself to pay damages for such acts if the offenders are not able to do it. If, however, a State has not exercised due diligence, it can be made responsible and held liable to pay damages."

In practice, however, such negligence or lack of diligence on the part of a State is difficult to establish. If it could be established that the private raiders were being helped by police or military or civil personnel in the service of the State that would certainly be evidence of culpable negligence, or even culpable connivance, on the part of the State. The frequency and intensity of the armed raids may also be a very relevant factor for the purpose of demonstrating the culpable negligence of the State.

3. In the light of the analysis made above, the Government of India are of the view that protests to the Provincial Governments in Pakistan, where they are lodged direct with them by the State Governments, should conform to certain uniform standards. In the case of incidents and raids by the Pakistani Civil, Police or Military personnel, they should be asked to discover and punish the offenders and take necessary steps to prevent the recurrence of such incidents and raids. The right to claim payment of compensation for the loss to Indian life and property should be reserved only in serious cases. In the case of raids by Pakistani Nationals on Indian territory, they should be asked to discover and punish the offenders and take necessary steps to prevent the recurrence of such raids. If the Pakistani raiders are assisted or their activities are connived at in any way by the Pakistani Civil Police or Military personnel, it should be brought to the notice of Provincial Governments concerned in Pakistan who should be asked to take suitable action against their personnel for such culpable negligence. The Provincial Governments in Pakistan should also be asked to compel the offenders to pay damages for the loss of Indian life and property inflicted by them in serious cases.

4. The Government of India also consider it very important to maintain a complete record of all incidents and raids perpetrated by Pakistanis on Indian territory involving loss of life and property to Indian nationals for the purpose of compiling accurate data which would be very useful whenever the question of settling claims for payment of compensation is re-opened with the Government. of Pakistan. It is, therefore, essential that we should have a neat, accurate and succinct account in regard to each incident and raid with such particulars of time, place, identity of raiders, description of victims and damages which may be verifiable. It would be advisable in this connection if the State Governments ensure that there are no material discrepancies in their reports about incidents and reports about the same incidents which might emanate from private agencies from time to time.

The Government of India, would, therefore, be grateful if the State Governments would furnish a detailed report of each incident or raid as early as possible as they are doing at present. These reports should be as detailed as possible so as to enable the Government of India to lodge suitable protests with the Government of Pakistan. It is noticed that in many cases Pakistani commit the aggression and they follow it up with a protest making it out that aggression was from India. It is, therefore, essential that the reports from the State Government should be sent to the Government of India promptly. Attention of the State Governments is invited in this connection to the Ministry's Circular letter No. P.III/54/1938/2 dated the 26th February, 1954. In addition to these reports the State Governments should also send reports in the enclosed proforma every fortnight of all border incidents. The State Governments are requested to adhere strictly to the prescribed form with a view to achieving uniformity of procedure and ensuring that adequate information in regard to each incident or raid is available to the Government of India at the shortest notice.

5. The Government of India also consider that it is desirable to have a uniform method of enquiring into the incidents which should be followed by State Governments in their respective regions. The State Governments are, therefore, requested to send us full details of their present methods of investigating border incidents and raids so that the question of evolving a uniform method for adoption in future may be considered by the Government of India.

6. The State Governments are also requested to offer their comments on the advisability of forming joint committees, consisting of officers of both the countries at the District or State level, to investigate from time to time the incidents and raids on the Indo-Pakistan border. The Government of India would be grateful if these comments are furnished at an early date with such information about the procedure for joint investigation, if any, which already exists on the border with which they are concerned.

7. The receipt of this Circular letter may kindly be acknowledged.

Yours faithfully,

2905. Note from Ministry of External Affairs to Pakistan High Commission in India.

New Delhi, October 28, 1954.

Ministry of External Affairs
New Delhi

No. P.III/54/1936/2. Dated the 28th October, 1954

The Ministry of External Affairs present their compliments to the High Commission for Pakistan in India and with reference to their Note No. F.26(19)P/54-2506, dated the 24th July, 1954, protesting against the alleged violation of the Pakistan border in the Suleimanke area by Indian troops in March, 1954, have the honour to state categorically that although an exercise was conducted by Indian troops in this area in March, 1954, there was no violation of the Pakistan border. The entire exercise was carried out well within Indian territory. The allegations made in the High Commission's Note are, therefore, absolutely baseless.

2. The Government of India note with considerable surprise that the High Commission should have deemed it fit to lodge the protest referred to above against an alleged violation of the Suleimanke Agreement of September, 1949, which has not been substantiated in any way, when the Pakistani forces have themselves been guilty of committing aggression in the Suleimanke area by advancing one of their pickets well within Indian territory about four years ago and which is still in illegal occupation of Indian territory despite emphatic protest lodged with the Government of Pakistan in the past. The attention of the High Commission is invited to the correspondence resting with the Note No. I(I)3/4/54, dated the 29/30th July, 1954, from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations of the Government of Pakistan to the High Commission for India in Pakistan in this connection.

The Suleimanke Agreement of the 15th September, 1949, was a local arrangement recommended by the two Commissioners of Punjab (I) and Punjab (P) providing for the withdrawal of troops from their forward positions and for the maintenance of the status quo with regard to the territory in the possession of either country in the Suleimanke area on that date. In utter disregard of this arrangement and in gross violation of Indian territory, Pakistani forces have made encroachment in India territory. The Government of India note with regret that the Government of Pakistan have not only not withdrawn their forces from the Indian territory illegally occupied by them but even attempt to justify their aggression and illegal occupation of Indian territory on unwarranted and in any case, irrelevant arguments based on the above mentioned recommendation of the two Commissioners regarding arrangements for the maintenance of the status quo in this area. The Government of India deeply regret this unreasonable attitude on the part of the Government of Pakistan, which apart from condoning aggression, is hardly conducive to the maintenance of peaceful conditions on the border and good-neighbourly relations between the two countries.

3. The Government of India are also constrained to point out that the Pakistan forces have been indulging for some years past in aggressive activities in the neighbourhood of the Ferozepore Headworks and occupying territory indisputably belonging to India. From time to time, Pakistani authorities have made several illegal encroachments on the left and right banks of the Dipalpur Canal in Indian territory. These aggressive and illegal acts on the part of Pakistani forces have created a highly inflammable situation on the border and have led to all sorts of difficulties for the proper maintenance of the Headworks as well as for taking discharge observations in the interest of the two countries. Besides, cases of trespass into Indian territory in this area by Pakistani forces and interference with the performance of their lawful duties by Indian personnel even in the area still under the occupation of Indian authorities, have of late become a recurring feature. The Government of India take a serious view of these developments which have led to a grave situation on the border in the vicinity of the Ferozepore Headworks.

4. The Government of India would, therefore, request the High Commission to impress upon the Government of Pakistan the desirability of withdrawing their forces from various areas of Indian territory in the vicinity of the Suleimanke Headworks and the Ferozepore Headworks and thus removing their unauthorised encroachments on Indian territory in the interests of maintaining the peace on the border and the friendly relations between the two countries. The Government of India would further request that necessary instructions may also be issued by the Government of Pakistan to their appropriate authorities who should also be told to put a stop to such aggressive acts in future.

5. The Government of India would also like to draw the High Commission's attention in this connection to a recent letter from the Chief Engineer and Secretary to Government, Punjab (I), P.W.D. Irrigation Branch, to the Chief Engineer, Irrigation Works, Punjab (P) (No.1785/Part/Sub/351/53, dated the 8th October, 1954) regarding the Pakistani occupation of large areas of Indian territory extending from beyond the Right Marginal Bund of the Ferozepore Headworks up to the river Sutlej. The Government of India trust that these areas of Indian territory will also soon be vacated by Pakistani forces.
6. The Government of India would be grateful if the High Commission would inform them of the action taken by the Government of Pakistan in the matter. The Ministry take the opportunity to renew to the High Commission the assurances of their highest consideration.

The High Commission for Pakistan in India

2906. Letter from Ministry of External Affairs to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

New Delhi, January 14/15, 1955.

No. P. III/54/1931/2 the 14/15th January, 1955

Government of India
Ministry of External Affairs
New Delhi

To: The Secretary to the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Karachi.

Subject: Gatti Kamalewala.

Sir,

I am directed to refer to your letter No. I (1)/3/3/53, dated the 1st April, 1953, and our letter No. P.III/52/19312/1-Vol.II, dated the 3rd June, 1953, regarding the proposal for the evacuation of troops of both the countries from Gatti Kamalewala, and to state that the Government of Pakistan have not sent any reply so far. The Government of India have, therefore, felt it necessary to approach the Government of Pakistan once again with a view to arriving at an early settlement of the problem of the evacuation of troops from the Gatti in the interests of peaceful and friendly relations on the border in this region.

2. The Government of Pakistan are aware that although the Army Headquarters of the two countries as well as the two Governments had agreed on the measures to be adopted for the simultaneous withdrawal of troops and civil armed forces of the two sides from the Gatti more than a year and a half ago, no progress could be made towards the actual evacuation of the Gatti. The Government of India feel that the settlement of this problem is being unduly delayed presumably because of some misapprehension on the part of the Government of Pakistan in regard to the necessity of permitting the Irrigation authorities of Punjab (I) to visit the Gatti and the channels of the river encompassing it periodically for the purpose of taking soundings essential for the proper upkeep of the Ferzoepore Headworks and the regulation of water supplies into the Dipalpur Canal, which had been urged by the Government of India in the mutual interests of the two countries. The Government of India would, therefore, like to amplify the position once again.

The Government of Pakistan would no doubt appreciate that it is imperative for the Irrigation authorities of Punjab (I) to carry out an annual survey of the river above the Ferozepore Headworks after the monsoons in the interest of proper maintenance of the Headworks, particularly for the purpose of regulating water supplies into the Dipalpur Canal. If the Irrigation authorities of Punjab (I) are not afforded this highly essential facility of a periodic survey of the river, which would necessitate their visiting the Gatti and the channels of the river encompassing it, the Government of India are afraid that this may result in serious damage to the Ferzoepore Headworks which may in turn gravely affect supplies to the Dipalpur Canal and the Indian Canals taking off from it.

The Government of Pakistan would no doubt appreciate that this proposal was made by the Government of India in a spirit of goodwill and cooperation and was meant only to further the good neighbourly relations between the two countries and to safeguard their mutual interests. The Government of India are also willing that such visits of the Irrigation authorities of Punjab (I) should take place if so desired by the Government of Pakistan, under a joint Indo-Pakistan military escort after the Gatti has been vacated by the forces of the two countries so that there should not be any chance of misunderstanding on the part of Pakistani authorities.

In view of the considerations urged above, the Government of India hope that the Government of Pakistan will now have no objection to the acceptances of Indian proposal for permitting the Irrigation authorities of Punjab (I) to visit the Gatti and the channels of the river encompassing it for the purpose outlined above which is essential as much for Pakistan as for India.

3. The Government of India would therefore be grateful if the Government of Pakistan will agree to the adoption of measures, already accepted by the two Governments, for an early evacuation of Gatti Kamalewala by the forces of the two countries. The details regarding the periodic visits of the Irrigation authorities of Punjab (I) to the Gatti and the channels of the river encompassing it under a joint Indo-Pakistan military escort, can be worked out in mutual consultation by the local authorities of the two Punjabs.

The Government of India would very much appreciate if the agreement of the Government of Pakistan is communicated at an early date so that this long standing problem may be resolved to the mutual satisfaction of the two countries.

Yours faithfully,

Sd/-

2907. AIDE MEMOIRE delivered by the Ministry of External Affairs to Pakistan High Commissioner in India M. R. Arshad on 4th February 1955.

AIDE MEMOIRE

The border raids and incidents, which have been taking place, both in the western and the eastern zone, form a recurring cause of friction between the two countries, leading to ill will and discord.

2. The Indo-Pakistan Conference of December 1948 had gone into this question and special committee was appointed to consider the method of dealing with incidents on the border and of eradicating them. A procedure was prescribed in this regard under which appropriate authorities on the two sides were to discuss such incidents and take suitable preventive and deterrent measures. This procedure is being adopted on the border of India and Pakistan but unfortunately it has degenerated more into that of satisfying the letter of the agreement rather than its spirit. Joint enquiries are being held in various incidents without any agreed conclusions. People are being kidnapped and often killed in these incidents with hardly any action taken either to compensate the victims or to release them quickly or to prevent the recurrence of such incidents. No effort is also being made to apprehend and punish the criminals who sometimes happen to be police officials themselves or are sided and abetted by police officials.

3. Scores of such incidents take place with a distressing frequency and protests are being lodged by the Indian authorities including the Indian High Commission in Karachi. These protests are being ignored and in one case the Government of Pakistan even came out with a statement that the particular raid, which had led to the cold-blooded murder of Indian nationals, were motivated by a desire for revenge on the part of the West Punjab Border Police. The incident referred to here took place in February 1953 and January 1954 and resulted in the killing of Indian workers on an agricultural farm. Even if there were any such “reason” for these murders, it was most surprising that such an excuse should have been given in a formal note of the Government of Pakistan justifying them. (The latest communication from the Indian High Commissioner to the Government of Pakistan in this regard is in a note. No. F.26(10)/54-Genl., dated 13/15 November 1954, to which, as far as the Ministry of External Affairs is aware, no reply has yet been received.)

4. The latest incident, which has been reported to us, comes from the Bikaner Bahawalpur border which took place in the beginning of this month. Certain Pathans from across the Pakistan border raided on Indian village and while they were being chased by the Indian Police the next morning, killed three Indian policemen from a prepared ambush in Indian territory. (The Indian High Commissioner's note of protest on this incident is No. F.26(1)/55-Genl./521, dated 21.1.1955) This is not a solitary incident on that border. Some time ago, there was a similar ambush as a result of which 12 policemen and 2 civilians, who were in pursuit of some camel thieves, were ambushed and captured. The distressing part of this incident was that these Indian nationals were given savage sentences after their capture, totaling 7 years R.I. and heavy fines. It was after considerable correspondence and lapse of about two years that the Indian authorities were able to secure the release of the policemen. The two civilians are still in a Pakistani jail.

5. The law and order position on the Rajasthan border indeed presents a sorry tale not so much because of the frequency of raids taking place across the border resulting in lifting of camels and cattle, kidnapping of harmless civilians for the purpose of extorting huge ransoms, etc., but because of the operation of trans-border dacoit gangs who are being harboured on the Pakistan side of the border, apparently aided and abetted by Pakistani authorities, and, in any case, undeterred by Pakistani Police authorities. Several times in our protests on such incidents we have even identified the dacoit concerned and yet there has been no action taken by the Pakistani authorities. The instance of Bhupat, the notorious outlaw of Saurashtra, who has been given sanctuary in Pakistan, is a case in point.

6. There was another serious incident on the Rajasthan - West Pakistan border in the end of November 1954 when some raiders from Pakistan killed an Indian National and fled to Pakistan taking away the camel belonging to the victims. The protest was lodged by our high Commissioner in this case under his Note No.F.26(24)/54-Genl., dated 27/28.12.1954, but no reply has yet been received from the Government of Pakistan.

7. As a matter of fact, we have been receiving monthly statements of such raids from the Government of Rajasthan, which includes frequent raids, kidnappings and murders taking place on that border.

8. The main problem, as far as the Rajasthan border is concerned, is that of taking strong and deterrent action in a co-operative manner by the Police forces on the two sides to eradicate once and for all the menace of the trans-border dacoit gangs and of criminals indulging at will in such kidnappings and murders.

9. There are also raids on the Punjab border. Here the culprits are mainly the Punjab Border Police. There are a few cases of raids by Pakistani civilians for cattle theft etc., but these raids do not present the same problem as those on the Rajasthan border. Unfortunately, however, the raids and encroachments leading to firing and killing of Indian nationals perpetrated by the Pakistan border Police on the Punjab border pose a very serious threat to the maintenance of peaceful relations between the two neighbours. There have been several consistent and calculated attempts made recently by the Pakistan Border Police to encroach on Indian territory resorting to force of arms and frequent firings.
These encroachments are in utter disregard of several solemn agreements reached between competent authorities on the two sides for maintaining the status quo on the border in the interest of peaceful relations between the two countries. As a matter of fact, the Superintendent of Border Police of Punjab (P) at one of the meetings held between the Police Officers on the two sides to investigate a very serious incident, which had taken place in June 1954 near the village of Pulakanjri in Amritsar district, refused to withdraw from the Pakistani encroachment in violation of an earlier agreement and threatened that he "would flare up trouble all along the border." There was no settlement and during the series of incidents which followed, one Indian constable was killed and two Indian constables were wounded. The Indian High Commissioner protested to the Pakistan Government (in a note, No.F.26(14)/54-Genl., dated 23.6.1954) but no reply has yet been received from Pakistan.

10. The Police Officers on the Punjab border seem to be taking the most unreasonable attitude, indulging in unabashed aggression, and recently the Deputy Commissioner of Amritsar was held captive a few yards within Pakistani territory when he went across the border to greet two Pakistani sentries who were stationed there. The surprising part of this unfortunate incident was that the Pakistan Deputy Superintendent of Police was stationed only a few yards away from the place where the Deputy Commissioner was detained and despite repeated requests refused to come over to this place or to release the Indian Officer.

11. The Government of India have been considerably distressed to note that there is a definite pattern of aggression and encroachment indulged in by the Pakistan Border Police at certain specified sectors of the Punjab border. Numerous notes of protest have been sent in vain by the Indian High Commissioner to the Government of Pakistan pointing out that these calculated moves on behalf of the Punjab Police are creating tension and ill-will on the border to be detriment of peaceful relations between the two countries. The aggressive acts of the Pakistani Police, however, continue unchecked.

12. The position is not much better in the eastern zone. The Bihar-East Bengal border, which was comparatively free from such crimes, has recently witnessed some shocking incidents leading to the murder of defenceless Indian nationals. In one incident, five Santhal women, who were collecting shells in a border-river, were beaten and killed mercilessly because one of these women, a young girl of 16, would not respond to the advances made by four Pakistani constables. Considerable correspondence took place on this deplorable incident and eventually a joint enquiry was held by the representatives of the Governments of India and Pakistan in the end of December, 1954. Even though earlier joint enquiries had clearly established the guilt of the Pakistani constables, hardly any action was taken against them. Fortunately, the joint enquiry held by the representatives of the two Central Governments has cleared the matter and it is hoped that as soon as the reports of these officers have been received by the respective Governments, prompt and exemplary punishment would be meted out to the perpetrators of this dastardly crime.

In another incident on the Bihar-East Bengal border, a Muslim national of India was also killed in a cold-blooded manner by Pakistan Border policemen when he objected to the latter fishing in a private tank belonging to an Indian nationals in Indian territory. The incident also formed the subject matter of the joint enquiry referred to above and it is hoped that here again the murderer will be punished.

13. There have been several cases of trespass and commission of crimes by Pakistani policemen and nationals on certain sectors of the Assam East Bengal border as well. On a stretch of the river Surma, the Pakistani authorities have been indulging in periodic firing and trespass despite the restraint shown by Indian authorities and despite the correct boundary position being patiently and repeatedly explained both to Dacca and to Karachi. There have been numerous incidents of cattle lifting, illegal harvesting of crops, kidnapping etc., on the Khasi Jantia Hills border. There have also been several cases of unprovoked firing on defenceless Assamese villagers. Here again Indian protests have evoked no satisfactory response either from the East Bengal authorities or from the
14. The following recent incidents are typical of the scores of such incidents taking place on this border:-

On the 2nd of November 1954, some Pakistani nationals, led by one Havildar and one constable, trespassed into a village in district Goalpara and took away two boats loaded with jute and rice.

On the 4th November, 1954, about 20 to 30 Pakistani nationals, armed with guns and other lethal weapons, raided a Khasi village and took away cash and ornaments belonging to the villagers. Three Indian nationals were wounded in this raid.

On the 21st November, 1954, more than 200 Pakistani nationals, led by some members of the Pakistani Armed Police, trespassed in a village in the Khasi Jantia Hills and harvested the standing paddy belonging to Indian nationals. The raiders also took away the cattle belonging to these villagers.

15. There have also been numerous incidents on the East Bengal-West Bengal border, the latest of which involves the establishment of fortified camps by Pakistani Border Police on several Chars (islands) in the river Gangas (Padma) on the Indian side of the border. The series of encroachment indulged in by the Pakistani Border Police in this region is reminiscent of similar activities by the Punjab (P) Border Police referred to in the earlier paragraphs.

16. There are also scores of incidents of cattle lifting, kidnapping, dacoities and other criminal acts on the various sectors of the East Bengal-West Bengal border. The latest incidents reported to us took place on the Cooch-Bihar border when an Indian Excise Inspector and an Indian constable were kidnapped by Pakistani nationals.

17. All these incidents and raids indicate that the Indo-Pakistan agreement of December 1948 is not functioning and that in spite of the adoption of the procedure established at this Conference, there has been no real attempt at eradicating the evil represented by these criminal acts. It is, therefore, essential that some effective machinery should be adopted not only for prompt disposal of complaints relating to such incidents but also for the establishment of peaceful friendly regime on the border in co-operation between the Police and other authorities of the two countries.

Note of the Ministry of External Affairs to the Pakistan High Commission in India.

New Delhi, April 5, 1955.

Ministry of External Affairs

No. P. III/54/19362/2 New Delhi, the 5th April, 1955

The Ministry of External Affairs present their compliments to the High Commission for Pakistan in India and with reference to their Note No. F. 62(21) P/54 – 3577, dated the 5th November, 1954, regarding the construction of works along the river Ravi and other rivers near the Punjab (I) – Punjab (P) boundary, have the honour to state as follows.

2. The Government of India agree that the arrangements proposed in the High Commission’s Note referred to above in regard to the construction of works along the rivers near the Punjab (I) – Punjab (P) boundary by either country should be adopted on a reciprocal basis without prejudice to the inherent right of either country to construct any works on its own territory and that these arrangements would last as long as the Indo – Pakistan boundary between Punjab (I) and Punjab (P) is not properly demarcated.

3. The Government of Punjab (I) have accordingly instructed their Deputy Commissioner in the border districts to explain the object of construction of works undertaken along the rivers near the boundary to their Punjab (P) counterparts, if asked to do so, on a reciprocal basis. Where the works like the construction of protective bunds to save villages, etc., are undertaken by the Public Works Department, the Deputy Commissioners have been asked to encourage the Executive Engineers concerned to meet and discuss the plans with a view to causing the least inconvenience to the residents of villages on the other side.

4. The Government of India trust that these arrangements would be worked in a spirit of co-operation in order to promote friendly relations between that two countries and to safeguard their mutual interests.

5. The Government of India would be grateful if they are supplied with a copy of the instructions issued by the Government of Punjab (P) to their Deputy Commissioners concerned. A copy of the instructions issued by the Government of Punjab (I) to their Deputy Commissioners concerned would be furnished to the High Commission at an early date.

The Ministry take the opportunity to renew to the High Commission the assurances of their highest consideration.

No. 30524 May 9, 1955

The Government of India strongly protest against the firing from within Pakistan border on a party belonging to the Central Tractor Organisation of the Government of India on May 7 in the area of Nekowal village in Jammu*. The firing has resulted in the death of 12 persons in all and injury to another. The attack was premeditated and was most unjustified since the party was well within the border of Jammu and Kashmir. It is deplorable that a serious incident like this should have taken place at a time when the relations between our two countries have

* The incident referred to above occurred near the village Nekowal on the Jammu-West Pakistan border, where nine civilian employees of the Central Tractor Organisation under a military escort, and command of Major S. R. Budhwar were charged with the responsibility of ploughing a farm. The farm was located 500 yards from the Neokwal village on the Indian side of the border. The military escort and the tractor operators on May 7, 1955 suddenly came under firing from the Pakistan side killing Major Budhwar and one of the workers of the Central Tractor Organisation. In the ensuing exchange of fire, five army personnel besides Major Budhwar and six civilians were killed. The UN Observers who conducted the investigation on May 9, held that the incident was pre-conceived and pre-designed by the Pakistan Border Police and that the small Indian Party was attacked by a large and well-armed Pakistan force. Besides the protest lodged with the Pakistan Government, the matter was taken up with the Pakistan Prime Minister, who was in New Delhi soon after the incident, who expressed his regrets when he called on the Indian President on May 14. While expressing his profound regrets, he promised if the UN observers held the Pakistani border personnel guilty, he would take the severest action against them. The report of the UN Observers was received in New Delhi, when the Pakistan Prime Minister Mohammad Ali was still in town. The Government of India approached the Pakistan Government drawing attention to the statement of Mohammad Ali as well as to the UN Observers’ report and asked for the punishment of the guilty as well as compensation for the casualties suffered by the Indian nationals.
greatly improved. The Government of India would urge on the Pakistan Government to take severe action against the offenders and all necessary measures to prevent repetition of similar incidents. They also reserve the right to ask for compensation for the loss inflicted.

Nekowal Incidents.

In a meeting between General Thapar of the Indian Army and General Sheikh of the Pakistan Army held at Suchet Garh on 21st May, Pakistan Commander took a surprisingly rigid attitude. He stated that Pakistan do not recognize Indian authority in Jammu and Kashmir and that the whole territory of the State and its boundary with West Pakistan is disputed. He resisted the right of the Indian Army patrols going to Nekowal village and for this purpose the boundary of Nekowal village must be revenue limits of the village.

2. We cannot recognize Pakistan's right to interfere in our exercise of authority over a village which has always been part of the Jammu Province. We have therefore, told our Army that they will be free to send patrols or post a picket in the Nekowal village as may be considered necessary. Prime Minister would like you to meet General Mirza and explain position to him so that Pakistan would not create any trouble. We have also asked General Thapar, our Corps Commander, to inform his opposite number of our decision.

3. We shall not wait indefinitely for Pakistan's reply and would like to know Mirza's reaction, if any, within the next two or three days. I am sending you by air copies of the discussions between Thapar and Sheikh and of a letter from General Nimmo to Thapar.

A message received by our 15th Corps from General Nimmo through the UN Team states Quote explain quite clearly to Commanders with my compliments that my decision must always be against the side which violates border line irrespective of any actions or moves of persons in opposite territory provided these do not themselves violate the border. By border is meant the old established division between Jammu Province and Sialkot District of West Punjab which separates Nekowal and Umranwali. The above is stated after full knowledge of points raised at recent meeting of Commanders at Suchetgarh on 21st May Unquote. This confirms our right to patrol or put a picket in Nekowal.

Your telegram 439 of May 28. I have just received your letter of May 26. Your letter to Baig explains position correctly. In view, however, of recent incidents we no longer regard ourselves bound by old agreements between Military Commanders of both sides regarding Nekowal village. Our right to exercise full authority over the village has also received support from the U.N. Observers. We feel therefore that we should not delay establishing full control over Nekowal. We shall, however, wait there or four days for Pakistan’s reply if any. Meantime our Military Command has informed the U.N. observers of our intention. The last discussion between General Thapar and General Sheikh shows clearly that Pakistan has adopted a very unreasonable attitude.

Desai from Prime Minister.

Please convey following message to Prime Minister Mohammed Ali.

My dear Prime Minister, you will remember the talks we had when you were here about the unfortunate Nekowal incident on the Jammu border. You were good enough to express your regret and to say that when the enquiry was finished, those who were judged guilty will be punished. The U.N. Observers’ enquiry clearly laid the guilt on the side of people from Pakistan. I trust that your government will now take adequate action, as promised.

2. In view of this incident, it has become incumbent on us to take adequate measures to give protection to Nekowal village and surrounding fields. We directed our army, therefore, that they should send patrols or post a picket as may be considered necessary. We sent this information also through our General Thapar to General Sheikh of the Pakistan Army. General Sheikh took up the extraordinary attitude that Pakistan did not recognize Indian authority in the Jammu and Kashmir State and that the whole territory of the State and its boundary with West Pakistan was disputed. He refused to acknowledge the right of the Indian army patrols going to Nekowal village.

3. Such an attitude is surprising and so contrary to all that has happened even during the last seven abnormal years that I could hardly believe that it could be advanced by any responsible person. Even for the Cease Fire line, this would have been an improper attitude. But for General Sheikh to object about a part of the old border which has nothing to do with the Cease Fire line appears to me to be most irresponsible. I cannot conceive that the Pakistan Government are of this opinion. Instead of punishing the guilty persons in the Nekowal incident, we are now told that even acknowledged rights we possess on the border are to be resisted.

4. It is clear that our Government cannot possibly accept this contention of General Sheikh and we shall have to exercise our right to patrol or post a picket on that or any border on the Cease Fire line. This is in accordance with the United Nations observers report also.

5. I shall be grateful if you will be good enough to remove this misapprehension from General Sheikh’s mind and issue order that there should be no interference with the exercise of our rights on our side of the border and more particularly in Nekowal village.

Yours sincerely

Jawaharlal Nehru

For High Commissioner.

Please convey following message to General Iskander Mirza from Govind Ballabh Pant.

Begins.

Thank you for your message about Nekowal which I have just received through our High Commissioner in Karachi. Any suggestion from you must necessarily receive our earnest consideration.

We have been giving much thought to this question of Nekowal for the last many days and indeed since the unfortunate incident to which you refer. You will remember the talk we had about this incident when you were here and your assurance that persons held to be guilty would be adequately punished. While you were here, we received the report of the United Nations Military Observer Group. In this report it was clearly established that the fault lay with the Pakistan border police which had crossed over on the Indian side of the border as seen by the UN Observers themselves. This incident created an entirely new situation. You say in your message that as long as these agreements were honoured no untoward incident took place. As a matter of fact many incidents have taken place there previously and the recent incident was the last one which took place on the 7th May. As you know, we are very anxious to have good neighbourly relations but it has become obvious that the old gentleman’s agreements to which you refer are not adequate for this purpose and difficulties repeatedly occur; and more especially after recent unfortunate incident it is not desirable to leave matters in the air. This will lead to constant disputes. As a matter of fact, we have been approached by large numbers of villagers living in Nekowal asking us to give them protection. We cannot deny them this protection and there should be no question of any dispute arising when it is admitted, as you have yourself said in your message, that Government of India has a right to do this. There is no question of military measures but only of a patrol giving protection to the villagers.

General Nimmo of the UN Observers Team has clearly recognized this also.

We were amazed to learn of the astounding attitude of General Sheikh in this matter when he stated on 21st May that Pakistan does not recognise Indian authority in Jammu and Kashmir and that the whole territory of the State and its boundary with West Pakistan is disputed.

If, therefore even after the bitter experience that we have had, matters, are left where they are pending for some overall agreement in the future, this will lead to continuing controversy and dispute and possibly to similar incidents. The villagers of Nekowal will be afforded no protection which they rightly demand from us. You will appreciate that the situation will instead of improving deteriorate.

There is no reason why there should be any excitement about a normal step taken in our territory on our behalf. We have made all arrangements to this end and on 5th June patrols of the Indian Army will go along this border. We understand UN Observers are also present on the spot to see that nothing untoward is done. It is difficult to upset all these arrangements at this stage.

I hope you will appreciate this position which I have placed before you and agree that it is reasonable.
Our prime Minister sent a message to Prime Minister Mohammed Ali on this subject on the 1st June.

With kind regards,

Govind Ballabh Pant

On 7th May 1955 our personnel with five tractors and military escort were fired at near Nekowal village in Jammu Province on Indian side of the International border by Pakistan armed police. The Indian party returned fire in self-defence. From the Indian side one military officer, five other ranks and six civilians were killed and one other rank wounded. On Pakistan side two foot constables and one civilian were killed and three constables were wounded. The matter was reported to UN Observer Group who after investigation declared it a border violation by Pakistan border police. UN Observers report was sent to us in General Nimmo's DO. No. CMO/289, dated 14th May 1955. With the concurrence of General Nimmo, we issued a brief Press release giving the decision of the UN Observers but did not enter into the reasoning or arguments given in UN Observers report. On 1st June the Dawn and other Pakistan papers published an Associated Press of Pakistan report which was obviously inspired by Pakistan government. The report contained certain phrases and sentences which have been quoted from the UN Observers' report. These have been taken out of context and make the press report tendentious and misleading. It gives quite a contrary impression to what is written in the UN Observers' report.
Para 2  Hitherto we have not been anxious to publicise the UN Observers’ report but in view of the misleading press reports appearing in Pakistan we feel compelled to suggest that the whole of the UN Observers’ report should be released to the press. We would like you mention this to the Secretary General or to Cordier who we understand deals with this case.

Para 3  An early reply is requested confirming that there is no objection to release of the full report to the press. If the mischief resulting from Pakistani reports is to be undone the release should take place within a day or two.

Letter from Pakistan High Commissioner in India Ghazanfar Ali Khan to Commonwealth Secretary S. Dutt conveying a message from Pakistan Prime Minister to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

MOST IMMEDIATE

No. F. 2 (74)/55

29th June, 1955.

Dear Mr. Dutt,

I have been asked by my Government to request the Government of India to be good enough to immediately transmit the following message from my Prime Minister to the Prime Minister of India:

"My dear Prime Minister,

I have received your message of June 2 and have also seen Pandit Pant’s message to General Iskander Mirza. I regret to note that despite latter’s personal appeal to Pandit Pant that no action should be taken which might cause excitement in Nekowal area and prejudice the establishment of a friendly atmosphere between India and Pakistan, the Government of India should have decided to despatch Army patrols into Nekowal village.

This action further has been taken in unilateral disregard of agreements between Area Commanders of Pakistan and India reached in December 1950 and reaffirmed in June 1951 and again as recently as April 1954 in the presence of United Nations Observers that in the interest of maintaining peace in this area, no Indian military post would be established at Nekowal nor would Indian patrols enter Nekowal village. These agreements had worked extremely well until the recent unfortunate incident.

Pandit Pant has mentioned that incident as a reason for repudiating these agreements. On the contrary the position is that had those agreements been observed in other words had Indian military patrols not entered Nekowal village in contravention of those agreements and had civil authorities in charge of tractor unit given prior intimation to Pakistan military/civil authorities and gone into Nekowal village accompanied by United Nations Observers and laid down in 1950 agreement, the unfortunate incident of May 7 would not have occurred at all. The despatch of Indian Military patrols into Nekowal village by Government of India in unilateral repudiation of these agreements has created excitement in that area led to an exodus of Nekowal villagers into adjoining Pakistan villages and has produced a most unpleasant impression on public opinion in Pakistan. To those anxious to foster friendly relations between Pakistan and India this would seem too high a price to pay for almost nominal advantages accruing to India as a result of your Government's decision. I would, therefore, strongly urge you kindly to reconsider it and restore status quo ante.

Other matters mentioned in your message are receiving consideration."

Ends.

Yours sincerely

I. Press Release issued by the Ministry of External Affairs on the Nekowal incident.

New Delhi, July 2, 1955.

Since the receipt of the U.N. Observer’s report declaring the Nekowal incident as a border violation, preconceived and pre-designed by the Pakistan Border Police, reports have been appearing in the Pakistan press from time to time belittling and even questioning these findings. Recently attempts are also being made to justify the wanton aggression resorted to by the Pakistan Police by seeking to mislead the public by unfounded statements of an alleged violation by India of some agreements reached into in the past between the local Army Commanders.

2. Nekowal is an Indian village and this fact has been affirmed not only by the U.N. Observers but also by the Pakistan army commanders. Agreements were reached between the Army Commanders on the two sides since 1950, with a view to avoidance of incidents and ensuring that Pakistani forces did not interfere with the exercise of Indian authority over the village and its surrounding area. The first of such agreements was reached in December 1950 when the Pakistani Commander agreed that the enforcement of law and order in the village would be the concern of the Government of Jammu and Kashmir and that the Nekowalias must pay their dues to that Government. The second meeting of the Army Commanders took place in January 1951, when it was agreed that Indian patrols should not enter the village of Nekowal. This position was clarified in the agreement which was reached subsequently in April 1954, which is the last Agreement on the subject, when it was agreed, inter alia, that the Indian forces would patrol the area in the vicinity of Nekowal right up to the border to points within approximately 300 yards of Nekowal, but that those patrols would not enter the village of Nekowal.

3. This was the position on the 7th May 1955 when the Pakistan border police suddenly attacked a party of Indian nationals including a military escort, which was 500 yards away from the village. The Indian authorities had scrupulously observed the agreement and at no time the Indian forces went within 300 yards of the village. The April 1954 agreement also stipulated that the Pakistan border police would not interfere with the Indian patrols in any way. Unfortunately, however, on the 7th May 1955, the Pakistan Border Police made a pre-planned attack on the Indian party which was 500 yards away from the village.

4. It is deplorable that the responsibility for the wanton killing of 12 innocent Indian nationals which have been placed by U.N. Observers squarely on the Pakistan authorities should be sought to be defended and even justified by misreading these local arrangements and confusing the principal issue.

J. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Mohammad Ali regarding Nekowal.

New Delhi, July 18, 1955.

My dear Prime Minister,

Please refer to your letter relating to the Nekowal incident. This was forwarded by your High Commissioner in Delhi on the 29th June 1955 to our Foreign Office. I was then away in Europe. The letter reached me duly, but I was unable to send an answer because I was constantly travelling about from one country to another. I returned to Delhi on the 12th July and gave immediate consideration to your message. You will, I hope, appreciate the reasons for the delay in my not sending an answer to your letter earlier.

I have read your letter with some surprise and great regret. You will remember that when you came to Delhi, together with General Iskander Mirza, reference was made to the Nekowal incident on several occasions. You were good enough to inform our President on the 14th May 1955 of your profound regret at this incident and to assure him that if, on the receipt of the UN Observers’ report, it was found that any one in Pakistan was guilty, the severest possible action would be taken against such person. A press note issued by the High Commission of Pakistan in India referred to what you had said to our President.

Subsequently, when we met you and General Iskander Mirza, both of you again referred to this incident and assured us that on receipt of the UN Observers’ report, necessary action would be taken. Thus the matter rested on the report of the UN Observers. This report was received by us while you and General Iskander Mirza were still in Delhi and a copy of it was placed by our Home Minister before General Iskander Mirza. I presume that the UN Observers themselves must have sent a copy of their report to your Government.

I need not refer to this report in any detail here because you must have a copy of it. But briefly, the report declared that the incident was a border violation committed by the Pakistan border police. Also that “The state of the killing area, as subsequently observed, in which the Indians were caught; its tactical disadvantage to them; and the damage to the tractors, indicates preconceived design in which preparation by the Pakistan border police was an essential preliminary to a plan”. This was a clear enough verdict on this issue. Further it was stated that nine of the Indians dead and wounded were near the scene of the tractors and were killed by an overwhelming superiority of small arms fire. It is hardly necessary to point out that people engaged in the peaceful occupation of ploughing with a tractor can hardly be said to be aggressive. Apart from the evidence in the case, the UN Observers recorded that they themselves saw the Pakistan Border Police on the Indian side of the border, both in the garden copse and Nekowal village.

After this clear report and its conclusion, there was no room left for argument and the only question that arose was what steps the Pakistan Government would take, in accordance with normal international procedure and the assurance they had given to our President. The steps would naturally be to punish those who were guilty and to compensate those who had suffered.

I am, therefore, greatly surprised to read your letter which completely ignores these findings of the UN Observers as well as your assurances to us. You have referred to certain agreements between Area Commanders of Pakistan and India arrived at in December 1950, June 1951 and April 1954. These agreements, in the context of this incident and the UN Observers' report, have no relevance at all. But apart from this obvious fact, it is completely wrong to say that any one on the Indian side has contravened these agreements. I am afraid that you have been completely misinformed about these agreements, both in regard to their terms as well as their background.

As you must be aware, they were not formal agreements between the two countries, but were working arrangements between the military authorities of Pakistan and India and were calculated to help the civil administrations. This was specifically stated in the minutes prepared by the UN authorities of the meeting of the 26th December 1950.

The background of these agreements was as follows: In March 1950 our Army authorities had received a report that armed Pakistan irregulars had infiltrated into Nekowal and that there was a concentration of Pakistan forces just across the border. This report was communicated to the Chief Military Observer and several meetings were held by the UN authorities with Army Commanders of both sides. In accordance with the understanding then arrived at, our Army Commander sent a message to the Pakistan Army Commander in December 1950 informing him of the intention of the Jammu and Kashmir Government to exercise effective control over Nekowal. The Pakistan Commander replied to this message stating that the Jammu and Kashmir Government had every right to enforce direct control as proposed, but expressed anxiety regarding its repercussions. The meeting of the 26th December 1950 took place in this context. At this meeting it was agreed that the Jammu and Kashmir authorities would visit the village of Nekowal for collecting their dues and exercising their administrative control after informing the UN and Pakistan authorities. It was also agreed that the Indian Army would not establish any military forces at Nekowal.

This agreement was reviewed in another meeting on the 26th June 1951 when it was agreed that no troops would enter the village of Nekowal plus the tilled area belonging to the village. The last review of these arrangements took place on the 30th April 1954 when the agreement was further revised. This was the agreement which was operative on the 7th May 1955 when the Pakistani forces attacked the Indian party. I give below a relevant extract of the minutes of this meeting in full so as not to leave any doubt about the terms of the agreement:

(1) “The Indian Army would patrol this area right up to the border, to points within approximately 300 yards of Nekowal. The patrols would not enter Nekowal village.

(2) The Pak Area Commander undertook to instruct the Pak Border Police not to interfere with the patrols in any way.

(3) The Pak Area Commander undertook to investigate the local position further and to tell the Nekowalis that it was in their interests, as regards water supply from canals and general civil services, to foster good relations with the Jammu and Kashmir State.”

The UN Observers were associated with all the three agreements. They gave the following interpretation regarding the village of Nekowal in this context:

“Inform Commander with my compliments and regards that my interpretation of meaning of Nekowal in this context is village itself, that is to say, the built up area. My decision based on understanding of Observer present at meeting on 30th April 1954 and common military parlance and customs when briefing patrols using one inch ordnance maps. Have never regarded it in any other way.”

This agreement, as finally revised on the 30th April 1954, has been scrupulously observed by our authorities. Our Army patrols did not enter the village of Nekowal; they had not even gone up to 300 yards of the village which they were entitled to do. Even on the day of the Pakistani attack, they were 500 yards away from the village. Therefore, quite apart from the irrelevance of this agreement in connection with this incident, as a matter of fact there was no breach of it by the Indian side as alleged. Your information to this effect is thus not correct.
I should like to point out here further that the agreement of April 1954 had specifically stipulated that the Pakistan Border Police should not interfere with the Indian patrols in any way. It is clear from the report of the UN Observers that they did interfere and thereby committed a breach of that agreement. The Indian party on the 7th May was 500 yards away from the village. Even if it is argued that it had gone within the 300 yards limit by some error of judgment, surely that did not give any right to the Pakistani Border Police to attack them and open fire on them. All through the prolonged discussions in regard to Nekowal, there never has been any question of Pakistan armed personnel using force on Indian nationals to ensure observance of a working arrangement regarding a village in Indian territory.

I am therefore totally unable to understand the argument you have advanced in your letter. After the UN Observers’ report on the Nekowal incident, there was no room left for further argument. That establishes beyond any possibility of controversy that the Pakistan Border Police were guilty. Apart from and in addition to this basic fact, it is also clear that there was no breach by the Indian party of the previous working agreements. In fact, the breach was on the part of the Pakistan Border Police. Again it is clear that the Indian party was engaged peacefully in working a tractor. It is very far-fetched to imagine that this peaceful occupation was meant to be any kind of an attack.

I cannot imagine a clearer case and I earnestly hope that you will now give effect to the assurance that you were good enough to give us when you were here and punish the parties that were guilty. Further that due compensation will be given to those who have suffered on our side by this unwarranted attack.

You have referred in your letter to our decision to exercise authority over a part of our territory and send patrols to the village in the normal manner. I confess that I do not understand the logic of this argument. In the interest of peace and good relations between the two countries, which we value so much, it became essential for us to exercise this authority and thereby prevent further incidents based on any misunderstanding.

I trust you will be good enough now to take further steps in this matter as requested by us. These steps would be to punish those who were guilty and to provide compensation to the victims of this tragic occurrence or the dependents of those who had lost their lives.

Yours sincerely

Jawaharlal Nehru

K. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Mohammad Ali.

New Delhi, September 30, 1955.

My dear Prime Minister,

Please refer to your letter of the 12th September, 1955, in regard to the Nekowal incident. Your letter is in reply to my letter of July 18, 1955. In my letter I had dealt fully with the various aspects of this incident, and had quoted from the report of the UN Observers after an enquiry they had made. I had hoped that the established facts that I had brought to your notice, would put an end to any argument on this subject. Hence, my great surprise at reading your letter of the 12th September, 1955. In your letter, you have not even referred to the major points I had mentioned and which were established beyond doubt. I can only conclude that you have not paid full attention to what I wrote on the 18th July as well as to the UN Observers' report on the Nekowal incident. May I beg of you to read these two papers again?

2. I had not said in my previous letter, as you indicate, that the agreement between the Commanders dated the 26th December, 1950, had been superseded by subsequent agreements. It is obvious that you have misunderstood what I said in my letter. What was said by me was that the previous agreements were reviewed and revised subsequently, and that the working arrangements, as finally revised on the 30th April 1954, were operative in May, 1955.

3. You refer to what Nekowal village was supposed to mean. May I again draw your attention to the fact that the UN Observers had defined the village of Nekowal in the earlier agreements of June 1951 as the village plus the tilled area belonging to the village. The April 1954 agreement clearly states that Indians could patrol this area right up to the border to points within approximately three hundred yards of Nekowal but that this patrol will not enter Nekowal village. The UN Observers, who were associated with these three agreements, again gave their interpretation of the village Nekowal for the purposes of the April 1954 agreement. They said as follows:

"Inform Commander with my compliments and regards that my interpretation of meaning of Nekowal in this context is village itself, that is to say, the built-up area. My decision based on understanding of Observer present at meeting on 30th April 1954 and common military parlance and customs when briefing patrols using one inch ordnance maps. Have never regarded it in any other way."

4. This is, therefore, no matter of argument between your Government and ours. We have to accept the interpretation of the UN Observers who, I might again point out, were associated with all the three agreements. These agreements, as finally revised and interpreted by the UN Observers, have been scrupulously observed on our side throughout. In any matter of controversy of this kind, both Pakistan and Indian Governments must necessarily accept the interpretation given by the UN Observers.

5. You have given some extracts from the UN Observers' enquiry report. May I suggest to you that the extracts you have given out of their context, do not fairly represent that report and, indeed, give a completely distorted version of it. Thus, you say as follows:

"These facts are in the main borne out by the UN Observers' report: the fact that the girl might have been shot accidentally by the Indian soldiers, as is suggested in the report, would not render the killing any the less provocative."

Actually, what the UN Observers have written is as follows:

"She could have been accidentally shot by the firing from the Pak patrol when she was running towards Jindar. It is hardly likely that the Indian soldiers would have cause to shoot her, although it could have been accidental."

Thus, what the UN Observers have said, in guarded language, is almost the opposite of what you have suggested in your letter.

6. You have given further quotations from the Observers' report but you appear to have ignored the clear finding of the UN Observers. I quote this again:

"The state of the killing area, as subsequently observed, in which the Indians were caught; its tactical disadvantage to them; and the damage to the tractors, indicates preconceived design in which preparation by the Pakistan Border Police was an essential preliminary to a plan."

This is a clear verdict by the UN Observers that the incident was a border violation committed by the Pakistan Border Police. This incident resulted in twelve dead (including an officer) and one wounded on the Indian side and three dead and three wounded on the Pakistan side. I need not point out to you the other circumstances and the fact that tractors were peacefully ploughing when they were attacked.

7. I would also draw your attention to the fact that the UN Observers have stated in their report that the statements made by the Pakistan witnesses were found to be unreliable and unreasonable.

8. If you wish to state that you reject the UN Observers' report and to ignore all the facts, then I have little further to say. I would, however remind you again of what your predecessor and General Iskandar Mirza, now your Governor General, told us when they were here. They gave us clearly to understand, both privately and publicly, that they would abide by the UN Observers' report. I have no doubt that you can verify what I say by reference to the present Governor General of Pakistan. You will appreciate that it is no small matter for the word of a Prime Minister and a distinguished Minister who is now Governor General, to be set aside casually in this way. It will be difficult for any two governments to deal with each other if assurances and undertakings were ignored.

9. In paragraph 4 of your letter, there are some quotations which are completely new to me and I do not know where they come from.

10. In regard to the question of compensation, surely there are certain international conventions which every Government should follow. The fact that this was not mentioned in the Ceasefire Agreement has no relevance. Further, it is important to note that this incident did not take place on the ceasefire boundary which cuts across the State of Jammu and Kashmir but on the pre-partition Jammu-Punjab boundary.

11. I would also remind you that, on previous occasions, the Government of Pakistan itself have asked for compensation and the Government of India have formally informed the Government of Pakistan that they on their part would be prepared to pay compensation in respect of established incidents on the border involving any death. In this present Nekowal case, it is clearly established by the UN Observers that there was a violation of the border on the part of Pakistan and that an official agency of Pakistan was responsible for this wanton attack on and killing of Indian nationals. There can be no doubt that under International Law, the Government of Pakistan is liable to pay compensation.

12. You refer to our decision to exercise authority over Nekowal after this incident. I have already explained to you how this became inevitable after the Nekowal incident. This was not only the sovereign right of India to exercise control over her territory but the wanton attack by the Pakistan Border Police had made it incumbent on us to protect our territory and our nationals.

13. This Nekowal incident has, I am sure you will appreciate a vital significance because it involves the honour of two countries and the faith they are to attach to each other's professions and assurances. It is because of this that I have ventured to write to you again at some length. If even such a flagrant case is sought to be bypassed and explained away, then it will not be easy for any respect to be attached to any decision which ignores assurances, facts, and impartial reports by third parties.
14. You say in paragraph 9 of your letter that you "have taken such action as was appropriate in this case in the light of what has been stated above to ensure, as far as possible, that incidents of this nature do not occur again". It does not appear from this what action you have taken in punishing those who were guilty of this wanton aggression. I shall be grateful if you will let me know what has been done in this respect.

15. I still hope that your Government will reconsider this matter and give effect to the assurances that were given to us and punish those who were guilty. I hope also that you will appreciate the correctness of our asking for compensation.

Yours sincerely

Jawaharlal Nehru

L. Letter from Pakistan Prime Minister Mohamad Ali to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Karachi, April 14, 1956.

No. 9(2)-Sec./55 April 14, 1956.

My dear Prime Minister

Please refer to your letter No. 1801-PMH/55 dated September 30th, 1955, on the subject of the Nekowal incident. I must apologize for the delay in writing to you. My preoccupation with constitutional matters had prevented me from attending to this matter earlier.

1. I have carefully considered this matter again. I regret that you should have come to the conclusion that we were not honouring the assurances given to your President by Major General Iskander Mirza and my predecessor. There is no such intention and I hope it shall never be said of Pakistan that it failed to honour any of its commitments.

2. There is also no question of our not accepting the U.N. Observers' report on this incident.

3. When however we come to decide what action should be taken on this report, we are bound to take certain factors into consideration.

4. We have first to consider how this incident originated? Who was initially to blame for it? It is our considered view that if the working arrangements agreed to between the Indian and Pakistani Army Commander's in regard to Nekowal had not been violated by the Indian Army patrol on the day of the occurrence, this incident would not have occurred at all.

5. You hold that the entry of the Indian military patrol in the Nekowal area on that day did not contravene those arrangements. From Para 9 of your letter it seems to me that perhaps all the facts relevant to this issue have not been placed before you. I would, therefore, request you to consider this matter again in the light of the facts I mention below.

6. In the Conference between the Area Commanders which was held on the 27th June, 1951, it was specifically agreed that because the inhabitants of Nekowal were very sensitive to entry of Indian troops in their village and were likely to resist such attempts, Indian troops should avoid going into Nekowal and the land belonging to this village. In their agreement of the same date, which was signed by U.N. Observers, they had, therefore, specifically defined Nekowal village as inclusive of the lands belonging to its inhabitants whom it was intended not to offend.
7. In their subsequent agreement dated 30th April, 1954 which was admittedly in force on the day of the occurrence, it was again stated that Indian patrols would not enter “Nekowal village”. You contend that “Nekowal village” meant merely the built-up area of the village. Our view is that it was always understood to imply the village and the lands belonging to it as the term normally means in official parlance in both India and Pakistan. That officials on your side also took the same view is evident from the fact that, until 7th May, 1955 when the Indian tractor team and army patrol suddenly appeared on the scene and the incident took place, Indian patrols had never entered Nekowal village or the lands belonging to Nekowalis. In support of your view you have quoted the interpretation given by U.N. Observers. This interpretation was, however, given after the Nekowal incident had taken place and I find nothing to show that before the incident either of the parties had held this view.

8. Generally speaking, it may be that in military parlance a village means only the built-up area. But here the Area Commanders were not concerned with a military situation. Their intention was rather to avoid creating a situation which might unnecessarily provoke the local population and result, as in this case it in fact did, in undesirable consequences. Indeed this intention is made clear in the agreement of April 1954 itself. Note (iii) of clause 6 of this agreement reads as follows:-

"The Indian Brigadier also made it clear that there was no intention that the mechanized farm units should interfere with Nekowalis in the areas they have been cultivating”.

9. I quoted this clause in my last letter. You say that these quotations are completely new to you. Apparently, the full text of this agreement has not been placed before you. I enclose a copy, the original of which bears the signatures of U.N. Observers. I am sure you will agree that this entirely alters the picture and that you will revise your opinion as to who was initially responsible for this incident.

10. The decision of the Area, Commanders that the Indian military patrols or the mechanized farm units should not enter the lands belonging to Nekowalis was a prudent precaution. It is comparatively immaterial whether or not by going to within 300 yards of the built-up area of Nekowal on May 7, 1955, the Indian army patrol had committed a technical breach of the arrangements agreed to by the Area Commanders which were in force on that day. What matters is that the Area Commander were clearly of the view that it would be unwise for Indian army patrols and the Indian Mechanized Farm Unit to enter on the land belonging to Nekowalis because it was feared that such action might lead to undesirable developments. This precaution was not observed on the date of the occurrence; from the U.N. Observers’ report it is clear that the Indian Mechanized Farm Unit and an Indian Military patrol did enter the land belonging to Nekowalis and started cultivating it with the result that the very consequences which the Area Commanders had feared unfortunately followed.

11. The next point and I think this is crucial we have to consider is: who started the shooting? The U.N. report concludes specifically that the evidence has failed to prove who fired the first shot. It also holds that the Border Police did not cross the border in a provocative manner at the time the firing commenced. It is true that after the incident had commenced and during its course two members of the Pakistan Border Police were found in the garden copse on the Indian side of the border. But that in itself could not be treated as a grave offence. Once the firing had commenced, it would be natural for both parties to endeavour to take up the most advantageous defensive positions.

12. It is clear from a perusal of the report that both sides failed to establish their respective cases in full. The Indian version is that the Pakistan Border Police opened fire on the Indian tractor workers and Indian army patrol without warning and it seems without provocation. Not only, in the absence of any provocation, would this story appear to be unreasonable; it has also not been proved, because the UN Observers’ enquiries failed to establish that the Pakistan Border Police started the firing.

13. On the other hand, the version of the Border Police is that when a party of Indian farm employees working on tractors, accompanied by a strong Indian patrol, started ploughing the land of Nekowalis, an argument ensued between the Indian party and Nekowal villagers, the army patrol chased and threatened these civilians, firing shots across the border and killed a Pakistani girl. Thereafter, an engagement followed between the Indian army and the Pakistan Border Police. This is not an entirely unreasonable story and it would seem to derive support from the U.N. Observers’ report. The report says:

"It is noted that the Indian witness denied seeing the alleged NEKOWAL civilians that PAKISTAN evidence states were near the tractors when the firing started. It is reasonable to suppose that these civilians could have been there and were protesting about their land being cultivated, (it had recently been harvested, but not as part of the Government Farm). The leading tractor was making the first furrow in that area and the civilians would have had plenty of time to see the tractors coming across the open ground from the NE.

The girl was shot from her front as the wound on her breast was the point of entry of a bullet and she could have been accidentally shot by the firing from the Pakistan patrol when she was running towards JINDAR. It is hardly likely that the INDIAN soldiers would have cause to shoot her, although it could have been accidental."

14. I said in my last letter that the fact that the Pakistani girl might have been shot accidentally by the Indian soldiers would not render the killing any the less provocative. You hold that the language used by the U.N. Observers does not permit of the interpretation that the girl might have been accidentally shot by the Indian soldiers. To me it seems it does. In any case, the mere fact that a Pakistani girl had been shot dead was bound to inflame passions and, it may be reasonably inferred, provoked the subsequent encounter between the Pakistan and Indian forces. In that agitated and confused hour nobody would stop to enquire who killed the girl and the Pakistani party must have at once assumed that the Indians were responsible.

15. It is most unfortunate that 15 persons on both sides lost their lives in this incident but, you will appreciate, that once an engagement between armed units starts, each unit would naturally take whatever action it considers necessary in self-defence, and in the heat of the encounter this may sometimes result in heavy casualties.

16. You have drawn my attention to the finding in the report that "the state of the killing area, as subsequently observed in which the Indians were caught, its tactical advantage to them; and the damage to the tractors indicates pre-conceived design in which preparation by the Pakistan Border Police was an essential preliminary to a plan". The circumstances that the U.N. Observers have enumerated are, on their own report, capable of a different interpretation also. However that may be, it is when we come to examine this finding with a view to fixing responsibility that our difficulties begin. What was this plan? Who conceived it? Who was responsible for its direction or execution? The report is silent on these points and all our enquiries have failed to throw any light on this subject.

17. You will, I am sure, appreciate that under this circumstance no punishment could be meted out to individual members of the Border Police on the basis of the above finding. Nor could Government in deciding this question possibly ignore the other factors I have set out above. It is quite clear that whatever action was taken by the Border Police was originally provoked by the Indian military patrol. The action of the Border Police may have amounted to a "border violation" or even to a "pre-conceived design" but the Government of Pakistan was bound to determine the guilt or innocence of the Border Police on the basis of established facts only. You are doubtless aware that in matters of disciplinary action, Government servants have certain statutory rights. In proceeding against the members of the Border Police those findings could not serve as estoppels.
In spite of the fact that the guilt of the Border Police could not be established, we took whatever action we appropriately could in this matter. The entire unit was reprimanded, transferred from Nekowal and the Unit that replaced it was warned to exercise the greatest restraint and care in the matter of Border disputes. I trust you will now agree that under the circumstances we have sufficiently complied with the assurances given by Major General Iskander Mirza and my predecessor to your President.

18. I regret I am unable to agree with you on the question of compensation. It is true that the U.N. Observers have declared this to be a case of border violation by the Border Police. But that in itself would not render us liable to pay any compensation. In the past on a number of occasions the U.N. verdict has been against Indian forces but in no case was compensation paid by the Government of India in respect of the loss of lives involved. The fact that this incident did not take place along the cease-fire line is immaterial. For no compensation has ever been paid by either Government in respect of any losses inflicted by it along any part of the Indo-Pakistan border.

19. You are right in saying that our Government has in the past asked for compensation in respect of certain border incidents. In fact both Governments have, in the past claimed compensation for the loss of lives and property in border clashes, but in no case was any compensation paid by either Government. It is also true that in 1950, while asking the Government of Pakistan to pay compensation in respect of an incident on the Jaisalmer border, your Government said that they would also be prepared to pay compensation for established incidents of a similar serious character on the Pakistan side of the border in which Indian nationals were concerned. The Government of Pakistan were, however, unable to agree to such a proposition in view of the difficulties that would inevitably arise in implementing it, and there the matter ended.

20. Finally, I am unable to accept the view that this was a case of a wanton attack on and killing of India nationals. It has not been proved that the Pakistan Border Police started the fighting and, from what I have said above, it is clear that the provocation for this attack did not come from their side. In fact, had certain obvious precautions set out in the agreements between the Area Commanders been taken by the Indian party, the incident would never have occurred.

21. I regret to note that you have not accepted my view that the best way of preserving peace and promoting good relations in the Nekowal area is for the forces in that area to continue to cooperate in the manner agreed to between the Pakistan and Indian Area Commanders. I do not agree with the reasons you have given in support of your decision to send Indian forces into Nekowal in disregard of these agreements. But I have no wish to start a controversy on this issue.

Yours sincerely

(Mohamad Ali)

M. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Chaudhrui Mohamad Ali.

New Delhi, April 28, 1956

D. O. No. 232 - PMO/56

April 28, 1956

My dear Prime Minister,

Please refer to your D.O.No.9 (2)-Sec/55 dated the 14th April, 1956, regarding the Nekowal incident. This occurred on 9th May 1955. The UN Military Observers Group gave their findings on 14th May 1955. Though almost a year has passed since the date of the incident and we have exchanged several letters, it is regrettable that it has not been possible for the Government of Pakistan to carry out the assurances given by your predecessor* and General Iskander Mirza during their visit to Delhi in May 1955 that if, on the receipt of the UN Observers' report, it was found that anyone in Pakistan was guilty, the severest possible action will be taken against such person.

In para of your letter you have mentioned that there is no question of your not accepting the UN Observers' report on this incident, but the rest of the letter contains arguments, the sole purpose of which appears to be to discredit the UN Observers' findings. I do not at this late stage intend to go into the details of the reasons given by you for your inability to take action against those responsible

* Mohammad Ali Bogra was his predecessor and the new President of the newly proclaimed Islamic Republic of Pakistan Mirza was the Pakistani Interior Minister, when he visited India in May 1955.

 Nehru stated in a note to Commonwealth Secretary, MEA, on 25 April, "In your draft you have said nothing about the question of compensation. Of course there is no chance of our getting compensation. But I do not think that it would be right for us to give up this point... The payment of compensation would be a salutary check on such border incidents in future."
for this serious incident involving the killing of 12 Indian personnel. I am, however, referring below to some of the points mentioned in your letter.

You have emphasized that under the agreement, dated the 30th April 1954, the Indian patrols could not enter Nekowal village, which, in your view, included not only the built-up area of the village but also the lands belonging to it. In the agreement it has been laid down that "the Indians would patrol this area, right up to the border, to points within approximately 300 yards of Nekowal. Patrols would not enter Nekowal Village". This way of putting it clearly shows that the intention was that "village" stands for the built-up area only. It is for this reason that it was emphasized that even though patrols might go within a distance of about 300 yards and therefore even less than 300 yards, they would under no circumstances enter Nekowal village. On the following ruling of the UN Observers on this point you have said that this interpretation had been given after the incident:

"Inform Commander with my compliments and regards that my interpretation of meaning of Nekowal on this context is village itself, that is to say, the built-up area. My decision based on understanding of Observer present at meeting on 30th April 1954 and common military parlance and customs when briefing patrols using one inch ordnance maps. Have never regarded it in any other way."

It may be noted that the above view is based "on understanding of Observer present at meeting on 30th April 1954". Our patrols have, in fact, on several occasions prior to this incident gone within about 500 yards of the Nekowal village. On the day of the incident also they were within about 500 yards of the village. It is, therefore, inconceivable for me to think of any other interpretation of "Nekowal Village".

While on the subject of the 1954 agreement, I should like to invite your attention to the following extract from this agreement:

"The Pak Area Commander undertook to instruct the Pak Border Police not to interfere with these (Indian) patrols in any way."

You have suggested that provocation for the shooting was provided by a Pakistani girl having been shot by the Indian soldiers. This was also the basis of the Pakistan Border Police case before the UN Observers. In the UN Observers' report, however, there is nothing to show that the girl was shot in the beginning of the incident or that this was in any way the provocation for the incident.

As regards the evidence produced by Pakistan before the UN Observers, the following extracts from the Chief Military Observers' report are relevant.

"The first Pak witness is an important one because he was the only Border Policeman left at the tractors according to the Pakistani evidence, the other two with him having been killed by earlier shots. He was an unreliable witness.... Either this witness or the patrol commander lied concerning their movements and the recovery of the two BPs that were lying dead near the witness. According to the witness’ story, he went back to the patrol commander, but the patrol commander said he went up to the witness in the hole. The story of the seventh Pak witness (BP wounded near Jindar) regarding 15 trucks on the Indian side is completely discounted by UN Observers in the area."

The evidence Pak witnesses could not be taken before the second day of the investigation and the Pak representatives had knowledge of the Indian evidence, and were in a position to brief their witnesses. All Pak witnesses in the vicinity had the same story about the argument and they mentioned words of conversation irrespective of their position at the time and over the noise of the diesel tractors with engines running."

"All Pak witnesses in the area saw the girl shot. The first Pak witness said that the girl was shot, then they shouted to the Indians not to cross the border, and it was not until they were alleged to have done so and shot the 2 BP while they were standing that the Pak Border Police opened fire. The evidence from Pak hospital states that the two BPs were shot in the head. The whole story appears unreasonable."

After considering the evidence produced by both sides, the Chief Military Observer came to certain conclusions. One of these conclusions was -

"The state of the killing area, as subsequently observed, in which the Indians were caught; its tactical disadvantage to them; and the damage to the tractors indicate preconceived design in which preparation by the Pakistan Border Police was an essential preliminary to a plan."

From this conclusion it is obvious that the firing by Pakistan Border Police was a part of a “preconceived design in which preparation by the Pakistan Border Police was an essential preliminary to a plan”. To my mind it is a clear verdict and is not capable of "a different interpretation."

You have mentioned in paragraphs 18 and 19 of your letter that no compensation has ever been paid by either Government in respect of any losses inflicted by them along any part of the Indo-Pakistan border and that the Government of Pakistan had not agreed to the proposition put forward by the Government of India that they would be prepared to pay compensation for established incidents of a similar serious character on the Pakistan side of the border in which Indian nationals were concerned. The fact that on previous occasions, no compensation was paid by either party is no ground for persisting in a wrong practice. There are international conventions on this question of compensation which both our Governments should follow. We on our part are prepared to pay compensation if we are adjudged the guilty party in any incident of this type. The payment of such compensation would be a salutary check on such border incidents in future. This Nekowal incident has naturally, as you must be aware, attracted a great deal of anxious interest in India. Frequent questions have been put to me in Parliament. I would suggest, therefore, that our correspondence on this subject should be published or placed on the table of Parliament here. This publication could take place on an agreed date in Delhi and Karachi. If you agree, we might do so on Monday, 7th May 1956.

Yours sincerely,

Jawaharlal Nehru

SECRET

Letter from Pakistan Prime Minister Chaudhuri Mohamad Ali to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Karachi, May 19, 1956.

D.O. No. 403/MA/56 May 19, 1956.

My dear Prime Minister,

Please refer to your d. o. No. 232-PMO/56, dated April 28, 1956, regarding the Nekowal incident.

1. I regret to find that you should still hold the view that we have not carried out the assurances given by Major General Iskander Mirza and my predecessor during their visit to Delhi in May 1955 in regard to this incident. I had gone into this matter very thoroughly and in my last letter to you given full reasons to show that the action that we have taken against the border police unit concerned did under the circumstances of this case sufficiently comply with those assurances and that no severer action was possible.

2. In setting out those circumstances it was farthest from my intention to try to discredit the U. N. Observers' findings. What I had said was that while we did not question the U. N. Observers' findings in respect of this incident, when it came to deciding what action should be taken in respect of those findings and to what extent the border police unit had rendered itself liable to action, we were bound to take certain factors into consideration. In matters of disciplinary action, as you doubtless know, Government servants enjoy certain statutory rights. Before they can be punished, specific charges have to be framed, evidence taken and punishment meted out only if they are found guilty on the basis of facts established by that evidence. The finding of the U. N. Observers that certain factors, enumerated in the report, indicated "pre-conceived design in which preparation by the Pakistan Border Police was an essential preliminary to a plan" would not by itself constitute sufficient evidence to warrant any punishment. Evidence has to be produced to establish the existence of such a plan and the responsibility of individual members of the Border Police in the matter. No evidence to that effect is available. The U.N. Observers' Report itself is silent on these points and our own enquiries have failed to throw any light on this subject.

3. On the other hand, there are several important factors which are positively in favour of the members of this unit and could not possibly be ignored by my Government in considering whether they were liable to any punishment.

4. The first is that the incident arose primarily because the Indian Army unit had violated the 1954 Agreement between the Indian and Pakistan Army Commanders in regard to Nekowal.

5. In your letter you have again put forward the view that by entering the lands belonging to Nekowalis on that day the Indian Army patrol had no violated that agreement. You have reiterated your view that "Nekowal village" which the Indian patrols undertook not to enter meant only the built-up area of the village. For the reasons I have already given, I am unable to accept this view.

6. However, I think it is quite unnecessary to labour the point whether "village" in the agreement meant only the built-up area or also included the lands belonging to Nekowalis. What is quite clear is that the agreement specifically stated that Indian mechanised farm units would not interfere with Nekowalis in the areas they had been cultivating, whereas on the day of the occurrence, as the U. N. Observes report shows, an Indian mechanised farm unit, accompanied by a strong military escort, did in fact enter upon the land belonging to Nekowalis and started cultivating it. Here was a clear breach of the 1954 Agreement, which led to an altercation between the members of the Indian party and the Nekowalis, which in its turn precipitated the incident in question.

7. You have drawn my attention to a clause in the agreement to the effect that "the Pak Area Commander undertook to instruct the Pak Border Police not to interfere with these (Indian) patrols in any way". I should like to point out that a civilian party with five tractors from the Nundpur Central mechanized farm, accompanied by a strong Indian military escort, could hardly be termed a "patrol" within the meaning of the agreement. Nor did the incident occur because the Pakistan Border Police had tried to interfere within the meaning of the agreement. Nor did the incident occur because the Pakistan Border Police had tried to interfere with any such patrol. Here quite clearly the Indian military party had come not to patrol that area but to enable the mechanized unit forcibly to cultivate the land belonging to Nekowalis, apprehending obviously that such action would be resisted by the owners of the land. And this is precisely what in actual fact happened. This patently high-handed action of the Indian party led to an altercation which was followed by shooting in the course of which a Pakistani girl was killed and the encounter between the Pakistan Border Police and the Indian military patrol followed. I repeat that these basic facts of the Border Police version have been established by the U.N. Observers' report.

8. In assessing the conduct of the members of the Border Police unit we could not possibly ignore the above facts. We could not ignore either the specific finding of the U. N. Observers that there was no proof that the first shot, which must have started the shooting incident, was fired by the Border Police and their further finding that the Border Police did not cross the border in a provocative manner at the time the firing commenced. Nor could we overlook the further fact that while the U.N. Observers considered some of the Pakistan evidence unreliable, the Indian version was also in several important particulars found untrustworthy. In particular the gravamen of the Indian charge that the incident arose because the Pakistan Border Police started the firing without any warning has been rejected by the U.N. Observers.

9. In view of the foregoing facts, I do not see what severer action could have been justifiably taken against the members of the Border Police unit concerned in this incident in order to comply with the assurances given by Major General Iskander Mirza and by my predecessor to your President. I am satisfied that, considering the circumstances of this case, we have gone to the farthest extent possible in this matter.

10. For the same reasons I do not consider that my Government is at all liable to pay any compensation. The Indian party which violated the agreement between the Area Commanders who had laid down certain specific safeguards to prevent such incidents is initially responsible for whatever happened on that day. The existence of a "preconceived design", such as has been proved while it is clear from the report that the provocation for the incident was, if anything, provided by the Indian tractor unit and its military escort which forcibly entered the land of Nekowalis in contravention of that agreement and not by the Pakistan Border Police.

11. Another reason given in my last letter why the question of compensation did not arise in this case was that in none of the incidents of this nature in the past has compensation been paid by either Government. In a number of instances, before this incident occurred, the U.N. verdict has been against India. Even since May 7, 1955, when this incident took place, we have brought 19 cases of cease-fire violation by Indian forces to the notice of U.N. observers. In 5 of these cases, a clear verdict of cease-fire violation has been given: 4 against Indian, 1 against Pakistan. In none of these cases, although they involved loss of Pakistan lives and property, has any compensation been paid by India and I see no reason why the Nekowal incident should be picked out for treatment as an exception to this practice. I must also make it quite clear that we do not consider residents of Jammu and Kashmir to be “Indian nationals” or that that part of the State territory which is in Indian occupation is “Indian territory”.

12. I agree with you however that we should not persist in this past practice and that payment of compensation in border clashes might act as a salutary check on such incidents in future. The reason why we could not agree to your Government’s proposal for payment of compensation by both sides in such cases was not that we were opposed to such a proposal but that its implementation would present serious difficulties. There is first the question of how the guilt of either party would be established. There would also be difficulties in assessing the amount of compensation due in each case. Nevertheless, I think this matter deserves further consideration. I therefore suggest that a committee of Indian and Pakistani officials should go into this matter and devise a rough and ready formula which would meet these difficulties. Any decision that we might take in regard to payment of compensation on the recommendations of this committee can obviously apply only to future incidents.

13. For the reasons given above I do not consider that my Government is at all liable to pay any compensation in respect of the Nekowal incident, I am personally conscious of the human suffering involved in an incident where a number of lives have been lost. Having regard to this aspect of the matter, we would be prepared to make an ex-gratia contribution of Rs. 100,000 towards the rehabilitation of the relatives of those who lost their lives on the Jammu side of the border as a result of this incident. Although the assurances given to your President by Major General Iskander Mirza and my predecessor in respect of this incident do not require us to do this, I consider that such action would be further proof that we are always prepared to do everything possible to fulfill not only the letter but also the spirit of our assurances. To prevent any misrepresentation of our action, however, a joint statement by us would be necessary that this contribution does not imply admission of any liability on Pakistan’s part on account of this incident. I trust you will find this a satisfactory conclusion to this regrettable incident.

14. You have suggested that we publish our correspondence on this subject. I should have no objection to agreeing to your proposal. There is one difficulty however. Our correspondence contains excerpts from the U.N. Observers’ report which is a secret document. Indeed if the correspondence is to be published, it will be necessary to publish the U. N. Observers' report as well. Before the correspondence can be published, we will have to obtain the concurrence of the Secretary General of the United Nations because publication will not only mean that a secret U.N. document will be divulged but also that the report itself might come under adverse public criticism which may prejudice the position of the U.N. Observers. Perhaps we ought to avoid such a situation.

Yours sincerely,

(Mohamad Ali)

O. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Chaudhury Mohamad Ali.

New Delhi, May 30, 1956.

My dear Prime Minister,

Thank you for your D.O. letter No. 403/M A/56 dated 19th May 1956 regarding the Nekowal incident.

2. In the greater part of your letter you have again stated your reasons for your inability to take severe action against your Border Police responsible for the incident. We have argued this matter at great length in our previous correspondence on this subject and I do not think it would serve any useful purpose for me to repeat the arguments I have already placed before you. It is understandable that your views on the merits of an incident of this kind may differ from our views. In the present case, however, it was not a question of your views or our views. We have the independent findings of the UN Observers who cannot be said to be partial to either party in this matter. All I had asked for was that the findings of the UN Observers should be accepted and action taken to punish those who had been found responsible for the incident by the UN Observers.

3. The Nekowal incident was, as you know, a very serious one, involving the killing of twelve Indian personnel. This can hardly be compared to relatively minor incidents. I do not understand the relevance of the statement in the concluding part of paragraph 11 of your letter. The question of the sovereignty of India over the territory of Jammu and Kashmir has no direct bearing on this question, which is covered by the ceasefire agreement between our two commands. As, however, you have raised this question, I would like to make it clear that, in so far as the Government of India are concerned, they have consistently maintained that the entire territory of Jammu and Kashmir State is legally and constitutionally a part of the Indian Union. The acceptance by us of the ceasefire agreement, in the interests of furthering a peaceful settlement, does not in any way detract from that position.

4. In your letter you have indicated your acceptance of my proposal that, in accordance with international conventions and in order to impose a salutary check on such border incidents in the future, we should agree to payment of compensation by the side adjudged as the guilty party in a serious incident of this nature. You have suggested that a committee of Indian and Pakistani officials might go into this matter and devise a rough and ready formula which would meet these difficulties. I do not quite understand what you have in mind. There are international conventions governing such matters. For the rest, it is a question of fact. If you have anything special in mind, I shall be glad to know what it is.

5. I appreciate the offer made in paragraph 13 of your letter to make an ex-gratia contribution of Rs. 100,000/- towards the rehabilitation of the relatives of those who lost their lives in the Nekowal border incident, and I accept it. You have added, however, that there should be a joint statement to the effect that this contribution does not imply admission of any liability on Pakistan's part on account of this incident.

6. You are aware that in this matter, as our lengthy correspondence has shown, there is a difference of opinion between the Government of India and the Government of Pakistan. While it is open to the Pakistan Government to state their viewpoint, this will not be in keeping with our approach to the question. We could not, therefore, be parties to a joint statement which gives expression to the Pakistan Government's point of view only. If, however, you wish some joint statement to be made, it might be on the following lines:

"While the Pakistan Government do not accept entire responsibility for this sad incident, they have accepted the findings of the UN Observers in this case, and guided by a desire to relieve human suffering, they have offered, and the Government of India have accepted, a contribution of Rs. 100,000/- towards the rehabilitation of the relatives of those who lost their lives on the Indian side of the ceasefire line as a result of this incident."

7. I note that you have no objection to publishing our correspondence on the Nekowal incident. As regards the difficulties mentioned in paragraph 14 of your letter, we consulted the office of the UN Secretary General through our Permanent Representative in New York, and were informed that there would be no reason at all for the UN Secretary General to raise any objection if the two Prime Ministers mutually agreed to release their correspondence. As we are not publishing the whole of the UN Observers' report but only excerpts quoted in our correspondence as part of the correspondence, the other difficulties mentioned in your letter will not arise. I shall, therefore, be grateful if you will indicate an agreed date for the simultaneous publication of our correspondence, in this case in Delhi and Karachi.

Yours sincerely,

Jawaharlal Nehru

P.  Letter from Pakistan Prime Minister Mohamad Ali to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Karachi, August 9, 1956.

My dear Prime Minister,

Thank you for your d.o. No. 1365-PMH/56, dated May 30, 1956, regarding the Nekowal incident. I regret the delay in replying to it.

2. It is not my wish to prolong the controversy over the merits of this incident, but there is one point with which I find I must deal. The statement made in the concluding part of paragraph 11 of my last letter was necessary because in your earlier correspondence you had claimed sovereign rights over Nekowal territory and had referred to Nekowalis as Indian nationals. As you know, we have never accepted and do not accept the claim that the State of Jammu and Kashmir is Indian territory or that its residents are Indian nationals. That remains our position.

3. In paragraph 4 of your letter you enquire the reason why I had suggested that a Committee of Indian and Pakistani officials should go into the question of payment of compensation in respect of border incidents in future. In my last letter I had mentioned two difficulties that would arise in this connection. First was the question of how the guilt of either party would be established. Even if in respect of the ceasefire line we agreed to act in accordance with the findings of the U.N. Observers, we should still have to agree upon some mechanism for establishing the guilt of either party in respect of incidents occurring elsewhere along the Indo-Pakistan border. Secondly, there would be difficulties also in assessing the amount of compensation due in each case. For this purpose too some body may have to be set up whose findings would be automatically accepted by both governments. When the question is closely examined other problems which would require to be considered in this connection might also crop up. It seemed to me therefore that perhaps the best way of devising a rough and ready formula which would meet all these difficulties was to require a committee of Indian and Pakistani officials to discuss this matter. They would doubtless take into consideration whatever international conventions govern such matters.

4. As regards our offer of an ex-gratia contribution of Rs. 1,00,000/-, I would suggest the following joint statement:

"While the Government of Pakistan has accepted the findings of the U.N. Observers in regard to the Nekowal incident, they disclaim responsibility for this incident or any liability to pay compensation on its account. However, guided by a desire to relieve human suffering, they have offered, and the Government of India have accepted, a contribution of Rs. 1,00,000/- towards the rehabilitation of the relatives of those who lost their lives on the Jammu side of the ceasefire line as a result of this incident. So far as the two governments are concerned, they regard this subject now closed."

5. In my last letter I stated that I should have no objection to publication of our correspondence but that, if the correspondence was published, it would be necessary to publish the U.N. Observers' report as well. Clearly it would not be fair to either party if only those excerpts from the report as suited one party or the other and formed part of the correspondence were published. On receipt of your last letter, therefore, we approached the Secretary General for permission to publish the U.N. Observers' report along with the correspondence. We have been informed that both the Secretary General and General Nimmo are against such publication as a matter of principle. Under the circumstances, it seems to me that we have to abandon the proposal to publish our correspondence.

Yours sincerely,

(Mohamad Ali)

Prime Minister of India,

Q. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Mohammad Ali regarding Nekowal.

New Delhi August 13, 1956.

My dear Prime Minister,

Thank you for your letter of the 9th August which reached me on the 11th August. A day before the receipt of your letter that is on the 10th August, I had received your telegram on the subject of a statement I was reported to have made in the Lok Sabha. The same day I sent you a reply.

2. On the 10th of August, as I mentioned in my telegram to you, an urgent motion was made in our Parliament and I was asked for a statement in regard to the handout issued by the Pakistan Government. I had to reply to this. I enclose a copy of the statement made by me in Parliament on that occasion.

3. You will no doubt appreciate that, in the circumstances, it was impossible for me to refuse to reply or to give an evasive reply. Hence I was compelled to quote a part of your previous letter.

4. Now that I have made the statement in Parliament and made it quite clear in your own language, that you do not consider your Government as liable to pay any compensation, I see no advantage whatever in any kind of a joint statement issued by us. So far as I am concerned, I have made a statement. If you wish to say something more in order to make your position clear, you can certainly say so. A joint statement, when we differ in our approach to this question, has little value. It can only give the two different viewpoints which have already been stated or can be stated separately where necessary. For my part, I wish to say nothing more on this subject. It is obvious, however, that if questions are asked in Parliament, I have to reply to them.

5. You will appreciate, therefore, that the question of a joint statement does not now arise. Apart from this, the draft joint statement that you have sent is not one with which I could agree without much modification. I need not, however, go into this matter now.

6. I am sorry that you do not want our correspondence on this subject to be published. You say that the Secretary-General of the UN and General Nimmo are against the publication as a matter of principle. I do not know what principle is involved when a subject has been so fully discussed in public. My own information has been that the Secretary-General had no objection to its publication provided you and I agreed.

7. You refer in paragraph 2 of your letter about our claiming “sovereign rights over Nekowal territory”. I did not wish them and do not wish now to enter into this controversy. The whole point related to the ceasefire line which is obviously known and an established fact. Any persons on our side of the ceasefire line have to be treated as Indian nationals.

8. In paragraph 3 of your letter you have again referred to a committee of Indian and Pakistani officials being constituted to consider the question of compensation in respect of future border incidents. If necessity arises in the future, we may consider this. But, so far as the ceasefire line is concerned, it is obvious that the findings of UN Observers will have to be accepted by us. There appears to me no necessity for setting up a permanent committee for the future. I hope there will be no incident in future. In any event every incident will have to require special consideration between our Governments and the necessary machinery can be evolved.

Yours sincerely
Jawaharlal Nehru

R. Letter from Pakistan Prime Minister Mohamad Ali to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Karachi, August 22, 1956

My dear Prime Minister,

Thank you for your letter No. I818-PMH/56, dated the 13th August, 1956, on the subject of the Nekowal incident.

2. I agree that, in view of the statement you have made in the Indian Parliament, a joint statement need not be issued. Since the substance of your statement has also appeared in the Pakistan press, I do not propose to make any statement either. I note that you do not wish to say anything more on the subject. Nor do we.

3. I am instructing our High Commissioner in Delhi to hand over to you immediately a cheque for Rs.100,000/- representing our ex-gratia contribution towards the rehabilitation of the relatives of those who have lost their lives on the Jammu side of the border as a result of the incident. How this amount is to be disbursed among the persons affected is a matter I propose to leave to your discretion.

4. As regards my proposal to require a Committee of Indian and Pakistani officials to go into the question of payment of compensation in respect of border incidents, I agree that we may consider this when necessity arises in the future.

5. As already stated by me, I should certainly have no objection to the publication of our correspondence provided the report of the U.N. Observers was also published at the same time. On this subject I enclose for your information a copy of a communication that we received from the Secretary General of the United Nations on June 19th, 1956. I see considerable force in the considerations set out therein and suggest that we drop this matter.

Yours sincerely,
Sd/-Mohamad Ali

Hon’ble Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru,
Prime Minister of India,
New Delhi.

-------------

Copy of a communication received from the Secretary-General of the United Nations on the 19th of June, 1956, re: publication of the report of the U.N. Observers.

It is the considered opinion, both of General Nimmo and Secretary General, that such publication is not desirable as a matter of principle. The Nekowal incident was one of many since 1950 involving deaths and the publication of the secret report on this one incident is likely to lead to requests for publication of similar reports on other incidents This in turn would lead to press controversies and an increase in tension.

It has been the consistent policy of the United Nations Military Observer Group in India and Pakistan to Safeguard confidential character of its investigations and reports on incidents. These reports are, of course, made available in full to Commanders-in-Chief of both Governments. The procedure outlined above has made it possible for Military Observer Group to render maximum assistance to all Governments and authorities concerned in maintaining compliance of the Cease-Fire Agreements and in many cases in quietly correcting the causes of incidents.”

S. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Mohamad Ali.

New Delhi, August 26, 1955.

My dear Prime Minister,

Thank you for your letter of August 22.

In view of your agreeing with what I had suggested that no Joint Statement need be issued about the Nekowal incident, there is nothing more to be said about it. I do not propose to refer to this matter again. But, as I said previously, if a question is asked in Parliament, I shall have to answer it. In answering it, I do not wish to make any answer controversial if I can help it.

I note that you are instructing your High Commissioner in Delhi to hand over to us a cheque for Rs.100,000/- representing your ex-gratia contribution towards the rehabilitation of the relatives of those who lost their lives on the Jammu side of the border.

Yours sincerely,

1. Prevention of border incidents: It was agreed that all possible steps should be taken to prevent border incidents. A joint committee of representatives of the Government of India and Pakistan, assisted by representatives of the Government of the two Punjabs, should evolve a plan indicating the measures to be adopted for preventing recurrence of such incidents. The Committee should submit immediately a report for the consideration of the Ministers.

2. Shrines and Holy Places: The Ministers referred to the Agreement reached between the two Governments on this issue in July-August, 1953, and decided that a joint committee of the representatives of the two Governments should be formed to work out the details of implementation of the terms of this Agreement. The Committee should, inter alia prepare a list of important shrines in West Pakistan and certain selected areas in India, the protection and preservation of which should be the special responsibility of the Government concerned. The Committee should also consider the question of properties attached to the shrines and the income derived there from in accordance with the July-August, 1953, Agreement. The Committee should submit its report to the Ministers as early as possible and, in any case, within three months of its formation. If necessary, the Committee might visit the shrines concerned in the two countries.

The two Ministers agreed that all facilities and assistance should be given to pilgrims visiting shrines and holy places in the other country either as individual pilgrims or as pilgrim parties. In accordance with the Indo-Pakistan Agreement of the 9th April, 1955, on liberalisation of travel facilities between the two countries, a revised passport and visa scheme was being worked out by the two Governments. Provision should be made in the scheme for free and liberal grant of travel facilities to pilgrims.

Report of the Committee on border incidents

In pursuance of the agreement reached at a meeting of the Minister for Home Affairs, Government of India, and the Minister for the Interior, Government of Pakistan, held in New Delhi on the 15th of May, 1955 the Committee of representatives of the two Governments, assisted by representatives of the Governments of Punjab(P) and Punjab(I) met, at 3 P.M. on Monday the 16th May, 1955, in the Conference Room of the Ministry of External Affairs, New

---

* The Government of India ratified the Agreement of the 15th May, 1955, soon after its conclusion and also nominated the Indian component of the Committee as under:-

1. Shri V. Viswanathan
   Joint Secretary,
   Ministry of Home Affairs,
   Chairman

2. Shri P.G. Zachariah,
   Deputy Secretary
   Ministry of Rehabilitation
   Member

3. Shri A.R. Malhotra, Deputy Secretary (Political)
   Government of Punjab(I)
   Member

4. An Under Secretary to the Ministry of External Affairs.
   Member-Secretary

It was also proposed that when the Committee toured in Pakistan, the Indian Deputy High Commissioner at Lahore may be associated with the work of the Committee.

The Government of Pakistan ratified the Agreement only at the end of December, 1955 and nominated the following as their representatives on the Joint Committee.

1. Secretary
   the Ministry of the Interior
   Chairman.

2. Home Secretary
   West Pakistan
   Member

3. Deputy Secretary
   Ministry of Refugees and Rehabilitation
   Member

4. Assistant/Under Secretary Ministry of the Interior
   Member-Secretary
Delhi, to evolve a plan indicating the measures to be adopted for preventing border incidents.

2. The Committee agreed as under:-

(1) The Indo-Pakistan Agreements of December 1948 and April 1949 were reviewed. These Agreements should be implemented in letter as well as in spirit. It was agreed that in future officers conducting joint enquiries should make joint reports of their findings.

(2) The Committee felt that the greatest single factor for incidents on the Punjab border was the absence of a properly-demarcated boundary. The two Governments were already considering separately the question of expediting the demarcation of the entire border between the two countries. Meanwhile, pending final demarcation in accordance with the decisions arrived at by the Steering Committee of the two countries at their meetings held in New Delhi on the 11th and 12th March, 1955, in respect of item No. 56 in the Pakistan list, the following practical suggestions were agreed upon in respect of Punjab (P) and Punjab (I).

(a) River boundary - As far as the border in the vicinity of the rivers was concerned the existing river boundaries would be considered as the de facto boundaries without prejudice to the territorial rights of either country. This agreement would not however, entitle any evacuation of any of the existing positions of possessions. If, in future, the rivers changed their courses, the Inspectors-General of Police of the two Punjabs would meet and make recommendations to the two Central Governments regarding the cultivation of the land which might be thrown on the wrong side of the river as a result of the shifting of the river's course. Until an agreement is reached on this issue, no attempt should be made by nationals of either side, including their armed forces, to exercise or establish control or possession of the areas in question.

In regard to the Ghattis, where they were under dispute, the Inspectors-General of Police of the two Punjabs would consider the question of interim arrangements for them pending final demarcation and make their recommendations to the two Central Governments.

(b) Land boundary - It was agreed that demarcation of the land boundary between Punjab(I) and Punjab (P) must be given the highest priority and every effort should be made to finalise the demarcation within a period of three months from the date of the ratification of this Agreement by the two Governments. To this end, special and adequate whole-time staff should be provided by the authorities on the two sides.
(3) The Deputy Commissioners of the border districts of Punjab (P) and Punjab(I) should be fully associated with the implementation of the December, 1948 and April, 1949 Agreements in accordance with the provisions of those Agreements. Directives should be issued to the Deputy Commissioners of these districts to act promptly in collaboration with their opposite numbers to decide territorial disputes immediately, such disputes were referred to them by the border police officers concerned.

(4) It was agreed that to ensure harmonious relations on the border, there should be an equal number of police post and pickets on the two sides. The number of these posts should be kept to the minimum. The strength and armaments of the posts and pickets should also be the same on the two sides. As far as the armaments were concerned, they should be restricted only to 303 rifles. The Inspectors-General of Police of the two Punjabs would work out details jointly in this behalf.

There should be no supporting reserve of any kind on the two sides in addition to the agreed number of posts and pickets. The maintenance of a Headquarters of the Border Police will not by itself constitute a supporting reserve. This prohibition will not apply to Army units stationed or that may be stationed in normal locations or exercises. This arrangement is also without prejudice to such areas where the border police in one country faces armed units other than the police in the other country.

Residents of the border area within a belt of three miles would not be allowed to possess rifles. Every endeavour should be made to recover unlicensed firearms from the civilians in this belt.

(5) The Ministry for the Interior of the Government of Pakistan and the Ministry of Home Affairs of the Government of India would each appoint a high powered officer representing the Central Government concerned to co-ordinate the implementation of this Agreement. The two high-powered officers would meet from time to time.

(6) The Committee felt that in order to avoid deterioration of relations between the two countries consequent on any incidents which might unfortunately take place on the border, steps should be taken to ensure that exaggerated and provocative reports were not published in the press. Wherever possible, the authorities on the two sides should issue factual communiqués on the incidents in order to avoid misunderstandings among the public. The two Governments might also issue a joint communiqué as early as possible after the facts of the incidents had been ascertained.

The Committee recommended that similar arrangements should be worked out by the two Governments in respect of other borders between India and Pakistan for the prevention of border incidents. In the case of Rajasthan-West Pakistan border the Committee felt that the police authorities on both sides of the border should co-operate with each other and render all possible assistance in respect of proclaimed offenders and absconders by way of exchange of information and such other assistance as would lead to suppression of crime.

My dear Subimal,

According to the agreement between Dr. Khan Sahib, Minister for Communication & Railway in Pakistan and Shri Mehr Chand Khanna, railway traffic for passengers was to reopen at three points, namely, Lahore-Amritsar, Kasur Ferozepore and Khokhrapar-Munabo. Out of these three routes, the first and the third routes have been opened while the second has not been opened, because of some dispute over a fraction of territory. The technical side is complete and it should be possible for the two railways to resume traffic as soon as the word is given from the political side.

2. The total length of the disputed territory is I believe, 45 yards. Just because of this, the whole railway traffic has been held up. We do not seem to have taken into account the great inconvenience caused to the people by the denial of this facility. I have gone into the dispute with some care. I may be forgiven for saying that the attitude adopted by us is unjustifiable, unreasonable and untenable. Rightly or wrongly the territory in dispute is in their possession. I do not understand how we can refuse to let them look after the track while the possession is still with them. Looking after the track does not confer sovereignty any more than actual possession which is in their favour. To demand that we should have rights over the track is to demand that the territory should be transferred to us and surely resumption of railway traffic cannot be used as a lever to bring about this change. The territorial possession is part of a long dispute over the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award and I see no justification for raising a big issue with a minor incident. It is like an attempt to wag the dog with the tail. I think we should accept the present position of actual possession without prejudice to final decision and allow the Pakistan Railways to run and look after the track situated in the territory actually in their physical possession, regardless of our claim under the Radcliffe Award. If this is agreed to, we can resume the traffic on this line without any further difficulty or delay.

3. Isar has already written to Trivedi explaining how untenable our stand is and I am now writing to point out that we are coming in the way of implementation of the agreement to which we are a signatory. Even, I as an Indian, feel that our attitude is wrong. Sometimes we do not realise that by petty-mindedness, we sacrifice much larger interests. The difficulty created in this case is an incident in point.

With kindest regards,

Yours ever

Karachi, September 27, 1955.

High Commissioner for India
Karachi, 5

D.O. No. F.80(7)/55-Genl

September 27, 1955

My dear Subimal,

Please refer to my letter No. F.80(7)/55-Genl, dated September 14, in which I had pointed out that the responsibility for non-implementation of the Railway Agreement with Dr. Khan Sahib about the resumption of traffic on the Ferozepore-Kasur route must be laid at our doors and not on Pakistan. Since then I have seen Trivedi's letter No. P.III/54/1936/2 dated September 19 on the same subject. Isar has examined the point of view of Trivedi in a note, a copy of which is herewith enclosed. With due respect to Mr. Trivedi, I see no reason to change the view previously held by me that in this particular case the fault is ours and not that of Pakistan. It is no use our always taking up an attitude of injured innocence. I know that in nine cases out of ten the fault lies with Pakistan, but to say that they are always in the wrong and we are always in the right is equally wrong and I, who have occasion to see these points of difference, cannot certainly subscribe to that view. On the other hand, my view is that where we are in the wrong we must take all steps to do the right thing regardless of what Pakistan does. That way we have progressed so far and that way alone we shall go forward.

2. Coming to the merits of the case it is obvious that we cannot seek to alter possession taking advantage of later agreement of a minor character. We must accept existing possession and proceed accordingly. If and when we ever succeed in altering that fact of possession so as to bring it into conformity with our legal rights, even the present position could be rectified and, therefore, we are none the worse by proceeding on the basis of existing possession. We know that this particular strips of land was in the possession of Pakistan and so if we were honest at the time of the agreement, we should not have asked for resumption of rail movement on this particular route. Trivedi was himself present when this agreement was concluded. I have, therefore, a feeling that our raising the question of possession now is in the nature of a sly device, which should have no place in international relations, especially between two countries which must exist as brothers despite all difficulties and differences. We all know that the Prime Minister's approach to Indo-Pakistan problems is on these lines and it is, therefore, in the light of that foreign policy that I ask that our attitude should be reviewed and that we should be prepared to accept existing possession for the purpose of rail resumption, without, of course, committing ourselves to the final acceptance of possession once and for ever.

With Kindest regards,

Yours ever

Mr. R.F. Isar's Note

Reference Mr. Trivedi's letter No. P.III/54/1936/2 dated September 19

He does me less than justice in saying (in para 9) that my conclusion is based on something stated by Chhatari. But it is based on the stand we had taken in the past about de facto possession of "wrong side" areas. In the 18 months I did the Pakistan work in the Ministry, I remember only the case of the Ghatti Kamalewala encroachment by Pakistan (a Ghatti is an island in the river; this one is a mile or less upstream of the Headworks). The incident took place in March 1952. But I do not recall any other encroachment in the area or if there were any, any action by us. My impression at any rate up to January 1954 - was not of the "progressive and continuing encroachments" Mr. Trivedi speaks about, but of a situation lasting from the de facto arrangements between the Generals in 1948. Even if some encroachments took place after 1948, the vital point is whether we protested in order to preserve and reserve our rights. Presumably we did, but I do not recall any reiteration of our rights in the period June 1952 to January 1954. But I cannot be categorical about it.

2. It seems now from Mr. Trivedi's letter that the Ministry has shifted our position in the context of the new Pakistani argument that on the basis of Radcliffe's incidental remarks no one can say where the border lies in some areas until joint control of the Headworks has been established. Pakistan took similar advantage of other incidental remarks in the Bagge Award in Bengal to create difficulties when the question of demarcation arose there I believe the problems so created are still unsettled. I can, therefore, understand the Ministry's increased sensitiveness to Pakistan's manoeuvres, especially if there are likely to be repercussions on the World Bank Plan for sharing the river waters.
3. If the 40 yards of track lies in territory legally ours under the Radcliffe Award and if it has been in our possession all along, then there is clearly no case for our giving it up. But if the other 1 1/4 miles of track has been in Pakistani possession (as distinct from ownership), then we cannot press for its return. If we intend to maintain the status quo. In my time, our position was that we must do so, as the balance of advantage lay in our continuing to retain possession of certain strategic positions further north in territory which was legally Pakistan’s. If the Ministry have now a different idea of the balance of advantage, it means that the question of the disputed track cannot now be resolved on the basis of the de facto arrangements.

4. In October, 1953, I went to Simla and Jullunder with a view to then inspecting all the disputed areas on the border from Amritsar to Fazilka Sub-Division in Ferozepore District. Unfortunately, I fell ill at Jullunder and had to abandon the visit. I was now thinking of going to Lahore and from there seeing the Amritsar area where there are still some disputes and then going to Ferozepore. After that, I wanted to go to Delhi for private reasons, for which I intended asking for 3 days' casual leave. But if H.C. thinks that this case is worth my going to Delhi for a discussion with reference to maps and in consultation with the Irrigation and Power people as well, I could go directly from here on duty and then go on to Ferozepore where I could meet Rao and see the Punjab Government’s engineers on the spot. After considering Mr. Trivedi’s letter, my view is that if there is a real danger to our control of the Ferozepore Headworks or to the success of the World Bank’s plan, we will have to surrender the lesser interest of opening the rail link.

Marginal Remarks of Mr. Trivedi in the Ministry of External Affairs on para 1 of Isar’s above Note.

I am afraid Mr. Isar is mistaken. The Key - Thimayya agreement was in 1947 soon after partition. The various encroachments made by Pakistanis around Ferozepur headworks have been from 1948 to 1950. After that also Pakistanis attempted several intrusions but they were spiked. The status quo arrangement do not apply to the these aggressions/encroachments made with a view to maintaining a stranglehold around Ferozepur H.W. We have lodged protests from time to time and asked for the return of our territory.

2913. Note from Pakistan High Commission in India to Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, October 6, 1955.

No.F.62(19)P/54. 6th October, 1955

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi.

The High Commission for Pakistan in India present their compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India and with reference to their Note No. P. III/54/1936/2, dated the 28th October, 1954*, have the honour to state that the allegations made in para 2 of the Note are entirely without foundations. The correct position on the other hand is as stated in the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of External Affairs and Commonwealth Relations Note No.1(I).3/4/54, dated the 30th July 1954, to the High Commission for India in Pakistan. The High Commission add that Pakistan's pickets are posted across the Sulaimanki weir in the old Ferozepur District as the Government of Pakistan claim that that forms part of the Suleimanki Headworks under the Radcliffe Award and has been in their possession since partition. The Government of Pakistan regret that all efforts made by them so far to settle this dispute by peaceful means, including its reference to arbitration, have failed due to the unreasonable attitude adopted by the Government of India in this behalf.

2. The correct position in regard to the Ferozepur Headworks, is that, in accordance with the Key-Thimayya agreement, Pakistan has been in possession of the area situated towards the Pakistan side of the river Sutlej, since 1947. The Punjab(I) irrigation authorities handed over the control and management of the Right Marginal Bund as well to the Irrigation authorities of Punjab (P) in 1948 until such time as the boundary line in this sector was demarcated. In this connection attention of the Government of India is invited to letter No. 3430-Pt/52736/474/48, dated the 28th October, 1954, from the Chief Engineer, Irrigation Works, Punjab (P) to the Chief Engineer, Irrigation Works, Punjab (I) in reply to the letter's communication of 8th October, 1954, referred to in para 5 of the Note under reply. After handing over the control and management of the Right Marginal Bund to Punjab (P) the Indian authorities however repeatedly tried to gain control over as much territory on the Pakistan side of the river Sutlej as possible. The position in regard to this dispute was explained clearly in a d.o. letter No.I(I).3/11/55, dated the 8th September 1955, from Mr. R.S. Chhtari of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Government of Pakistan, to Mr. B.C. Mishra, Third Secretary to the Indian High Commission in Pakistan.

* Document No..................
3. In the circumstances, the Government of Pakistan regret that they cannot withdraw their pickets from the area mentioned above and would request the Government of India to respect the status quo pending the final settlement of the boundary disputes involving interpretation of the Radcliffe Award, in accordance with the agreement reached in the Joint Meeting of the Indo-Pakistan Steering Committee held in New Delhi on 11th and 12th March, 1955.

4. The High Commission take the opportunity to renew to the Government of India the assurances of their highest consideration.

New Delhi.

No. F. 62 (21) P/54. 28th October, 1955

The High Commission for Pakistan in India present their compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India and, with reference to the Ministry’s communication No. P.III/54/19362/2, dated the 13th July, 1955, regarding the construction of works along the river Ravi and other rivers near the Punjab (I) – Punjab (P) boundary, have the honour to forward herewith a copy of instructions issued by the Government of Punjab (P) to the Deputy Commissioners concerned.

The High Commission take the opportunity to renew to the Government of India the assurances of their highest consideration.

A copy of paragraph 3 of the proceedings of a meeting held at Amritsar between the Commissioner, Lahore Division, and the Commissioner(s), Ambala and Jullundur Division on the 19th May, 1954, enclosed.

Government agree that the construction of such works along the border line may raise misapprehensions on the other side in some cases and create tension, especially as the object of construction is not known across the border.

It is requested, therefore, that whenever any such works are proposed to be constructed along the border line, you should explain the object of construction to the Deputy Commissioner of the District on the other side, if asked to do so, and similarly ask him to explain the object of similar works being executed in his District, if necessary. In border disputes of this nature, the discussion of such matters at meetings held near the border should lead to a better atmosphere of co-operation and dispel suspicion. When the works relate to the P.W.D., in cases such as the construction of protective bunds to save village abadis, etc., the Executive Engineers concerned should also be encouraged to meet and discuss plans so as to cause the least damage to the residents of villages on the other side.

D.O. No. P.III/54/1936/2
11/16th November 1955

Dear Mr. C.C.,

Will you please refer to your d.o. letter No. F.80/7/55Genl. dated the 27th September 1955, address to Dutt about opening of the Ferozepur-Kasur rail link?

2. You seem to be under the impression that the issue involved in the dispute about the area across the Ferozepur bridge containing 1¼ mile of rail track is that of mere recognition of the \textit{de facto} possession by Pakistan. The position is not so simple. Pakistan appears to have certain deep designs in this area which are becoming clearer to us as time goes on. She has made several encroachments in the area since 1947. All these encroachments were made after the Key-Thimayya Agreement reached soon after partition in 1947 and therefore cannot be given any recognition.

3. The first encroachment was made by Pakistan early in 1948 when the Pakistan authorities established a post on the right bank of the Dipalpur Canal near Ferozepur Headworks. This resulted in the cutting of the only road running from the bridge to the Right Marginal Bund. Discussion held between the two Punjabs about this encroachment proved unsuccessful. Meanwhile, the Punjab irrigation authorities were concerned about the maintenance of the Right Marginal Bund in the interest of the Ferozepur Headworks. The Chief Engineer, East Punjab, asked the Chief Engineer, West Punjab, to maintain the lower reach of the Right Marginal Bund at India's cost as a temporary arrangement. This led to a series of encroachments by the Pakistan authorities on a large area of Indian territory which eventually extended from the right bank of the Dipalpur Canal to the lower reach of the Right Marginal Bund. The Ferozepur - Kasur rail link lies in this area. The Chief Engineer, East Punjab, later asked his opposite number to return the control of the Right Marginal Bund, but all efforts to persuade him to do so have failed so far. The matter was even raised at the last meeting of the Steering Committees but the Pakistan delegation was unwilling to settle the issue. The other large area of Indian territory which was occupied by Pakistan forces was Ghatti Kamalewala, 2/3rds of which is still under Pakistan occupation. There have been other attempts for encroachment by Pakistan authorities even as late as December 1954. But they have been thwarted by timely action by the Indian border forces. If we have not tried to dislodge Pakistani authorities from the encroachments in the Indian territory in this region, it is not because we recognize any rights accruing to Pakistan from the fact that they have taken illegal possession but because use of forces might have serious repercussions.

4. Originally, Pakistan recognised that the area in dispute across the Ferozepur bridge had been awarded to India. Subsequent success in making encroachment in this area seems to have encouraged her to lay claim to this area. They have not only asserted that 1¼ mile track in their possession was in Pakistan territory but also demand that the 40 yards of the rail track in India's possession should be handed over to them before they could agree to restoration of the rail link. Your own reaction then, as conveyed in your d.o. letter No. F.80(7)/55-Genl. dated the 30th June 1955, was that we should exercise our possession even if this meant that the rail link could not be restored.

5. The Pakistan authorities not only want to retain possession of the rail track and to maintain it but also to exercise the right to charge freight etc., in respect of it. It is one thing for Pakistan to be in illegal possession of Indian territory and for India not to use force to regain possession of that territory, but it is quite another thing for India to recognise Pakistan's control over Indian territory and to Pakistan's Railway charging freight etc., for traffic over the railway track in that territory.

6. A rational method to settle the dispute about the territory in question would be that the revenue authorities of the two sides should jointly examine the records and ascertain in whose territory the area fell according to the Radcliffe Award. When we made such a suggestion to the Government of Pakistan they were not prepared to accept it and instead argued that no demarcation of the boundary line could take place in the area of the Ferozepur Headworks unless a joint control over the intake of water of the different canals defendant on the Headworks had been agreed upon between the Governments of India and Pakistan. This argument is based on a hope expressed by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in para 10 of his Award. We can never accept this contention of Pakistan. Firstly, the railway track in question has nothing to do with the canal system. Secondly, the World Bank which is assisting the two countries in settling the Canal Water Dispute in its proposal of February 1955, considered and rejected the idea of a unitary control of the canal system of the Indus Basin and clearly stipulated that after the transitional period Pakistan would not receive any waters from the three eastern rivers including the Sutlej. Under the Bank's proposal the Sutlej, the Ravi and the Beas would be allocated entirely for Indian canals and the Ferozepur Headworks would serve only the Indian canals except for a transitional period estimated at about 5 years. Both India and Pakistan have agreed to prepare a comprehensive plan on this basis and negotiations are at present going on in Washington for that purpose. Accepting a territorial position based on Pakistan's interest in the Ferozepur Headworks, would be contrary to all that has been agreed to and to all that is being done at present in relation to the settlement of the Canal Waters Dispute. I may also add that the issue has some defence considerations as well.

7. We have considered the matter very carefully in the light of the calculated moves of Pakistan in respect of this area. We are not so interested in the restoration of Ferozepur-Kasur rail link as to jeopardize our interests in the area by making the concessions demanded by Pakistan. Prime Minister has seen this case and he agrees that we should adhere to our right to maintain the railway track in the disputed territory and to charge the fare for its use.

8. We shall be grateful if you will now send a reply to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations letter No.1 (1)3/11/55 dated the 6th September 1955. You may inform them that the hope expressed by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in para 10 of his Report that some arrangement might be made for the joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on the Ferozepur Headworks, has nothing to do with the boundary actually laid down by him in his Award and can in no way affect its demarcation. The issue of the distribution of canal waters is a separate one and is already under discussion between the Governments of India and Pakistan. Pakistan has made encroachments in the Indian territory across the Ferozepur bridge after the Key-Thimayya Agreement and is in illegal possession of it. The Government of India cannot agree to Pakistan maintaining and exercising control over the railway track about 1 1/4 mile long in this territory. They are also not prepared to hand over to Pakistan 40 yards long railway track in their possession in this area.

With kindest regards

Yours sincerely

Karachi, December 8, 1955.

No.F.80(7)/55-Genl./9748 8th December, 1955

High Commission of India
Karachi-5

My dear Chhatari,

Kindly refer to your letter No. I(I).3/11/55 dated the 8th September 1955 regarding the restoration of the Hussainiwala Rail Link. We have considered the points raised in your letter but find it impossible to accept the position the Government of Pakistan have now taken.

2. You have quoted as extract from para 10 of the Award of Sir Cyril Radcliffe in regard to the partition of the Punjab. The hope expressed by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in that extract relates to a separate issue and not to the boundary actually laid down by him in his Award. That separate issue is in regard to the desirability of some arrangement for joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on the Ferozepore Headworks. The railway track in question has nothing to do with the canal system. The issue of the distribution of the canal waters, as you know, is a separate one and is already under discussion between the Governments of Pakistan and India. We consider, therefore, that the two separate issues, namely, the demarcation of boundaries and the distribution of canal waters should not be confused in this context.

3. We regret to have to say that Pakistan has definitely made encroachments in the Indian territory across the Ferozepore Bridge after the Key - Thimaya Agreement and is, therefore, in illegal possession of it. The Government of India, as you can appreciate, can neither agree to the Government of Pakistan maintaining and exercising control over the railway track about 1 1/4 mile long in this part of the territory, nor are they prepared to hand over to Pakistan the further 40 yards which now your Government is demanding and which is in the possession of India.

4. I should suggest that the proposals contained in para 2 of Thadani's letter No.F.80(7)/55-Genl. dated the 25th July, 1955 to Kaiser may be earnestly considered by you.

With kind regards

Yours sincerely

2917. Note of the Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs to the High Commission for India in Pakistan.

Karachi, December 29/30, 1955.

No. Neg. 4/6/55–II December 29/30, 1955

Subject: Ratification of the minutes of the meeting held in New Delhi on Sunday the 15th May 1955 between the Hon’ble Minister for Interior (Pakistan) and the Hon’ble Minister for Home Affairs (India)*.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Government of Pakistan, presents its compliments to the High Commission for India in Pakistan and, with reference to the correspondence resting with Mr. M.S.A. Baig’s letter No. D. 1803 – Neg/55 dated September 17, 1955 to H.E. Mr. C.C. Desai has the honour to say that the Government of Pakistan approve the minutes of the meeting held between the Hon’ble Minister for Interior, Government of Pakistan and the Hon’ble Minister for Home Affairs, Government of India, at New Delhi on May the 15th 1955 relating to Shrines and Holy Places.

2. As regards minutes relating to prevention of Border incidents the position is that the Government of Pakistan are prepared to ratify the minutes subject to amendments suggested below:-

Para 2 (2) (a) – River boundary:

As far as the Border in the vicinity of the rivers was concerned demarcation should be finalized on the basis of the Radcliffe award within one year as provided for in the Steering Committee decision of the 11th and 12th March, 1955, pending demarcation, unless otherwise agreed to by the two Central Governments, the existing arrangements in regard riverain estates shall continue without prejudice to the territorial rights of either country. This agreement will not entail the evacuation of the existing positions or possession. As for the future a mere change in the course of a river would not deprive the nationals of either country from using or cultivating land thrown on the other side. The nationals of that country on the side of which the land has been thrown by the river shall not attempt to occupy or interfere with the hitherto existing rights of the other country, unless there has been an agreement between the two Central Governments to the contrary.

Where any dispute occurs in regard to the Gattis, the Inspectors General of Police of Punjab (I) and West Pakistan would consider the question of interim arrangements for them pending final demarcation and make their recommendations to the two Central Governments. They will not, however, be applicable to those disputes about the Gattis which are already pending before the Financial Commissioners of Punjab (I) and West Pakistan.

Para 2 (2) (c) to be added as follows:-

The arrangements envisaged in sub – paras (a) and (b) above will continue to be in force for a period of one year or until the date of completion of the Demarcation of the entire boundary, whichever is earlier.

Para 2 (4)

The Government of Pakistan agree that every endeavour should be made to recover unlicensed fire–arms from the residents of the border area within a belt of 3 miles, but do not consider it necessary to disallow the residents from possessing firearms on valid licenses. On a reconsideration of the matter, it has been found that the residents of the area concerned in possession of licensed firearms have not been involved in any border incident. Indeed, it is apprehended that withdrawal of the arms would cause resentment and scare in that area. The following may, therefore, be deleted: -

“Residents of the border area within a belt of 3 miles would not be allowed to possess rifles”.

3. The Government of Pakistan, however, consider that the best way to prevent border incidents is to implement the existing decision namely to demarcate both the land and river boundary simultaneously between the two countries on a final and permanent basis with the least possible delay and shall be grateful if the Government of India would extend their co – operation in the matter. Till such time as the boundaries are finally demarcated, the status quo should, however, be strictly maintained.

4. The Ministry avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the High Commission the assurances of its highest consideration.

The High Commission for India in Pakistan, Karachi.
Statement by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru in the Lok Sabha on border violations by Pakistan.

New Delhi, February 22, 1956.

"It is true that there was this incursion into Indian territory at this place called Chhad "bet". The facts so far reported by the Chief Commissioner of Kutch are more or less simple and as follows:

I might mention that this places Chhad is an area which is for part of the year under water. It is not an inhabited area and during the monsoon season for about four months, it is under water and, for the rest of the year it is an uninhabited grazing area surrounded by sand. This is a place where there is some grass; so that the question of possession really means the question of grazing rights there. There is no doubt about it, that it is a part of India, and possession has been exercised by India and we have been giving the grazing rights to contractors who take their animals there for grazing purposes. Some attempt was made on behalf of Pakistan in the close of last year or so, to state that this was a disputed area and belonged to them. We pointed out to them that this was an absolutely unjustifiable and baseless claim. Since then the practice has been for a police or sometimes military patrol of ours to go there about once a week. This time a police patrol went there in the ordinary course on 17th of this month. They seemed to have just observed from activity on the other side and they reported it on their return. A day or two later a military patrol went there. It went on the 18th evening and it camped at some distance away and next morning on the 19th at about 11 hours 400 yards from Chhad "Bet" the Pakistanis, who apparently occupied positions on the other side and were equipped with automatic weapons, opened fire - with machine gun fires. One sepoy was wounded in the stomach and as he was being taken away, two others were wounded by this fire and three camels were killed in this action. The patrol returned to Khavda and the casualties there were taken to the hospital. Two of them are serious and have been removed to Bombay for further treatment. It is not known - naturally we do not quite know - what the casualties on the other side were.

These are the facts reported to us. It certainly is a serious matter, not serious in the sense of any big scale military action, but the seriousness is the incursion into our territory by Pakistan, and naturally the Government of India will take necessary action in the matter.
Letter from Foreign Secretary S. Dutt to Chief Minister of Punjab Pratap Singh Kairon.

New Delhi, March 22, 1956.

My dear Chief Minister,

The Prime Minister has asked me to send you copies of a message received from the Prime Minister of Pakistan and his reply*. I also reproduce below extract from a minute which he has recorded on March 21, 1956.

"We should inform (1) our Army authorities and (2) the Punjab Government and, through them, their police, that the Pakistan Prime Minister has suggested that we must stop a recurrence of border clashes. We have agreed, and we are likely to begin demarcation of the border through the Surveyors-General of the two countries. Meanwhile, we want to lay special stress that every effort should be made to avoid border clashes. Naturally, if we are attacked, we have to defend, but we on our part should function defensively only and not take the initiative anywhere on the border."

Yours sincerely

The Prime Minister referred to Indo-Pakistan situation, as it had developed in recent months, with particular reference to the meeting of SEATO Powers at Karachi, the border raids from West Pakistan and the exodus from East Pakistan, and stressed the desirability of avoiding any statements likely to aggravate the situation or mislead the people in India about the course of action contemplated by the Government.

2. With regard to the border disputes, the Prime Minister informed the Cabinet that the Government had approached the Pakistan Government with a proposal to send a survey team with a view to hold preliminary talks with their counterparts in Delhi. The best way of settling these disputes was for the two survey teams to visit the border areas and demarcate the boundary, putting up boundary marks to indicate the border where agreement was reached, and report those cases in which no agreement could be arrived at to the respective Governments. The Prime Minister was of the view that, generally speaking, the Radcliffe Award should be adhered to, except where it could be altered by consent of the two Governments.

3. As regards the exodus of people from East Pakistan, the Prime Minister referred to a suggestion made to him about the visit of a few non-officials of East Pakistan, now resident in India, to contact the East Bengal Ministry and the local leaders with a view to finding out ways and means of stopping the exodus. Such visits, he thought, might produce some good results, although these should not be exaggerated. Even to-day there were a certain number of people in East Bengal and some in West Pakistan who had political affiliations with Congress workers in the old days and nothing should be done to antagonize these elements among the political workers, or the general public in Pakistan.

2921. Joint Standing Order for the guidance of Officers and Jawans of Pakistan Border Police and those of the Punjab Armed Police.

April 13/15, 1956.

Pakistan and Indian Border Police forces are meant for maintenance of peace and order at the border of the two countries so that people living there may peaceably pursue their daily avocations of life. Officers and Jawans of the two forces shall act intelligently and sagaciously in the discharge of their duty and shall not indulge in any activity likely to endanger peace at the border.

2(a). For maintaining permanent peace at the border it is most essential that Picket Commanders on either side should honestly guard their respective borders and in case of their transfers should give correct charge of their beats to their successors. Whenever Picket Commander of any Pakistani or Indian Picket is transferred, his successor shall be given charge in the presence of Picket Commander, Sector Commander or Platoon Commander of the opposite Picket of the other country so that the transferred officer may not give his successor wrong charge which may prove a source of trouble later. Picket, Sector and Platoon Commanders of both sides shall sign a duplicate certificate, one copy of which shall remain with the Picket Commander of each side.

2(b) The Pakistan and Indian Border Police shall maintain peace and order at the border by means of patrolling and shall ensure integrity of their respective territories by maintaining status-quo. Care shall be taken not to trespass into each other's territory while patrolling along the border.

3. Trenches shall not be dug out within 400 yards of the Border. Should any such trenches be found, officers of the two forces deputed for the purpose shall have them destroyed lest there should be disturbance of the peace.

4. The patrol parties of the border police forces of each country shall carry with them white furled flags so that in the event of apprehension of dispute over any pathway, possession of land, or any other matter, the flags may be immediately unfurled and the need for firing or stand-off obviated. They shall then report the matter to their respective Picket Commanders. Under no circumstances recourse shall be had to the use of force before the arrival of the Picket Commanders.

5. A white flag shall be kept at every post. In case of any dispute, Picket Commanders of both sides shall immediately reach the spot with their white flags and shall pitch the same there. After jointly settling the matter in dispute they shall send intimation to their senior officers.

6. If it becomes necessary to settle any dispute at night, two green cartridges shall be fired from Very Light pistol. Two cartridges shall be fired at an interval of one minute. If there is no Vary Light pistol two green Matabis (fire-works) shall be fired. This process shall be repeated at the opposite picket. Matters likely to create misunderstanding should be strictly avoided at night so that need for holding any meeting or deciding any matter at night may not arise.

7. In case the Picket Commanders are unable to mutually settle the dispute, they shall immediately inform their senior officers (e.g. DSP's and Inspectors) so that the latter may immediately reach the spot and settle the matter.

8. If even DSP's are unable to settle the dispute they shall send immediate intimation to their Asstt. Commandants so that the latter may immediately reach the spot and settle the matter.

9. In case the Assistant Commandants, also fail to settle the dispute, Commandants of both sides shall reach the spot without delay, settle the matter and inform the D.Is’ G. Border Police who shall pass appropriate orders.

10. The minutes of every meeting shall be recorded at the spot and Gazetted Officers of both sides shall sign the same. They shall send a joint report to their respective senior officers, irrespective of the fact whether they agree or differ on any matter.

11. The problem of riverian tracts at the Indo-Pak Border is a constant headache to both the countries and is under consideration of the Central Government of the two countries. For immediate prevention of border disputes regarding these tracts, it is necessary to maintain status quo and keep present possession undisturbed. In future if, due to the change of course of any river, a piece of land of one country goes to the other side of the river, residents of the other country or its armed force shall not occupy the land in question. In such cases, immediate intimation shall be sent to both the Inspector General’s of Police who will immediately arrange a meeting, settle the matter, inform their respective Governments and take requisite steps for maintenance of peace at the Border.

12. Loud-speakers shall not be used within one mile of either border. In case it becomes necessary to use loud-speaker in connection with marriage or other social function, no speech etc., likely to injure the feelings of inhabitants of the border, shall be made through it.

13. The patrol parties of the two countries shall behave politely while passing near or addressing each other and shall refrain from any act likely to injure the feelings of the opposite party.

14. If any resident of the border or any member of the Border Police, by mistake, enters the border of the other country, the Picket Commander of the latter country shall, after satisfying himself, arrange for his immediate return. The same procedure shall apply to cattle straying into the border of the other country.

15. Strict vigilance shall be kept over thieves and cattle lifters on either sides of the border and necessary preventive measures shall be taken against them. Both the Border Police Forces shall show the tracks of thieves, cattle-lifters and cattle to each other and each force shall, after tracing out the tracks, inform the concerned District Police. The Border Police shall preserve the tracks till the arrival of the District Police. This will facilitate the tracing out of culprits, recovery of stolen property and cattle and their return at monthly meetings.

16. Prevention of smuggling is also among the main duties of the Border Police. At monthly meetings, it shall be the duty of the officers of the Border & Distt. Police of the two countries to exchange useful information about smugglers with a view to preventing this anti social evil. On receipt of authentic information in this connection, surprise Nakabandies (blockades) shall be held on both sides of the border.

17. It shall be the duty of officers and their subordinates working on either side of the Border to promote feelings of love and sympathy among the inhabitants of the two countries and to restrain them from indulging in any activity which is likely to stand in the way of happy relations. Tact & intelligence are required for carrying out this duty.

18. In future D.I.G's & Commandants of the Border Police shall twice a year address meetings of Gazetted Officers and Picket Commanders with a view to maintaining normal conditions and friendly relations at the border and preventing disturbance of happy atmosphere by incompetent employees.

19. Inspector General of Police, West Pakistan & Inspector General of Police, Punjab (India) have again emphasised that peace and order should be maintained at the border and every effort should be made to avoid border skirmishes. Only in peaceful conditions residents of the border can pursue their daily avocations of life without fear. It is the most important duty of the Border Police to work honestly and diligently for achieving this great object. Any officer or man who works against this object or is responsible for creating trouble shall be severely dealt with.
20. This order shall be neatly copied out and hung to each Picket. It shall be the duty of the Picket Commander to read it out to the Jawans at parade on every Monday and to record an entry in the Daily Diary in this connection.

2922. Message of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru sent through the Indian High Commissioner in Karachi to Pakistan Prime Minister Chaudhuri Mohamad Ali.

New Delhi, April 16, 1956.

Thank you for your message sent to me through your High Commissioner on 8th April. I was on tour then and saw your message on my return to Delhi some days later. I have also since learnt about the results of discussions at the Surveyors-General's meeting on the 11th April.

2. The Surveyors-General's meeting has settled the general procedure, and we accept this. Each side will now take necessary preparatory action to start actual demarcation after the monsoon season from 1st October.

3. I do not understand why the Surveyors-General asked for fresh instructions regarding the Firozpur District - Bahawalpur State boundary. We have agreed to demarcate the entire West Pakistan-India boundary. As however we have been asked, I hope you will agree that they should be told that demarcation of the Bahawalpur State-Firozpur District boundary is included in their terms of reference.
There should be no difficulty in this demarcation as the Surveyors-General and the local Revenue officials will be familiar with previous maps and records of demarcation of the Bahawalpur State boundary.

4. We have instructed our Surveyor-General that he should, in consultation with the Government of Punjab (India), work out details of assistance required from Revenue and other Departments to deal with demarcation work, and we have also requested the Punjab (India) Government to deal with provision of staff for demarcation of boundary as a priority matter. I hope your Government 2923. Letter from Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs to High Commission of India in Pakistan.

Ministry of Foreign Affairs & Commonwealth Relations
Karachi

My dear Mishra,

Kindly refer to your letter No. F.60(7)/55-Genl/9748, dated December 8, 1955, regarding the restoration of the Hussainiwala rail link. You have stated that the extract from para. 10 of the Radcliffe Award, quoted in my previous letter, relates to the question of the distribution of canal waters and not to the boundary actually delineated in it. This view is obviously incorrect. Sir Cyril Radcliffe has clearly stated in para 10 of the Award that he finds it difficult to envisage a satisfactory demarcation of the boundary at this point that is not accompanied by some arrangement for joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on these Headworks. It follows therefore that the demarcation of the boundary line in the area covering the Ferozpur Headworks must be accompanied by a joint control of the intake of water. As no system of joint control has yet been evolved by the two countries, the boundary line at this point has not been defined and consequently not demarcated so far.

2. We are surprised at the statement in para 3 of your letter under reference that Pakistan has made encroachment on the Indian territory across the Ferozpur Bridge after the Key-Thimaya agreement. The correct position is that Pakistan has made no encroachment whatsoever on any territory which was not in her possession immediately after the partition. Such a charge could be levelled only if we had crossed the weir and occupied territory on the other side of the Sutlej. Under the Key-Thimaya agreement to which you have referred, the river was to be taken as the boundary line for all practical purposes till actual demarcation had taken place. Judged by this agreement itself, it is your Government who have made encroachments and are thus in illegal occupation of the territory on the Pakistan side of the river, in clear violation of not only the Key-Thimaya agreement but also of the Financial Comissioners' agreement of April 1950 which provides for the maintenance of status quo pending the actual demarcation of the boundary.

3. We are also surprised at your statement that the strip of 40 yards of the railway track between the Joint Check Post at Hussainiwala and the western end of the wair has been in the possession of India. Had this been the case, there would have been no difficulty for India, in getting the rail track in question cleared by their own labour. In this connection a reference is invited to para.2 of Mr. Thadani's letter No. F.80(7)/55-Genl, dated July 25, 1955 wherein we were requested to allow Indian Railway officials to repair and maintain the disputed track, which means by implication that Pakistan and not India is in possession of it. The fact is that the Railway tract is separated from the main road by a railing and has been in the possession of Pakistan ever since partition.

4. In the circumstances we regret that we cannot accept India's right to repair and maintain the rail track in question, even jointly with the Pakistan labour.

Yours sincerely

2924. Letter from the Pakistan High Commissioner in New Delhi Ghazanfar Ali Khan forwarding a message from Pakistan Prime Minister to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

New Delhi, June 6, 1956.
Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

6th June, 1956

My dear Prime Minister

I am desired by the Prime Minister of Pakistan to convey the following message to you:

2. Begins.

I thank you for your message conveyed to me through your High Commissioner on April 17th and regret the delay in replying to it. I am glad that the Surveyors-General's Meeting at Delhi concluded successfully and that a general procedure for demarcation has been amicably worked out. We have instructed our Surveyor-General that he should finalize details of assistance required by him from the Revenue and other departments of the Government of West Pakistan and have also requested that, Government to give top priority to this matter.

3. The reason why the Surveyors-General have asked for fresh instructions regarding Ferozepore District-Bhawalpur Division boundary is that they were initially asked to proceed with the demarcation of boundary between two Punjab's only, i.e. the Indo-Pakistan boundary between Punjab (I) and former Punjab (P) to which the Radcliffe Award applies and about which agreements was reached in meetings of the Steering Committee held in March 1955. As we have agreed to the demarcation of the entire boundary between West Pakistan and India, we shall issue instruction to include in the demarcation the Ferozepore District - Bhawalpur Division's boundary.

4. My reference to the Steering Committee's decision dealing with differences which may arise in the course of demarcation is not at variance with your proposal contained in paragraph 10 of your letter dated March 21 which I had accepted in paragraph 5 of my letter of March 29. The Steering Committee decision which envisages an Indo-Pakistan Conference to resolve unsettled boundary disputes does not preclude settlement where possible at Governmental level. But where these matters fail to get resolved at that level and the dispute is in connection with the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award, it should under the decision of the Steering Committee be referred to an impartial tribunal, whose award will be binding on both the Government. I am glad to note that this course of action is acceptable to you.

5. Regarding Chhad Bet, I am still unable to agree with you and would again urge you to agree to the restoration of the status quo which existed prior to the incidents that took place in that area. When I said that I did not wish to rake up the past, I only meant that it was not my desire to enter into an argument over the apportionment of blame. I have not suggested or implied that the party which has forcibly occupied the Bet should retain its possession. I have no doubt that our note of April the 9th, on the subject, will substantiate our claim that Chhad Bet is in fact part of Nagarparkar Taluqa in the Tharparkar district of the Hyderabad Division and therefore, belongs to Pakistan. Ends.

Yours sincerely,

Sd/- Ghazanfar Ali Khan

The Ho’ble Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru,
Prime Minister of India,
New Delhi.

2925. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Mohamad Ali.

New Delhi, June 10, 1956.

My dear Prime Minister,

Thank you for your message conveyed through your High Commissioner on 6 June in reply to my message conveyed by our High Commissioner on 17th April.

I am glad to learn that you are issuing instructions to include the demarcation of the Ferozepur District - Bahawalpur State boundary in the demarcation work that the Surveyors-General will be undertaking along the Punjab (I) and former Punjab (P) boundary from 1st October. We are informing our Surveyor-General of this decision.

As you state, I have agreed, in paragraph 5 of my message sent to you through our High Commissioner on 17th April, to consider the reference of any disputes that may remain unresolved, so far as the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award is concerned, to an impartial tribunal in terms of the Steering Committee’s decision. I hope, however, that with goodwill on both sides points of dispute will be settled in a simpler way by discussions at governmental level.

I am surprised that in para 5 of your message you have again raised the question of the restoration of status quo in the case of Chhad Bet. We have since examined Pakistan Government's note of April 9 on the subject of Chhad Bet and a full reply to this note is being sent through our High Commissioner in Karachi. Our previous communications on the subject and the latest reply to Pakistan Government's note of 9th April establish beyond dispute that Chhad Bet has always been Indian territory, that there has been no border dispute of any kind in relation to it and that the incident which occurred in February was a clear violation of our border by Pakistani forces. This violation has been terminated by the withdrawal of the Pakistani forces and status quo has been restored. I am enclosing herewith a copy of my Government's reply to Pakistan Government's note of 9th April which fully explains the position. I would, in this connection, repeat the suggestion in the concluding portion of paragraph 7 of my last message to you "that, as stated by you, we do not argue about the past but look to the future and concentrate on completing demarcation of the frontier as expeditiously as possible".

Yours sincerely

Jawaharlal Nehru

2926. Note from Pakistan High Commission in India to Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, July 27, 1956.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

NO. 62(21)P/54

27th July, 1956

The High Commission for Pakistan in India presents its compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs and has the honour to state that the Government of Pakistan have received reports to the effect that the Indian authorities are again extending the left flank Bund on the river Ravi downstream of Jassar bridge. The present extension has an incline of about 30 degrees, which will take it into the midstream of the river. The Indian authorities are reported to have completed about 150 feet of the embankment and considerable labour and transport have been employed on the construction work. Stone is being dumped into the river at the nose of the Bund, a fact which indicates that the Indian authorities intend to extend the Bund further into the river. This work may have the effect of diverting the mainstream towards Pakistan.

In this connection, the Deputy Commissioner, Sialkot contacted the Deputy Commissioner of Gurdaspur on the telephone on the 19th May, 1956 to find out the object of the extension of this Bund, in accordance with the Agreement of the 19th May, 1954 between the Commissioner of Lahore Division and the Commissioner of Ambala and Jullundur Divisions. The Deputy Commissioner of Gurdaspur, however, not only failed to explain the object of the extension but also evaded a meeting between the Executive Engineers of the two sides, as suggested by the Deputy Commissioner of Sialkot. The Government of Pakistan feel that this non-cooperative attitude of the Deputy Commissioner, Gurdaspur, was in clear contravention of the provisions of the Agreement of the 19th May, 1954, and this officer seems to have acted with the intention of evading the issue till the construction of the Bund was completed.

The High Commission would like to point out that the entire Jassar bridge and a tract of land adjoining it away from the Pakistan side of the border is Pakistan territory, and the Indian authorities are in wrongful possession of this area. No construction should, therefore, be undertaken in this area until the whole question of the boundary is finally settled.

It is unfortunate that, notwithstanding the disputed nature of the boundary and its proposed demarcation in the near future, the Indian authorities have attempted to disturb the status quo by undertaking these constructions. The Ministry will perhaps recall that the Government of Pakistan had protested against construction in this area by the Indian authorities. This protest was conveyed to the Ministry in the High Commission’s note No. F.82(21)P/54, dated the 20th July, 1954. The Government of Pakistan are constrained to protest once more against this unauthorised and unwarranted construction by the Indian authorities on Pakistan territory which is wrongfully in their possession, without prior consultation with the Pakistan authorities and in contravention of a solemn agreement. The High Commission has been instructed to request the Government of India that they may kindly take immediate steps to stop further extension of the bund, which is likely to divert the mainstream of the river towards Pakistan and to flood the villages on the Pakistan side. The action taken by the Government of India may kindly be intimated to the High Commission, as early as possible, for communication to the Government's Pakistan.
The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry of External Affairs the assurance of its highest consideration.

The Ministry of External Affairs
Government of India
New Delhi.

2927. Note from Ministry of External Affairs to Pakistan High Commission in India.

New Delhi, August 4, 1956.
No.F.4(41)-Pak.III/95.

August 4, 1956

The Ministry of External Affairs present their compliments to the High Commission of Pakistan and with reference to the High Commission's Note No.F.62(19)P/54 dated the 6th October, 1955, have the honour to state that the Government of India are unable to agree that the Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and Commonwealth Relations Note No.1(1)-3/4/54, dated the 30th July, 1954 to the High Commission of India in Pakistan gives the correct position. The arguments given in that note have already been refuted in this Ministry's Note No. P.III/54/1936/2 dated the 28th October, 1954 addressed to the High Commission and facts given to establish that Pakistan forces had engaged in aggressive activity and illegally occupied Indian territory in the Ferozepur District across the Sulaimanke Headworks.

2. The High Commission has stated that Pakistan's pickets are posted across the Sulaimanke weir in the Ferozepur District and that this area has been in Pakistan's possession since Partition. The Government of India are surprised at this statement of the High Commission. After Partition, Pakistan came to hold a very small area on the Indian side of the Sulaimanke weir. But thereafter Pakistan made deliberate attempts, in violation of the status quo, to encroach upon Indian territory. It was because of this that it became necessary to arrange a meeting on

* On October 3, the Pakistan High Commission wrote to the Ministry of External Affairs suggesting that while it was waiting a reply to its communication of July 27, 1956, the Indian authorities were going ahead with the construction of the Bund and desired immediate instructions to be issued to the local authorities to stop further work on the Bund.
the 15th September 1949 between the Commissioner, Julludur Division and the Financial Commissioner, West Punjab, accompanied by the military representatives of the two countries. Even after the agreement arrived at in this meeting, Pakistan forces made further encroachments on Indian territory by advancing their pickets. There is a clear admission by Pakistan Government in their Note No.1(1)3/4/54, dated the 30th July, 1954 of their having made encroachments though Pakistan Government sought to justify these encroachment, not on the ground of possession since partition but on certain other irrelevant arguments. The claim of possession of the area in question since partition is absolutely baseless and totally contrary to facts and the Government of India must reject this unwarranted claim.

3. The High Commission has referred to the status quo being respected. The Government of India would like to state once again in this connection that the status quo can only be the position frozen by the Sulaimanke Agreement of 1949. The Government of India have respected the position established by this Agreement and it is the Government of Pakistan that have disturbed that position. The Government of India note with regret that the Government of Pakistan still refuse to withdraw their armed forces from the area encroached upon and thus maintain a point of friction and conflict.

4. The Government of India are also surprised at the allegations made by the Government of Pakistan that all efforts made by them to settle the dispute have failed due to the unreasonable attitude adopted by the Government of India in this behalf. The Government of India are unable to agree that the Government of Pakistan have adopted peaceful means in this matter. The successive Pakistani violations of Indian territory in flagrant violation of the Sulaimanke Agreement clearly show the consistent aggressiveness of the Pakistan authorities. The Government of India have protested against these violations and asked for restoration of the status quo established by the Sulaimanke Agreement and it would be a travesty of facts to describe this as an unreasonable attitude. As regards the question of arbitration, the High Commission has itself referred to the agreement reached at the meeting of the Indo-Pakistan Steering Committee held on the 11th and 12th March, 1955 and the Government of India would invite the attention of the High Commission to the following decision of the Steering Committees :-

"All unsettled boundary disputes should be reviewed at an Indo-Pakistan Conference with a view to reaching a settlement. Any disputes involving interpretation of the Radcliffe Award, which may still remain unresolved, should be referred to an impartial tribunal (not the Bagge Tribunal) consisting of one Indian Judge, one Pakistani Judge and one Independent Chairman jointly agreed upon by the two Governments, for their adjudication and final settlement."
The Government of India, therefore, consider the High Commission's insinuation, that settlement of the dispute by reference to arbitration has failed because of the attitude of the Government of India, as entirely misconceived.

5. As regards para 2 of the High Commission's note relating to the dispute about the Ferozepur Headworks, a reply to D.O. letter No.1(1).3(11)/55, dated the 8th September 1955 from Mr. R.S. Chhatari of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Government of Pakistan to Shri B.C. Mishra, Third Secretary, Indian High Commission in Pakistan was sent under Shri Mishra's D.O. letter No.80(7)/55-Genl/9748, dated the 8th December, 1955. Since then a further communication in that connection has recently been received from the Government of Pakistan vide Mr. R.S. Chhatari's D.O. letter No.F.1(1).3/11/55, dated the 3rd/4th May, 1956 and is under examination. A reply to that communication would be sent shortly.

6. The Ministry of External Affairs take this opportunity to renew to the High Commission of Pakistan the assurances of their highest consideration.

The High Commission of Pakistan,
New Delhi.

2928. Note from High Commission of India in Pakistan to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Karachi, October 19, 1956

No.F.80(7)/55-Genl. Dated 19th October, 1956

The High Commission of India presents its compliments to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Government of Pakistan, and with reference to the correspondence resting with d.o. letter No. I(I)3/11/55, dated the 3/4the May, 1956 from Mr. R.S. Chhatari of the Ministry to Mr. B.C. Mishra of the High Commission, has the honour to state that the contention of the Pakistan Government that the boundary line in the area around the Ferozepur Headworks has not been defined by the Radcliffe Award, as no system of joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on those headworks has been evolved, is totally misconceived and in direct contradiction of the detailed boundary award made by Sir Cyril Radcliffe.

2. Sir Cyril Radcliffe in his boundary Award recognised that the task of delimiting the boundary in the Punjab was a difficult one and was complicated "by the existence of canal system, so vital to the life of the Punjab but developed only under the conception of a single administration and of systems of road and rail communication, which have been planned in the same way". It is for this reason that he commented in paragraph 11 of the Award that "I think it only right to express the hope that, where the drawing of a boundary line cannot avoid disrupting such unitary services as canal irrigation, railways and electric power transmission, a solution may be found by agreement between the two States for some joint control of what has hitherto been a valuable common service." Sir Cyril Radcliffe, however, considered all the complications and difficulties and made his Award. This has been stated clearly in paragraph 9 of the Award in the following terms :-

"After weighing to the best of my ability such other factors as appear to me relevant as affecting the fundamental basis of contiguous majority areas, I have come to the decision set out in the Schedule which becomes the Award of the Commission."

The boundary as defined by him in the Award is thus final and binding, both on the Government of Pakistan and the Government of India.

The hope expressed by Sir Cyril Radcliffe that the difficulty created by the disruption of the valuable common services by the drawing of this boundary line may be solved by agreement between the two States on some form of joint control, could not, in any way, involve physical control of any territory in violation of the boundary line laid down in the Award. It could only be some sort of agreed political arrangement for regulation of the services. The two Governments have already entered into ad hoc transitional agreements for the regulation of supply of canal water to Pakistan from the Ferozepore Headworks and the general question of distribution of water of the rivers of the Indus basin is under negotiation under the aegis of the World Bank.

The boundary in the area of the Ferozepore Headworks has been clearly delimited by the Radcliffe Award and the Government of Pakistan has already admitted that there is no boundary dispute in respect of this area vide paragraph 4 of the letter No.F.62(6)P/50-3101 dated the 27th October, 1950 from the High Commission of Pakistan, New Delhi, to the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India.

3. The statement made in paragraph 2 of Mr. Chhatari's d.o. letter referred to above that the Government of India have made encroachments on and are in illegal occupation of territory on the Pakistan side of the river in the area of Ferozepore Headworks in violation of not only the key-Thimayya Agreement but also of the Financial Commissioners' Agreement of April 1950, is incorrect. The Pakistan Government are well aware that according to the Key-Thimayya Agreement the rivers were to be treated as working boundaries except in the cases of the bridged area of Ferozepore Headworks and the Suleimanki Headworks. It was because of this that the Pakistan Government was allowed to establish a post on the Indian side of the Suleimanki Headworks and India allowed to establish a post on the Pakistan side of the Ferozepore Headworks. If the Pakistan Government's contention were true then they could not have had a post on the Indian side of the Sulemanki Headworks. The correct position is as follows:-

According to the Key-Thimayya Agreement, India established a post on the Pakistan side of the Ferozepore Headworks and began to exercise control over the Indian territory across the river up to the awarded border which is clearly established by river unchallengeable fact that the Punjab Irrigation authorities maintained the lower reach of the Right Marginal Bund and used for that purpose the portion of the Ferozepore - Kasur Road in the Indian area, up to June 1948. The status quo that came into existence immediately after partition according to the Key-Thimayya agreement was that the Indian territory across the Ferozepore Headworks up to the awarded border, was recognized to be in India's control. The Pakistan authorities violated the status quo by first establishing a check post on the right bank of the Dipalpur canal early in 1948 instead of placing it at the awarded border. Thereafter the unauthorised encroachment upon Indian territory was extended to the area situated between the right bank of the Dipalpur canal and the Right Marginal Bund, including about 1 1/4 mile long portion of the Ferozepore-Kasur Road and rail tracks. Subsequently in March 1952 Pakistani forces made an attempt at forcible occupation of Gatti Kamalewala, which belongs to India and a portion of it is still in Pakistan's illegal possession. Again in October, 1953 Pakistan forces made an unauthorised encroachment on the left bank of the Dipalpur canal from RD 960 to RD 3800 and subsequently widened the area of encroachment between the left bank of the canal and the awarded border.

The Government of India are therefore constrained to state that the occupation by Pakistan of Indian territory across the river in the vicinity of the Ferozepore Headworks is definitely illegal and has been continued in flagrant violation of the status quo arrangements arrived at in the Kye-Thimayya Agreement and the agreement between the Financial Commissioners of the two Punjabs arrived at in April 1950.
4. With reference to paragraph 3 of the d.o. letter referred to above, the High Commission wishes to point out that the Government of Pakistan have misunderstood the contents of paragraph 2 of d.o. letter No.F.80(7)/55-Genl, dated the 25th July, 1955 from Mr. A.B. Thadani of the High Commission to Mr. K.M. Kaiser of the Ministry. The suggestion that the Indian Railway officers should be allowed to repair and maintain the rail track refers to the track about 1 1/4 miles long in Indian territory at present in the illegal occupation of Pakistan and not to the 40 yards of the railway track which lies in the area in possession of the Government of India.

The High Commission of India take the opportunity to renew to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations the assurances of its highest considerations.

2929. Note from Pakistan High Commission in India to Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, November 6, 1956.

No.62(21)P/54. 6th November, 1956

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan In India
New Delhi

The High Commission for Pakistan in India presents its compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs and with reference to the Ministry's Note No. F.4(5)P.III/56, dated the 4th October, 1956, regarding the construction of a bund in Pakistan territory by the Indian authorities downstream from Jassar Bridge on the river Ravi, has the honour to state that in spite of the High Commission's repeated requests to the Government of India to stop further construction work on the bund until the question of demarcation of the boundary is settled, the Indian authorities, as reported to the Government of Pakistan, continue to dig new trenches/bunkers in the bund area. The Government of Pakistan consider that in view of the demarcation of the boundary between West Pakistan and Punjab (I), which is now in progress, no construction work on the bund should be undertaken.
While bringing this situation to the notice of the Government of India the High Commission requests the Ministry once again to instruct the authorities concerned immediately to stop further construction work on the bund until the question of demarcation of the boundary is settled.

The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry the assurances of its highest consideration.

New Delhi, March 19, 1957.
No.62(21)P/54
19 March 1957

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

The High Commission for Pakistan in India presents its compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs and, with reference to the correspondence resting with the Ministry’s Note No.F.4(5)-P.III/56, dated the 6th March, 1957, regarding the construction of bund down-stream from Jassar bridge on the river Ravi, has the honour to state that, in spite of the High Commission’s repeated requests to the Government of India to stop further construction work on the bund until the question of demarcation of the boundary is settled, the Indian authorities are still continuing with the construction work. It has now been reported to the Government of Pakistan that the spur on the down-stream side of the river Ravi is still being extended by Indian authorities and that the length of the spur has now been increased to about 700 feet, of which about 300 feet has already been constructed in the river bed.

The High Commission would reiterate its earlier request that further construction work on the bound may be stopped pending the demarcation of the boundary, and would be grateful if the Ministry would kindly instruct the authorities concerned accordingly.
The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry the assurances of its highest consideration.

Government of India, New Delhi.

2931. Note from Ministry of External Affairs to Pakistan High Commission in India.

New Delhi, August 22, 1957.

No.F-4(5)P.II56. 22nd August, 1957

The Ministry of External Affairs present their compliments to the High Commission of Pakistan in India and with reference to the correspondence resting with the High Commission's Note No.62(21)P/54, dated the 16th July 1957, regarding construction of works on the Ravi in the vicinity of the Dera Baba Nanak bridge, have the honour to state as follows.

The allegations made by the High Commission in its Note No.62(21)P/54, dated the 27th July, 1956 and repeated in the Note dated the 19th March 1957 that the left Guide Bund down-stream of the Dera Baba Nanak bridge was being further extended to take it into the mid-stream of the river, is not based on facts. The correct position is that during the floods of October 1955 the down-stream Right Guide Bund was completely overtopped and the portion beyond RD 330 was washed away, and deep scour was caused beyond the nose of the surviving bund. Consequently, in carrying out the repairs and restoration work, it was not possible to follow the alignment of the original bund. Some amount of deflection had to be given. But the reconstructed bund is somewhat shorter than the original bund which was 750 feet long. It would therefore be seen that the works carried out were designed to restore the previously existing works which had been washed away during the floods of 1955.

The Government of India have received information that the Pakistan authorities have further extended, during 1956, the spur on their side above the Dera Baba Nanak bridge. The Government of India are surprised that when the Pakistan Government continue to construct works on the Ravi which are liable to divert water to the Indian side and which may result in the erosion of the left bank of the river and endanger life and property of Indian nationals, they should raise objection to Indian authorities maintaining protective works which have become necessary as a direct result of the works constructed by Pakistan authorities.

The allegations made by the High Commission that the Deputy Commissioner, Gurdaspur, when contacted on telephone by the Deputy Commissioner, Sialkot, in May 1956, failed to explain the object of the works being constructed on the Indian side, has been enquired into and found to be baseless. On the other hand, it might be pointed out with reference to the High Commission’s Note No. 62(21)P/54, dated the 22nd December, 1956, that the Deputy Commissioner, Gurdaspur, first wrote to the Deputy Commissioner Sialkot in April 1955 requesting information about the object of the works being carried out by the Pakistan authorities on the Ravi in the vicinity of Dera Baba Nanak bridge. In spite of his several reminders and the request made by the Ministry in their Note No.P.III/54/19362/2, dated the 4th October, 1955, it was not until February 1956 that the required information was given on telephone by the Deputy Commissioner, Sialkot, to the Deputy Commissioner, Gurdaspur. It would be appreciated that a little more cooperation on the part of the Deputy Commissioner, Sialkot could have been expected under the arrangements entered into by the two Governments for exchange of information about works proposed to be constructed on the Ravi.

The Ministry of External Affairs take this opportunity to renew to the High Commission the assurances of their highest consideration.

The High Commission of Pakistan in India

2932. Aide Memoire from High Commission of India in Pakistan to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.
Karachi, June 6, 1958.

AIDE MEMOIRE

Since the first protest note, handed over to the Pakistan High Commissioner by the Commonwealth Secretary, Ministry of External Affairs, on June 4, the Government of India have received the detailed report about the incident along Amruka Minor. It is now abundantly clear that the firing by the Pakistan border police, while a Flag meeting was going on, was an act of calculated treachery.

2. For some time past, the Pakistani border police have been attempting to alter the status quo in violation of the solemn agreement between the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan in 1956 that the exchange of areas on the wrong side should take place on an agreed date after the entire boundary is demarcated and the incident of June 3 was the climax of a series of moves aimed at taking forcible possession of the right bank of Amruka Minor.

3. The right bank of Amruka Minor has been in Indian possession and was regularly patrolled by Indian Police parties from Dhab Sarqi bridge to Sirianwala Head. However the Pakistani border police have sought to undermine the status quo, and, since the middle of April, 1958, there is unmistakable evidence that they have been working in accordance with a premeditated design. Thus, on April 14, a Pakistani Survey Party crossed over to the Indian side but returned on being challenged by an Indian Patrol; but the Pakistani border police advanced the claim that since the right bank lay in Pakistani territory they had the right to disregard the status quo and patrol it with their own men. Subsequently, there were other occasions on which Pakistanis trespassed into territory under Indian possession and control but withdraw on being challenged. Two days before the incident, on June 1, the Indian patrol on the right bank sighted a Pakistani patrol coming along the right bank; on seeing the Indian patrol the Pakistanis dispersed and withdraw. In reply to a verbal protest from the Indian Sector Commander, the Acting Assistant Commandant, Bhawalnagar, argued, falsely, that Pakistanis had been patrolling the right bank since long but suggested a meeting between S.S.P., Ferozepur and the Commandant, Pakistan Border Police, Bhawalpur. This suggestion was accepted and the meeting was scheduled to take place on June 10 at Sirianwala Head.

4. Thus, on the evening of June 1, the position was that a meeting was to be held on June 10 to settle the matter by peaceful negotiations. The atmosphere, however, remained tense and it was agreed that a meeting between Commandants should be held at 5 p.m. on June 5. Meanwhile, two meetings between Police officials had taken place at a lower level at both of which the Indian officers were assured that no force would be used and that there would be no interference with normal movements. Normal patrolling of the right bank was, therefore, carried out by Indian patrol party on the morning of June 3, the date on which the murderous assault was staged resulting in the death of seven Indian police personnel.

5. There had been no interference with Indian patrols on the right bank between 6.20 a.m. and 9.00 a.m. The first sign of Pakistani activity was observed at 9.00 a.m. when it was reported that some Pakistani police constables had taken up positions in the bed of the Minor and that a Pakistani Police Officer was standing on the bridge. The Indian Assistant Sub-Inspector, Bishambar Nath, accompanied by eight constables went towards the bridge and after hoisting the white Flag on the Indian side went on to the bridge, his Pakistani counterpart approached from the other side and the two began a Flag meeting of the type that takes place frequently at various levels all along the border. At that time the unsuspecting Indians could not imagine that the Flag meeting would become a death-trap. At 9.10 a.m. a Constable of the Punjab Police ascertained by a visit to the spot that the talk between the two Assistant Superintendents of Police on the bridge was still in progress and that the arrival of the Pakistani Assistant Commandant, who was to join in the discussion, was awaited. The Constable recorded these findings in the diary kept at the picket at 9.30 A.M. Soon after, the two negotiators were joined by Sub-Inspector, Sunder Singh and it seemed a normal Flag meeting was going on.

6. At about 10 A.M. a single shot was fired from the Pakistan side. This was the signal for the carefully arranged assault which resulted in the murder of seven Indian police personnel. At the sound of the shot, the Pakistani negotiator on the bridge took cover; the Indian negotiators and their Guards attempted to do likewise, but as they were dispersing they were caught by bursts of fire from Bren Guns which had already been fixed in position and directed to them. As stated above, seven Indians were murdered in this manner, the remainder, who scattered in unprotected positions at different points of the neighbouring area, were kept under Pakistani fire until the Cease-fire at 6.30 p.m. when 15 of them were taken into illegal custody by the Pakistan border police.

7. The post-mortem reports on the seven Indians who died states that the injuries were "ante-mortem and sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature."

8. The Government of India consider that this incident can only be described as cold blooded and brutal murder. Serious tension continues in the area, and there is grave danger of the situation deteriorating unless the Government of Pakistan take prompt action in terms of para 3 of the Note handed over to the Pakistan High Commission by the Commonwealth Secretary on June 3.

2933. Letter from Pakistan Prime Minister Firoz Khan Noon to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Karachi, July 18, 1958.

My dear Prime Minister,

I am attaching herewith a copy of the note, which the Pakistan High Commissioner in New Delhi has been instructed to deliver to the Ministry of External Affairs in reply to the aide memoires delivered by the High Commission for India in Karachi, to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Pakistan.

2. The Note is based on the findings of the Commissioner, Bahawalpur and Multan Divisions, who carried out a joint enquiry into the Amruka Minor incident of June 3rd in collaboration with the Commissioner of Jullundur Division, appointed by your Government.

3. Although, both the Commissioners agreed on the issues to be enquired into yet, it is a pity that they did not reach agreed decisions and failed to submit a joint report. The Commissioner, Multan & Bahawalpur Divisions, as well as other senior officials of the Governments of Pakistan, who have enquired into the Amruka Minor incident, cannot help feeling that the ‘ex parte’ statements made by the Government of India, particularly, the very strong and categorical terms used by them immediately after the event-for instance, those contained in the aide memoires mentioned in the first paragraph of this letter—possibly made the position of the Commissioner of Jullundur Division somewhat difficult, for he could hardly have adopted a position which might have been at variance with the statements made by some of the highest authorities of his Government.

4. Although, I deeply regret that a joint report has not been made possible, I would, nonetheless, assure you that the people and the Government of Pakistan are most anxious to maintain peaceful and cordial relations with the Government and the people of India. We would, therefore, do everything possible on our side to ensure that there is no recurrence of such incidents in future. I hope that the forthcoming meeting between the Commonwealth Secretary of the Ministry of External Affairs of India and the Foreign Secretary of the Government of Pakistan will produce fruitful results and settle all the outstanding border disputes between India and Pakistan. You can be sure of full cooperation on our side.

Kind regards

Yours sincerely

(Firoz Khan Noon)

The Honourable Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru
Prime Minister of India
New Delhi

2934. Note of Pakistan High Commission in India to Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, July 22, 1958.

No. 2(34)P/58 July 22, 1958.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

The High Commission for Pakistan in India presents its compliments to the Ministry of External Affairs of the Government of India and has the honour to refer to their aide memoire dated the 5th and 7th of June 1958, delivered by the Deputy High Commissioner of India at Karachi to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations of the Government of Pakistan.

2. As the Ministry of External Affairs is aware, the incident at Amruka Minor on the 3rd June 1958, was jointly enquired into by the Commissioners of Bahawalpur and Multan (Pakistan), and Jullunder (India) from 9th to 11th of June. At this enquiry the aide memoire of 7th June 1958 stated the Indian case. Having given due consideration to the evidence produced before the two Commissioners and to the Report of the Commissioner, Bahawalpur and Multan Divisions, the Government of Pakistan are convinced that the Indian allegations against the Pakistan border forces are incorrect. The enquiry clearly shows that the death of seven persons of the P.A.P. (India) was due to defensive firing by the Pakistan border police in reply to fire opened on them by the Indian P.A.P.
3. The Government of India are, no doubt, aware that the nature of the boundary in this area is entirely different from that of the former Punjab (Pak) and Punjab (I) Provinces, where a new boundary had to be fixed following the division of the old Punjab Province between India and Pakistan. The Amruka Minor area has always been part of the Bahawalpur State, and the \textit{de jure} position of the boundary here was clearly defined by the Survey of India which in 1928 erected pillars along the Ferozepure - Bahawalpur boundary. The pillars are still on the site, and the demarcation in 1957 by the two Surveyors-General has only confirmed the previous boundary. Therefore the \textit{de jure} position of Pakistan territory here is that it extends some distance to the east of the right (Eastern) bank of the Amruka Minor.

4. The next point to be considered is whether it were India or Pakistan that had been in \textit{de facto} possession of the right bank of the Amruka Minor.

5. At the outset it must be admitted that since the boundary in this sector had already been defined, the \textit{de jure} status of which was undisputedly in favour of Bahawalpur State, and there has been no change in the position as a result of independence, the \textit{de facto} possession must follow the \textit{de jure} title. The Commissioner of Bahawalpur and Multan has rightly observed:

   "If any party desired to establish anything to the contrary they have a heavy responsibility to discharge as the burden of proof is heavily on them."

6. The Indian representative produced before the Enquiry three Daily Diary Reports for the week ending 11th June 1953 which claimed that three Indian Head Constables patrolled a certain area in Sirianwala Head to Sowana Post every morning. However, the words of the report do not establish that their beat was the right bank, particularly as the entries relate to a period which was a few months after the first P.A.P.(India) claim to the patrolling of the right bank of Amruka Minor had been conclusively decided in favour of Pakistan by the two Deputy Commissioners concerned. (The relevant portion of the minutes is quoted below). Nonetheless, Pakistani authorities showed the two Commissioners their Daily Diaries for 23.2.54, 28.11.57 and 26.2.56, and produced further entries as required by the Indian authorities to show that their border police have always been patrolling the right bank.

7. At the Monthly Border Meeting at Dab Sharqi on 19th November 1952, the Assistant Commandant, Border Police, Bahawalpur, proved that the Survey Boundary Pillars marked the boundary line between Bahawalnagar and Ferozepure, and he in fact showed two of these pillars to the D.S.P., Ferozepure, 94 paces apart to the East of the Amruka Minor. The D.S.P., Ferozepure at that time claimed that P.A.P. parties patrolled along the right bank as this Minor was the boundary between Bahawalnagar and Ferozepure. Subsequently this contention was examined by the two Deputy Commissioners (Ferozepure and Bahawalnagar) on the spot with the aid of the members of their respective revenue staff, Mussavis and Survey pillars, etc., on 7.2.53. Their finding was:

"The boundary between India and Pakistan (Bahawalpur State) at this place i.e. between the railway line and Amruka Minor bridge opposite village Dab Sharqi was thus verified to be the line running along the above mentioned pillars and this was confirmed to be the actual boundary line. The contention of the P.A.P. (Indian Border Police) was thus found to be erroneous."

8. It is important at this stage to underline the fact that the two Deputy Commissioners verified the actual boundary to be the same as claimed by the Pakistan Border Police.

9. The fact that attempts by the Indian Border Police to disturb the \textit{de jure} and the \textit{de facto} possession of the Pakistan authorities have been unsuccessful, will be substantiated by the report of the two D.S.P.s, Abdullah Khan (Pak) and Roshan Lal (India), who under para 2 of the I.G.s Agreement of 1956 toured the border areas in July 1956, and made a joint inspection of Dab Sharqi, Sirianwala (Pak), Churiwala and Sowana (India). The material paragraph of the report states:

"No disputes about patrolling beats, paths, Khals, and the like were brought to our notice...Picket Commanders on both sides were told.....they should stick to their side of the border and should not allow any trees to be cut from the actual border dividing the two countries."

This clearly proves that both the countries were in \textit{de facto} possession of their respective territories.

10. The Commissioner of Multan and Bahawalpur has further observed that the spot inspection on 9th June, when the Indian authorities accompanied him, "revealed a very important factual piece of evidence, which unlike human processes, cannot lie. During this entire length we noticed that cultivation by Indian nationalists during the last crop was up to the line of the boundary pillars and did not extend up to the foot of the Right Bank, except in one spot which was brought to our notice by the Deputy Commissioner Ferozepure." Had India been in \textit{de facto} possession of the territory under question, the cultivation would have been continuous to the right bank in the area.

11. \textit{De facto} possession can be proved only with reference to the exercise of user rights, such as patrolling, cultivation, cutting of trees, shrubs and reeds.
Where the party claiming possession is without the title of ownership, as is the case with India in this sector, the burden of proof lies heavily on it. Evidence of the villagers of Dab Sharqi was taken by the two Commissioners and these villagers unanimously claimed that they had been exercising all these rights.
Therefore, while the Indian P.A.P. claimed occasional patrolling, and that too not exclusively, Pakistani police and villagers exercised all the user's rights, including constant patrolling.

12. The above facts will clearly establish that the Indian aide memoire of 7th June is erroneous in asserting that the right bank of Amruka Minor was being regularly patrolled by the Indian border police from Dab Sharqi to Sirianwala. A few instances during these years of illegal and surreptitious trespass by the Indian Border Police into Pakistan territory on the right bank of the Minor would not constitute de facto possession. On the occasion of the incident of 3rd June 1958, however, the Indian authorities not only challenged Pakistan's right to patrol the right bank of the Minor, but after having reinforced their position went so far as to claim that they i.e. the Indian Border Police, had been patrolling the right bank of the Minor and that they had been in de facto possession of it.
Having assumed this astonishing position, the Indian aide memoire of 7th June 1958, characterized as "false" the claim of the Assistant Commandant of Pakistan Border Police that this area had been patrolled by them during the past several years. In fact the evidence has proved that not only has the patrolling on the right bank of Amruka Minor, but also all the usual user's rights in that area have been exercised by Pakistan.

13. In view of the facts stated above, the agreement of 1956 between the two Prime Ministers to the effect that exchange of areas under adverse possession will take place on an agreed date after the demarcation of the boundary, is irrelevant so far as the boundary of Pakistan and India on the right bank of Amruka Minor is concerned.

14. The Indian aide memoire of 7th June 1958 seems to regard the visit of the Survey Party in April 1958 as an attempt to disturb the status quo.

15. However, the telegram dated the 15th April 1958, produced by the Indian representative inter alia reads as follows:

"There Manzur Ahmed Khan, Pak, Overseer told that they are surveying Amruka Minor and claimed it their own land."

This again shows that Pakistan was in possession of this territory on this occasion and nothing else.

16. The background of the most recent incident is as follows:-

On 14th April an Overseer of Pakistan Irrigation Department uninterruptedly carried out the repairs to Amruka Minor from RD 1300 up to RD 9000. At this point, he was prevented from continuing his work by Bishamber Nath, Post Commander, P.A.P. Sowana. There upon, the Pakistan Post Commander pointed out to him the boundary pillars on the site. A.S.I. Bishambar Nath then accepted the position asserted by the Pakistan Post Commander and the work was carried up to RD 12000. After this, a few meetings between the two Inspectors of the border police took place. It was agreed that any doubts with regard to the rights of the two sides would be cleared up at the next monthly meeting, which, for one reason or the other, was postponed a number of times. However, the meeting was fixed for June 10, 1958. The situation in the Sector, in the meanwhile, became increasingly tense.

17. On 1st June 1958, the Pakistan Patrol Party was challenged by Karnail Singh, Head Constable, P.A.P. Post Sowana, who with 13 constables armed with rifles and bren guns took positions and asked the Pakistan Patrol Party to leave the right bank of the Minor. On 2nd June, several similar altercations and challenges between P.A.P (India) and Pak. Patrol Parties continued. On that evening six lorry loads of reinforcements were observed in Indian territory at each of their posts in this sector.

Meanwhile Harbans Singh, D.S.P., P.A.P. and Bashir Hussain, Assistant Commandant (Pak) met at 7 a.m. on 3rd June and confirmed that the meeting of the two Commandants was to be held at 5 p.m. on 3rd June.

18. While referring to the events on 3rd June 1956, the Indian aide memoire says that "normal patrolling of the right bank was carried out by Indian patrol party...." From the account which has been given in the preceding paragraphs, it is quite clear that the situation on the Amruka Minor had become extremely tense and highly explosive during the preceding few days. It is a misrepresentation of facts to call any patrolling in such a situation as "normal". According to the Commissioner's report:

"It must be held that the patrolling was intensified and was definitely above normal and must have been known to be likely to result in clashes, unless a no-man's-land of 75 yards on either side of the Minor was enforced as was done on a previous occasion."

19. The facts are that during the Flag meeting Pakistani officers noticed that every 20 minutes a messenger would come from the post, take A.S.I. Bishamber Nath aside, say something and withdraw. While the flag meeting was in progress, three parties of half a platoon strength each, left the Sowana post and moved to the left and right flanks and the third party came in front of the bridge and sat down in an extended line from where they could move under cover immediately.

20. All this activity was most unusual for a flag meeting. It was clear that the Indian forces were making preparations for some sort of an offensive. In these circumstances, all that the Pakistani Border Police could do was to wait and watch.

21. Meanwhile, a Pakistan Patrol Party, under H.C. Wali Dad came across a P.A.P. Patrol Party under A.S.I. Ram Saroop between RD 6000 and RD 7000. Both the parties challenged each other. A.S.I. Ram Saroop and his party were asked to get off the right bank and walk along the boundary on the Indian side beyond the boundary pillars. A.S.I. Ram Saroop complied with the direction but, after a short distance, he and his party re-entered Pakistan territory. Here he was met by S.I. Shaukat Ali Khan in command of Pakistan Patrol Party. The latter asked A.S.I. Ram Saroop to go back to the Indian side of the border and advocated restraint and patience, since the whole matter was under consideration of the superior officers. While this conversation was going on a shot was fired from the Indian side at S.I. Shaukat Ali Khan's patrol party which was some distance up the Minor.

22. This shot surprised and interrupted the flag meeting. A.S.I. Rafique Ahmed ran towards the bank of the Minor, while 4 or 5 members of the Indian party ran for shelter of a date tree and some shrubs a few yards away. A second shot from the Indian side was fired at A.S.I. Rafique Ahmad as he was trying to scramble up the outer slope of the right bank of the Minor. Evidence shows that this shot was fired by Harbhajan Singh of the Indian party who was at a distance of some 80 yards from the flag meeting. When the Pakistan Border Police saw that one of their officers was being fired at, they fired a short volley in self defence. It was this volley which resulted in all the casualties.

23. Evidence has also revealed that the first shot was fired from a Tila (sand dune) about 300 yards within the Indian territory. Although, during the enquiry, D.I.G. (India) maintained that none of their bren gun or rifle morchas were located on the sand dune, subsequent spot inspection by both the representatives confirmed as pointed out by Commissioner, Multan and Bahawalpur Divisions that :-

"We.........and found a definite dug out for the bren gun position with foot marks also and a pitcher of water. The Sarkanda reeds have also been knotted to keep them away from interfering with the use of bren guns. A couple of paces to the north.....there was another small dug out, also sheltered by a bunch of sarkanda reeds, which must have been used as rifle morcha."

Further more, medical evidence has revealed that Daulat Ram and Harbhajan Singh received injuries from both sides. Both these injuries in each case were sufficient in themselves to have caused death instantaneously.
24. All evidence goes to prove that the firing was started by the Indian forces on the 3rd June, in an attempt to seize Pakistan territory. The Pakistani Patrol returned the fire in self defence after their Patrol Commander had been shot at. The enquiry fully disproves the allegation that the firing was due to any “pre-meditated design” or “calculated treachery.” The responsibility for the firing therefore fully rests on the Indian police. Accordingly the Government of Pakistan rejects the Indian claim for compensation.

25. The Government of Pakistan are further constrained to add that they deprecate the tone and the language used in the aide memoires of 5th and 7th June 1958. Phrases such as “barbarous, uncivilised behaviour”, “gangsterism without parallel” are expressions not generally found in the language of diplomatic intercourse and are not conducive to the promotion of better relations between the two countries.

26. In conclusion, the Government of Pakistan wish to reiterate that the de facto as well as de jure possession of Pakistan has, right from the time of the Independence of both the countries, extended up to the boundary, pillars beyond the right bank of the Amruka Minor. In their meeting held on the 3rd June 1958, the Deputy Inspector General of Police (Border), West Pakistan, and the Deputy Inspector General of Police (PAP) Jullunder, agreed, in order to lessen the tension prevailing at that time, that the two sides should not patrol at or beyond 100 yards of their side of the Minor. The Government of Pakistan would, therefore, request the Government of India to issue firm instructions to the P.A.P. (India) to desist, in future, from interfering with the right of the Pakistan Border Police to patrol up to the boundary pillars which are situated beyond the right bank of the Amruka Minor.

The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Ministry the assurances of its highest consideration.

The Ministry of External Affairs,
Government of India, New Delhi.
Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Malik Firoz Khan Noon.

New Delhi, July 26, 1958.

My dear Prime Minister,

Thank you for your letter of the 18th July, 1958, which was delivered by your High Commissioner in New Delhi on the 22nd July.

I appreciate the assurance you have given in your letter that the people and the Government of Pakistan are most anxious to maintain peaceful and cordial relations with the Government and the people of India. Further, that you would do everything possible on your side to ensure that there is no recurrence of undesirable incidents in the future. That indeed is the only attitude that either Pakistan or India can adopt to the other country. Any other attitude would be foolish in the extreme and harmful to both. So far as we are concerned, we have stated, times without number, publicly in Parliament and elsewhere, and privately in our communications to the Pakistan Government, that we are anxious to maintain peaceful and cooperative relations with Pakistan. It is true that there are differences between our two Governments in regard to a number of matters, and that all our efforts to settle these questions peacefully have met thus far with little success. Nevertheless, I am convinced that insofar as the people of Pakistan and the people of India are concerned, there is no basic hostility between them, and the unfortunate memories of the tragic incidents which followed partition, have almost faded away. There is a natural and understandable desire in both countries to put an end to the tensions and apprehensions that unfortunately exist and embitter our relations. In spite of this, however, incidents occur. Whether these are due to encouragement from higher officers or merely to trigger-happy men on the frontier, I do not know. Whatever they may be due to, the consequences are most unfortunate. It is obvious that we cannot settle any of our problems in this way, and that indeed those problems become more difficult of solution if approached in this manner. It is absurd for either country to try to gain a few yards of territory on the border by trying to frighten the border guards or police on the other side. It is, therefore, a matter of high importance that both our Governments should issue the most stringent instructions that this kind of thing will not be tolerated and that anyone found guilty of doing this will be punished.

While I appreciate what you have written about your desire to maintain peaceful relational with India, I confess I have a feeling that the rest of your letter, dealing with the Fazilka incident, does not bear out that wish. Of the many unfortunate incidents that have happened on our frontier, this Fazilka incident was a particularly glaring one, and I should have thought that there could be no doubt as to what happened.

I do not wish to argue this matter in this letter. Separately, we are sending a note to your Ministry of External Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, wherein this question is dealt with at some length. A copy of this note is attached to this letter also. This note gives long extracts from the report of the Commissioner, Jullundur Division, who participated in the Joint Enquiry.

I would only add here that it is not only extraordinary, but beyond human credibility, that a number of our persons should be shot down and then we should be accused of having started the firing. To my knowledge, no one has stated that anyone was injured on the Pakistan side.

I earnestly trust that you will be good enough to consider this matter more fully. I am sure that if you do so, you will find that there is truth and justice in what we have said, and that this will lead you to take the necessary action, suggested by us, in this matter.

I hope with you that the forthcoming meeting between the Secretaries will produce fruitful results. But I confess that the attitude that your Government has taken about the Fazilka incident disheartens and distresses me and diminishes the hope I have that the meeting of the Secretaries will be helpful.

I may add that we are not accusing the Pakistan Government of having ordered firing at Fazilka. This is an incident in which people at the border, according to us, misbehaved.

With kind regards

Yours sincerely

Signed/- Jawaharlal Nehru

Honourable Malik Firoz Khan Noon,
Prime Minister of Pakistan
Karachi.

Note from Ministry of External Affairs to Pakistan High Commission in India.

New Delhi, July 29, 1958.

The Ministry of External Affairs present their compliments to the High Commission of Pakistan in India and have the honour to state that the Ministry have carefully examined the various points raised in the High Commission's note No.2(34)P/58, dated 22nd July, 1958. The contentions raised in the High Commission's note have, on examination, been found to have been based on entirely false premises. The Ministry, therefore, reiterate their view of the incident given in para.3 of the aide memoire handed over in New Delhi to the Pakistan High Commissioner on 23rd June, and to the Ministry of External Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Karachi, by the Indian Deputy High Commissioner on 25th June, that "the seven members of the Indian Border Police were shot down by the Pakistan Border Police opening fire without notice when they were engaged in the usual white flag negotiations and that this cold-blooded action was the result of a calculated plan by the Pakistan Border Police who have been attempting to take forcible possession of the right bank of the Amruka Minor in violation of the Agreement of 1956 between the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan that exchange of areas following joint demarcation was to take place on an agreed date after the entire boundary was jointly demarcated."

2. The High Commission in its note of 22nd July, has raised the following main contentions:

(i) The Agreement of 1956 between the two Prime Ministers is irrelevant because the nature of the boundary in this area is entirely different.

(ii) Pakistan was in de facto possession of the right bank of the Amruka Minor where this incident occurred.

(iii) The firing was started by the Indian forces on the 3rd June in an attempt to seize Pakistan territory; the Pakistani Patrol returned the fire in self-defence after their Patrol Commander had been shot at, and that the enquiry fully disproves the allegation that the firing was due to any "pre-meditated design or calculated treachery."

3. The above contentions in Pakistan High Commission's note are erroneous and based on entirely false premises as will be seen from the following:

(i) That the de facto position along the entire Punjab-West Pakistan boundary, including Bahawalpur, has to be maintained till the demarcation of the entire boundary is completed and an agreed date has been fixed for the exchange of territory as a result of this demarcation has been known to and accepted by the authorities on both sides. This is clear from the relevant portion of the minutes of the meeting of the West Pakistan and the Punjab D.I.Gs of Police on 1st February, 1956, reproduced below:

"All the existing policy decisions between the Inspectors General and the two Commandants will continue to be honoured by both sides in all good faith and will now also be applicable to the Ferozepore - Bahawalpur border. It was emphasized that the two border forces will continue to stick to the de facto positions and that the status quo shall not be disturbed by operational forces at any cost."

The same position is clear from the following extracts from the messages sent by the Prime Minister of Pakistan to the Prime Minister of India in 1956:

"I should like to add here that any exchange of territory that may be necessary as a result of demarcation on the ground should, however, take place on an agreed date after the entire boundary with West Pakistan has been demarcated." (Para.2 of the message from the Pakistan Prime Minister to the Prime Minister of India, delivered by the Pakistan High Commissioner in Delhi on 8th April).

"As we have agreed to the demarcation of the entire boundary between West Pakistan and India, we shall issue instructions to include in the demarcation the Ferozepore District - Bahawalpur Divisions boundary." (Para.3 of the message from Prime Minister of Pakistan to the Prime Minister of India conveyed by the Pakistan High Commissioner in Delhi on 6th June).

It will be seen from the above that the contention of the Pakistan High Commission that "the Agreement of 1956 between the two Prime Ministers is irrelevant because the nature of the boundary in this area is entirely different", is based on entirely erroneous premises.

(ii) (a) The High Commission has, in support of its contention that "Pakistan was in de facto possession of the right bank of the Amruka Minor where this incident occurred," cited the finding on 7th February 1953, of the Deputy Commissioners of Ferozepore and Bahawalpur, but omitted to mention that it referred to an entirely different part of the boundary. The finding, as reproduced by the High Commission in para.7 of the note under reference, reads:

"The boundary between India and Pakistan (Bahawalpur State) at this place, i.e. between the railway line and Amruka Minor bridge opposite village Dab Sharqi was thus verified to be the line running along the above mentioned pillars and this was confirmed to be the actual boundary line. The contention of the P.A.P. (Indian Border Police) was thus found to be erroneous.

The boundary under consideration was that "between the railway line and Amruka Minor bridge opposite village Dab Sharqi" and the finding has no bearing on the Indian contention that India has been in possession of the right bank of Amruka Minor between Dab Sharqi bridge and Head Sirianwala, i.e. in the Sowana area. The Sowana Bridge where this incident occurred is two miles away from the Dab Sharqi bridge and it is surprising that the High Commission should attempt to confuse the issues by citing as evidence something which is entirely irrelevant.

(b) The High Commission has referred to the report of the two D.S.Ps. Roshanlal (India) and Abdullah Khan (Pakistan) of July 10, 1956, and claimed that this report establishes de facto possession of the right bank by Pakistan. Quite apart from the fact that the extract quoted by the High Commission affords no basis for the conclusion actually drawn. It is significant that the High Commission has, in this instance also, attempted to confuse the issues by omitting the other statements made by the two negotiators in the same report, which have particular relevance in the present case. The paragraphs immediately after the one quoted by the High Commission read:

"A minor point of dispute was referred to us near Indian Picket Sowana. The Picket Commander of the opposite Pak Border Picket Serianwala had objected to the installation of barbed-wire enclosure around some fields on the Indian side of the Amruka Minor. We visited the spot and, after necessary probing into, decided that there should be no objection to the installation of the fencing as it was meant purely to protect the crop from wild animals......Similarly, Picket Commander Siriwanwali (Pak) made a mention of some objection having been raised by his counterpart, of clearing the path on the Pak side of the Amruka Minor, of shrubs etc. As obviously the path exists on the Pak side, we agreed that there should not be any objection to its being cleared of bushes where the same existed."

The words "Indian side of the Amruka Minor" and "Pakistan side of the Amruka Minor" would clearly show that the claim now made that Pakistan has exercised possession beyond the right bank of the Minor up to the de jure boundary line, is entirely untenable.

(c) In paragraph 10 of its note the High Commission has stated that if India had been in de facto possession of the territory under question "the cultivation would have been continuous to the right bank in the area." The High Commission will no doubt agree that cultivation up to the right bank would have been possible only if the latter had been patrolled by the Indian Police and would have been impossible if the patrolling had been done by the Pakistani Police. In this connection the High Commission will recall that a meeting took place at Sulemanki on June 3rd, 1958, between the D.I.Gs. of Police. An extract from the minutes of the meeting reads:

"The above decisions will in no way effect the cultivation of the Indian nationals who are cultivating their land up to and touching the right or Eastern Bank of the Amruka Minor."

The Indian cultivators are in fact cultivating land right up to the bank and that India was, on the day of the incident, in de facto possession of the right bank from Dab Sharqi bridge to Sirianwala Head, is clearly established. The Commissioner, Jullundur Division, who participated in the joint enquiry, has reported that this was also noticed at the time of the inspection of the spot by the two Commissioners and stated that "the de facto position of the boundary at present is that the Indian side have been in possession of the right bank in this Sowana area since partition."

The unimpeachable evidence cited above clearly shows that the High Commission's contention that "Pakistan was in de facto possession of the right bank of the Amruka Minor where this incident occurred" is erroneous and based on entirely false premises.

(iii) When the two Commissioners visited the scene of the incident, the first allegation made by the Pakistani officers was that the Indians had taken position in trenches on the Indian side; when an inspection on the spot revealed that there were no trenches anywhere in the area, this line of argument was quietly dropped. It was argued at one stage that the seven Indian policemen had been killed by cross-firing from their own police post. This contention has also been modified now and it is argued that the Pakistani Police had to fire a short volley in self-defence and that this was the volley which resulted in all the casualties. Again at one stage, it was claimed that the prelude to the fatal volley was a single shot fired from the Indian side; now it is argued that there were two shots both fired by the Indians. The Ministry are constrained to state that these shifting arguments are entirely unconvincing. The Commissioner, Jullunder Division, who participated in the joint enquiry, has, after carefully weighing all the evidence produced in the joint enquiry, came to the conclusion that the first shot fired came from the Pakistan side and the seven Indian policemen were killed by the fire from the Pakistan Border Police. The Pakistan and the Indian contentions in this regard have been objectively and fairly analysed by the Commissioner, Jullundur Division in his report.
The following extract from the report of the Commissioner, Jullundur Division, will show how the contentions in paragraph 21, 22 and 23 of the High Commission's report are based on erroneous appreciation of the evidence produced before the Commissioners in the joint enquiry in this regard:

"The Indian version right from the first messages sent out from the Sowana Picket has been that when the white flag meeting was going on near the Sowana bridge (which meeting between the late A.S.I. Bishamber Nath and the Pakistan A.S.I. Siddiqui has been admitted by Saddiqi himself and by the other Pakistan Officers), the first shot was heard to come from the Pakistan side. The Pakistan officers, however, have contended that they were first fired upon by the Indians from an entrenched position on a sand dune where there was cover also, and that the fire consisted of a bren gun burst.

When we visited the spot, we enquired personally from the Pakistan and Indian officers about it. On the Indian side, it was categorically stated that there was no bren gun at all in the area in which it was alleged by the Pakistan people that there was one. The Pakistan officers, however, took us up to the top of this sand mound and there was a depression with reeds around it, which they said was an entrenched position. There was an earthen ghara (big pot) there also, which the Pakistanis said was substantial evidence of the fact, because any P.A.P. men on this job there would need water during the day. However, after examining the whole place carefully and enquiring from the local villagers, it was found that the local people were using this mound as a cremation ground, and just near this top location of alleged entrenchment, a dead body had obviously been burnt only very recently. The villagers confirmed this. I examined the ghara myself and found that it was full of filth and could not possible have been used for drinking water. There are high reeds all around this place, which would seriously obstruct the field of vision for using a bren gun. The Pakistan Officers pointed out some foot marks on this mound, but along with those were noticed the marks of goat hooves as well as goat droppings; therefore, the foot marks shown could be of herdsmen or other villagers coming to this burning place. The Indian officers categorically stated during the enquiry that when this firing started from the Pakistan side, they also put up their bren guns, but only at three positions; and they clearly indicated these positions at (1) the Picket itself (one bren gun), and (2) at strategic positions in the village (two bren-guns). During the enquiry the P.A.P. officers were quite prepared to take both the Commissioners to the actual spots and show them where their bren guns had been located. The mound from where the Pakistanis allege that the bren gun fire of the Indians came first is quite some distance from the village, and in fact a long way from the Picket. The Pakistan Sub Inspector, Shaukat Ali, stated during the enquiry that the Indian A.S.I. Sarup Singh, with his party of ten, had met S.I. Shaukat Ali opposite this mound on the right bank of the Minor, and that the Pakistan Sub Inspector had objected to the Indian A.S.I.'s patrolling, and that while they were having the argument, the Indian side from this sand dune covered with reeds (tilla) opened a bren gun burst on them and so both side immediately got down from the bank. Sarup Singh, however, while admitting that he did actually meet S.I. Shaukat Ali, categorically denied that there was any burst of fire from the Indian side at that spot. The tilla is only about 200 yards from this meeting place between the two parties, and it is quite unbelievable that even if there had been an Indian bren gun located on this tilla, the Indian should have fired at this place where their own men were standing exposed while the others were mostly in the Minor bed, because the result would have been moving down their own Indian people.

Therefore, as will be seen from the discussion above, not only is it factually incorrect that there was any Indian bren gun on this tilla, but the firing of a burst from there, in the circumstances as alleged by Pakistan, is quite improbable and unbelievable."

It is clear from the above that the contention in the High Commission's note mentioned at (iii) of para. 2 above, is entirely erroneous and the facts of the incident are as stated in paragraph 5-7 of the aide memoire handed over by the Indian High Commission in Pakistan to the Ministry of External Affairs and Commonwealth Relations, Karachi, on 7th June, 1958.

4. The Ministry are, in the light of the above, constrained to observe that the High Commission's note, far from reflecting an objective attitude, displays a determination to defend Pakistani offenders at all costs and to white-wash their conduct. No improvement in Indo-Pakistan relations is possible if the Pakistani authorities continue to repeat baseless and ill-founded allegations against the Indian authorities and continue to condone the lapses of Pakistani local officials despite clear established facts to the contrary.

5. The Ministry sincerely hope that the High Commission will, in the interest of maintaining peace on the border and improving Indo-Pakistan relations, move the Government of Pakistan to reconsider their attitude in what is essentially the cold-blooded killing of seven Indian policemen by their Pakistani brethren of the same profession, and to take necessary steps for the punishment of those responsible for the incident and for payment of compensation to the bereaved families of the seven Indian policemen who were shot down while they were engaged in the usual white flag negotiations with their Pakistani counterparts.

The Ministry of External Affairs avail themselves of this opportunity to renew to the High Commission of Pakistan the assurances of their highest consideration.

The High Commission of Pakistan,
New Delhi.

2937. Minutes of the Indo-Pakistan Secretary level conference on border problems.

Karachi, August 30, 1958.

Mr. Baig opened the discussion by welcoming the Indian delegation to Karachi. He said that he must apologize as he was responsible for the postponement of the meeting by a week and he was grateful to the Commonwealth Secretary for having agreed to his suggestion readily.

Mr. Baig stated that since partition, the relations between the two countries had been constantly bedeviled by a state of border warfare and during the 11 years many brave and valuable lives had been lost. A procedure for the settlement of these disputes had been laid down by the Steering Committee. He said that we should do our best to resolve the differences and if we and the Prime Ministers cannot do it, we will have to go to the Arbitral Tribunal. He said that they had drawn up a provisional agenda. The Indian delegation could suggest changes if they so desired. He suggested that the delegations could form committees to discuss individual disputes.

Commonwealth Secretary thanked the Government of Pakistan on behalf of his colleagues and himself for the excellent arrangements for their reception and their stay in Karachi.

He said that though 11 years have passed since India and Pakistan became sovereign independent states, people are still having hazy ideas about the frontiers. We share your views that we should do our best to limit the areas of conflict by applying not a negative or agitational approach but a positive and constructive approach to help settle the problems. He said that he was thinking of a slight re-arrangement of the agenda because it will help to come to certain arrangements and decisions. He was suggesting that we might change the order of items on the agenda slightly so that after item 1, we could go on to item 4, and after that we could take up item 2 and then items 5, 3 and 6.

Commonwealth Secretary said that during the last 10 years, local officials have discussed these disputes extensively, but Mr. Baig agreed with this as being reasonable and essential.

Item (4):- Discussion of individual border disputes.

As regards individual disputes, Commonwealth Secretary suggested and it was agreed that these should first be discussed in the Working Committee where the two sides could advance their viewpoints, and in case of disagreement, the points of disagreement could be taken up at the Secretary level meeting on Monday on 1st September.

Two Working Committees, - one to deal with disputes on the Western border and the other to deal with disputes on the Eastern border - were then formed and it was agreed that the Committees should meet in the afternoon.

The meeting then adjourned in a cordial atmosphere to meet again on Monday morning.

IMMEDIATE

Prime Minister from Commonwealth Secretary
The meeting at Secretary's level began on 30th morning when Pakistan Foreign Secretary readily accepted various changes in the agenda and various suggestions made by the Indian Delegation. These included measures to be taken to avoid border incidents in future, exchange of areas to take place after entire demarcation including demarcation of disputed areas after settlement of dispute, if completed, strict maintenance of status quo pending exchange of areas and issue of detailed instructions to local authorities to maintain peace in the border regions and to Survey authorities to expedite demarcation in various ways.

2. NOON appeared to be anxious to settle these border problems before coming to Delhi so that he could during his Delhi visit talk about other matters like Canal Waters and perhaps Kashmir. NOON's colleague, Commerce Minister RASHID, who was present at his lunch also stressed the importance of settling our differences and promoting larger cooperation between India and Pakistan in economic and other spheres in the interests of the welfare of the people of the sub continent. It was obvious that their canal waters expert MOINUDDIN who appeared at a dinner where I was asked by IKRAM, an ex-Bombay ICS Officer, on Saturday and their Kashmir Affairs Secretary FARUQI who called on me, met me by design and not by accident. They did not raise either Kashmir or Canal Waters issue though they expressed a desire to see me again before I left. I merely told them that I was fully occupied with these discussions on border problems and I was happy to meet them.

3. All this points to NOON's keenness to consolidate his position in Pakistan politics by meeting the Indian Prime Minister and having talks with him.

4. During the weekend when we broke up into committees and worked on various disputes on the Eastern and Western borders the Pakistani teams were recalcitrant and obstructive and went back completely on the general understanding including immediate exchange of prisoners that BAIG had accepted in the first meeting. We have been firm with them and BAIG has now expressed a desire after an open meeting tomorrow to have private talks between just the two of us to discuss about these disputes and see what can be done. I have told him that I am at his disposal and agreed to meet him. This meeting will probably come off on the 2nd morning as BAIG is anxious to be fully briefed by his advisers before he meets me along.

5. All indications are that the bulk of the disputes will remain to be settled at the Prime Ministers' meeting though NOON's anxiety to get these out of the way may lead to Pakistan delegation changing their rigid and obstructive attitude.

2939. Report of the India-Pakistan Sub-Committee on Western Borders.

Karachi, August 31, 1958.

Following the discussion at the morning session of the India-Pakistan Secretaries' Conference on August 30, 1958, and in the background of the points discussed there, Sub-Committee were asked to examine various disputes relating to the border between Pakistan and India. The following officers met to consider the West Pakistan India Border:-

INDIA

(1) Mr. E.N. Mangat Rai, I.C.S., Chief Secretary, Punjab (India)

(2) Sardar G.S. Kahlon, I.C.S., Financial Commissioner, Punjab (India).

(3) Mr. J.L. Malhautra, I.F.S., Under Secretary, Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India.

PAKISTAN

(1) Mr. I.U. Khan, C.S.P., Member I, Board of Revenue, West Pakistan

(2) Mr. A.M. Khan Leghari, C.S.P., Commissioner, Multan Division.

(3) Malik Khuds Bakhsh, P.C.S., Secretary, Revenue, Board of Revenue, West Pakistan.

2. The following agenda was agreed on -

(1) Determination of sectors for exchange of possession after demarcation of the boundary;

(2) Listing, definition and recommended solutions regarding disputes where an interpretation of the Award is involved; and

(3) Any other matters.

3. Item (1):

The following sectors are jointly recommended:-

(a) West Pakistan – Punjab (India) i.e. the whole of the boundary of Punjab (India) with West Pakistan;

(b) West Pakistan – Rajasthan; and

(c) West Pakistan – Bombay.
There was no agreement as to when exchange of territories held in adverse possession should take place. The Pakistan representatives suggested that the boundary in the various sectors should be demarcated after excluding disputed areas relating to title, and after this boundary had been demarcated the exchange of possession should take place as was clear from the fact that in the Secretaries' Conference item No. 1 and No. 4 of the Agenda were considered together and item 4 expressly related to the exchange of territories in undisputed areas where the boundary of the two countries had been jointly demarcated.

The Indian views was that the matter had to be considered in the background of the existing agreement between the Prime Ministers to the effect that physical exchange of territories should take place after the entire West Pakistan border had been demarcated. At the meeting of Secretaries on the morning of August 30, it was suggested that in order to expedite matters a recommendation to the effect that the West Pakistan boundary with India should be divided into suitable sectors, might be considered and we were asked to make recommendations on the point. It was also indicated that actual exchange of territories could only take place after a particular sector had been demarcated in its entirety, including disputed areas. In regard to such areas the view taken was that the nature of the disputes should be defined, and clearly stated; and an attempt made to resolve them, failing which they would have to be considered at higher level. In these circumstances it is not possible to agree to exchange of territory except when the entire border in the particular sector including disputed points has, in fact, been demarcated. Whether items I and 4 of the Secretaries Agenda were considered together or not, did not seem relevant, the important point being the content of the discussion in regard to the problem. Moreover Item 4 which relates to exchange of territories does not mention the exclusion of any areas.

Item No. 2

The following disputes were regarded as those relating to title involving the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award:

(i) Sulemanki Headworks.
(ii) Hussainiwala (Ferozepur) Headworks and area.
(iii) Chak Ladheke.
(iv) Theh Sarja Marja, Rakh Sardar Hardit Singh and Pathanke.

The Pakistan representatives contended that the dispute about the Rann of Cutch is a dispute relating to title and should be regarded as such because there is a dispute regarding the boundaries of the former province of Sind and the former Cutch State, but the Indian representatives did not agree as, according to them, the alignment of the boundary in this region is a settled fact.
4. We then went on to consider the definition of each of these disputes and possible solutions. These were discussed in detail. The following paragraphs gives the substance of the discussion. The arguments of each side on each case are not exhaustive nor has an attempt been made to necessarily meet each point raised.

(1) Sulemanki Headworks

The Indian representatives desired to know from Pakistan representatives what area exactly was claimed by Pakistan. The Pakistan representatives stated that their claim was that the land covered by the Headworks includes the following:

(a) The two marginal bunds according to the retired alignments as existing on 15.8.47, as well as the weir;

(b) The land situated between the bunds when their open ends are joined by a straight line;

(c) The land near the weir situated in the old Ferozepur District and originally acquired for use at the time of the construction of the Headworks and for the head reaches of the two Bhawalpur canals. This land is contiguous to but outside the left marginal bunds;

(d) the Headworks railway land from Sulemanki to Chanawala including the Railway track and the Chanawala Railway station.

It was added that this was the area which stands awarded to Pakistan under paragraph 5 of Annexure 'A' to the Radcliffe Award.

The Indian representatives claimed that the boundary in the Sulemanki Headworks area should be the boundary between the two districts of Ferozepur and Montgomery which is also the Radcliffe line. Paragraph 5 of Annexure 'A' of the Award was not attracted to the benefit of any territory adjustment in favour of Pakistan as all that paragraph required was that if the line, as drawn, did not give Pakistan the Headworks the boundary of Ferozepur District at this point should be suitably adjusted. It was, therefore, most important from the point of view of a settlement and analysis of this dispute that the nature of Pakistan's case for the Headworks as including the additional area of the Ferozepur District demanded by them should be specified. It was also pointed out that the left marginal bund particularly was required as a protective work for Indian villages, which was its primary purpose. Practical evidence of this exists in the fact that during the last eleven years it has been in the management of India and there has been no complaint from Pakistan regarding any difficulties at the Headworks resulting from this Indian management. There is, thus, no real or vital interest of Pakistan involved in the retention of the left marginal bund.
In regard to the railway line even though the cost of this may have been debited to the headworks it is quite a common practice for costs of a specific work to be debited to a major work and later, when no longer required, diverted to some other purpose. This railway line in no way now forms part of the Headworks and there was no necessary connection between effective ownership of the Headworks and the railway line.

The contentions of one side were not acceptable to the other and it was not, therefore, possible to recommend any agreed solution for the settlement of this dispute.

(ii) Hussainiwala (Ferozepur) Headworks and Area.

The Indian representatives urged for a precise definition of:

(a) The territorial claim of Pakistan in regard to this Headworks and area; and

(b) what Pakistan desired in regard to joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on the Headworks.

The Pakistan representatives pointed out that the first step was to agree to "an arrangement for joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on those Headworks", an envisaged by Radcliffe in Para 10 of his main Report. After this agreement had been reached, the Governments of India and Pakistan should direct their Chief Engineers (Irrigation) to put up concrete proposals for an effective joint control. It was explained that this dispute arose in respect of Gatti No.9 and the recommendations of the two Financial Commissioners are already with the Governments of India and Pakistan. According to Pakistan representatives no demarcation of the boundary was possible in this area unless an agreement about joint control was first arrived at. The Indian representatives mentioned the following points:

(1) It was a matter of concern in the background of the desire for a settlement between the two countries that no precise definition of the exact claim of Pakistan in this matter should be available even 11 years after partition.

(2) The two countries were concerned at present in getting the border demarcated as speedily as possible. As far as the Radcliffe Award demarcated this area, it was clear in its terms. The suggestion in regard to joint control of intake of canals made in Paragraph 10 of the Radcliffe Award had no bearing on territorial adjustment. In fact this position is further confirmed in paragraphs 11 and 12 of the Award where it is made clear that unitary services are not matters of demarcating a boundary but of adjustment in other ways between the two Governments. It, therefore, did not seem correct to relate the question of joint control of intake to that of a territorial boundary the position in regard to which is clear.

(3) The Indian representatives would be willing to recommend to the Government of India for the setting up of joint arrangements regarding the intake of water into the Dipalpur Canal at the point where this canal enters Pakistan territory.

(4) Mention has been made by Pakistan of consultations between the Financial Commissioners, Punjab (I) and (P) in regard to Gatti No.9. It is pointed out that the views of the Government of India on the whole subject of the Headworks area has been conveyed subsequent to this in Indian High Commission letter No.F.80(7)/55-Genl., dated 19th October, 1956*, addressed to the Pakistan Ministry of External Affairs and Commonwealth Relations.

(5) In these circumstances the claim of India in regard to this dispute is that the boundary should be demarcated according to Annexure 'A' and 'B' of the Radcliffe Award.

The Pakistan representatives maintained that as the Government of India has not so far agreed to the principle of joint control no concrete proposals could be worked out as this task had to be done jointly by the Chief Engineers of the two Governments. In their opinion they suggested setting up of joint arrangements regarding the intake of water into the Dipalpur Canal will not provide effective control. It was not also clear as to whether this suggestion could be taken as an agreement by the Government of India for the joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on these Headworks. In these circumstances no further progress could be made in this behalf.

The Committee, therefore, could not make any agreed recommendation in respect of this dispute either.

Item (iii) Chak Ladheke.

The Pakistan representatives contended that according to Annexure 'A', appended to the Award, the boundary line has to "run along the Western and Southern boundaries of village Khem Karan to its junction with village Maewala." If the Western and Southern boundary of village Khem Karan is followed up to its junction with village Maowala, Chak Ladeheke is clearly left on the Pakistan side of the boundary line. It was added that this description should prevail over the Kasur Tahsil map, which was erroneous and had been appended by Sir Cyril Radcliffe for identifying the villages mentioned in Annexure 'A' and not for any other purpose.

* Document No.2928.
The Indian representatives claimed that Chak Ladeheko, which is a Chak Kharjoe (an isolated and separate part of a revenue estate) belongs to India. In this connection it is clear that the map specially provided by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in Annexure ‘A’ itself was put in to show clearly the demarcation of the boundary line dividing the Kasur Tehsil. In this map the boundary line runs so that this Chak is included in India, and the Chak is specifically mentioned by name in the map itself, and shown within the Indian boundary. The map which is included in Annexure ‘A’ does not attract the limitation specified by Radcliffe in regard to the map at Annexure ‘B’ which he has specifically stated is only illustrative. Two similar Chak Kharjeos of the Indian villages of Daoke and Naushehra Dalla, which are isolated from the main villages are included within the Pakistan boundary and their possession could, on the analogy of Pakistan’s claim to Chak Ladehke, be claimed by India.

The Pakistan representatives pointed out that there was no comparison between the case of Chak Ladheke and that of village Daoke and Naushohra Dalla because in the case of Chak Ladheke there was a difference between the description and the map while in the case of Daoke and Naushohra Dalla the description and the map tallied in entirety.

In the circumstances it was not possible for the Sub-Committee to make any joint recommendation in respect of this dispute.

(iv) The Saraja Marja, Rakh Sardar Hardit Singh and Pathanke.

The Indian representatives claimed that these three villages belonged to India. This claim is substantiated by paragraph 11 of the Radcliffe Award which refers to small adjustments of the Lahore-Amritsar district boundary in order to mitigate some of the consequences of the severance of the irrigation system of the Upper Bari Doab Canal. The only explanation of this statement is the allotment of these three villages to India as otherwise no such small adjustment was required or has been made elsewhere. This position is also confirmed by the map at Annexure ‘B’ of the Radcliffe Award.

The Pakistan representatives pointed out that originally there was a dispute about the exchange of Jhuggian Noor Mohammad with 217 acres of Theh Sarja Marja. This was Pakistan territory in the adverse possession of India. Jhuggian Noor Mohammad, which was Indian territory, was in the adverse possession of Pakistan. The two Deputy Commissioners of Amritsar and Lahore Districts arrived at an agreement on the 20th of December, 1948, that Jhuggian Noor Mohammad should be returned to India and those 217 acres of Theh Sarja Marja should be restored to Pakistan. The Deputy Commissioner, Lahore, honoured the agreement and handed over Jhuggian Noor Mohammad to India. The 217 acres of Theh Sarja Marja were not, however, restored to Pakistan. The Pakistan Government asked for the implementation of the Agreement between the two Deputy Commissioners and the matter was subsequently referred to the two Financial Commissioners. In their meeting the position taken up by the Financial Commissioner, Punjab (Pak) was that:

(a) If there was an agreement then 217 acres of Theh Sarja Marja should be restored to Pakistan; and

(b) If there was no agreement, Jhuggian Noor Mohammad should be given back to Pakistan which was admittedly handed over to India in 1949 by Pakistan.

It was added that it was only after the Pakistan claim had been preferred that the Government of India first raised the question of adjustment of this Pakistan area with some other area and then of title and claimed that the three villages of Theh Sarja Marja, Rakh Sardar Hardit Singh and Pathanke had been given over to India by Sir Cyril Radcliffe.

As regards India’s claim to these villages it was pointed out by Pakistan representatives that under paragraph 3 of the Radcliffe Award the whole of the Lahore Tehsil had been awarded to Pakistan and these three villages are revenue estates of the Lahore Tehsil and as such are Pakistan territory. Paragraph 11 of Radcliffe’s Report relied upon by India relates to specific adjustments made by Sir Cyril Radcliffe himself in respect of villages of the Tehsil of the Lahore District and has no relevance so far as the villages of the Lahore Tahsil are concerned.

The Indian representatives’ comments on some of the points of detail mentioned by Pakistan are:

(1) There was no agreement between the Deputy Commissioners regarding the exchange of territory at Jhuggian Noor Mohammad for that at Theh Sarja Marja. The Pakistan Government have, in spite of a long opportunity to do so, not produced any evidence with regard to the alleged agreement between the two Deputy Commissioners of Lahore and Amritsar. No documents or exchange of letters between the two officers have been produced by the Pakistan Government nor do any exist with the Indian Government. It is difficult to conceive that a decision involving exchange of territory could have been taken by District Officers, and it is impossible to believe that such an agreement should not have been reduced to writing.
(2) The argument that the Indian Government took up the claim for these three villages after Pakistan claimed 217 acres of land in Theh Sarja Marja is also factually incorrect. The Pakistan version of the Teheh Sarja Marja claim was brought to the notice of the Government of India for the first time on 11th May, 1951 by the Pakistan High Commission vide their letter No. 62(6)/51-1361 of this date addressed to the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India, New Delhi, whereas India's claim in respect of these three villages was brought to the notice of the Government of India by the Government of Punjab on the 29th of January, 1951.

In the circumstances no agreement on this point was reached.

With regard to the remaining disputes of which the two Governments are already seized the Pakistan representatives maintained that all except that relating to Ramwal and Kahan Lewari would be resolved after the boundary has been demarcated and exchange of possession has taken place. In respect of Ramwal and Kahan Lewari the Pakistan representatives emphasized the need of the immediate implementation of the joint recommendations of the Financial Commissioners, Punjab (India) and former Punjab (Pak), which according to the then Financial Commissioner, Punjab (India) had already been accepted by the Government of India.

The Indian representatives pointed out that the disputes referred to in this paragraph, including Kahan Lewari and Ramwal, were not disputes regarding an interpretation of the Award or of title but were disputes regarding possession. They are covered by the Prime Ministers Agreement of 1956, regarding the maintenance of the status quo and the exchange of territories taking place after the boundary line has been demarcated in its entirety. This position, with particular reference to Kahan Lewari and Ramwal, has already been brought to the notice of the Pakistan Government by the Government of India. It is also to be noted that the Prime Ministers' Agreement was reached in correspondence exchanged in 1956 whereas discussions in regard to Kahan Lewari - Ramwal between the Financial Commissioners preceded this. It was also mentioned that there are similar areas of Indian territory in the possession of Pakistan.

The Pakistan representatives pointed out that the Prime Ministers' Agreement of 1956 relates to exchange of possession after demarcation and not to status quo. Moreover, the dispute about Ramwal and Kahan Lewari is the removal of the objection of the Indian P.A.P. to the cultivation of "admittedly Pakistan territory" by Pakistan nationals.

2940. Record of the Proceedings of the dispute relating to Sulaimankie Head-works.

February 24, 1959.

In the light of the report of the Sub-Committee of the Engineers of both sides and the views of Indian Engineers given in para 5 of the report the Government of India's position is that, subject to the settlement of the dispute at Hussainiwala, the only adjustment to the District boundary awarded by Radcliffe at Sulaimankie that deserves consideration in view of the remarks in para 5 of Annexure 'A' is an adjustment with reference to the left upstream guide bund that falls in the Ferozepur District limits.

Pakistan's contention is that the entire Headworks has been awarded to Pakistan by Sir Cyril Radcliffe and that the District boundary should be adjusted so as to include in West Pakistan so much of the territory concerned as covers the Headworks as defined by the Pakistan Engineers in para 3 of the report of the Sub-Committee of Engineers, dated February, 23, 1959.

Report of the Sub-Committee on Hussainiwala Headworks Region.

Following the discussion at the India-Pakistan Secretaries’ Conference on the 23rd and 24th of February, 1959, a Sub-Committee was asked to examine the above subject with the following terms of reference:

“To define the position of the two Governments in regard to their respective stands in respect of the boundary at Hussainiwala Headworks Region as awarded by Radcliffe with reference to paragraph 9 to 12 of his Report.”

The following officers met for his purpose on the 24th February 1959, afternoon:-

India

1. Mr. E.N. Mangat Rai, ICS
   Chief Secretary, Punjab (India)
2. Mr. D.D. Jaini,
   Special Commissioner, Canal Waters, Government of India.
3. Mr. N.K. Mukarji, ICS,
   Secretary, Irrigation & Power, Punjab (India)
4. Mr. S.N. Ravikant,
   Superintending Engineer, Irrigation, Ferozepur, Punjab (India).

Pakistan

1. Mr. I.U.Khan, CSP,
   Member, Board of Revenue, West Pakistan
2. Mr. S.I. Mahbub,
   Chief Engineer, Irrigation, West Pakistan
3. Dr. M.S. Quraishy,
   Chief Engineer and Pakistan Irrigation Commissioner,
4. Mr. Z.A. Jafri,
   Superintending Engineer, Irrigation Commissioner,
5. Malik Khuda Bakhsh, PCS.,
   Secretary (Revenue), Board of Revenue, West Pakistan.
2. It was not possible to arrive at agreed conclusions in regard to the subject referred to the Sub-Committee. The points of view of the representatives of both Governments are, therefore, briefly recorded separately below.

3. The Indian representatives took the following view:

(1) The boundary in this region has been clearly and unambiguously defined by Sir Cyril Radcliffe, as the following references from his award show:

(a) At paragraph 7 of his Report Sir Cyril Radcliffe lays down the boundary for the West and East Punjab in the following clearly defined statement.

"...The demarcation of the boundary is described in detail in the schedule which forms Annexure A to this Award, and in the map attached thereto Annexure B. The map is annexed for purposes of illustration and if there should be any divergence between the boundary as described in Annexure A and as delineated on the map in Annexure B, the description in Annexure A is to prevail."

(b) At paragraph 9 of his Report after mentioning various difficulties he nevertheless against states "After weighing to the best of my ability such other factors as appear to me relevant as affecting the fundamental basis of contiguous majority areas, I have come to the decision set out in the Schedule which thus becomes the award of the Commission. I am conscious that there are legitimate criticisms to be made of it; as there are, I think of any other line that might be chosen."

(c) The relevant decision set out in the Schedule mentioned above is at para 4 of Annexure A of the Award which provides as follows:

"the line will then run in a south-westerly direction down the Sutlej River on the boundary between the districts of Lahore and Ferozepure, to the point where the districts of Ferozepure, Lahore and Montgomery meet....The district boundaries and not the actual course of the Sultej river, shall in each case constitute the boundary between the East and West Punjab."

(d) Nor in this case is there any difference between Annexure A, the description and Annexure B, the map attached to the Award, so that the difficulty of a divergence between the two, mentioned at para 7, quoted at (a) above, is not attracted.

(2) The contention of the Government of Pakistan that the boundary in the Hussainiwala Region has been left undermined by Sir Cyril Radcliffe based on the reference to the remarks in Para 10 of the Report to the effect "I find it difficult to envisage a satisfactory demarcation of boundary at this point that is not accompanied by some arrangement for joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on these headworks," is definitely incorrect. As a matter of fact, Radcliffe knew all these difficulties as he stated in paragraph 9 of his Report under which he gave his decision and his observations in subsequent Paragraphs 10, 11 and 12 do not, in any way, detract from the decision given as an Award. These observations in para 10, 11 and 12 are only meant for the consideration of the two sovereign and independent Governments;

(3) The district boundaries and not the actual course of the Sutlej River, being the international boundary in the Hussainiwala Headworks Region, the maintenance and control of these Headworks is entirely the responsibility of the Government of India and there is no case for any joint management in the terms suggested by the Government of Pakistan. Pakistan's proposal implies dual jurisdiction over the headworks which is not only opposed to normal and universal practice, but is also against what Radcliffe himself visualized as is also evident from para 8 of his Report.

(4) The Pakistan representatives have claimed joint control of the Headworks at Hussainiwala on the basis of the observations in para 10 of Sir Cyril Radcliffe's Report and claim that "the international boundary would be a line drawn from the centre of the Barrage or weir at right angles to it up to the point it intercepts the line joining the extreme boundaries of the Headworks above and below the Barrage." This claim is totally arbitrary, unwarranted and untenable and is a demand for modification of the boundary awarded by Sir Radcliffe in clear and final terms. The representatives of India must express their surprise to this demand for modification of an Award solemnly accepted by both the Governments of India and Pakistan. A demand of this nature put forth nearly twelve years after the Award was made, and accepted by both the Government, cannot be entertained. The fact that the Award had been accepted by both the Governments and there was no dispute regarding the boundary in this region, is clear from paragraph 4 of letter No. 62(6)P/50-3101 dated the 27th October, 1950, from the High Commissioner for Pakistan*, New Delhi, to the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India.

(5) According to India, the observations made by Sir Cyril Radcliffe at para 10 quoted above and in para 11 and 12 point out difficulties and make suggestions regarding political arrangements between the two Independent Governments in regard to them. Such arrangements must depend on the needs and circumstances of the situation and the general arrangements made between the two Governments in regard to various mutual problems. The Indian representatives also point out that in spite of very grave difficulties and pressure from Pakistan in this area during the last almost ten years, the views of the Pakistan Government and their needs have been given the highest priority in regulating supplies at the headworks. This has been done in various ways including the services performed by the two irrigation commissioners, the supply of data, in some matters daily, etc. Such arrangements, however, have nothing to do with the decision regarding the international boundary line, which has been firmly and clearly laid down by Sir Cyril Radcliffe as the district boundary and not the actual course of the Sutlej River.

Pakistan's case is that Sir Cyril Radcliffe did not determine the boundary at Hussainiwala Headworks. In fact, he found it difficult to envisage a satisfactory demarcation of the boundary at this point that was not accompanied by some arrangement for joint control of the intake of different canals dependent on these headworks. The description of the boundary between Punjab (Pak) and Punjab (India) is given in Annexure A and this description is to prevail unless there is a special mention about any portion of the boundary in the body of the Report. The concluding portion of Para 10 of the Report which is relevant to the case runs as follows:

"But I must call attention to the fact that the Dipalpur Canal, which serves areas in the West Punjab, takes off from the Ferozepore Headworks and I find it difficult to envisage a satisfactory demarcation of boundary at this point that is not accompanied by some arrangement for joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on these headworks."

There is, thus, a special mention of the area comprising Hussainiwala (Ferozepur) Headworks in Sir Cyril Radcliffe's Report, and the qualifying clause mentioned above clearly shows that the boundary line at the Ferozepur Headworks was not determined by Sir Cyril Radcliffe. To that extent, therefore, the description given in Annexure A stands modified.

In the absence of any boundary in this region, the demarcation cannot be taken in hand unless there is an agreement about joint control. The first step would, therefore, be to arrive at an arrangement regarding effective joint control; and, the second, the demarcation of the boundary in what is now the disputed area at Hussainiwala. this disputed area has been excluded from demarcation operations.

Before giving a proposal for joint control, it is necessary to determine the exact import of the word 'control'. The Oxford Dictionary (Vol.II C) 1933 Edition defines it as below:

"To exercise restraint or direction upon the free action of: to hold sway over, exercise power or authority for: to dominate, command."
Another important factor in this respect is the fact that, apart from the Dipalpur Canal, there are other canals dependent on the Hussainiwala (Ferozepore) Headworks and it is essential that the control should be such as will ensure proper supplies to all these canals.

In regard to Pakistan's concept of joint control, the Foreign Secretary, Pakistan, has already handed over to the Commonwealth Secretary, India, a note which is reproduced below:

"The joint control of a Headworks by two countries for purposes of its proper maintenance and operation, or for the regulation of supplies in the river, and off-taking canals means physical control of the Headworks by both parties.

Accordingly, the international boundary would be a line drawn from the centre of the barrage or weir and at right angles to it up to the point it intercepts the lines joining the extreme boundaries of the Headworks above and below the barrage.

(a) Each side will regulate the intake of supplies of its off-taking canals. To ensure withdrawal of proper share by each side, discharge data of off-takes will be exchanged daily, and if necessary, even frequent inspections of the gauges on the other side will be carried out on reciprocal basis.

(b) Daily discharge observation of the river upstream and downstream of the barrage or weir shall be carried out jointly by the discharge observers of the two sides. In case the river has more than one channel, the country in whose territorial control the river creek under observation lies will provide the guard.

(c) Annual river survey for the conventional distances upstream and downstream of the barrage or weir will be carried out jointly by mixed parties of the two countries, so that each side is fully conversant with the over-all river behaviour for the joint planning of river control, and training works considered necessary for the safety of the Headworks. Alternatively, the Engineers of the two sides may mutually decide to carry out the river survey on their respective sides with their own staff independently, but keeping an observer only from the other side. They may subsequently evolve some other practical arrangement for this important item so as to ensure that each side has the knowledge of the river behaviour in entire Headworks boundaries, the river for such purposes being considered as one unit. Execution of the works planned jointly will be done by the country in whose territorial control it happens to be situated subject to the condition that the Engineers of the other country will have the facilities to inspect the work as constructed to ensure that it is in accordance with the joint planning."
Pakistan representatives were surprised at the assertion made by the Indian representatives that it was for the first time after nearly twelve years that Pakistan was now making a demand of this nature. Pakistan's stand has throughout been that on this point no boundary has been determined, and it was not, therefore, possible for any country to say which portion of the Headworks, or the area lying there under, belongs to it. Pakistan's claim that joint control would involve territorial adjustment has been known to the Government of India for the last five years. In this connection, attention is invited to Paragraph III(5) of Part V of the joint note of the Financial Commissioner of the two Punjabs relating to Gatti No.9(Kamalewala), where Pakistan's view-point was expressed in the following words :-

"It is possible that the final demarcation of the boundary here may not follow the old tahsil boundaries given in Annexure 'A' to the Report as the two countries may have to make some adjustments to facilitate the execution of joint control."

The representatives of the two countries on the Sub-Committee, which was appointed in September 1958, to examine various disputes relating to West Pakistan - India border, also decided to include the dispute at Hussainiwala (Ferozepore) Headworks as a dispute relating to title involving the interpretation of the Radcliffe Award. The representatives of the Government of India then expressed their willingness to recommend to their Government the setting up of joint arrangement regarding the intake of water into Dipalpur canal, where it enters Pakistan, although the representatives of the Government of Pakistan did not consider that such arrangements could provide any control. It was in pursuance of further discussions in the same connection that the Prime Ministers of the two countries desired that the Foreign Secretary, Pakistan, and the Commonwealth Secretary, should submit necessary proposals in consultation with their Engineers.

The arrangement referred to by the Indian representatives such as exchange of data between the two countries through the Irrigation Commissioners does not amount to an "arrangement for joint control of the intake of the different canals dependent on these Headworks" as envisaged in Para 10 of the Report of Sir Cyril Radcliffe. The appointment of the Special Commissioner for Canal Waters by the Government of India was made to discharge their obligations voluntarily assumed under President Black's letter of March 13, 1952. Pakistan later created a similar post. Subsequently, these posts have been maintained by the two countries to implement provisions of the ad hoc agreements concluded between the two countries under the aegis of the World Bank without effecting their respective legal rights and claims. Under these agreements, data has been exchanged not only for the canals taking off at Ferozepore but at numerous other Headworks. Pakistan's representatives, therefore, failed to appreciate the untenable suggestions made by Indian representatives that this exchange of data amounted to such joint control as was envisaged by Sir Cyril Radcliffe. As a matter of fact, no attempt has yet been made for any joint control, and if it is considered that better relations should prevail between the two countries, such an arrangement is absolutely essential.

India's representatives have made a reference to paragraph 4 of the Pakistan High Commissioner's letter No.F.62(6)(P)/50/3101 dated the 27th October 1950. Pakistan's case in respect of Hussainiwala Headworks had been made abundantly clear in Para III(5) of Part V of the joint note recorded by the Financial Commissioners of the two Punjabs with regard to the dispute relating to Gatti No.9 (Kamalewala). As a matter of fact, during all these five years when discussions have been going on in respect of Gatti No.9 and Hussainiwala Headworks, this letter was never quoted, and the Pakistan's representatives were, therefore, quite justified in presuming that the Indian Government had realised that no useful purpose could be served by referring to it. In any case, Paragraph 4 of this letter is to be read with Paragraph 5 of the same communication. Since Annexure 'A' read with Paragraph 10 of the main report provided joint control of Hussainiwala Headworks as distinct from exclusive control by Pakistan at Sulemanki Headworks, in which context this matter was mentioned, the Government of Pakistan could not anticipate that the Government of India would, at the time of the actual demarcation of the boundary line, take a different view.

For making arrangements for the joint control and the demarcation of the boundary at Hussainiwala (Ferozepore) Headworks, it is only the concluding portion of Para 10 of the Report of Sir Cyril Radcliffe which has to be referred to. Any attempt to bring in other Paragraphs merely confuses the issue and does not help in arriving at a solution of this question.

The leaders of the Indian and Pakistan delegation endorse the above report subject to the comment by the Leader of the Indian delegation, "That para 4 of Pakistan High Commission's letter No.F.62(6)(P)/50/3101 dated 27th October, 1950* was brought to the notice of the Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations in the Indian High Commission's letter No.F.80(7)/55-Genl dated 19th October, 1956."

and the comments of the Leader of Pakistan delegation on the observation made by the Leader of Indian delegation that:

"What was said in the Pakistan High Commission's letter No.F.62(6)(P)/50/3101 dated 27th October 1950, was based on the assumption that at the time there was no dispute of that particular nature relating to the boundary in that particular area."

2942. Joint Communiqué issued at the end of talks on the border disputes in the Western region.

At the meeting between the two Prime Ministers of Pakistan and India held in New Delhi from the 9th to the 11th September, 1958, it was decided that, in regard to Hussainiwala and Suleimanke disputes, the Foreign Secretary of the Government of Pakistan and the Commonwealth Secretary of the Government of India, will, in consultation with their engineers, submit proposals to the Prime Ministers.

In accordance with this decision, a further Conference on Indo-Pakistan border problems was held at Karachi from the 23rd to the 25th February, 1959. The Delegations were led respectively by Mr. M.S.A. Baig, Foreign Secretary, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations (Pakistan) and Shri M.J. Desai, Commonwealth Secretary of the Ministry of External Affairs (India). Prior to their meeting, the leaders of the two Delegations had visited the sites of the disputes.

The discussions, which were frank and friendly, resulted in a free exchange of views regarding the respective positions of the two Delegations on these disputes. The two Secretaries will now report to their respective Governments.

2943. Notes Exchanged between the Leaders of the Indian and Pakistan delegations on the SULEIMANKI HEADWORKS.

Note presented by Leader of Pakistan Delegation to the Leader of the Indian Delegation Swaran Singh on January 7, 1960.

In Annexure A*, after giving the description of the boundary between Pakistan and India along the River Sutlej in paragraph 4, the following special rider has been added with reference to that portion of the territory which lies under Suleimanki Headworks in paragraph 5:-

"It is my intention that this boundary line should assure that the canal Headworks at Soleimanki will fall within the territorial jurisdiction of the West Punjab. If the existing delimitation of the boundaries of Montgomery District does not ensure this, I award to West Punjab so much of the territory concerned as covers the Headworks, and the boundary shall be adjusted accordingly."

The boundary has therefore to be placed in such a manner as to ensure that no part of the "Headworks" lies outside the territory of Pakistan.

Radcliffe evidently was conscious of the fact that "Headwork's" was something more than the weir. It seems that on the material available to him, he was not in a position to decide how much more. He therefore left it to be determined by experts.

The purpose of the "Headworks" is to make it possible for the canals to take off from a river. All the works that are necessary for this purpose i.e., all those engineering devices and constructions without which this purpose would not be fulfilled and in the absence of any of which this purpose will be defeated, would thus form part of a "Headworks". These engineering devices may be different in different cases. These constructions may be different in different places depending upon the need. At one place nature itself may provide some features which are essential for the fulfillment of the purpose in view. At another place man may have to make up what nature has not provided. No comprehensive definition, therefore, of the kind of works that are necessary for the effective operation of a "Headworks" can be given and none indeed has been attempted by any of the experts. In a very early authority on irrigation under the title "the irrigation Works of India," the learned author R.B. Buckley has said this about Headworks:

* Radcliffe Award

"These include the weir across the river, the under sluices in the weir, the head sluices of the canal and if the canal is to be navigable the head lock from the river to the canal........The height of the weir above the bed of the river should next be determined ..........Then the affect of weirs of various heights on the flood levels of the rivers should be worked out........and hence the afflux of height by which the flood will be increased by the weir (should be ascertained). This point is of extreme importance as it defines the necessity for constructing embankments to control the river above the weir. If the afflux is great the country above the weir may be inundated and there may be a danger of the flank of the weir being turned by the river. In light sandy soils this might result in the river cutting another course for itself and leaving the weir at a distance from the new channel of the river."

(1906 edition, pages 107-108)

In another authoritative work under the title of "College of Engineering Manual - Irrigation" by the learned author M.W. Alice, when describing the component parts of the Headworks gives the following list:-

(a) A weir across the river of sufficient height to maintain a water level above the works suitable for the supply of the canal system, i.e. a level which will give command of the area to be irrigated and which will give sufficient depth of flow for the canal to carry the required supply.

(b) *

(c) *

(d) *

(e) Flood banks or other protective works sufficient to secure the weir from being outflanked by floods in the river.

(1931 edition, page 81)

The learned author further describes in a little more detail the kind of need that might make the construction of flood bank indispensable. He explains, "the effect of building a sound weir blocking a portion of the waterway of the river is to raise the high flood levels above the work and it is necessary when designing a weir to compute the height of the maximum flood level. If the natural level of the country to which the bank connections of the weir on either side of the river are joined are not at such a height above flood level as to prevent any spill passing from the upstream to the downstream side of the weirs round the flanks of the works it is necessary to prevent this by flood banks connecting the weir flanks with high ground ......................... A spill round the flanks of a weir generally entails serious risk of a deep channel being cut round the flank through which all or a large part of the river flow may be diverted.

This is one of the causes of failure of weirs and instances of weirs being out flanked by omission to properly maintain the protective bunds are by no means uncommon. The adequacy and proper maintenance of such banks is a matter to be specially attended to as breaches in these are likely to entail serious failures..........

In the Roorkee's authority on civil engineering "Irrigation Works in India," the learned author J. Clibbon when dealing with works has put in a chart under the title "Classification of Canal Works." "Marginal Bunds" appear under the sub-heading "Training Works" under the main heading "Headworks."

In another work on "Irrigation Engineering" the learned author K.R. Sharma when describing the components of Headworks has listed river control works as item No.(6) in his list.

The notification by which land for the construction of marginal bunds was acquired, are worded as follows:

"Whereas it appears to the Governor of the Punjab that land is required by Government for a public purposes, namely, for Headworks at Suleimanki, Ferozepore District, it is hereby declared that the under-mentioned Land is acquired for the said purpose."

"Whereas it appears to the Governor in Council that land is required by Government for a public purpose, namely, for Suleimanki Headworks upstream Left Marginal Bund, it is hereby declared that the under mentioned land is acquired for the said purpose."
Pakistan is interested only in the effective operation of the canal system taking off from Suleimani Headworks. Since Pakistan is the only beneficiary of these canals, Sir, Cyril Radcliffe expressed his unequivocal intention that the territory under the Headworks which is necessary to enable Pakistan to maintain control and operate the Headworks, should go to Pakistan. The determination of the boundary at this point is dependent upon how much territory is needed for the effective control of these works. On the 19th of December 1947, two Chief Engineers from India and two Chief Engineers from Pakistan sat down to consider this point. The agreed conclusion was expressed in recorded minutes signed by all, in the following words:

"Both sides agree that in the interest of safety and maintenance of the Headworks, it is essential that the marginal bunds should be under the authority responsible for the maintenance and control of the weir, Head Regulator of canals and the distribution of supplies."

The 4 Engineers were, however, not agreed about the entirety of Radcliffe Award and therefore, put in a recommendation that certain other things be done in order that the party responsible for managing and controlling the weir should be enabled to look after the marginal bunds as well.

Some time about the year 1941 the river attacked the left marginal bund and made a breach affecting some 4 miles of the uppermost reach of the Left Marginal Bund. It then became necessary to retire the Left Marginal Bund by a further area. The first notification in this connection is notification No. 4582-S.W./1151/38, dated 12th August, 1941, published in the Punjab Gazette of 22nd August 1941 which runs as follows:

"Whereas.........................land is required................................................ for retiring Left Marginal Bund at the Suleimanki Head from R.D. 19,520 to R.D. 37,135 and from R.D. 42,385 to RD 49,316, it is hereby declared that the land described in the specifications below is acquired for the above purpose."

Again in the year 1946 the river seems to have made further assault and it became necessary to retire the Left Marginal Bund still further. The relevant notification is No. 8723-S/97/36, dated 17th January 1947, published in the Punjab Gazette of 24th January which is as follows:

"Whereas.........................., land is required for retiring Left Marginal Bund from R.D. 48,500 to R.D. 69,320 along Moazim Minor and Link from R.D. 69320 to RD 5,410 up to Left Marginal Bund and from R.D. 5,500 to R.D. 6,100 between Left Marginal Bund and new Hasta Bund, it is hereby declared that the land in the locality described below is likely to be acquired for the above purpose."
It seems that when the Left Marginal Bund in this portion was retired to the right bank of a canal which now serves some territory in India was utilised as the embankment. It, therefore, came to serve two purposes. Irrespective of its second purpose, it continues to be the Left Marginal Bund of the Suleimanki Headworks. If at any time India has no further need for the canal and chooses not to maintain this embankment intact, effective operation of Suleimanki Headworks would be prevented.

The conclusion, therefore is -

(i) That Headworks must include all the engineering devices, constructions and structures without which the purpose of the Headworks would be defeated. Each one of them would be an integral part of Headworks.

(ii) In the case of Suleimanki the Project Report and the Completion Report show that the Marginal Bunds were found to be necessary with regard to the nature of the terrain.

(iii) The acquisition of these areas was expressly made for the purpose of the Headworks.

(iv) In order to operate them today control of the marginal bunds is essential. This was conceded by the Chief Engineers of East Punjab in 1947.

(v) That the breach which was first caused in 1941 and later on in 1947 has been compensated for by retiring the marginal bund to another place. The embankment which exists today although serves two purposes, irrespective of the purpose which is in fulfilment of a need of India, it serves as indispensable need of Pakistan.

(vi) That without any portion of the existing Marginal Bund, Suleimanki Headworks would be rendered less effective or ineffective.

_reply_to_the_note_of_the_leader_of_Pakistan_Delelegation_of_7.1.60_Given_by_the_Indian_Leader_on_9.1.60_

It is agreed that the boundary at Suleimanke Headworks should be demarcated in accordance with para 5 of Sir Cyril Radcliffe’s Award reproduced below:-

"5. It is my intention that this boundary line should ensure that the canal headworks at Suleimanke will fall within the territorial jurisdiction of the West Punjab. If the existing delimitation of the boundaries of Montgomery District does not ensure this, I award to the West Punjab so much of the territory concerned as covers the headworks, and the boundary shall be adjusted accordingly."

2. In the paper handed over by the Leader of the Pakistan Delegation, Lieut. General K.M. Shaikh, Minister for the Interior, Government of Pakistan, to the Leader of the Indian Delegation, Sardar Swaran Singh, Minister for Steel, Mines and Fuel, Government of India, it has been stated that "No Comprehensive definition, therefore, of the kind of works that are necessary for the effective operation of a "Head work" can be given and none indeed has been attempted by any of the experts", and yet the matter has been argued on the basis of definitions from various authorities. Our engineers have given another series of definitions (Annexure) from experts and this approach is not likely to result in settlement of the dispute to the mutual satisfaction of the Governments of India and Pakistan.

3. Another approach to arrive at a settlement would be to consider how the position, that has existed on the ground at Suleimanke during the past 12 years since partition has worked. It cannot be denied by either side that the existing de facto position has led to no operational difficulties and that the Suleimanke Headworks which, under the existing de facto position, are entirely in the control of Pakistan, have functioned satisfactorily. This approach would mean the confirmation of the status quo position and demarcation of the boundary accordingly.

4. One of the definitions, quoted in the paper handed over to the Minister, states: "If the afflux is great the country above and weir may be inundated and there may be danger of the flank of the weir being turned by the river." This clearly points out the sequence of the essentiality of the marginal bunds. The maintenance of these bunds to technically requisite specifications is essential for the prevention of inundation of the country above the weir. Incidentally, such effective maintenance also prevents the danger of the flank of the weir being turned by the river. The maintenance of the marginal bund to the required specifications should, therefore, be the responsibility of the Government in control of the country above the weir which is likely to be inundated by ineffective maintenance of the marginal bund. Both Governments should co-operate in securing their respective objectives so far as the marginal bund is concerned, but the Radcliffe Award, which merely refers to the headworks, does not require any territorial adjustment in respect of the marginal bunds. This is also confirmed by the various notifications cited in the paper handed over to the Minister. The land, acquired under notification No.O-3724/CI, dated the 6th October, 1922, was declared to be required for a public purpose, namely, for Headworks at Suleimanke, Ferozepore District, whereas in the marginally noted notifications* for the acquisition of the strip of land in respect of the left marginal bund, it has been specifically stated that the land is required for a public purpose, namely, for Left Marginal Bund or for retiring Left Marginal Bund etc.
5. The reference made in the paper handed over to Minister to the report of the two Chief Engineers from India and two Chief Engineers from Pakistan, dated 19th December, 1947, is not relevant for the interpretation of Sir Cyril Radcliffe's Award in the Suleimanke region, as para 1 of this report starts off on the basis of modification of the boundary at both Headworks namely, those at Ferozepore and Suleimanke. The report would be relevant if the boundary awarded by Sir Cyril Radcliffe in the region of both these Headworks was being modified by the Governments of India and Pakistan.

6. Adherence to the strict terms of the Radcliffe Award would not give to Pakistan control over the head reaches of the Fordwah and Sadiqia Canals. This has been admitted by the Pakistan Chief Engineer himself. It is better in the interest of both countries not to follow the Radcliffe Award too rigidly but to treat the problem as a practical one. If this approach is followed, a portion of the area acquired by the then Government of India in the immediate vicinity of the headworks for the headworks at Suleimanke under Notification No.O-3724/CI, dated 6th October, 1922, could be made available to the Government of Pakistan under settlement of this dispute.

7. This broad approach given in para 6 above is the only satisfactory way of settling the dispute to mutual satisfaction. It also gives a very generous interpretation of Sir Cyril Radcliffe's intention. As both the Governments of India and Pakistan are aware, Sir Cyril Radcliffe dealt with the question of the difficulties likely to be created in the running of the canal systems and also made small adjustments of the Lahore-Amritsar District boundary to mitigate some of the consequence of this severance by awarding the boundary in meticulous details village by village in parts of the Lahore-Amritsar District boundary and he could never have intended that several square miles of territory should be transferred from the Ferozepore District to the Montgomery District under para 5 of his Award. If any substantial area had to be transferred, he would naturally have gone into greater detail over the matter.

JOINT COMMUNIQUE

In pursuance of the decision taken at the India-Pakistan Minister-level Conference in October, 1959, where a number of East Pakistan-India border questions were amicably settled, a Minister-level Conference was held at Lahore, Rawalpindi and Delhi from 4th to 11th January, 1960, to discuss West Pakistan-India border questions. The Pakistan Delegation was led by Lt. General K.M. Shaikh and the Indian Delegation by Sardar Swaran Singh.

There were in all five areas of dispute in this region viz. (1) Chak Ladheke (2) Theh Sarja Marja (3) Hussainiwala and (4) Suleimanke Headworks (5) Kutch-Sind Border. Of these, the first four disputes arose out of differences between the Governments of India and Pakistan regarding interpretation of the Radcliffe Award. These were settled in a spirit of mutual accommodation as detailed in para 3 below.

Pakistan gave up their claim to Chak Ladheke and India gave up their claim to the three villages of Theh Sarja Marja, Rakh Hardit Singh and Pathanke. In respect of Hussainiwala Headworks it was decided that the boundary would be the district boundary between Ferozepur and Lahore Districts. A settlement was also effected in respect of Suleimanke Headworks and an agreement about the adjustment in the district boundary was arrived at.

Both countries agreed to collect further data in respect of the dispute regarding the Kutch-Sind boundary and discussions will be held later with a view to arriving at a settlement of this dispute.

Agreement was also reached in respect of the Ground Rules which would be operative on the West Pakistan-India border.

So far as the demarcation of the boundary between West Pakistan and Punjab (India) was concerned, it was decided that top priority should be given to this work which should be completed by the end of April, 1960. It was agreed that the return of the areas in adverse possession of either country in this sector will be completed by the 15th October, 1960.

With the settlement of a large number of border questions both on East Pakistan-India and West Pakistan-India borders, yet another step has been taken by the two Governments for bringing about better and amicable neighbourly relations which the two leaders, the President of Pakistan and the Prime Minister of India, had welcomed in their meeting on 1st September, 1959.

2945. Agreement between Governments of India and Pakistan regarding procedures to end disputes and incidents along the Indo-West Pakistan Border Areas.

New Delhi, 11 January 1960

1. West Pakistan - Punjab border - Of the total of 325 miles of the border in this sector, demarcation has been completed along about 252 miles. About 73 miles of the border has not yet, been demarcated due to differences between the Governments of India and Pakistan regarding interpretation of the decision and Award of the Punjab Boundary Commission presented by Sir Cyril Radcliffe as Chairman of the Commission. These differences have been settled along the lines given below in a spirit of accommodation

(i) The Sarja Marja, Rakh Hardit Singh and Pathanke (Amritsar-Lahore border) The Governments of India and Pakistan agree that the boundary between West Pakistan and India in this region should follow the boundary between the Tehsils of Lahore and Kasur as laid down under Punjab Government Notification No. 2183-E, dated 2nd June 1939. These three villages will in consequence fall within the territorial jurisdiction of the Government of Pakistan.

(ii) Chak Ladheke (Amritsar-Lahore border) The Governments of India and Pakistan agree that the delineation of the boundary will be as shown in the map of the Kasur Tehsil by Sir Cyril Radcliffe and Chak Ladheke will in consequence fall within the territorial jurisdiction of the Government of India.

(iii) Ferozepur (Lahore-Ferozepore border) The Governments of India and Pakistan agree that the West Pakistan Punjab (India) boundary in this region is along the district boundaries of these districts and not along the actual course of the river Sutlej.

iv) Suleimanke, (Ferozepur-Montgomery border) The Governments of India and Pakistan agree to adjust the district boundaries in this region as specified in the attached schedule and as shown in the map appended thereto as Annexure-I.

2. West Pakistan-Bombay border Exploratory discussions regarding the boundary dispute in the Kutch-Sind region showed that the differences between the Governments of India and Pakistan could not be settled. Both Governments have decided to study the relevant material and hold discussions later with a view to arriving at a settlement of this dispute.

3. Detailed Ground Rules for the guidance of the Border Security forces along the Indo-West Pakistan frontier, prepared as a result of the deliberations of the Conference (Annexure II) will be put into force by both sides immediately. These Rules will be reviewed and brought up-to-date after the boundary has been finally demarcated and the return of areas in adverse possession of either country has been effected in the West Pakistan-Punjab (India) sector. Similar action will be taken in respect of the other two sectors in due course.

4. The Governments of India and Pakistan agree to give top priority to completion of demarcation along the West Pakistan-Punjab (India) sector in accordance with the settlements arrived at during this conference. Both Governments will direct their Surveyors General to complete the demarcation and the fixing of pillars in this sector by the end of April, 1960. Return of areas held in adverse possession by either country in this sector will be completed by 15th October, 1960. Necessary preparatory work to this end should be undertaken immediately by all concerned.

SCHEDULE: REFERRED TO IN PARA 1 (iv)

1. The boundary between Pakistan and India in the vicinity of Suleimanke headworks will be along the line marked ABC D E F G H I J K L M in the map at Annexure 1. The points A and M represent the junction of this section of the boundary with the boundary between Ferozepur and Montgomery districts. The portion ABC D E F will follow the boundary of the original area acquired for the Suleimanke Headworks subject to the modification in respect of the reach D to F as specified in para 2. From F to G it will follow the alignment of the existing Left Marginal Bund. From G to H it will follow the dotted straight line shown in the map as closely as practicable subject to such adjustments in alignment at site as may be required from technical considerations to be decided mutually after carrying out necessary surveys. From H to K viz. RD 47,500, the boundary will follow the alignment of the existing marginal bund. From K to L it will follow the alignment of the existing new Hasta bund. From L it will run in a straight line to the apex point of the bulge in the district boundary, as shown on the map.

2. The boundary will run at a distance of 50 feet from the outer toe of the existing Left Marginal Bund in all the reaches where the boundary as defined in para 1 above runs along it, i.e. from D to G and from H to K. In the reach from G to H it would similarly be placed 50 feet from the outer toe of the proposed bund. In the reach K to L, the boundary will run at a distance of 100 feet from the eastern toe of the existing new Hasta bund.

3. The two parties recognise that they have common and mutual interest in the proper upkeep and maintenance of the Left Marginal Bund at Suleimanke, and to that end, they declare their intention to co-operate by mutual agreement to the fullest possible extent. In particular,

(1) Each party will maintain in its territory according to the following specifications the portion of the Left Marginal Bund that will lie in Pakistan or continue to be in India.

   (i) Top width - 25 feet
   (ii) Side slope on the River side - 3 to 1
   (iii) Outer slope - 2 to 1
   (iv) Free Board above the highest flood level on record as on 10-1-1960 –5 feet minimum

(2) Each party will carry out annual river survey in its own territory upto the conventional distance upstream of the Barrage at Suleimanke, and exchange it with the other party.
(3) The representatives of either party will be allowed to inspect the Left Marginal Bund in the territory of the other party at regular intervals that may be mutually fixed or at any time when either party makes a special request. Such inspections will be made jointly by the representatives of both parties, and each party will afford all necessary facilities to the other party.

ANNEXURE -II

GROUND RULES FOR BORDER GUARDS

In pursuance of the directive given to the sub-committee these ground rules were formulated by Lt. Gen. P.N. Thapar, GOC-in-C, Western Command (India) and Lt. Gen. Bakhtiar Rana, SQA, MC Corps, Commander, Pakistan. In their deliberations they were assisted from the Pakistan side by Brig. Said-ud-Din, Director-General, West Pakistan Rangers, Brig. Tikka Khan and Mr. M.S. Koreishi, PFS, Under Secretary, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and on the Indian side by Shri Bhagwan Singh Rosha, IPS, DIG, PAP., Brig. Gurbakhsh Singh, Shri Govardhan, IPS, IG. Rajasthan, Shri V.G. Kanetkar, IP., DIG., Bombay and Shri M.M. Sen, I.C.S., Deputy Secretary, Ministry of Defence. The ground rules formulated in this paper are applicable to the West Pakistan-Punjab (India), West Pakistan-Rajasthan and West Pakistan-Bombay border.

On this border the security forces of both the countries are located at some places in close proximity to each other, and to avoid any untoward incident and resulting tension, it is necessary that pending the determination of the final boundary and the exchange of the territories, in adverse possession of the two Governments, the security forces of the two respective countries should observe the ground rules as laid down hereinafter.

On this frontier the de facto boundary is generally known to the security forces of both sides and the local population. In case of disputes arising in any sector, regarding the de facto boundary the status quo will be maintained by the local post commanders and a working boundary in the areas under dispute, should be decided upon by the officers mentioned in paragraph 4 below and jointly recorded in a descriptive manner and clearly identified on the ground.

This working boundary will be decided upon by the undermentioned assisted by appropriate Civil Officers:

(i) West Pakistan/Punjab (I) Border between the Director-General, West Pakistan Rangers/rep. and the D.I.G., P.A.P, Punjab (India)/rep.

(ii) West Pakistan/Rajasthan Border between the Director-General, West Pakistan Rangers/rep. and D.I.G., RAC/rep.

(iii) West Pakistan/Bombay Border between the Director-General, West Pakistan Rangers/rep. DIG., (HQ)/rep.

The de facto boundary may or may not coincide with the de jure international boundary and the observance of the de facto boundary by both sides will not commit the two Governments in any manner in respect of their de jure claim.

Neither side will have any permanent or temporary border security forces or any other armed personnel within 150 yards on either side of this de facto boundary and no picket forward posts or observation posts will be established within this area.

Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph 6 above, both sides may

(a) go right up to the de facto boundary in hot pursuit of an offender;

(b) send patrols within the zone specified above upto the de facto boundary, provided:

(i) each side will inform the other about the actual patrol beat or any changes thereto if it falls within 50 yards of the boundary

(ii) patrols are small in numbers, i.e. not exceeding a section of one and ten;

(iii) patrols invariably move with flags; and

(iv) only personal weapons are carried by the patrols (no L.M.Gs. will be carried);

(c) retain such pickets, forward posts and observation posts as are already established until the de jure boundary is finalised and return of territories under adverse possession takes place. A list of such posts on both sides will be exchanged by 1-2-60. New posts within the 150 yards belt on either side will only be established by mutual agreement.
Defensive works existing within 150 yards on either side of the de facto working boundary not included in the list mentioned in para 7(c) above must be destroyed or filled up by 15-3-1960 and reports to this effect will be exchanged by both sides.

Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph 6 to 8 above, in areas regarding which disputes of title are already pending with the respective Governments for a decision, the status quo inclusive of defence and security measures will be strictly maintained until such time as the de jure boundary is finalised and the return of territories in adverse possession of the two countries takes place.

It will be the duty of the border security forces on either side to prevent armed civilians entering the 300 yards stretch of the border (150 yards on either side of the working boundary).

Border security forces of both sides are charged with the responsibility of preventing smuggling in their respective areas. Therefore, it is incumbent upon them to arrest smugglers of any nationality, whether armed or unarmed, and to deal with them under the law of the land.

In the case of local population, inadvertent crossings are likely to take place alongwith border. The border security forces, after satisfying themselves that the crossing was done inadvertently, shall immediately return the persons concerned to the opposite commanders at officers level.

Whenever the personnel of the border forces of either country inadvertently stray across the border line information about it should be immediately conveyed to the nearest post of the other side and the personnel must be handed back without delay to their nearest post along with their arms and ammunition etc. if any, through Gazetted Officers/Upper Subordinates of both sides.

Bona fide governmental bodies e.g. survey parties, etc., whilst operating in the border area shall not be interfered with. The programme of such parties will be notified to both sides by the Government concerned–at least a month ahead. Such parties will report to the nearest post of their own country before starting the work.

Whenever any cattle are alleged to have been lifted across the border a report, to be lodged with the opposite border post commander to whom the details such as the tracks of the cattle and of the criminals involved will be handed over. The Border Post Commanders concerned will acknowledge receipt of the report and then inform the nearest Police Station in their own country who will make all efforts to recover the cattle. After recovery the cattle must be handed back immediately to the Police Officers on the opposite side.
Grazing of unattended cattle on the border shall be discouraged. In the case of stray cattle these will be returned immediately by the Border Post Commanders to their opposite numbers after having satisfied themselves that the cattle have in actual fact strayed from across the border.

The S.Ps of Border Districts will also attend where necessary the monthly border meetings for the purpose of exchange of cattle and discussing border crimes.

The duties of the Sub-centres/Wing Commanders/S.Ps and lower Commanders in their respective areas of responsibility shall be as under:

(a) They will maintain close liaison with their opposite numbers.

(b) They will, by frequent visits, make themselves known to the Border Security Forces of the opposite side.

(c) They will receive all complaints regarding border violation/tension. They will immediately hold a joint enquiry not later than 24 hours of the information report. Where this is not possible due to long distances and difficulties of communications, the joint enquiry should be held as soon as possible.

(d) Where two border posts are situated in close proximity to each other and it is possible for them to communicate by flags, any commander who wishes to meet his counterpart, will wave a flag of the specifications given in paragraph 23 below and will proceed to the border unarmed without any escort to a pre-arranged place. The opposite commander or the senior officer on seeing the flag, will acknowledge the signal and proceed to the place of meeting also with a flag unarmed and without escort. The use of flags shall be introduced by 15-2-1960.

Where the posts are separated by a long distance, contact will be established in the following manner:

A party consisting of 1 and 6 armed with their personal weapons for their own protection and carrying the appropriate flag will proceed to the post of the other side. On arrival within 300 yards of this post, they will establish a temporary base and send forward two men unarmed with the appropriate flags to make necessary contact.

(e) Nationals of both the countries, while cultivating land up to the de facto boundary of the country concerned shall not be interfered with by the border security forces of the other side.

(f) If a national of one country lays a fresh claim to land across the de facto border and takes any step in furtherance of that claim which is objected to by the other side, the two commanders will hold a joint enquiry on the spot and restrain the person from enforcing his claim until the matter is settled.

Where, due to the change in the course of a river, territory of one country is thrown on the other side, such change will NOT affect either the de jure or de facto position of the territory.

It is felt that the tension on the borders will be greatly minimised if there is close personal touch between commanders of the two border security forces and therefore the following periodic meetings are recommended:

(a) Wing ComdRs Rangers (Pak)/
S.Ps of PAP/RAC (India)
Special Reserve Police,
Bombay, (India).

(b) Officers mentioned in para 4 above or their representatives shall also meet. These officers will be authorised by their respective Governments to settle the disputes on the spot as far as possible.

The military commanders shall also meet as and when the situation demands and whenever they consider it necessary.

If unfortunately, in spite of this, firing occurs, the other side shall refrain from replying. The local commanders will get in touch with each other by telephone and will meet with a view to bringing about a cease-fire forthwith. After every firing incident, it is necessary for both sides to carry out a joint investigation, fix responsibility and submit their respective reports for information of their higher authorities.

In order to maintain close liaison between the border forces of the two countries, it is essential that adequate telephone and other communications are provided at various levels.

All pickets and patrols on both sides will have flags of the following description:

<table>

<tr>
<th>Pickets</th>
<th>Patrois</th>

At night flags will be substituted by light signals (two red/verey lights) or signal by torches as mutually arranged between the post commanders.

Whenever there is a joint enquiry by D.Cs. or Commissioners on the two sides, the respective commanders of security forces of these areas shall also attend the meeting and submit for the information of the respective higher commanders their assessment of the situation created by the particular incident.

Finally, we recommend

(a) that the press on both sides should be persuaded to exercise restraint and not to publish exaggerated reports or material which is likely to inflame the feelings of the population on both sides. Should incorrect reports be published, contradictions at a governmental level should be issued at the earliest opportunity;

(b) that after the de jure boundary has been finalised and the return of territories in adverse possession has been effected these ground rules should be reviewed in order to bring them up-to-date.

       = 51.62 sq. miles approx.
       Pakistan areas in the adverse possession of India.......80,809 acres 3 Kanals 11 marlas.
       = 135.6 sq. miles. approx.
It was felt that these discrepancies had arisen as the figures of the areas held in adverse possession appeared to have been calculated by the revenue staff on an approximate basis. This was so as the revenue records of the area held in adverse possession were not available with the side in possession. Moreover, it appeared that while showing its areas in the adverse possession of the other, each side had listed its areas under the bed of river as under other's possession, whereas at the time of furnishing figures of the areas of the other country in its own possession, it did not take the area of that country under the bed of the river into account.

It was felt that in order to settle the right holders on their land, as well as to rehabilitate others, it was necessary to ascertain the correct figures of the areas in adverse possession and the condition and categories of the land concerned. For this purpose it was decided that the Deputy Commissioners of the neighbouring districts should liaise with each other and set up immediately joint parties for surveying the areas, classifying and categorising the land as well as for demarcating the fields as far as possible.

Since the Deputy Commissioners reported that some boundary pillars already put up had been washed away or were missing, it was decided to recommend the following procedure for the care and future maintenance of boundary pillars on the West Pakistan-Punjab (India) borders:

(a) The Collectors of the neighbouring districts of West Pakistan and India should be jointly responsible for looking after the boundary pillars after their erection.

(b) The entire boundary line should be inspected biannually in November-December and March-April; each sector being jointly inspected by or on behalf of the Collectors of the districts on either side of the sector.

(c) Since the process of carrying out repairs to pillars jointly might entail lengthy correspondence between the two countries or their Collectors, this work should be divided equally between Pakistan and India on a sector-wise basis. If, for instance, the whole border had 2000 pillars, Pakistan should maintain pillars from serial No.1 to serial No.1000 and India from Serial No.1001 to serial No.2000. The cost involved should be borne equally by the two Governments. The maintenance of the pillars on each sector should alternate after every three years.

(d) Where any pillars is found missing, the representatives of the Surveyors-General of Pakistan and India should jointly locate the position of the missing pillars and it should be re-erected on the point located by these officers, by any agency appointed by the two Governments; the cost involved being borne equally by the two Governments.

7. It was intimated that the Punjab (India) authorities had already issued instructions to their Collectors to ensure the safety and proper maintenance of the boundary pillars. It was agreed that similar instructions will also be issued immediately by the West Pakistan authorities to their Collectors. It was also agreed that the attention of the district authorities should be particularly drawn for suitable action under the provisions of the Panel Code whereby persons causing damage to such pillars are liable to prosecution.

8. The representatives of the Survey Departments of both countries explained that all preliminary steps for the completion of the demarcation of the 72 miles portion of the un-demarcated frontier had been taken. The boundary line in the sector above Wagah-Attari had already been fully demarcated and most of the pillars had been erected thereon. It was reported that some pillars in this sector had been washed away or had not actually been put up yet but were represented by stones or trees. The representatives of the two Survey Departments reported that first priority was being accorded to the work of demarcating the under-demarcated portion by the 30th April, 1960. Further that the work of putting up boundary pillars at places where they had not been put up or had been washed away could be undertaken earlier only if additional survey parties were provided. The representative of the Survey General of Pakistan stated that his Department would be willing to provide special party for the purpose. Since the work of handing over each other's areas was to be completed by the 15th October, 1960, the Financial Commissioner, Revenue, Punjab (India) asked the representative of the Survey of India to request the Surveyor-General to post an additional party from the Indian side also immediately.

In the sector below Wagah-Attari there was a length of 72 miles which had to be demarcated in the regions of Suleimanki, Hussainiwala (up to Khem Karian) and Sarja Marja. The representatives of the Survey of India explained that some time had been lost as there had been delay in providing vehicles, drivers and adequate revenue staff on the Pakistan side. Since these had now been provided the representatives of the two Survey Departments stated that with the special efforts now being made the demarcation would be completed by the 30th April, 1960, in accordance with the Indo-Pakistan Agreement of the 11th January, 1960. The Deputy Commissioners of Lahore and Ferzepur and the representatives of the two Survey Departments were requested to meet at Kasur on the 17th March, 1960, at 11 a.m. (P.S.T.) to ensure that the work proceeded expeditiously and effectively now. They were asked to send a joint report to the Financial Commissioner/Member Board of Revenue in this behalf.
9. The Chief Engineer, West Pakistan, and the Chief Engineer (Central), Punjab, India, have discussed and finalised the adjustment of the left marginal bund at Suleimanki in the reach G to H as specified in Annexure I of the Agreed decisions and procedures contained in Appendix I of the Indo-Pakistan Agreement dated the 11th January, 1960 vide Plan enclosed - Enclosure A. This would enable the boundary pillars being fixed in this reach also by the 30th April, 1960. The design of the boundary pillars in the riverine area was also finalised by the two Chief Engineers vide Enclosures B. It was considered that subject to the overall provisions of the Canal Water treaty being negotiated between Pakistan and India in Washington the existing irrigation arrangements for the areas to be transferred to either side should continue till such time as alternative arrangements are made. For the purpose of joint discharge observations, inspections, survey and maintenance operations, the Irrigations staff and workmen of either country should be given full facilities for visiting the channels, bunds and areas concerned in the interim period under temporary permits to be issued by the Deputy Commissioners of the districts concerned.

It was agreed that arrangements proposed above in this para be recommended to the two Governments for their approval.

10. The following special points in respect of the exchange of the areas in adverse possession were agreed upon to be recommended for the approval of two Governments:

(i) Steps should be taken to ensure that public property situated in the areas in adverse possession of either country should not be damaged or removed. It was, however agreed that the question of the removal or mutual adjustment of the Rangers/P.A.P. Posts should be gone into by Director General, West Pakistan Rangers and D.I.G. Border (P.A.P.) India, together.

(ii) The nationals of either country may be permitted to remove their private property.

(iii) Since trees are a part of the land and both the Governments are anxious to promote schemes of afforestation in the riverine areas in the interest of agriculture and for preventing erosion, Collectors on either side should take appropriate steps to ensure that trees are not cut or removed.

(iv) All available original revenue records in respect of the lands in the adverse possession of either country should be mutually exchanged on district wise basis.
(v) wherever possible the sarkanda in the riverine area should be burnt for facilitating the location of boundary pillars and clearing the boundary line, but arrangements to this end should be taken in hand by the Collectors of the neighbouring districts, in consultations with the West Pakistan Rangers/P.A.P. (India).

11. To ensure that all arrangements are completed before the 15th October, 1960, the following time schedule was agreed upon :-

(a) The work of classification and categorisation of land and the demarcation of village and field boundaries for purpose of ascertaining the area to be exchanged should be completed by the 15th May, 1960.

(b) Each side will endeavour to complete paper allotments by 15th June, 1960.

(c) Thereafter, actual movement of land owners/ allottees of land should take place by the 15th July, 1960, and final adjustment, if any, be completed by the 15th October, 1960.

12. The Chief Engineer, Irrigation, Punjab (India) explained that the Punjab(India) Government was making arrangements for retiring portions of the Dussi Flood Protection Bund in Gurdaspur and Amritsar districts from areas which would go over to Pakistan. It is therefore, desired that these portions of the Dussi Bund remain in India till the 15th October, 1960. After discussion, it was decided this matter may be taken up in the next meeting.

13. For the expeditious implementation of the Indo-Pakistan Agreement, dated the 11th January 1960, the revenue and irrigation staff of either side would be required to move constantly from one side to the other. It was considered that the only feasible method of completing the arrangements by the scheduled date was to authorize Deputy Commissioners to issue permits to enable such staff to go over and work on the other side. The West Pakistan Rangers/P.A.P. (India) should be informed of these arrangements.

14. All work connected with the exchange of areas required close collaboration between Deputy Commissioners on both sides of the border. The Deputy Commissioners were, therefore, instructed to remain personally in touch with each other and with the representatives of the Survey Departments, to review the progress of work from time to time, remove difficulties and keep their Commissioners and the Financial Commissioner/Member, Board of Revenue, informed.
15. It was decided to hold the next meeting at Chandigarh on the 27th to 28th March, 1960.

2947. Letter from Commonwealth Secretary M. J. Desai to Pakistan Foreign Secretary M. Ikramullah.

New Delhi, October 7, 1960.

D.O. No.502-CS/60  7th October, 1960/Asvina 15, 1882 (Saka)
My dear Ikramullah,

During our discussion in Lahore on 23rd September, I promised to get the question of the date by which the exchange of areas on the Punjab - West Pakistan border held adversely by India or Pakistan examined in consultation with our Law Ministry so that an agreed date which will not raise any legal or constitutional difficulties could be fixed for this purpose. This has now been done.

2. The legislative processes that have been found necessary in the light of the opinion of the Supreme Court for the implementation of the specified items of the Indo-Pakistan Agreement of January, 1960, are as follows:

a) For areas that are to be ceded to Pakistan, legislation under Article 368 of the Constitution of India has to be enacted.

b) For areas that are to come to India from Pakistan a law relatable to Article 3 of the Constitution of India has to be passed in Parliament. According to the proviso to Article 3 of the Constitution of India, the President of India is required to obtain the views of the legislature of the State in question before such a Bill can be introduced in either House of Parliament.

3. In view of the legal and legislative requirements mentioned in para 2 above, the law officers of the Government of India are of the view that there is no prospect of these processes being completed before the end of December, 1960.
4. In the circumstances, I hope you would agree that it would be prudent to fix December 31, 1960, as the date for the exchange of these territories so that we may not come across any legal snags is carrying out these exchanges.

With kind regards

Yours sincerely

(M.J. Desai)

G. S. Kahlon
Secretary to Government, Punjab
Revenue Department
Consequent upon the exchange of areas in adverse possession on the West Pakistan-Punjab (India) border in January, 1961, and in pursuance of the decisions taken at the Indo-Pakistan Conference on India-West Pakistan border problems held in January, 1960, it was necessary to review the existing Ground Rules. Accordingly an Indo-Pakistan Conference was held in New Delhi from the 22nd August to the 26th August, 1961.

The Pakistan delegation was led by Mr. S. K. Dehlavi, Foreign Secretary, and the Indian delegation by Shri Y.D. Gundevia, Commonwealth Secretary. The discussions were held in a friendly and cordial atmosphere. Complete agreement was reached in respect of the necessary modifications in the Ground Rules which would become immediately operative on the West Pakistan-Punjab (India) border.

Since the demarcation of the West Pakistan-Rajasthan-Gujarat border has not yet been completed, it was agreed that the question of the revision of the Ground Rules in respect of this border shall be pursued by the two Governments separately.
August 26, 1961.

In pursuance of Rule 26(b) of the West Pakistan/India Border Ground Rules dated 9th January 1960 and with reference to paragraph 3 of the Indo-Pakistan Agreement dated 11th January 1960, the following delegations from Pakistan and India met in New Delhi from 22nd August 1961 to 26th August 1961 and agreed to the Ground Rules as stated below:

16. Bona fide Government bodies, whilst operating in the border belt of 150 yards on their respective sides in the normal course of duty shall not be interfered with. The programme of such parties will be notified to the Unit Commanders of border security forces concerned at least 24 hours in advance. Such parties will report to the nearest post of their own country before starting the work. The post commander will inform his opposite number.

17. The duties of Commanders of Border Security Forces of both countries at various levels in their respective areas of responsibility shall, inter alia, be as under:

(a) Maintenance of close liaison with their opposite numbers down to Junior Commissioned Officer/Upper Subordinate level.

(b) Making themselves known to the Border Security Forces of the opposite side by frequent border meetings.

(c) Receiving all complaints regarding border violation/tensions. They will hold a joint investigation immediately on receipt of the First Information Report, in any case within 24 hours of the receipt thereof, unless this is not possible due to long distances or difficulties of communications, in which case the joint investigation should be held as soon as possible.

18. (a) Where two border Posts are situated in close proximity of each other and it is possible for them to communicate by flags, any commander who wishes to meet his counterpart will wave a flag of the specifications given in Rule 25 below and will proceed to the border, unarmed, without any escort, to a pre-arranged place. The opposite commander or the senior officer present on seeing the flag, will acknowledge the signal and proceed to the place of meeting also with a flag, unarmed and without escort.

(b) Where the posts are separated by a long distance, contact shall be established in the following manner.

A party consisting of 1 and 6 men, armed with their personal weapons for their own protection, and carrying the appropriate flag will proceed to the post of the other side. On arrival within 300 yards of this post, they will establish a temporary base and send forward two men, unarmed, with the appropriate flags, to make necessary contact.

19. If, owing to the removal or dislocation of a boundary pillar, etc., a national of one country lays claim and takes any steps in furtherance of that claim, which is objected to by the other side, the two commanders shall hold a joint investigation on the spot and restrain the person from enforcing his claim, until the matter is settled.

20. The boundary shall not be affected by any change in the course of a river.
21. In order to ensure due implementation of these Ground Rules, there shall be close personal touch and the following periodic meetings shall be held.

(a) Wing Commanders Rangers (Pak)/S.P.s of PAP, Punjab(India)......Monthly at the border.
(b) Director-General, West Pakistan Rangers and the D.I.G., PAP, Punjab (India) or their representatives.............as required.

These officers will be authorised by their respective Governments to settle disputes on the spot, as far as possible.

The military commanders shall also meet as and when the situation demands, and whenever they consider such meetings necessary.

22. The S.Ps of the Border Districts or their representatives will also attend the monthly border meetings referred to in rule 21 above.

23. In order to maintain close liaison between the border forces of the two countries, it is essential that adequate telephone and other possible communication facilities are provided by the respective Governments at various levels.

24. Should firing occur anywhere along the border, the other side shall refrain from returning the fire. In every case where firing occurs, the local commanders on both sides shall get in touch with each others by telephone, or failing this by the quickest means available, and shall meet with a view to bringing about a cease-fire forthwith. After every firing incident, a joint investigation shall be carried out, as soon as possible, to fix the responsibility. Investigating officers will submit their respective reports for information to their higher authorities for further action.

25. All pickets and patrols on both sides shall have flags of the following description for purposes of establishing contact and communications with each other:

(c) At night, flags shall be substituted by light/signals (two red veery lights) or signal by torches as mutually arranged between the Post Commanders.
26. Whenever there is a joint enquiry by Deputy Commissioners or Commissioners of the two sides, the respective commanders of security forces of the areas shall also attend the meetings and submit for the information of the respective higher commanders their assessment of the situation created by the particular incidents.

27. The press on both sides should be persuaded to exercise restraint and not to publish exaggerated reports or material which is likely to influence the feelings of the population on both sides. Should incorrect reports be published, contradictions at Government level should be issued at the earliest opportunity.

2951. Press Note issued by the Government of India refuting the allegations of the Leader of Pakistan’s Delegation to the UN Zafrulla Khan regarding mistreatment of minorities in India.

New Delhi, September 18, 1947.

The attention of the Government of India has been drawn to a Statement which Mr. Zafrulla Khan is reported to have made in New York. Mr. Zafrulla Khan is reported to have said that the killings of Muslims has been going on for more than a month in the Province of East Punjab and lately in the Province of Delhi. He has made no reference to the killing of non-Muslims which has been going on in West Punjab, with, perhaps a slight intermission, since March, in numbers which cannot be estimated with accuracy but which considering the vast migration of non-Muslims to various parts of India now in progress, must be very large. People do not uproot themselves from their homes by the million except when impelled by unbearable suffering and unspeakable terror.

“Responsibility for this”, presumably the killings, continued Mr. Zafrulla Khan “rests entirely on the Government of India which so far has utterly failed to discharge its responsibility or even face it squarely.” Both the allegations are completely devoid of foundation. The Government of India never incited and have never countenanced any form of violence by one community against another. Events in East Punjab and, more recently, in New Delhi, are the direct result of earlier events in West Punjab, which Mr. Zafrulla Khan has preferred to ignore. The Government of India have no desire to indulge in recrimination, but if baseless charges are made against them, they have no option but to make public the truth.

The origin of the trouble in East Punjab and in New Delhi is to be traced to events, earlier this year, in West Punjab of which non-Muslims were the victims. More remotely the point of time but equally as effect in relation to cause, they are due to the hatred and the two-nation theory which the advocates of Pakistan have been preaching for years. Authoritative Muslim newspapers in Pakistan are, even now, writing articles full of communal venom and incitement to violence. The suggestion that the Government of India have so far utterly failed to discharge their responsibility or even to face it squarely is contrary to all known facts. The Government of India have done everything possible to put down disorder, to protect refugees and care for them, to provide adequate escort for evacuees wishing to move to Pakistan.

An Emergency Committee of the Cabinet meets daily to consider these problems which have the same priority as the problem of handling non-Muslim refugees who have moved from West Punjab and who already number well over a million.
They have, in addition, set up a Sub-Committee, presided over by a Cabinet Minister to handle the situation in Delhi. Both in East Punjab and in Delhi the forces of law and order are now in control.

The Government of India have succeeded in this task in a large measure, in spite of the suddenness of the impact of events. This cannot be said of the Pakistan Government. The Government of India are continually receiving reports of attacks on non-Muslim evacuees in West Punjab.

Only on Wednesday a ministry spokesman revealed that a non-Muslim refugee caravan was attacked on September 14 by a large Muslim mob, that a train carrying non-Muslims was fired at on September 13 by the Muslim escort of another train, that considerable killing and looting by Pakistan troops was reported from across the border in West Punjab.

East Punjab Normal

The same spokesman, referring to East Punjab, said that no incident was reported from one district: that 20,000 refugees had been moved under protective escort from another, where only two minor attacks on refugees were made and Indian troops fired on the assailants; that the evacuation of Muslims from two other districts was in progress.

Mr. Zafrulla Khan is also reported to have uttered warning that unless the Government of India take steps “to end the slaughter of Muslims a formal complaint will be filed with the United Nations.” This is obviously a matter for Mr. Zafrulla Khan and his Government. The Government of India are prepared to leave the verdict on Mr. Zafrulla Khan’s allegations to any impartial authority.

Conference of the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan to consider measures for the preservation of communal harmony in the two Dominions.

New Delhi, September 19, 1947.

A conference was held in New Delhi on 19.9.1947 between representatives of the Dominion Governments of India and Pakistan at which the following were present:-

Government of India: Prime Minister: Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru. Deputy Prime Minister, Sardar Patel.

Sardar Baldev Singh.

Dr. John Matthai.

Mr. C.H. Bhabha.

Mr. K.C. Neogy.

Government of Pakistan: Prime Minister: Mr. Laiquat Ali Khan.

Mr. Ghulam Mohammad.

2. The accompanying Aide Memoire of which copies had been circulated to the Ministers attending the conference was discussed and the following conclusions were reached:-

(1) Any conception of a war between Pakistan and India is abhorrent not merely on moral grounds but for the reason that any such conflict would spell ruin to both of them. The representatives of the Pakistan Government stated that they would investigate the statement reported to have been made by Sir Mohammad Safrullah (Zafrullah) Khan in New York and in particular his reference to direct action.

(2) It is the policy of both Governments to create and maintain conditions in which the minorities will live in security.

(3) Both Governments should work together with the object of reducing, as rapidly as possible, both the area and intensity of the communal conflict. In particular, statements by responsible persons which are either bellicose or one-sided as to lead to irritation to the either side should be avoided.

(4) There is no issue between the two Governments as to the necessity of speeding up the convoys of evacuees from East to West Punjab and from West to East Punjab. Both Governments are agreed that top priority should be given to the safe and speedy movement of evacuees convoys.

(5) Regrettable incidents have taken place on both sides. Details of these should be communicated by one Government to the other and it is agreed that these should be investigated and those who are found guilty should be drastically punished.

(6) Places which are regarded as sacred by any community will not be allowed to be occupied by members of any other community and particular care will be taken to preserve such places intact even if they remain empty. The two Governments will communicate with each other and make concrete suggestions.

2953. Record of Meeting of the Emergency Committee* of the Indian Cabinet.

New Delhi, October 7, 1947.

K. C. Neogy said that, at the conference on 5 October, Liaquat Ali Khan took exception to the “dumping” of Meos across the Pakistan border and according to Pakistan Government’s understanding of the situation all members of minority community who wished to leave East and West Punjab, the Punjab States and the North West Frontier Province would be given facilities to do so but this arrangement should not be extended to include other places.

Vallabhbhai Patel saw no reason why Delhi should not also be included if N.W.F.P. was.

The Prime Minister asked what Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan’s view on the matter would be if he knew that Muslim refugees wished to leave Delhi. Neogy replied that he had asked Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan whether he would make a public announcement to the effect that Pakistan was not prepared to receive Muslims who wanted to go there, other than from East Punjab. Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan had parried to the effect that there would be time enough to consider this if the Indian Government declared their inability to protect Muslims.

Speech of Pakistan Governor General Mohammad Ali Jinnah on the protection of minorities.

Lahore, October 30, 1947.

A SACRED UNDERTAKING

(Broadcast Speech from the Pakistan Radio, Lahore on 30th October, 1947)

A few days ago, I received harrowing accounts of the terrible happenings in the Punjab and the situation, from all accounts, appeared to be so grave that I decided to come to Lahore. On my arrival here, I immediately got in touch with various sources that were available to me and I was deeply grieved to realize that unfortunately, there was a great deal of truth in what had been told to me. I am speaking to you under deep distress and with a heavy heart. We have, undoubtedly achieved Pakistan and that too without bloody war and practically peacefully by moral and intellectual force and with the power of pen which is no less mighty than the sword and so our righteous cause has triumphed. Are we now going to besmear and tarnish this greatest achievement for which there is no parallel in the whole history of the world by resorting to frenzy, savagery and butchery? And, will this lead us anywhere?

Pakistan is now a fait accompli and it can never be undone, besides, it was the only just, honorable and practical solution of the most complex constitutional problem of this great sub-continent.

The division of India is now finally and irrevocably effected. No doubt, we feel that the carving out of this great independent, sovereign Muslim State has suffered injustice. We have been squeezed inasmuch as it was possible and the latest blow that we have received was the Award of the Boundary Commission. It is an unjust, incomprehensible and even perverse Award. It may be wrong, unjust and perverse and it may not be a judicial award, but political award but we had agreed to abide by it and it is binding upon us. As honorable people we must abide by it. It may be our misfortune, but we must bear up this one more blow with fortitude, courage and hope.

Let us now plan to build and reconstruct and regenerate our great nation and our sovereign State of Pakistan which, you know, is not only the biggest Muslim State in the world but the fifth biggest sovereign State in the world. Now is the time, chance and opportunity for every Mussalman to make his or her fullest and best contribution and make the greatest sacrifice and work ceaselessly and selflessly in the service of our nation and make Pakistan one of the greatest nations of the world. It is in your hands; we have undoubtedly talents; Pakistan is blessed with enormous resources and potentialities; Providence has endowed us with all the wealth of nature and now it lies with man to make best of it.
It is agreed on all hands that peace should be restored without delay and that law and order must be established and maintained at any cost. Now it is up to leaders and the rank and file of the communities to leave no stone unturned in fulfilling the sacred and honorable undertaking that was given at the Special Conference on the 29th August, to protect the minorities and work in everywhere for the welfare and safety of the refugees. The Lahore Conference of 29th has further laid down categorically certain ways and means to be adopted to implement its decisions and such further measures will be taken which have the solemn, firm and determined sanction of the Pakistan and the Dominion of India Government. Henceforth they will be naturally responsible, as the Punjab Boundary Force which was limited only to certain areas, could not deal with entire Punjab --both West and East, especially now as the rural areas have also been affected and, therefore, it has been abolished.

These decisions and measures adopted by the Special Conference should reassure the people of all communities that the Pakistan and India Governments are determined to put down ruthlessly these orgies and their far-reaching consequences. But it requires the communities concerned to realize the folly and futility of indulging in this savagery which has already taken a colossal toll of human life and especially of the innocent ones and has displaced hundreds of thousands of innocent people rendered homeless and delivered them to starvation who are wandering about in the countryside for their lives --besides resulting in destruction of property on an extensive scale.

This is not the moment for me to go into the origin or cause of all that is happening or to apportion blame as to which community has disgraced itself more. It will be for the historians to give their verdict. Humanity cries loud against this shameful conduct and the deeds that have been committed. Those who are responsible for this holocaust must be dealt with an iron hand and put down ruthlessly. The civilized world is looking upon these doings and happenings with horror and the fair name of the communities concerned stands blackened in the eyes of the world.

It is now up to the leaders and those responsible and in charge of the Governments to make their supreme effort to make amends for this indelible stigma. While the horizon is beset with dark clouds, let me appeal to you and give this message to the people of Pakistan. Create enthusiasm and spirit and go forward with your task, with courage and hope and we shall do it. Are we downhearted? Certainly not. This history of Islam is replete with instances of valour, grit and determination. So march on notwithstanding obstruction, obstacles and interference; and I feel confident that a united nation of 70 million people with a grim determination and with a great civilization and history need fear nothing. It is now up to you to work, work and more work; and we are bound to succeed. And never forget our motto: “Unity, Discipline and Faith”.

I have so far spoken to you in English as you know that the eyes of the world are upon Pakistan and we are watched by the various nations of the world with keenest interest since the establishment of Pakistan as an independent, sovereign State which has been a great and historical event. I, therefore, used the medium of English so as to be able to reach the world-wide audience, which exhibited great interest in Pakistan.

2955. Telegram from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan regarding the position of minorities in Sind.

New Delhi, January 23, 1948.

I am receiving information that the position on non-Muslims in Sind has become increasingly difficult and at many places grave immediate danger is apprehended. The position has been aggravated by steps taken to prevent the movement of non-Muslims into Karachi from where they have to be evacuated by sea. I understand that over 1000 Hindus traveling by train from Sukkur to Karachi were forcibly detained at Nawabshah and that Sukkur Magistrate has promulgated order that no Hindu can leave for a fortnight. I have no desire to add to the difficulties of the Sind Government but position must be frankly faced that non-Muslims in Sind have lost confidence in the ability of Pakistan authorities to give them adequate protection and are anxious to leave. I hope you will agree that it is the duty of the Sind Government to give facilities for those who want to leave and I trust they will do so.

2. The position of Sikhs in interior of Sind is, I am informed, particularly precarious. They have as a community done no harm to anybody in Sind and are in special need of protection. I hope you will take every possible step to see that they are brought from the interior to evacuation points and treated well.

Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan about the minorities in East Bengal.
New Delhi, March 6, 1948.

My dear Nawabzada,

Thank you for your letter of February 28th enclosing copy of letter from Khwaja Nazimuddin, Premier, East Bengal dated the 27th February.

I have no doubt that Khwayja Nazimuddin and his Government are trying to look after the interests of non-Muslims in East Bengal but I can assure you that the number of complaints from East Bengal about the kind of protection they receive is very great. It is hardly possible for the non Muslims there to carry on their normal vocations. They are being squeezed out. The fact that about a million of them have gradually migrated to West Bengal during the past few months is evidence of the fear and apprehension that surround them. We have tried our utmost to prevent them from migrating and in fact we have even avoided giving any publicity to this. Yet in spite of this the migration continues.

You will remember that our respective Governments had agreed about the appointment of a Deputy High Commissioner for India in Dacca. Nevertheless, I have postponed this appointment because I did not wish to give any impression in East Bengal that conditions were very abnormal. Nor did I want our Deputy High Commissioner to become a focus of complaints. The pressure on me, however, is very great for such an appointment and I may have to request you later to agree to our giving effect to the previous arrangement. I am not for the present doing so. Even in the event of our sending a Deputy High Commissioner there, our instructions to him would be to advise people not to migrate and not encourage complaints as far as possible.

We have to face one other difficulty. Many people living in West Bengal have considerable property in East Bengal. They have certainly lost touch with them and cannot look after them or get rent etc. from them. They come to us and want our help. I understand from the West Bengal Government that references made to the East Bengal Government on such matters do not yield results and often do not elicit a reply. Perhaps the appointment of a Deputy High Commissioner in Dacca would facilitate consideration of matters of mutual interest between East and West Bengal. I am considering this matter and balancing the pros and cons. I have not yet come to any decisions but I thought I might as well inform you of the urgent demands being made upon me in this respect.

Khwaja Nazimuddin says in his letter to you that Hindus in East Bengal are much better off than the Muslims any where in India. I am afraid I cannot agree to this statement at all. Muslims all over India and as you know there are large numbers of them continue to live a normal life and pursue their normal vocation.
In fact, during these troubled times they have not been disturbed except in certain localities in northern India. The fact that there is no marked desire for them to leave India is evidence of the fact that conditions are more or less normal. We have passed through difficult times and it is possible that there is feeling of uncertainty in the minds of some people. That is gradually disappearing.

About the arrests of members of the Muslim National Guards, it is possible that the original arrests might have been somewhat indiscriminate in some places but I understand that soon after cases were examined and release were made. Exactly the same process was adopted on much larger scale in regard to the R.S.S. We have impressed on our provincial authorities to take special care in such matters and not to arrest or keep in prison or detention any person against whom there is not sufficient cause. In the event of any mistake being made, we shall welcome our attention being drawn to particular cases which can be considered separately.

I am sending a copy of this letter to Khwaja Nazimuddin.

Yours sincerely,

Jawaharlal Nehru

2957. Joint Statement issued by the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan on minorities.

March 23, 1948.

“The Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan wish to take the opportunity of their meeting on March 19 to reiterate simply and clearly the policies of their respective Governments, towards minority communities in their respective territories”, says a joint statement issued by the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan.

The official communiqué giving the joint statement adds. “Both Governments hope and trust that minority communities will remain in their homes. Indeed, they are anxious that they should do so. They intend to do their utmost to help members of minority communities to stay where they are. They are convinced that this is in the best interests all concerned.

“This does not mean that the Governments intend to put any obstacle in the way of those who, of their own will, decide to migrate from one Dominion to the other.”
2958. Agreement reached at the Inter-Dominion Conference on the treatment of minorities.

Calcutta, 15-18 April, 1948.

Whereas the Governments of the two Dominions agree that mass exodus of minorities is not in the interest of either Dominion and they are determined to take every possible step to discourage such exodus and to create such conditions as would check mass exodus to either direction and would encourage and facilitate, as far as possible, return of Evacuees to their ancestral homes, the two Dominions agree as follows:

Section I.

(1) The responsibility for protecting the lives and properties of the minority communities and for ensuring that they receive justice and that their civic rights are fully safeguarded rests on the Government of the Dominion in which the minorities reside.

(2) In Pakistan and in India citizen shall have equal rights, opportunities, privileges and obligation; and there shall be no discrimination against the minorities whose cultural religious rights shall be fully safeguarded.

N.B. "Cultural' rights include 'educations' rights.

(3) Any propaganda for the amalgamation of Pakistan and India or of portions thereof including East Bengal on the one hand and West Bengal or Assam or Cooch Behar or Tripura on the other shall be discouraged.

N.B. The word 'propaganda' shall be taken as including any organization which might be set up for the purpose.

(4) Both Governments recognize that the wholehearted co-operation of the Press is essential for creating a better atmosphere and therefore agree that every effort should be made, in consultation with the representative of the Press, wherever possible, to ensure that the Press in each Dominion does not.

(a) indulge in propaganda against the other Dominion;

(b) publish exaggerated versions of the news of a character likely to inflame, or cause fear or alarm to the population or a section of the populations in either Dominion;

(c) publish material likely to be construed as advocating a declaration of war by one Dominion against the other Dominion or suggesting the inevitability of war between the two Dominions.
(5) Complaints from minorities in both the Dominions that action is not taken on their reports against oppression or unfair treatment, should be promptly and fairly looked into and early remedial measures taken.

(6) Both in East Bengal and in West Bengal there shall be set up a Provincial Minorities Board and under the Provincial Board, District Minorities Boards for the express object of protecting the interests of the minorities, removing fear from their minds and inspiring confidence in them. These Boards shall ensure that the grievances of the minorities are promptly brought to the notice of the authorities and that they are satisfactorily and promptly dealt with.

It is suggested that the Provincial Minorities Board should be composed of the members, three of whom at least belonging to the major minority community to be selected by the members of the Provincial Legislature belonging to the minority communities. The remaining two shall be persons of influence and shall be nominated by the Provincial Government. The District Magistrate shall be the Chairman of the District Minorities Board and a Minister to be nominated by the Provincial Government shall be the Chairman of the Provincial Board.

(7) The two Dominions and their Provincial Government shall declare and make it widely known to their officers and other employees that any Government servant proved to have been guilty either of dereliction of duty in protecting the lives and properties of the members of the minority community or of directly or indirectly ill-treating the members of the minority community or showing prejudice against the minority community in the discharge of his duties, shall receive exemplary and deterrent punishment.

(8) Severe action shall be taken against any person or group of persons creating or attempting to create any apprehension or fear or insecurity or alarm in the minds of the minority communities.

(9) (i) The two Dominions shall take adequate steps to remove complaints regarding

(a) Discrimination in the grant of export and import licences and railway priorities to members of the minority community as such,

(b) To curb all tendencies towards an economic boycott of minorities or strangulation of their normal economic life.

(ii) The two Dominion Governments shall request their respective Provincial Governments to observe the same principal in their own sphere.

(10) The Governments of East Bengal and West Bengal will promote legislation providing for the setting up of Evacuees Property Management Boards in districts or areas from where a substantial exodus has taken place. These Boards will be set up only when it is established that there is a demand for their establishment. These Boards will assume management of properties only on the definite request of their owners. Their functions will be of managerial character and they will not have the power to alienate the property entrusted to them for management. These Boards shall be composed of members of the Minority Community.

N.B. For this purpose 'Evacuee' shall be defined as a person who has left the Province in question on or after 1st June 1947 and who declares his intention to return as soon as normal conditions are restored.

A committee of officers will be appointed immediately by the two Governments to draw up detailed proposals for the necessary legislation.

Section 2.

To ensure the implementation of this Agreement, the representatives of the two Dominions shall meet at least once in two months so as to bring to the notice of each other any instances of the non-observance of the above principles in either Dominion. In the case of East Bengal and West Bengal, where the situation requires more urgent measures, the Premiers of the two Provinces shall meet once every month for the same purpose; and in addition to begin with, the Chief Secretaries of the two Provinces shall meet once a fortnight. Whenever matters concerning Assam, Cooch Behar and Tripura are likely to be discussed the Chief Secretary, West Bengal, shall arrange for their representatives to be present.

Section 3.

(1) This Conference recommends that another Inter-Dominion Conference should be called at a very early date to which representatives of other Provinces and States (except East and West Punjab and N.W.F.P. from which exodus has taken place on a large scale, or is likely to take place should be invited to consider action on lines similar to those proposed above or on any other suitable lines in respect of:

(a) Protection and other safeguards for the property of refugees who have gone out from one Dominion to the other temporarily or otherwise, and
(b) Creation of conditions in any affected area which will reassure the minorities that their interest and rights are fully safeguarded and will prevent exodus or will induce evacuees to return to their homes.

(2) It is further understood that a separate conference as already agreed to is to be held to consider the special problems relating to East and West Punjab and N.W.F.P. It is recommended that this Conference should also be held at a very early date.

(3) It is further recommended that a separate Inter-Dominion Conference should be called at an early date, and discuss the question of migration of Muslims from East Bengal to Assam and the migration of Muslims who have been in Assam prior to partition into East Bengal. Pending this Conference, both sides agree not to take any action to force or precipitate migration from one Province to the other on a mass scale. While both the Dominion Governments agree to this arrangement, Mr. Bardoloi wished to place the matter before his Cabinet.

2959. Press conference of Leaders of the Indian and Pakistan delegations at the Inter-Dominion Conference on minorities.

Calcutta, April 19, 1948.

The agreement reached by the Dominions of India and Pakistan at the five-day session of the Inter Dominion Conference held in Calcutta, was announced at a Press Conference by the leaders of the two delegations, Mr. K.C. Neogy and Mr. Ghulam Mohammad.

The agreement lays down that the responsibility for the protection of the minorities rests with the Government of the Dominion in which the minorities reside. It adds that in Pakistan and in India every citizen shall have equal rights, opportunities, privileges and obligations, and there shall be no discriminations against the minority whose cultural and religious rights shall be fully safeguarded.

The agreement proposes the creations both in East and West Bengal of a Provincial Minorities' Board and district minorities boards under them, for protecting the interests of the minorities, removing fears from their minds and inspiring confidence in them. Management boards for evacuees' properties will be set up in districts or areas from which a substantial exodus had taken place.
The recommendations of the Expert Committee accepted by the conference inter alia suggested that in order to ensure the avoidance of undue hardship resulting from the switchover from the standstill to the new situation, the two Dominions will consider sympathetically applications for the issue of export licenses for goods which were imported from overseas specially to meet orders placed by customers in the other dominion. This is only for a short period of transition and will apply generally to shipments made and paid for before December 31, 1947.

Commodities specifically ordered by dealers in one Dominion through the ports of the other Dominion should be covered by the standstill agreement or the transit arrangements as the case may be and should not be denied to the persons who have already paid or will pay for the goods.

Food Restrictions

The committee also recommended that the restrictions whether imposed by Central or Provincial Governments on the movement between the two Dominions of commodities such as fresh fruits, vegetables, fresh milk and its products and any customs thereon must be removed.

The Indian Government have agreed to discuss the supply of mustard oil to East Bengal as a meeting to be arranged within the next three weeks. Until then the Pakistan Government will continue to allow the free movement of fish fresh and dry without any duty.

As regards postal, telegraphic and telephone rates, it was agreed that his question as well as the question of simplifying the movement of letters and postcards so as to reduce the delays which now arise by passing them through the exchanges should be examined urgently by experts of both the Dominions and arrangements were already being made for these discussions.

The agreements states that any propaganda for the amalgamation of Pakistan and India or of portions thereof including East Bengal on the one hand, and West Bengal or Assam or Cooch Behar or Tripura on the other, shall be discouraged.

To ensure the implementation of the agreement the representatives of the two Dominions shall meet at least once in two months: and the representatives of East and West Bengal shall meet once every months for the same purposes. In addition, to begin with, the Chief Secretaries of the two provinces shall have fortnightly meetings.

The conference has also recommended that another inter-dominion conference shall be called at a very early date to which representatives of other provinces and states except the East and West Punjab and NWFP, from which exodus has taken place on a large scale, or is likely to take place, shall be invited.

The special problems of the East and West Punjab and NWFP will be considered at a separate conference.

The migration of Hindus from East Bengal to Assam and the migration of Muslims who have been in Assam prior to partition into East Bengal will also be the subject of a separate inter-Dominion conference.

Mass Exodus

In the interest of either Dominion they are determined to take every possible step to discourage such exodus and to treat such conditions as would check mass exodus in their direction and would encourage and facilitate, as far as possible the return of evacuees to their ancestral homes. The two dominions agree as follows:

(1) The responsibility for protecting the lives and property of the minority communities and for ensuring that they receive justice, that their civic rights are fully safeguarded rests on the Government of the Dominion in which the minorities reside.

(2) In Pakistan and in India every citizen shall have equal rights opportunities, privileges and obligations and there shall be no discrimination against the minorities whose cultural and religious rights shall be fully safeguarded. "Cultural." rights includes "educational" rights.

(3) Reunion: Any propaganda for the amalgamation of Pakistan and India or of portions thereof including East Bengal on the one hand and West Bengal and or Assam or Coach Behar or Tripura on the other shall be discouraged.

The word propaganda shall be taken as including any organization which might be set up for the purpose.

(4) Both Governments recognize that the whole-hearted co-operation of the Press is essential for creating a better atmosphere and, therefore, agree that every effort should be made in consultation with the representatives of the Press wherever possible to ensure that the press in each Dominion does not (a) indulge in propaganda against the other Dominion, (b) publish exaggerated versions of the news of a character likely to inflame communal passions or cause fear or alarm to the population or a section of the population in either dominion, (c) publish material likely to be construed as advocating a declaration of war by one Dominion against the other Dominion or suggesting the inevitability of war between the two Dominions.
Unfair Treatment

(5) Complaint from minorities in both the Dominions that action is not taken on their reports against oppression or unfair treatment, should be promptly and fairly looked into and early remedial measures taken.

(6) Both in East Bengal and in West Bengal there shall be set up a Provincial Minorities Board and under the provincial board, district minorities boards for the express object of protecting the interest of the minorities removing fear from their minds and inspiring confidence in them.

These boards shall ensure that the grievances of the minorities are promptly brought to the notice of the authorities and they are satisfactorily and promptly dealt with.

Minorities Board

It is suggested that the Provincial Minorities Board should be composed of five members, three of whom should at least belong to the minority communities. The remaining two shall be persons of influence and a shall be nominated by the Provincial government.

The District Magistrate shall be the chairman of the district minorities boards and a Minister to be nominated by the Provincial government shall be the chairman of the provincial board.

(7) The two dominions and their Provincial governments shall declare and make it widely known to their officers and other employees that any government servant proved to have been guilty either of dereliction of duty in protecting the lives and properties of the members of the minority community or of directly or indirectly ill treating the members of the minority community or showing prejudice against the minority community in the discharge of his duties, shall receive exemplary and deterrent punishment.

(8) Severe action shall be taken against any person or group of persons creating or attempting to create any apprehension or fear insecurity or alarm in the minds of the minority communities.

(9) The two Dominions shall take adequate steps to remove complaints regarding:

(a) discrimination in the grant of export licences and railway priorities to members of the minority community as such.

(b) to curb all tendencies towards an economic boycott of minorities or strangulation of their normal economic life.
The two Dominion Governments shall request their respective Provincial Governments to observe the same principles in their own sphere.

Governments of East Bengal and West Bengal will provide legislation providing for the setting up of evacuee property management boards in districts or areas from where a substantial exodus has taken place.

These boards will be set up only when it is established that there is a demand for their establishment. These boards will assume management of properties only on the definite request of their owners.

Their functions will be of a managerial character and they will not have the power to alienate the property entrusted to them for management. These boards shall be composed of members of the minority community.

Evacuee Defined

(2) "evacuee" shall be defined as a person who has left the province in question on or after January 1, 1947, and who declares his intention to return as soon as normal conditions are restored.

A committee of officers will be appointed immediately by the two Governments to draw up detailed proposals for the necessary legislation.

To ensure the implementation of this agreement, the representatives of the two Dominions shall meet at least once in two months so as to bring to the notice of each other any instances of the non-observance of the above principles in either Dominion.

In the case of East Bengal and West Bengal, where the situation requires more urgent measures, the Premier of the two provinces shall meet every month for the same purpose, and

To begin with, the Chief Secretaries of the two provinces shall meet once a fortnight. Whenever matters concerning Assam, Cooch Behar, and Tripura are likely to be discussed, the Chief Secretary, West Bengal shall arrange for their representatives to be present.

Another Conference.

(1) This conference recommends that another Inter dominion Conference should be called at a very early date to which representatives of other provinces and states (except East and West Punjab and the NWFP) from which exodus has taken place on a large scale, or is likely to take place, should be invited to consider action on lines similar to those proposed above or on any other suitable lines in the respect of (a).
(A) Protection and other safeguards for the property of refugees who have come out from one dominion to the other temporarily or otherwise, be provided.

(B) Creation of conditions in any affected area which will reassure the minorities that their interests and rights are fully safeguarded and will prevent exodus or will induce evacuees to return to their homes.

(2) It is further understood that a separate conference already agreed to is to be held to consider the special problems relating to the East and the West Punjab and the NWFP; it is recommended that this conference should also be held at a very early date.

Assam and East Bengal

(3) It is further recommended that separate Inter-Dominion conference should be called at an early date, in which representatives of East Bengal and Assam are present, and look into the question of persons who have been in Assam prior to partition into East Bengal.

2960. Press Note issued by the Government of West Bengal regarding measures for the protection of minorities.

Calcutta, April 30, 1948

Pursuant to the Agreement arrived at between the representatives of the two Dominions at the Inter-Dominion Conference held recently in Calcutta the Chief Secretaries to the Governments of West Bengal and East Bengal met at Dacca on the 26th April, 1948, and prepared drafts of certain instructions to their local officers for the successful implementation in spirit as well as in letter, of the decisions reached at the Conference. As a result, orders have been issued by the Government of West Bengal on the District Officers and other local officers as well as on the various Departments to take immediate steps in order that the broad objectives of the Agreement may be effectively fulfilled. The provisions of some of the principal directions are indicated below for the information of the general public.

2. The importance of living up to their responsibility for protecting the lives and property of the minority community has been impressed on Government servants of all grades. They have been asked in particular to ensure that the minority community receives justice and that their civic rights are fully safeguarded, that every citizen feels that he has equal rights, opportunities, privileges and obligations, that there is no discrimination against the minorities whose cultural, including educational, and religious rights are to be fully safeguarded and that complaints from minorities against oppression or unfair treatment are promptly and fairly looked into and early remedial measures taken. The various Departments of Government which deal with economic control in any form or with distribution of Government contracts, grants or any other patronage have been requested to issue necessary directives to ensure the implementation of the provision of the Agreement that steps should be taken to remove complaints regarding discrimination in the grant of export and import licences and railway priorities and for giving up all tendencies towards an economic boycott of the minorities or strangulation of their normal economic life.

3. In a separate communication local officers have been asked to give the widest publicity amongst all ranks of Government servants to the decisions that Government are determined not to tolerate on the part of any of their servants conduct prejudicial to the interests of the minority community. Any government servant found guilty either of dereliction of duty in protecting the lives and properties of the members of minority community or directly or indirectly ill-treating the members of that community or showing prejudice against that community in the discharge of their duties will be awarded exemplary and deterrent punishment. Local officers have also been asked to take effective steps to ensure that mischief-makers and rumour-mongers amongst the general public who attempt to create panic in the minds of the minority community are effectively prevented from indulging in such activities.

4. In a special communication the attention of local officers have been drawn to the provisions of the Agreement that searches of the person or of bona-fide personal luggage for contraband articles will be made only by duly authorized customs staff. They have been directed to take immediate steps to ensure that such searches as used to be made previously by the police, volunteer organizations or any other unofficial agency are discontinued forthwith. A check other than one involving the search of the person or personal luggage may, however, be made by the Police to prevent smuggling in bulk and the Police will continue to exercise their normal legal powers to search a person or his belongings when an offence has been committed or is reasonably suspected to have been committed.

5. Very early steps are being taken to implement other terms of the Agreement including that for the setting up of Provincial and District Minorities Boards.

6. The Government of East Bengal are issuing similar instructions to their local officers.

Office Memorandum

Subject: Inter-Dominion Conference held at Calcutta in April 1948 - implementation of the recommendations of -

The Governments of India and Pakistan have agreed that mass exodus of minorities is not in the interest of either Dominion and the Governments are determined to take every possible step to discourage such exodus and to create such conditions as would check mass exodus in either direction and facilitate as far as possible the return of evacuees to their ancestral homes. (2) Every citizen shall have equal right, opportunities, privileges and obligations and there shall be no discrimination against minorities whose culture and rights shall be fully safeguarded (‘cultural’ rights include ‘educational’ rights).

It is suggested that this may be brought to the notice of local bodies and Heads of Department.
(3) Propaganda for the amalgamation of India and Pakistan or portions thereof should be discouraged.

It is suggested that this decision may be brought to the notice of the higher officers of Government and also given publicity through a Press note.

2962. Letter from the Premier of Assam to Home Minister Sardar Patel for checking immigration of Pakistani Muslims.
May 5, 1948.

CAMP : Mangaldai
5 May 1948

Respected Sardarji,

As regards the main question of the Inter-Dominion Conference, I have already written to you in some detail, but the situation is getting more complex every day. A large number of Muslims and Hindus are entering Assam - Hindus generally to town areas which, as you known, are very small in dimension. The result is that the towns are getting completely overcrowded and being rendered insanitary, with shortage of water supply and other major inconveniences. The Muslims, on the other hand, have entered into the Muslim Villages occupied by immigrants migrating to Assam during the last 35 years and are living in the houses of the old immigrants - some as agricultural labour, and others having money are purchasing holdings from the old immigrants.

The subject of migration and immigration is a Central one and the Government of Assam have to look with callousness and even with dismay at the on-rush of these people. The ingress of Hindu immigrants has been mainly due to fear complex on the one hand and the discriminatory treatment by the Pakistan Government against the richer section of the people. The exercise of option by officers, against which I protested so strongly, has been another very important reason (for) this immigration. This immigration of Hindus into India can therefore be understood. But the immigration of large numbers of Muslims is indeed very difficult to explain unless we read it in the perspective of what Pakistan is doing in Hyderabad and Kashmir and what Pakistan aspired after, in respect of Assam before the partition of India. We have therefore come to the conclusion that if Assam is to continue as part of India it must be allowed to exercise the power of restricting the ingress of people, not only for avoiding an economic breakdown of the province but also for maintaining communal harmony which has so long been maintained in spite of Hindus and Muslims from outside trying to create a communal war. My Secretary has accordingly requested your Secretariat to give us powers to take appropriate action to prevent immigration of undesirable people into Assam.

Yours sincerely
Gopinath Bardoloi

The Hon'ble Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel,
New Delhi.
2663. Letter from Cabinet Secretariat, Pakistan Government to Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs regarding implementation of the decisions of the Inter Dominion Conference relating to the minorities.

Government of Pakistan
Cabinet Secretariat
Karachi

NO. 315 - Cord/48 the 25th of May, 1948

From : The Secretary General to the Government of Pakistan

To : The Secretary,

Sub: Implementation of the Calcutta Inter Dominion Agreement of 19-4-48 Paragraphs 5 and 7 of Section I and Last paragraph of Section IV.

Sir,

I am directed to invite your attention to the Agreement reached at the Inter-Dominion Conference held at Calcutta from 15th April to 19th April 1948, copy of which has been forwarded to you under Cabinet Secretariat No. 55/CF/48 dated 15-5-48, requesting you to give effect in letter and spirit to the measures contemplated therein, outlined in brief in the "Note for Cabinet" attached thereto.

2. While the responsibility to watch the over-all implementation of the Agreement is that of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Commonwealth Relations as indicated in Section II of the "Note for Cabinet", and all the Ministries would no doubt keep that Ministry in touch with all developments Cabinet Secretariat is particularly concerned with paragraphs 5 and 7 of Section I and last paragraph of Section IV. The following action should be taken in regard to the matters mentioned in these paragraphs:

All complaints received from the minority communities in Pakistan against oppression or unfair treatment should be promptly and carefully investigated and full effort made to redress their grievances. Adequate measures should be taken in each case to instill confidence and give the assurances of justice and fair play to the minorities. Each individual case can be the basis of adverse propaganda or the proof of our goodwill towards the minority communities and Pakistan officials should see that it becomes the latter. It is requested that the Ministries should send reports to the Cabinet Secretariat in the beginning of each month covering all actions taken by them or the Departments under their control in this connection. The information Division are requested in particular to bring to the notice of individual Ministries/Departments concerned any case of oppression or maltreatment of minorities that may come to their notice through the Press. As regards complaints of minorities in India the Ministry of Foreign Affairs & Commonwealth Relations would be the coordinating agency as indicated in the "Note for Cabinet" and reports in this connection should be sent to them.

4. Paragraph 7 of Section I: Action against Govt. servants guilty of discrimination against minorities.

The Ministries are requested to impress both on their own official and the officials of the Department under their control that the actions of any Government Servant found guilty of discrimination against minorities will be very seriously viewed and may involve severe punishment. The Government servants are expected to treat the members of the minorities justly and even generously and must not harass or ill-treat them directly or indirectly. In accordance with the Islamic principles and traditions they should give protection to their lives and properties and instill confidence in them by giving proper consideration and sympathy.
Any inclination or attempt at discrimination should be effectively curbed.
Government servants must become models of toleration and understanding so that the Government which they represent remains beyond blemish. The Ministries and Departmental heads should duly announce and enforce these principles.

5. Last paragraph of Section IV: Liaison & Co-ordination

While the preceding paragraph relates to the attitude of Pakistan officials towards the members of the public especially those of the minority communities, this paragraph relates to their dealings with officials of the Government of India. It is considered that unless there is mutual goodwill and coordination and cooperation at all levels between the officers of the two Dominions, it is well-nigh impossible to carry out the provisions of Agreements reached and to ensure the good results aimed at in them. Officers of the Pakistan Government should try to maintain personal contact with their counterparts in the Government of India and smoothen out small differences and petty obstacles by personal reference and where possible joint meetings. Minor difficulties and avoidable delays are easily eliminated in this way. Secretaries and Heads of Department are requested to impress upon their officers and subordinates the great need for and immense advantages in mutual goodwill and personal contacts. It is urged upon all that in order to honour our part of the Agreement and not to allow any occasion for complaint, it is the duty of all Government Servants to constantly bear in mind the principles indicated in this and the preceding paragraphs and to abide faithfully by them.

6. The above instructions are supplementary to and amplify the measures asked for in the Agreement and constant reference to the provisions of the original Agreement is requested to ensure that all that is required to be done is actually done.

7. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs & Commonwealth Relations are requested to have these instructions forwarded to the acceding States.

2664. Letter from The Government of Pakistan to the Chief Secretaries of the Provincial Governments in Pakistan regarding implementation of the Inter-Dominion Conference on minorities.

Government of Pakistan
Ministry of Interior
Information and Broadcasting Division

No.5/23/48 IP dated 26/27th May, 1948

I am directed to say that at the Inter-Dominion Conference, held at Calcutta in April last both Governments recognized that the wholehearted co-operation of the Press was essential for creating a better atmosphere and accordingly agreed that every effort should be made, in consultation with the representatives of the Press wherever possible, to ensure that the Press in each Dominion did not:

(a) Indulge in propaganda against the other Dominion,

(b) publish exaggerated versions of the news of character likely to inflame, or cause fear or alarm to, the population or a section of the population in either Dominion,

(c) publish material likely to be construed as advocating a declaration of war
by one Dominion against the other Dominion or suggesting the inevitability of war between the two Dominions.

The Government of Pakistan are keen to see the implementation of this decision. I am therefore, to request that necessary action may kindly be taken to ensure that your Publicity Department watch the press, especially the vernacular press, for compliance with the decision referred to. The cases of non-compliance if any may be reported to this Division as and when necessary.

2665. Telegram from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan.

New Delhi, September 14, 1948.

No. PRIMIN. 1591.

Please refer to your telegram No 3445 dated 10th September. I regret that owing to heavy pressure of business requiring immediate attention I could not answer it earlier.

2. I am sorry to say that there is much in your telegram which is highly controversial*. I do not, however, intend that relations between the two Dominions should be exacerbated by indulgence in charges and counter charges or angry dialectics. I have more than once told you of the vital importance that we attach to the protection of the life, property and honour of all minorities, including Muslims, in India. The pity of it is that incidents, which are not of our making and which we regret and deplore as much as anybody, are misunderstood and greatly exaggerated in order to throw doubts upon our good faith. I think you will agree that, so long as responsible persons in Pakistan think and speak on these lines, there cannot be that measure of understanding between the two Governments on this problem that you and, I assure you, all of us here desire. Tolerance towards all minorities and full rights of citizenship for Muslims as well as impartial enforcement of law and order are our watchwords.

3. I do not quite know what measures you have in mind for devising ways and means for preserving the interests of minorities in each Dominion. If you have any suggestions to make, I shall be happy to consider them most carefully.

* Liaquat Ali had claimed that Pakistan alone had been extending its hand of friendship to India.
Please refer to your telegram No 3609 dated the 21st September 1948*. I deeply appreciate your friendly response to my telegram Primin 1591 dated September 14th. I particularly welcome the essentially human approach which you have indicated in your telegram to the solution of the problems that confront us. I agree entirely that only by reasoned and dispassionate discussion between representatives of the two Dominions of the problems that remain for solution would we reach a proper understanding by each of the other's point of view and the establishment of real peace between India and Pakistan.

2. There is no doubt that among the most important of these problems is the creation in the minds of the minorities in each Dominion of the feeling that, irrespective of their numbers and the religion they profess, every one of them will have the same full rights and protection as any person belonging to the majority. The time has come for us to forget once for all the horrors that were perpetrated in the two Dominions before and after partition. I am glad you consider that the position now has greatly improved and that we should set about taking steps to ensure that peace is not disturbed again.

3. I would only add this; while any deviation in one Dominion from just treatment of minorities cannot altogether fail to have repercussions in the other, I and my Government are determined to use all our resources in preventing any such repercussions in India on account of happenings to minorities in Pakistan and to ensure that no member of any minority in India shall be allowed to suffer in life, honour or property merely because minorities in the other Dominion are suffering in these respects.

4. I welcome the idea of an inter-Dominion conference for this purpose as soon as we are able to arrange for one. It will however be necessary, in the meanwhile, for each of us to evolve some concrete suggestions for achieving what both of us have in mind and to see from now that all the agreements that we have already entered into are implemented to the full.

Liaquat Ali Khan said that “It is only by a reasonable and dispassionate discussion of various problems… that we can hope to promote peace and understanding between our two countries… Regrettable events took place before and after partition resulting in large movements of population. The position has now largely stabilized itself and it should be our aim to see that minorities are completely safeguarded…’”. He assured Nehru that he and his Government wanted “to do everything to protect life, honour and property of non-Muslim as fully as that of Muslims…’.
2967. Extract from the Speech of Deputy Prime Minister Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel warning Pakistan if Hindus were driven out of East Bengal, it must part with sufficient land for their rehabilitation.

Nagpur, November 4, 1948.

* * *

One problem alone is a sources of great worry to us. Lakhs of men are coming from East Bengal to West Bengal. What are we to do about it? When the Punjab was partitioned, Hindus and Sikhs came here and we are still shouldering the burden that has been thrown on us. They drove out Sindhis from the Sindh and Hindus and Sikhs from the North-West Frontier Province. The position in Frontier is such that those who sacrificed themselves for the sake of freedom have been clapped in jail. Patriots of the status of the Khan Brothers are imprisoned. There are 125 lakhs of Hindus in East Bengal. In the Punjab we could put the Hindus and Sikhs in place of Muslims who had left. What are we going to do about the Hindus from East Bengal? Think of the vast problem that has presented itself to us by this question. Do you feel we have any time to get involved in narrow provincialism, while this problem is increasing in its dimensions? How can we solve this problem? We have to tell Pakistan plainly that the problem should either be solved amicably or it is likely to prove a source of trouble between the two Dominions. We are ready for all eventualities. If you are determined to turn out Hindus, you must part with sufficient land to enable us to settle them. We cannot take things lying down.

Following for Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru repeated Sardar Patel (Foreign please pass copy). Form Dr. B.C. Roy (Premier of West Bengal)

Just received another telegram from Sri Prakasa in continuation of telegram of 10th to me and repeated to you.

"If I remember aright I told you and other friends at Delhi that I fear Hindus will not stay in East Bengal as general mass of Muslims do not want them and so create situations inducing Hindus to leave. I also said strong action may be needed against PAKISTAN. I referred both in talk at GOPALSWAMI's and in my statement here to SERAJGUNJ and JESSORE incidents. I also referred to circular of Provincial Government to its officers to treat minorities justly and generously which I deliberately interpreted charitably for reasons mentioned in my earlier telegram and put SERAJGUNJ ad JESSORE incidents to local officers inability to withstand public opinion which desires Hindus to go.

I still feel that it is necessary for responsible Indian authorities in public statements to credit Government at the top with good intentions on the basis of their public statements even if we are convinced to the contrary so that Hindus may be encouraged to stay and not to leave in panic till Govt. of India is able finally to decide to take strong action. If we attack Govt., Hindus will be encouraged to leave. To my mind it is best to counter "immediately" what is a fact namely the dislike of Muslims for Hindus whom they want to leave, than blaming local officers who unable to do justice in face of public anti-Hindu opinion. Lastly comes stage for attacking Govt. at top for inability to control mass hysteria also injustice and improper conduct on part of local officers. That will properly justify our ultimate strong action."

From Jawaharlal Nehru for Bidhan Roy.

Thank you for your letter of 20th November. Fully appreciate what you say, but I am still definitely of opinion that larger interests of West Bengal and India require us to take long distance dispassionate view and not be pushed about by Pakistan’s misbehaviour. Any claim for territory is completely unreal. It only means, not only in eyes of Pakistan but of the world, that we are thinking in terms of war with Pakistan. This must necessarily add to the exodus greatly apart from other unfortunate consequences. I known something about foreign opinion on this issue as I have discussed it abroad. I have no objection to some military being stationed in occupied chars provided there is no great show of force anywhere and strict injunctions are given to military and police to avoid incidents.

In regard to Pakistan’s proposal for status quo pending amicable settlement after joint survey, it is clear so far as we are concerned that status quo must be based on present possession and occupation. This can be stated to Pakistan in accepting their proposal. You will be seeing Liaquat Ali Khan soon. It is desirable that you should talk to him on these lines other wise situation will deteriorate.

2970. Extract from the speech of Deputy Prime Minister Sardar Patel at the Jaipur session of the All India Congress Committee on the problem of East Bengal Hindus.

Jaipur, December 17, 1948.

* * * * *

The problem of East Bengal is difficult. There are about 15 million Hindus there. They are weak and soft. The people of the Punjab were different. They were strong they could assert themselves and fight.

The people of East Bengal are in a sad plight. Nobody wants to leave his own hearth and home without any reason. After all in India they would have to starve.
It is because conditions in which they live there are bad that they migrate to India. This was one of the important questions that was recently discussed at the Inter-Dominion Conference, and let us hope that a satisfactory agreement will be reached. The issue is undoubtedly serious, and its seriousness has been made clear to Pakistan. The Hindus who have left East Bengal and are now in India as refugees must return there. India cannot undertake that burden and will be faced with serious problems if they were to remain here and others were to follow.

The Pakistan Government must create conditions for the peaceful stay of these persons in their own homes. They must protect them from harassment or persecution. They must be assured that their lives would not be in danger in Pakistan. I suggested some time ago that if the Hindus in very large numbers were made to leave East Bengal on account of unsatisfactory conditions created there, the Pakistan Government should provide additional space for their settlements. This suggestion was made as one of the methods of solution at this difficult problem by mutual discussions and agreement. It was not intended as a challenge or as an imposition by force.

I have no aggressive intentions against Pakistan, and I believe that the two Dominions must settle this problem amicably and by mutual discussions. I always desire peace. If I did not, I could not have spent a life with Gandhiji. I do not hesitate in saying that I feel, whether it displeases Hindus, Muslims or anybody else. I admit that I do so in blunt language, but to learn the proper language, I shall have to spend next birth also with Gandhiji. It is possible there may be other methods by which this problem can be solved, but if Pakistan has any alternative solution, she must put it down, so that we can discuss it amicably together. Whatever I am saying is not merely in the interests of the refugee, but also for the good of Pakistan. It is for Pakistan now to take concrete steps to solve the problem otherwise India cannot undertake the burden of these refugees and will be crushed under its weight.
Office Memorandum from the Ministry of Home Affairs to the Provincial Governments in India.

No.51/248/IV/48-Public. the 31st December 1948

Government of India
Ministry of Home Affairs

From: E.C. Gaynor, Esquire, Deputy Secretary to the Government of India

To: All Provincial Governments and the Chief Commissioners New Delhi-3.

Subject: Inter Dominion Conference between India and Pakistan held at New Delhi in December, 1948.

Sir,

I am directed to invite the attention of the Government of Madras/etc. to this Ministry's Circular Office Memorandum No.57/14/48 Political, dated 5th May 1948, on the subject of implementation of the recommendations of the Inter Dominion Conference at Calcutta in April 1948 and to state that inasmuch as the Calcutta Agreement has not succeeded in checking the exodus of the Minorities, the Government of both the Dominions have, in the recent Inter-Dominion Conference, held at New Delhi, reaffirmed that such mass exodus is not in the interest of either Dominion and that they are determined to take every possible step to discourage the exodus and create such conditions as would check it in either direction. To achieve these objects and with a view to encouraging and facilitating as far as possible the return of evacuees to their ancestral homes, the two Government have reached a new Agreement during the Inter-Dominion conference held at New Delhi from 6th of 14th December 1948 containing among other the following important decisions concerning the Minorities and for the protection of their lives and properties and safeguarding the civic rights and liberties:-

(1) The responsibility for protecting the lives and property of the minority communities and for ensuring that they receive justice and that their civic rights are fully safeguarded rests on the Government of Dominion in which the minorities reside. The allegiance and loyalty of the minorities is to the State of which they are citizens and it is therefore their right and duty to have their grievances redressed by the Government of their own State. Leaders in each Dominion should make public declaration to this effect at every suitable opportunity as part of the implementation of the provisions of the Agreement.
(2) (i) In Pakistan and in India every citizen shall have equal rights, opportunities, privileges and obligations; and there shall be no discriminations against the minorities whose cultural and religious rights shall be fully safeguarded.

N.B. "Cultural" rights include "education" rights.

(ii) Where direct recruitment is made otherwise than by open competition, minorities shall be given fair representation in the services.

(3) Any propaganda for the amalgamation of Pakistan and India or of portions there of including East Bengal on the one hand and West Bengal or Assam or Cooch Bihar or Tripura on the other, shall be discouraged.

N.B. The word "propaganda" shall be taken as including any organization which might be set up for the purpose.

(4) Complaints from minorities in both the Dominions, that action is not taken on their reports against oppression or unfair treatment, should be promptly and fairly looked into and early remedial measures taken.

(5) The two Dominions and their Provincial Government shall declare and make it widely known to their officers and other employees that any Government servant proved to have been guilty either of dereliction of duty in protecting the lives and properties of the members of the minority community or of directly or indirectly ill-treating the members of the minority community or showing prejudice against the minority community in the discharge of his duties, shall receive exemplary and deterrent punishment and such punishment shall be given full publicity in each Dominion.

(6) Sever action shall be taken against any person or group of persons creating or attempting to create any apprehension or fear of insecurity or alarm in the minds of the minority communities.

2. The new Delhi Agreement includes all the terms of the Calcutta Agreement on which necessary instructions have been issued but as that Agreement has not been implemented, I am to request that the Government of Madras/etc. should bring to the notice of all concerned the terms of this Agreement and the earlier instructions issued in this behalf and also issue such fresh instructions as appear necessary. Copies of any fresh instructions issued may be forwarded to the Government of India in the Ministries of Home Affairs and External Affairs & Commonwealth Relations (C.R. Wing).

Yours faithfully

New Delhi, June 5, 1949

My dear Premier,

Thanks you for your letter of the 1st June. There is little doubt that the East Bengal Government and officials have no intention of settling down in friendship with West Bengal or with the minorities in their own province. I had a long talk with Col Jiwan Singh of the Noakhali Gandhi Ashram. The impression I got was that their attempt to squeeze him and his co-workers out in continuous. At the same time I felt that, for some reason or other, the East Bengal Government did not wish to take any extreme steps. They were quite nervous of other consequences ensuing. Anyhow, I have advised Jiwan Singh to remain at Noakhali whatever happens. If he and his co-workers leave, then the minority in Noakhali will be frightened and will tend to move themselves. In fact the effect on progress will be bad. I have asked Jiwan Singh to carry on there in spite of every difficulty. On the whole he should concentrate on the Noakhali area and not tour about East Bengal. He should of course come from time to time to West Bengal to meet you and others.

The whole question of East Bengal is tagged on to larger issues concerning India and Pakistan. I do not myself see any swift solution of these issues, though I have little doubt they will be solved some time or other. Till then we have to hold on in East Bengal and try to prevent minorities from coming away. It is obvious that any further emigration of minorities to West Bengal will be a calamity for all of us.

Jiwan Singh spoke to me about a proposal of his to take back some middle class families to East Bengal from West Bengal. He told me that he had discussed this matter with you fully and that you had agreed with the proposal. This amounts to utilizing a part of the money which would be spent on relief or rehabilitation of these families going back. No further expenditure in involved. I think it will be a very good idea if this could be done, but to begin with it must be done on a small scale only and without any fuss or publicity…

Yours sincerely

Jawaharlal Nehru
2973. Press Note issued by the Government of East Bengal on the minorities in that province.

Government have in recent weeks remarked a tendency on the part of Indian leaders in their statements, to revive the exploded myth of persecution and exodus of the Hindu minority in East Bengal. Non-official organizations, such as the Council for the Protection of Rights of Minorities, have also with the tacit backing of the Indian authorities, joined in the chorus of anti-Pakistan propaganda and have not scrupled to distort even the East Bengal Government's census of evacuee property in the province, carried out with a view to implementing the Inter-Dominion agreement on Evacuee Property Management Boards, into an alleged diabolical plan to force a mass exodus of the minority community.

The Government are confident that this revival of an already discredited bogey will completely fail to impress the outside world. The patent absurdity of this propaganda and the glibness with which false figures are quoted may be illustrated by a recent statement of the Indian Prime Minister that although (according to him) 15 Lakhs of Hindus had migrated to India, the number still in this Province was 1 crore 50 lakhs, whereas the total Hindu population of East Bengal according to the last census is only 1 crore 17 lakhs, and when it is common knowledge that, owing to the lull earlier this year in war hysteria in India and in Indian propaganda against the East Bengal administration, all the Hindus, barring a few thousand, who had migrated to West Bengal have returned to their homes in this province. Nor have the Government any doubt that the propaganda will not in any way unsettle the East Bengal minority, who remain perfectly confident in the provincial administration and conscious of the security in which they are conducting their lives.

The deeper and more sinister move behind this renewed propaganda campaign, which this Government must regard with some concern, is clearly to prepare the ground for the mass expulsion of Muslims from Assam, which is foreshadowed in a Bill shortly to be introduced in the Indian Legislature. Justification for this proposed measure is sought in allegation that during recent months there has been a large scale and continuous immigration of Muslim settlers from East Bengal into Assam. From information at their disposal this Government are in a position most emphatically to deny that any such movement has taken place, and they are constrained to conclude that the intention of the Government of Assam is to redouble the rigours of the notorious "line system", by which Muslim settlers on reserved land who cannot prove occupation before 1938 are liable to summary eviction, so as to force a mass exodus of Muslims into East Bengal in an effort to disrupt this province's economy. It needs to be emphasized that these settlers, who were all in possession of their lands in Assam before August 1947, are indisputably Indian nationals, and their expulsion to the neighbouring Dominion is therefore a completely unjustifiable and at the same time extremely momentous step fraught with unpredictable consequences. Moreover, it was agreed in the New Delhi Inter-Dominion Conference of December, 1948 that this problem should be discussed at Ministerial level, but an attempt has been made by the Indian Union to invoke this provision of the Agreement before embarking on its unilateral policy of expulsion of Muslims from Assam which cannot but have the most undesirable repercussions.

2974. Note from Pakistan High Commission in India to the Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, January 23, 1950.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India

New Delhi

The Pakistan High Commission in India present their compliments to the Government of India, Ministry of External Affairs, New Delhi, and have the honour to say that of late the Government of Pakistan have been watching with concern a tendency on the part of the Indian leaders in their statements to revive the incredible myth of the persecution of the Hindu Minority in East Bengal and their exodus from the province. Non-official organizations such as the Council for the Protection of the Rights of Minorities have also, apparently with the tacit support of the Indian authorities joined in the chorus of this anti-Pakistan propaganda and have even unscrupulously distorted the East Bengal Government's Census of Evacuee Property in the Province, which was carried out with the singular object of implementing the Inter-Dominion Agreement on Evacuee Property Management Boards, into an alleged sinister plan on the part of the Government of East Bengal to force a mass exodus of the Hindu minority from East Bengal. To illustrate an example, the Hon'ble Prime Minister of India in a recent statement, is reported to have declared that although (according to him) 15 lakhs of Hindus from Pakistan have migrated to India, there were still 1 crore and 50 lakhs Hindus in East Bengal, whereas according to the last census the total number of Hindus in that province was 1 crore and 17 lakhs only.
The Government of Pakistan feel that the only motive behind this renewed propaganda campaigns is clearly to prepare the ground for mass expulsion of Muslims from Assam, which is foreshadowed in a Bill shortly to be introduced in the Indian Legislature, justification for which is sought in the false allegations that during recent months there has been continuous immigration on a large scale, of Muslim settlers from East Bengal into Assam. The Government of Pakistan most emphatically deny that any such movement has taken place. They have reason to conclude that by making such baseless allegation the intention of the Assam Government is to redouble the rigors of the notorious Line System by which the Government of Assam seek to make Muslim settlers on reserved lands, who cannot prove their occupation of the lands before 1938, liable to summary eviction and thus to force a mass exodus of Assam Muslims into East Bengal with a view to disrupt the economy of that Province. It need hardly be emphasized that these Muslim settlers, who were all in possession of their lands in Assam before August, 1947, are indisputably nationals of the Indian Dominion, and their expulsion to the neighbouring Dominion is, therefore, wholly unjustifiable. Moreover, it was agreed in the Inter-Dominion Conference held in New Delhi in December, 1948 that this problem should be discussed at ministerial level. The Government of Pakistan regret to observe that no attempt has been made by the Governments of India to invoke this provision of the Inter-Dominion Agreement before embarking on their arbitrary policy of expulsion of Muslims from Assam, which cannot but have most undesirable repercussions in Pakistan.

The Government of Pakistan, therefore, feel constrained to lodge a protest with the Government of India against the renewed anti-Pakistan propaganda campaign espoused by the Indian leaders and against the discriminative policy of the Government of Assam against the Muslim minority of that province.

The Pakistan High Commission take the opportunity to renew to the Government of India the assurances of their highest consideration.

The Ministry of External Affairs,
Government of India, New Delhi.

Letter from Chief Minister of West Bengal to Premier of East Pakistan.

Calcutta, February 3, 1950.

D.O.No.880/C.

Dear Janab Nurul Amin,

I am constrained to address you about the deplorable state of lawlessness which has been prevailing in the Bagerhat Sub-Division, District Khulna, East Bengal for the past few weeks, reports about which are daily reaching this Government through eye-witnesses and destitute and panic-stricken men and women moving out of the disturbed area in increasing numbers. I presume that you too have received reports about these happenings but, for the sake of convenience, the incidents narrated by the eyewitnesses and sufferers and as reported in the Press here are summarized below. These reports are corroborated by other materials reaching this Government from reliable sources.

2. It is reported that the Police, along with Ansars, went to the house of a member of the minority community in village Kalshira at dead of night on the 20th December, 1949, in search of an alleged communist suspect. Being unable to trace the man the Police began to assault mercilessly the inmates, including the women, plundered their belongings and set fire to the house. The wife of the suspected man was then brutally assaulted and ravished. Attracted by the piteous cries of the inmates of the house, the neighbours rushed to their help and in order to save the women resisted the assailants as a result of which one of the policemen is reported to have died. On receipt of this news the Senior Inspector of Police visited the village with a large police force on 22nd December, 1949, and ordered the looting of villages Kalshira and Kharia. Thereafter a violent Muslim mob, supported by the police, began to loot and plunder, assault and murder the Hindu men, ravish the Hindu women, forcibly convert or kidnap Hindu men and women and otherwise oppress them. Village after village was thus ravaged including Bennyabari, Ruiya, Dumuria, Rayerkul, Sonakhali and Chithalmari. In some cases the entire village has been looted and ransacked and the Hindus forced to evacuate en masse as a result of oppression. A statement showing some of the many reports of atrocities, including rape, forcible conversion, murder, extortion loot, arson, assault, desecration of places of worship etc. that have reached this Government is enclosed (Not included here) for your information. Additional gruesome details have come to notice after the statements had been prepared.

3. For over three weeks no news of what had happened could go outside the troubled areas as the local Muslims and the Ansars prevented people from going in or coming out of the group of villages which they had effectively cordoned off. Muslim boatmen refused to carry Hindus passengers and even the railway station was closely guarded by the Ansars lest any Hindu could get into the trains. Afflicted men and women, however, ultimately managed to trickle through the cordon and cross into West Bengal. During the month of January, 1950, over 12,000 refugees, mostly agriculturists and belonging to the scheduled castes entered the Bongaon area of the 24 Parganas district alone. There is no sign of any slowing down of the exodus and more refugees are pouring in at the rate of about 500 per day. Their reposts show that the reign of terror still continues in the area. It appears that those who have ventured to make complaints to the authorities are being arrested by the Police and while in their custody being assaulted by the lawless elements but the known culprits are moving about freely. The incidents were reported to your Chief Secretary by my Chief Secretary in telegram No. 186 I.D., as early as on the 19th January, 1950, with the request to take steps to allay panic and stop exodus. You will be surprised to know that no action appears to have been taken in the matter by your Government as yet. Not even an acknowledgement of the telegram has yet been received.

4. I am to observe that the situation in the area has been allowed to become such that unless immediate steps are taken by your Government to allay the panic of the minority community, there will be a fresh mass exodus on a large scale from this as well as other parts of East Bengal. In spite of our best efforts, there is a risk of possible repercussions on this side of the border unless your Government take drastic steps to punish all evil-doers. In the common interests of both the States and the well-being of the minorities of either state, I request you to look into this serious matter personally. I shall be grateful to have from you an up-to-date correct version of the incidents and information as to what measures your Government have taken so far or propose to take to meet the situation. As already suggested in this Government letter No. 311 CR dated the 1st February, 1950, it is imperative that the matter be discussed at an early session of the Chief Secretaries’ Conference.

5. Reports of serious occurrences in other parts of East Bengal also have reached this Government and I propose to write to you shortly on these also.

6. I shall be grateful for a very early reply.

Yours sincerely,
Sd/- B.C. Roy

The Hon’ble Mr. Nurul Amin,

2976. Telegram from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan.

New Delhi, February 17, 1950.

No 22099 17th February, 1950

Having seen your statement* published in Dawn of February fourteenth on the recent happening in the two Bengals, I am surprised that the happenings in East Bengal should have been minimized and the happenings in West Bengal should have been exaggerated out of all proportion. The picture conveyed by this statement is a distorted one. According to reports received by us, the incidents in Khulna sometime ago, and in Dacca, Barisal and other places more recently have been of a very serious character. We have received most harrowing accounts of suffering undergone by non-Muslims in different parts of East Bengal. We greatly deplore the recent incidents in Calcutta. These were due to the working up of communal feelings, but they cannot be compared in gravity and extent with the happenings in East Bengal. We believe that they were the repercussions of the large scale suppression and humiliations to which the minority community have been subjected during the last three months over large areas in East Bengal. The situation in Calcutta has been quiet for the last three days and I have every reason to believe that it is under complete control now. For months preceding the incidents in Khulna district, the communal situation in East and West Bengal was normal. In our view the incidents in Calcutta were precipitated by the cruel treatment of large numbers of non-Muslims in Bagerhat sub-division of Khulna district resulting in large scale migration to West Bengal and the failure of the East Bengal Government to deal with the situation quickly and effectively. Even now reports are reaching us of alleged attacks on minorities in various parts of East Bengal and also of the serious condition of a large number of refugees who are now in camps.

There are no means of our ascertaining the magnitude of the happenings in East Bengal today. In the absence of such information the issue of non-committal official statements serves no useful purpose. Perhaps, on your side also unauthorized and exaggerated reports may be creating difficulties. There can be no doubt that communal passions have been roused and, I hope, you will agree that immediate steps should be taken to restore confidence in the minds of the minorities in both Bengals. It seems to me that the immediate thing to do would

* Liaquat Ali Khan issued a statement on February 13 that communal riots in Calcutta and other parts of West Bengal had led to exodus to East Bengal. These outbreaks had repercussions in Dhaka. The Khulna incident was said to be non-communal in character and an attempt by the communists to create trouble, but it was given wide publicity and a communal colour by the Calcutta press.
be for each Government to give facilities to the Deputy High Commissioner of the other Government to freely visiting areas alleged to be affected and ascertaining the facts. In addition, with a view to inspire confidence in the public mind, I suggest that joint commission be appointed for touring round the affected areas and collecting reliable information on the basis of which the two Governments might evolve a plan for the restoration and maintenance of communal peace. I would earnestly ask you to agree to these suggestions. Two fact-finding commissions may be appointed one for East Bengal and the other for West Bengal. Each commission may consist of two representatives each, nominated by East and West Bengal Governments, of whom one should be a minister. East commission should ascertain facts about the happenings that have taken place since the 1st December 1949 as well as assess the existing situation and prospects of its improving. The particular incidents which should form the subjects of fact finding in either province should be left to be indicated by the Government of the other province. I attach, however, the greatest importance to getting the commissions appointed at once and to their starting work without loss of time if possible, within a week at the latest. They should be instructed to complete their work and submit their reports at the earliest possible date.

I feel most strongly that you and I must jointly guide the handling of the situation and unless the governments of the two countries take immediate action on the lines suggested, we shall be failing in the duty that we owe to the minorities in our respective countries, the restoration of confidence amongst whom is vital to the maintenance of friendly relations between us. Request immediate reply.

I am sending a copy of this telegram to the Premier, East Bengal Government and another copy to the Chief Minister, West Bengal.

My dear Nawabzada,

I have sent you a telegram this evening suggesting that two joint commissions should be appointed to visit East and West Bengal to ascertain the facts. My proposal does not mean that we should have elaborate enquiries, but rather that a fairly quick overall survey might be made by representatives of East and West Bengal. The advantage of this is obvious. Both our Governments as well as both the Provincial Governments will be in possession of a more or less reliable report of recent events and the existing situation. In addition to this the mere visit of such a joint commission would help in lessening the apprehension of many people and thus lessen the abnormalities of the present situation.

I have made this proposal with a feeling of great urgency and I earnestly trust that you will agree to it, so that we may take the steps proposed immediately. This is of course an essential preliminary step. It does not take us far. I am greatly exercised in mind over recent developments. It is not my desire to enter into an argument with you about what happened. But I want to tell you quite frankly that the accounts and the stories that have reached us about recent happenings in East Bengal have shocked me greatly. I am terribly sorry for what took place in Calcutta. But all the information at my disposal indicates that there is no comparison between Calcutta happenings and East Bengal happenings. It is little comfort, however, for either of us to measure and balance evil. Something has happened, which was not merely intensely evil in itself but it might be a portent of much greater evil.

It is patent that we cannot wait and watch supinely for tragedy to descend upon us, without making every effort to avert it. Both of us, in our respective spheres of activity, have to bear a terrible responsibility. The weight of this oppresses me and I have to question myself repeatedly as to whether I am discharging it adequately or not. We have tried repeatedly to meet in Inter-Dominion Conferences and sometimes it has appeared that things are on the mend. We thought that the situation as between East and West Bengal had stabilized itself and improved. Recent events have shown that we were mistaken and were deluding ourselves. For the moment it is immaterial as to where the fault lay, though I have my own clear views on this subject. The fact is, as I see it that conditions have arisen in East Bengal which made it exceedingly difficult for non-Muslims to live there with security. There will be an inevitable tendency on their part to migrate beyond the borders of Pakistan. It may be that there are a number of Muslims in West Bengal, who also desire to migrate. My own impression is that the latter number will be far smaller than the former.

The populations involved are enormous. It seems to me fantastic and totally impracticable to think in terms of these large migrations. It is equally impossible for us to look on, when millions of people live in a state of fear and apprehension and lack security, and there is constant danger of an eruption such as we have seen. Life is not worth living under these conditions and there cannot be any stability or normality.

That is the problem and I wish to place it before you frankly, because we seem to have explored many avenues of settling it without success. We have to face that problem in all its grim reality. That problem, in its wider aspects, takes many shapes. But for the moment I am confining it to East and West Bengal. We may carry on an argument in the press or platform, but that will not solve the problem. It will only make it worse. It has thus become absolutely imperative for us to come to clear conclusions as to how we can give complete security of person and property and mind and work to people who live either in East or West Bengal. If we cannot give that security, then critical conditions continue demanding other action.

I am writing this personal letter to you, because my mind is greatly troubled and is trying to seek some remedy for this evil that has descended upon us. The lives of millions of people are involved in it. It is no small matter and it will be a shame and tragedy of the worst kind, if we prove incapable of dealing with this situation.

Whatever else we may have to do, it seems to me incumbent that immediate steps should be taken to find out the facts. Any decision that we may have to take will have to be based on reality and not on surmise. Therefore, I earnestly trust that you will agree to the proposal to have joint commissions*.

Yours sincerely

Jawaharlal Nehru

Hon'ble Liaquat Ali Khan
Prime Minister of Pakistan
Karachi.

* Liaquat Ali Khan in his reply of 18 February turned down the proposal of two joint fact-finding commissions and suggested that a declaration of both Governments that they discouraged migrations from one part of Bengal to another be issued at once. The declaration should also assure that the two Governments would rehabilitate the minorities in their homes and protect their life and property.
Letter from Premier of East Bengal to the Chief Minister of West Bengal in reply to his letter of 4th February, 1950.

Dacca, February 18, 1950.

Dear Dr Roy,

Would you please refer to your D.O. No 880/C of the 4th February 1950, regarding the Bagerhat situation? I am bound to express regret that you should have chosen uncritically to retail the maliciously false reports that have been circulated with evil motive by certain interested parties in West Bengal. The true facts about the Bagerhat situation have been stated briefly in my Government press note on February 3rd but as in your letter you have asked for an up dated corrected version of the incidents, it may not be out of place to recapitulate the full story here.

On the 20th December 1949, a police party consisting of one Assistant Sub-Inspector and three constables, of whom only one was armed, while searching the house of one Joydeb Brahua of village Kalshira in Bagerhat Police Station recovered some incriminating material. This Joydeb Brahua was an accused in a case registered in Bagerhat Police Station on the 18th of December. While the Assistant Sub-Inspector was engaged in preparing the search list of the seized articles, a large mob of Namasudras armed with deadly weapons suddenly appeared on the scene and surrounded the police party. The armed constable was murdered on the spot and the other members of the party were assaulted and chased. If it had not been for the timely intervention of Ansars and other villagers from neighbouring village who rescued the police party, they would all have been murdered. As it was, they all received serious injuries. The dead body of the constable was put in a sack and removed by the miscreants. It has not been recovered. It should be added that for some time previous to this incident many processions of a definitely communist character had been taken out in Jhalordanga Bazar in which non-Muslims of Kalshira and other neighbouring villages had participated in large number shouting subversive slogans. After this attack on the police party, rumours were immediately spread by communists and other interested parties regarding the likelihood of police reprisals, and in consequence a large number of people from both Kalshira and Jhalordanga and neighbouring areas, which are inhabited almost exclusively by non-Muslims, immediately deserted their villages for West Bengal, taking with them whatever property they could. Since there was nobody to look after these deserted houses, some bad characters in the neighbourhood took advantage of this situation and helped themselves to some of the property that had been left behind in a number of houses. The District Magistrate, Khulna, accompanied by Hindu and Muslim non-officials inspected all the houses in Jhalordanga and Kalshira villages. In Jhalordanga no outward sign of looting could be found. The sheds and other structures in the Bazar were intact. Most of the houses were freshly mud-washed, the vegetables grown on the homestead land had not been touched and all the bedding, clothing and earthen utensils were there. The owners of some houses, however, did complain that their bedding and brass utensils had been taken away by some bad characters and enquiries were immediately instituted to trace these bad characters. In one house alone, the heads of two out of three images were found severed from the bodies, though images themselves bore no mark of violence and desecration. The non-Muslims themselves contradicted the story that deliberate damage to the images was caused and explained that according to the manner in which these images were made it was usual for the head itself to come apart from the body after a lapse of time. Articles belonging to some people in Jhalordanga Bazar were said to have been taken away by bad characters from the neighbouring villages. The members of the minority community there themselves stated that through the good offices of Muslims of the neighbouring villages some of them have got back their stolen property and that recovery of the articles was still going on. From the evidence of the members of the Scheduled Castes themselves it is clear that the story of desecration of images and organized locating and attacks on villages was a concoction. The District Magistrate assured the people that complaints lodged at the thana would be vigorously enquired into and that bad characters would be rounded up and severely punished. Action on these lines has in fact been since taken.

In Kalshira, the cattle and properties from some deserted homesteads had been stolen by bad characters, who according to the residents of the village included also non-Muslims from the neighbouring areas. After the murder of the police constable in the village many villagers immediately ran away in panic. The inhabitants are returning gradually, and some of them have found what they left behind has been pillaged. In those houses where the inmates refused to be panicky and stuck to their hearths and homes, nothing happened at all. There were no complaints of any high handedness on the part of the police. As a matter of fact, the members of the Scheduled Castes who remained behind definitely stated to the District Magistrate that the police showed unexpected restraint and sympathy. Many villagers have already recovered their lost cattle through the efforts of the police. Only two cases of criminal assault on women were reported and these have been registered and are being investigated.

A number of arrests have been made and police investigation is vigorously proceeding. Nowhere any allegation whatsoever was made about abduction or conversion. The District Magistrate visited also a large number of villages near Jhalordanga and Kalshira. Nothing at all had happened in any of these villages which are almost exclusively inhabited by members of the scheduled Castes.
2. I hope that this unvarnished recital of the true facts will serve effectively to dispel the wrong impression about the situation in Khulna which has been created in your mind by evil intentioned propaganda in West Bengal. For my part, I feel constrained to draw your urgent attention to certain extremely disquieting features of this episode, so far as reactions in West Bengal are concerned and of subsequent developments, which would seem to call for an immediate remedy in the interest of harmonious relations between East Bengal and West Bengal, as well as between the communities in both places. It is quite obvious, and has been for some time past, that certain organizations in India, notably the Hindu Mahasabha with its "storm toppers" the R.S.S. and the Council for the Protection of Rights of Minorities, who I am reliably informed, are now training their own "irregular army" apparently without interference from Government, have been engaged in deliberately whipping up communal passions with the clear intention of fishing in troubled waters. My Chief Secretary has during the past few months on more than one occasion drawn the attention of your Chief Secretary to the objectionable activities of the Hindu Mahasabha and the Council for the Protection of Rights of Minorities, and has underlined the dangerous possibilities inherent in the continuance of their violently anti-Muslim propaganda.

3. At the Chief Secretaries' Conference held in September last and subsequently he pressed for action against the Council under the West Bengal Security Ordinance. Despite the fact that the activities of this Council and its leaders are clearly actionable under that Ordinance, your Government have so far declined to take any action although they are bound to do so not only under their own Ordinance but also under the Delhi Inter-Dominion Agreement of 1948.
Similarly, under that Agreement both the Government of India and your Government are bound, as indeed they are also in accordance with their repeatedly declared policy of suppressing communal organizations in a Secular States, to suppress the Mahasabha and the R.S.S.; but not only has no action been taken against the Mahasabha but it was given the fullest freedom to organize violently anti-Pakistan and anti Muslim meetings in Calcutta and its proceedings were allowed to receive the widest publicity in West Bengal and other parts of India.

4. I now come to the genesis of the trouble in West Bengal. I am convinced that it is solely because of the notorious activities of the Mahasabha, the Council for the Protection of Minorities and other communal bodies and mischief-mongers, who found encouragement in certain unfortunate official pronouncements that widespread riots have occurred in West Bengal. What has obviously happened is that after its conference in Calcutta of December 24th and subsequent speeches of Dr Khare preaching the doctrines of hate against Pakistan and Muslims generally, the Mahasabha proceeded to work up to heightened pitch anti-Muslim feelings in West Bengal and to look about for an excuse to put its threats into action. That Bagerhat was not the real cause of this anti-Muslim venom is clearly proved by the fact that although the Bagerhat incident took place on December 20th there was no mention of it at any time during the Mahasabha conference in Calcutta or indeed until almost one month later. It was, in fact, not until after some unhappy references to the Muslim League "Direct Action Day," Noakhali and the "Irony" of Partition by India's Deputy Prime Minister in his Calcutta speech (January 15th) that the Mahasabha and other communal organizations and the West Bengal press saw their golden opportunity and decided to resurrect the Bagarhat incident.

5. The time lag between the Bagerhat incident and the reactions in West Bengal is sought to be explained away in your letter by the allegation that the affected area was cordoned off by local Muslims and Ansars in such a way as to prevent all contact with the outside world. I must frankly express surprise that you should have given credence to such a patently fantastic story. I would request you to consider the implications of this story quite dispassionately, and I am sure that you, with your intimate knowledge of East Bengal topography will agree that in such open country, inter-laced with numerous creeks and khals, a cordon of the nature alleged to have been imposed could never by any stretch of the imagination be affective. Even if some very small areas had been thus enclosed, the neighbouring villages outside the cordon - all predominantly Namasudra - would certainly have been able to send out news of what was going on and they would not have taken one month to reach West Bengal.

6. It was thus for the first time after Sardar Patel's speech that these communal organizations concocted and came out into the press with the story of mass looting, rape, conversion, murder and arson in Bagerhat and it was only then that the Bagerhat incident began to appear prominently in the West Bengal Press (Cf. Editorials in Ananda Bazar Patrika and Jugantar data 18th January 1950 and in Hindustan Standard as late as 2nd February 1950). Simultaneously, pamphlets and posters began to appear in Calcutta and other places in West Bengal demanding that the "atrocities" of Bagerhat be avenged. In this game the Mahasabha and the Council for the Protection of Minorities played the leading part. From January 19th incidents, including, desecration of mosques, began to occur in Bongaon. J.P. Mitter himself addressed a joint Mahasabha Council meeting at Bongaon on January 21st on January 24th a big meeting sponsored by the Hindu Mahasabha was held in Berhampore. Immediately thereafter Hindu mobs attacked the Muslim areas at Gorabazar and many other places in the district of Murshidabad. On January 24th the Muslims quarter at Dum Dum Cantonment was attacked and a mosque desecrated. From the 26th January similar incidents began to occur in Ultadanga, Maniktola and Beligaha. Of February 3rd a meeting was organized by the Council for the Protection of Rights of Minorities at Batanagar. At this meeting
J.P. Mitter stated, "There is no possibility of the Hindus getting any protection from theocratic Government of East Bengal and the only way to save minorities there is to divide East Bengal and set up a separate state for the minorities and the secular minded Muslims." He also referred to "atrocities committed on defenceless Hindu women and children in the village in Bagerhat Subdivision and in Barisal". One Benode Chakravarty also referred to abduction of women and forcible conversion in Khulna. On February 4th the following telegram purporting to have been sent by J.P. Mittar to President Truman was published in the West Bengal press:

"East Pakistan Government enraged at complaint against them to United Nations for oppression on Hindus have now inaugurated unparalleled reign of terror and ruthless persecution of minorities. Pakistan armed and police forces recently burnt, destroyed and looted several Hindu villages in Khulna; Barisal and Rajshahi rendering 50,000 unarmed men, women and children destitute and homeless. Many were killed and enceinte women raped in presence of husbands. Young Girls ravished in presence of parents. There has been large scale abduction of women and forcible conversion. Month-old babies snatched away from panic-stricken fleeing mothers and thrown in the river. Army and civil officials openly threatening complete annihilation of Hindus. Immediate intervention of civilized Government imperative, else peace in this region will be jeopardized."

On February 5th a communal riot broke out in Batanagar.

7. It was not until the end of January that my Government found, to their astonishment, how the Bagerhat incident was being twisted and that mischief was being done in West Bengal and realized the necessity of issuing a press note about what was until then only a minor domestic incident involving the police and a communist-inspired mob. A press note dealing with Begerhat was accordingly issued on February 3rd. Unfortunately, you immediately came out with a destructive statement, dubbed the press note as design to "delude the unwary or the uninformed" and by impugning the veracity of this Government and excusing the dangerous propaganda that was being carried on in the West Bengal Press (on the ground that the East Bengal Press was equally blame worthy) destroyed whatever value for peace this press note could have had in West Bengal. Subsequently you Government issued a press note on February 6th admitting, for the first time, the occurrence of communal riots in Murshidabad district and other parts of West Bengal. This press note, however, laid stress on provocation given by alleged events in East Bengal. It began: "Recent event in certain districts of East Bengal, for instances in Barisal, Jessore, Rajshahi and particularly Khulna have naturally caused a certain amount of excitement amongst the public in this State.... Certain designing persons have not been slow to take advantage of this excitement and attempted in isolated areas to create ill-feeling between the communities. Thus, not only did the Government of West Bengal disbelieve the statement by the Government of East Bengal, they allowed themselves to be made a party to the lying, inflammatory propaganda that was being carried on in West Bengal by communal organizations and the Calcutta Press. By implication they also excused communal riots in West Bengal on the plea or provocation given by mythical communal events in East Bengal, although until that day not a single communal incident worthy of note had taken place anywhere in East Bengal. The result of all the propaganda and the encouragement that evildoers thus indirectly received from official pronouncements was that large-scale anti-Muslim riots flared up in Calcutta and its industrial suburbs two days later, i.e. from February 8th.

8. On that day in your statement, although there was a welcome, though belated, pronouncement of your Government’s determination to put lawlessness, there was again the same underlying strain of excusing communal riots in West Bengal on the pleas of what was alleged to be happening in East Bengal. You said: "The difficulty was that they (West Bengal) did not known what the communal situation was in East Bengal… But certain happenings there not only caused an exodus from East to West Bengal - already 13,000 had arrived in Bongaon, but also fear was created in the minds of the minority in India" - statements which read in conjunction with your previous pronouncements and the press note could only suggest that some terrible things were happening in this province although again, until then, not a single communal riot had in actual fact taken place in this province. Even after very serious riots had broken out over large areas in Calcutta you continued unfortunately to follow the same line. Thus in your press note issued on February 9th your Government said: "News from East Bengal has come saying that the East Bengal Government will issue a statement regarding affairs in East Bengal. It is hoped that very soon peace and order will be restored in East Bengal. There is no need for any panic" -- an astounding statement to make for a responsible Governments in the midst of widespread communal riots in its own province when actually even until then there had not taken place the single case of disorder or breach of communal peace in this province. As pointed out in my telegram to you dated 14th the same line is again taken in your statement dated February 13th despite agreement at the Chief Secretaries’ Conference that nothing should be published which is likely to incite communal passions: "It seems clear that the two Bengals are so closely linked that events in Khulna provoked mob excesses in this city and its suburbs". This continual harping on the fact that the riots in West Bengal had been provoked solely by oppression on the minority community in East Bengal could only have, as apparently it did have, the effect of condoning and thereby encouraging the actions of those anti-Muslim forces who were out to wreck vengeance for imaginary wrongs on Muslims in West Bengal.
9. It was not until as late as February 10th that communal rioting broke out in this province for the first time since the partition. This, as you know happened in Dacca, and was directly the result of an almost continuous series of widespread riots that had been taking place in West Bengal according to your own Government's admission, since January 24th the rumours that followed in their wake and the arrival in Dacca of refugees bringing stories of atrocities committed on Muslims in West Bengal.

10. I hope the above will make it clear to you, chronologically and otherwise where exactly the blame for the widespread riots in West Bengal and the subsequent riots in Dacca lay.

11. However, that may be, the most urgent necessity of the hour is to prevent any further trouble on both sides of the border, to restore confidence and to rehabilitate those who have had temporarily to leave their homes as a result of these riots in their own homes again. For this purpose it is imperative that, although facilities may be granted on a limited scale to enable panic-stricken sufferers from these riots temporarily to move out of West Bengal to East Bengal and vice versa, there should be no mass transfer of refugees from riot-affected areas from your State to this province or in the reverse direction. In particular, I am anxious that refugees from Batanagar (most of whom come from Noakhali), Calcutta and other industrial areas should not be allowed to come to this province on any considerable scale as such persons would inevitably go to their homes throughout the province and with their tales may create further trouble in this province.

Yours sincerely,

Liquat Ali Khan for Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

2. Thank you for your telegram No. 22099 dated 17th February 1950. I observe that you have taken exception to my press statement but it is based on information available to me the accuracy of which I have NO reason to doubt. Neither can I accept that non-Muslims In East Bengal have bee humiliated or ill-treated in the past. When I was In East Bengal last October I myself found that non-Muslims had NO cause to complain against discourteous treatment by the majority community and relations between the two communities were friendly. I shall however let all controversy pass at this time and come straight to the solution of the problem.

3. I agree that we must concentrate above all on immediate steps to restore confidence in minority Communities on either side. I suggest the very first steps for this purpose should be to prevent the influx of refugees from both sides. It is clear that as previous experience has shown the presence of refugees is a potent source of trouble and stopping their arrival is of utmost Importance.

4. I suggest therefore that highest priority should be given to immediate rehabilitation of refugees particularly in Calcutta wherefrom a large scale exodus should be stopped at all cost. As you are aware the population of Calcutta contains a large element of people who have come from all districts of East and West Bengal and if they go back to their homes it is certain that mischief would spread all over a very wide area. I do hope you will impress upon West Bengal Government the need for keeping this in mind while checking exodus from Calcutta. I may mention that in spite of West Bengal Government’s appeal thousands of refugees are pouring into Dacca moreover large numbers of refugees from KARIMGANJ and Assam have also reached District of Sylhet. This is creating a very grave situation there.

5. I suggest that a declaration by both Governments that they do NOT favour and will do everything possible to discourage any movement of refugees should be issued at once. The declarations should also contain an assurance from the two Governments that all possible steps will be taken to rehabilitate the minorities in their homes and to see that they are given full protection of life and property.

6. I entirely agree that both Governments should give facilities to Deputy High Commissioners to visit freely areas alleged to be affected and to ascertain facts and am asking East Bengal Government accordingly. With regard to your proposal for a joint commission I would like of the fact of which you must be aware that this particular proposal was considered at Chief Secretaries’ Conference at Dacca on February 9th and that both Governments agreed that proposal was NOT likely to produce desired result and might conceivably have opposite result.

7. In the end I fully agree that restoration of confidence amongst minorities in both Countries is vital to maintenance of friendly relations between them. My Government and I are determined to do our utmost to bring about restoration of peaceful conditions in East Bengal and I trust that Government of India and you personally would do same in West Bengal and in other areas. The responsibility which is thrown on both of us is indeed great and we must jointly find a practical and lasting solution of this problem as early as possible.

2980. SECRET & PERSONAL

Letter from Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Prime Minister
Pakistan
Karachi

February 23, 1950

My dear Pandit Nehru,

I am very happy that you have written to me in the manner that you have. There is no doubt of the extreme urgency of the situation in East and West Bengal and of the need to put all our energies into resolving it. I fully agree with you that no goodwill come out of measuring the extent of the evil on either side, or to apportion blame. Recent events merely go to show, as did the events in the Punjab in 1947, to what low depths humanity can fall; and this realization is a frightening one. It needs something more than mere Governmental decrees to check this tendency. Nevertheless, we as heads of the two Governments concerned must take the steps best calculated to help.

It is because I am profoundly convinced that, administratively and politically, such a measure would hinder and not help the restoration of public confidence that I do not favour the formation of a fact-finding commission on the lines you have indicated. However summary the procedure, such Commissions drag on and, as we have seen from past experience, keep resentment and feelings of recrimination alive long after such feelings would, in the ordinary course, have died down of their own. The danger is real that a fact-finding commission will inevitably degenerate into a fault-finding commission; and this is a contingency that we are both agreed should be avoided at all costs. I notice that the Chief Secretaries of both East and West Bengal, who are experienced administrators, considered and rejected the proposal as unsound and undesirable on administrative grounds. I feel we should accept their recommendation.

To my mind, the fundamental principle is that we should create in the minds of the minority communities on either side the conviction that it is to their own Government that they should look for the redress of their wrongs and not to the Government across the border. The Government of Pakistan is prepared to make itself publicly responsible for the rehabilitation and resettlement of those Hindus who have suffered in recent rioting and I suggest that, for your part, your may also announce that the Government of India will do the same for the Muslims who have been rendered homeless and destitute as a result of the recent happenings in West Bengal. I consider that this alone will check the flow of refugees to either Dominion. Neither of us wants a repetition of what happened during and after the disturbances in the Punjab and elsewhere. We must make all attempts to check large-scale emigration. It must be brought home to the majority community that by reducing the minority community to destitution, it makes that minority into a burden on its own Government. So long as the Hindus in India feel that, by rendering Muslims destitute, they can force them to migrate to Pakistan, or the Muslims in Pakistan feel that by rendering Hindus destitute they can force them to migrate to India, the temptation to do so will persist.

Exchange of population was no part of the agreement under which Pakistan and India came into being. There has been unfortunately far too much of that already. It has created, as you know for yourself, a great many problems that have today placed the resources of Pakistan and India under a server strain. These periodic outbursts against a neighbouring community in either Dominion will end only when Hindus in India cease to regard the Muslim, just because he is a Muslim, as a potential citizen of Pakistan. Nor should it be impossible to convince the Hindu in Pakistan that his future lies in Pakistan where Providence has cast his lot. A great deal in this direction has already been achieved, as the numerous spontaneous declarations by prominent Hindus in East Bengal go to show. Conditions in East Bengal have returned to normal and I do not accept the view that the situation there is such as to make it difficult for Hindus to live in East Bengal peacefully. I for my part am doing my best, and will continue to do my best, to create a feeling of security among the minority communities in Pakistan. The responsibility, as you rightly say, is overwhelming. It is my earnest endeavour, as I am sure it is yours, to understand and help one another in carrying out our onerous tasks.

In order to achieve permanent results, it will be necessary for you to put a curb on the activities of all such organizations as have been advocating the reunion of India or Pakistan or have been demanding a separate homeland for Hindus in Pakistan. More prominent among such organizations are the Hindu Mahasabha, the Rashtriya Swayam Sevak Sangh, and the self-styled Council for Protection of Rights of Minorities. When the Hindu Mahasabha met in Calcutta in December last under Dr. N.B. Khare's Presidentship and passed its provocative anti-Pakistan resolutions, I knew, as did most other sober thinkers, that the Muslims of India were in for serious trouble. The violent and malicious and anti-Pakistan propaganda in the Calcutta press just before the recent outburst must also be fully known to you. I was glad to see that you promptly denounced the speech of Dr. Kahre and the resolution of the Mahasabha; but, as will now be apparent to you, mere denunciation in such matters has not proved enough; and it is possible that had drastic executive action been taken to deal with the situation, we may not have witnessed what we have seen recently.

I would close by asking to read with an open mind the letter of February 18th from the Premier of East Bengal to the Premier of West Bengal of which I am sending you a copy. As I have said, I want no more than you to enter into an argument over what have happened; and I am not therefore passing this letter on to you in any spirit of controversy. But I feel that the matter is important that you should receive a full and sober statement of the situation as it is seen by the Government of East Bengal in order that you may be able to judge whether you may not have been misinformed regarding the genesis of the recent disturbances.

Yours sincerely

No. 24033 February 24, 1950

From Jawaharlal Nehru for Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan.

Your telegram No 916 dated 22nd February reached me on 23rd morning. I must confess to a sense of deep disappointment of and great surprises that you should regard appointment of joint commissions as suggested by me likely to create complications for administration, interfere with work of rehabilitation and revive bitterness which is subsiding. In the first place, the Commissions were NOT meant to make detailed enquiries but only to attempt a general assessment of situation with a view to overall and effective preventive action. Even more important was the objective of restoration of confidence. Surely Commission functioning in East Bengal which included representatives of East Bengal Government, including Minister, could hardly hurt susceptibilities either of Government of Pakistan or East Bengal or of majority community in East Bengal. Seeing that we were prepared to reciprocate by allowing similar Commission to function in West Bengal, any inference that either Government was surrendering its sovereignty or permitting interference with its internal affairs should have given way to realization most vital to restoration of confidence as well as to return of normal conditions on both sides, that purely legalistic considerations had been abandoned for cooperation in solving what is common problem of far-reaching importance.

Your reminder that our tour of East and West Punjab had proved futile does NOT coincide with my impression of effect of that tour. If that tour did NOT fulfil, expectations, this was due primarily to fact that tide of passion and human movement on both sides was already running too high. I should have thought that joint visit by us now when, whatever future might hold, large-scale migrations through panic are only a probability, would have been fruitful of result that we both have in view. I still feel that both suggestions, namely for joint commission and for our joint visit to East and West Bengal deserve immediate acceptance in larger interest of India and Pakistan. I can only repeat that present situation is pregnant with even greater tragedy than overtook the two Punjabs in 1947. If owing to other preoccupations you CANNOT undertake brief tour with me in Bengal, I would in any event like to go there myself. Any Minister of the Pakistan Government or East Bengal Government could accompany me. Visit to affected areas by High Commissioners and their Deputies, although useful, CANNOT in my opinion meet the exigencies of the situation.

I understand that Pakistan Red Cross have advised postponing action on suggestion by Indian Red to send India - Pakistan joint Red Cross delegation of six members, with an International Red Cross Committee's Representative as observer if available, to report to respective Governments the real situation. I should have thought that visit by group representing humanitarian organization would have been welcomed and would urge that Pakistan Red Cross reconsider its decision. In any case, there should be NO objection to International Red Cross sending representatives to both Bengals who could be accompanied by Ministers and/or officials of two Governments. I am approaching Chairman of Organisation in Geneva with request to undertake this work.

I am sorry that you should think that I have consciously introduced any recrimination in this correspondence. I have kept it on as friendly level as I could because my purpose is NOT recrimination but cooperation. What I said regarding Government of East Bengal was based on the best information available to me. If opportunities for ascertaining facts by a body which would inspire confidence on both sides is denied, it seems impossible to avoid situation in which each party considers the reports received by the other from its own sources as exaggerated.

I made a statement on Bengal situation yesterday in Parliament here. I am sending you copy of this separately. My immediately following telegram deals with Karimganj situation.

PRIMIN-21023

February 24, 1950.

From Jawaharlal Nehru for Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan

This is in continuation of my telegram 24033 dated 24th February. We had called for a full report from the Assam Government with regard to the happenings at Karimganj as soon as we saw references to them in the press. The following facts have been reported to us by the Assam Government:-

Passengers of the Dacca Mail who reached Karimganj on the night of Sunday the 12th February gave out that on the way Muslims had looted the train and murdered several Hindu Passengers and threw them into the river at the Bhairab Bridge. These statements caused some excitement in Karimganj town. The following morning an armed Muslim mob of about 200 faced a similar Hindu mob near the Karimganj railway station. The Sub Divisional Officer of Karimganj hurried to the spot and tried to pacify the mobs. A fight ensued in the course of which one Hindu and the town Head Constable were injured. The Police then opened fire. One dead and one injured persons were picked up on the spot and ten more injured persons were subsequently recovered from different parts of the town and removed to the hospital. Three of these persons died later. There was some looting and burning of shops. Extensive patrolling was immediately ordered in the disturbed area and orders under Section 144 were promulgated. 43 Hindus and 12 Muslims had been arrested and property worth Rs.20,000/- had been recovered. Since the 13th there has been No serious incident and the situation is fully under control. All precautionary measures against any further outbreak of violence have also been taken. You will thus see that the situations reported by the local authorities is entirely different from what has been communicated to you by persons who have apparently sent the reports from outside the disturbed areas. It is exactly with a view of getting an assessment of the true situation from persons whose words will carry conviction to both sides, that I have suggested joint surveys. However, I have communicated the details received from you to the Assam Government and asked for their comments. I would add that the incidents at Karimganj have nothing to do with the recent legislation enacted by us to expel undesirable immigrants from Assam. Karimganj is an area where there are few Muslim settlers from East Bengal.

No. PRIMIN-22104 February 24, 1950.

From Jawaharlal Nehru to Liaquat Ali Khan.

News continues to reach us of grave situation in East Bengal and of persistent efforts to drive out Hindus. On the other hand Pakistan radio and newspapers state that ten thousand Muslims were killed in West Bengal and property worth one crore looted. This is amazing falsehood. I have given exact figures of persons killed in Calcutta and other parts of West Bengal in my statement on 23 February before Parliament. Your High Commissioner has been in Calcutta and it is easy to make enquiries there. We have asked you to send your Ministers there to cooperate with us in investigation. I must protest very strongly against this utterly false propaganda by official radio, which must incite people in Pakistan and lead to worsening of very grave situation. It is difficult for us to give any figures or exact information about East Bengal. But we are in a position to known exactly what happened in West Bengal. Your Government has NOT published any figures of casualties or damage in East Bengal. Instead of this, fantastic information is given about events in West Bengal. I invite you again to have joint enquiry in both West and East Bengal.

2. You have expressed your wish that migrations from one part of Bengal to another should be sternly discouraged. I entirely agree with you. But mere expression of wish by either of us is not enough. Unless we supplement it by positive action which produces confidence and security in minds of minorities. I suggest that both our Governments should announce publicly that:

(1) They will punish those who have been guilty of disturbances, killing, arson, looting, etc.

(2) That they will give compensation to those who have suffered from these disturbances and help in rehabilitating in their former places people who have been rendered homeless or who have migrated.

(3) There should be intense search for looted property and those in possession of it should be asked to return it immediately or else they will be presumed to have participated in looting or receiving stolen property.

(4) People spreading wild rumours and preaching communal hatred should be arrested. Newspapers doing this should be proceeded against.
(5) Governments concerned will appoint committees of enquiry to enquire into disturbances and punish those guilty.

3. These are some suggestions for immediate action. If this is done, we may be able to stop further deterioration and help in producing some sense of security in minorities without which there can be no normality and exodus will continue.

4. I would request you to contradict statements made by Pakistan radio and press about casualties in West Bengal.

2984. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan.

New Delhi, February 25, 1950.

Prime Minister
India
New Delhi, February 25, 1950

My dear Nawabzada,

I have just received your letter of February 23rd, for which I thanks you. Last night I sent you a telegram making certain suggestions. Some of these suggestions appear to be in line with what you have written to me and I do hope that you will the able to agree to them. It will serve little purpose for me to enter into a controversy at this critical stage. It is, I am sure, your purpose, as it is mine, to face this great problem and this great responsibility with all the strength and wisdom that we possess. We have not only to meet the immediate emergency, but we have to do so, so as to lay the foundations of a real settlement for the future in East and West Bengal. You known that in both these Bengals, innumerable Hindus and Muslims live, who have relations in the other Bengal. This should help in creating friendly and cooperative relations. In fact, when trouble arises, this very fact creates greater passion and excitement, because there is far more personal interest in the fate of one’s friends and relatives across the border.

It is clear that passions have been roused and there is an atmosphere of fear all round. It is clear also that it is quite impossible to think of exchange of populations or large migrations. Therefore, the only possible way is to create that sense of security and confidence, both in East and West Bengal in the minds of minorities.
It is true that after what has happened, this cannot be done suddenly or completely. But steps can be taken, which help in bringing this about. It is some of these steps that I suggested in my last telegram to you.

While it may be true that fact-finding commissions tend to become fault-finding commissions, it is also true that it is difficult to grip the situations or to satisfy people, unless broad facts are placed before them in some authoritative manner which convinces them. My own idea was not to send any commission of enquiry as such, but rather a mission, which would look at the broad facts and report, and which would also be in the nature of a goodwill mission. The mere fact of these people going round would help in many ways. We can give them any name you like.

Personally I feel that I could be of service if I could go to West and East Bengal in any capacity. I intend going to West Bengal in a few days' time.

May I repeat here what I said in my telegram to you that both Governments should publicly announce that they will punish the guilty and compensate the sufferers and take upon themselves the task of rehabilitating, in their former places, all those who have been rendered homeless or who have recently migrated. Punishing the guilty means a search for looted property and a warning to those, who posses it, that they will be liable to punishment unless they return it within a brief period. People spreading wild rumours and preaching communal hatred should be proceeded against, as also newspapers.

There are two other matters which I think important and which should be included in some announcement. One of these is the abduction of women wherever this has occurred. It must be made clear that Governments will try their utmost to recover these women. The other matter is forcible conversion. As you known, this excites people's passions greatly and so we must not only fully express ourselves strongly against it, but clearly say that this cannot be recognized.

These are some ideas which occurred to me. They are by no means, exhaustive. But if some such thing is said by both Governments and earnestly acted upon I have little doubt that we would go a long way towards controlling the present drift towards catastrophe.

I entirely agree with you that minorities should look to their own Governments for protection. But what is to be done, when they lose confidence in it completely? It is that confidence that we have to create.

There are many other matters which I should like to place before you, but for the moment I wish to avoid controversial topics and to concentrate on the immediate steps to be taken.

I have not sent you any detailed reply to your previous letter about a joint 'no war declaration' by India and Pakistan. This is partly due to my being overwhelmed with urgent and immediate problems relating to the Bengal situation. Also you will appreciate that we have to get hold of this present situation in Bengal before we can effectively proceed with other matters. I hope however, to send a reply to you fairly soon.

Your sincerely,

I have just read a report of your address to a press conference in Karachi* today. This has greatly distressed me. It is of course open to you to hold your own opinions and to draw any inferences from any facts and while I differ from you in these opinions and inferences, I do not wish to enter into controversy in regard to them. But I must express my surprise that you should have referred to our Deputy Prime Minister's speech in the way you have done. That speech, if read as a whole, would have conveyed an entirely different impression to you. Your quotations are completely incorrect and give a distorted version of what he said.

Liaquat Ali Khan told a press conference in Karachi on 27 February 1950 that his Government’s policy towards India was "live and let live", "but if India wants war she will find us fully prepared... I certainly think it is a threat." In his letter of March 1 he had described objectively the genesis and course of disturbances in the two Bengals and had said that during his visit to Calcutta on 15 January Patel referred to the communal disturbances of 1946 in terms which could not but encourage irresponsible elements among Hindus in their antagonism to Pakistan. [In fact, Patel went to Calcutta in connection with communist agitation where he condemned lawlessness and appealed for cooperation with the police in the restoration of peace.] Justifying his statements he said: "My quotations were taken verbatim from un-contradicted version of his (Patel) speech published in . . . Calcutta edition of Amrita Bazar Painika dated January 16th." Liaquat had written that Nehru’s observation that "India shall have to adopt other methods could have only one implication in this context. While friendly discussions were taking place, Nehru’s statement in Parliament could only be interpreted as a threat. His justification therefore at his press conference of the statement he made.
2. I am particularly surprised at your reference to my statement before Parliament here. That statement was restrained and there was no element of threat. As I have written to you repeatedly, I am earnestly exploring all methods of lessening the tension in two Bengals and of giving some feeling of security to the minorities there. I have made several proposals to you, none of which has thus far been accepted. Meanwhile, the situation worsens. Do you think that your press conference address helps the cause of peace and brings confidence in the minds of the people most concerned in East or West Bengal? Do you think that the change of heart to which you refer is evidenced by what you have said at the press conference?

3. I am writing to you with no desire to carry on controversy, but with a deep feeling of grief that when the fate of millions is involved, we should treat the matter in the way you have done.

Liaquat Ali Khan To Jawaharlal Nehru.

Your telegram PRIMIN 24033 dated February 24th has crossed with my letter dated February 23rd. I have dealt with question of fact finding commissions and Joint tours fully in my letter and I trust you will now agree that these proposals, though superficially attractive, will NOT in practice produce the desired result and may well produce the opposite effect. You have also suggested that you would like to tour East Bengal on your own. I am sure that on reflection you will agree that this is an impracticable proposition and likely to embarrass you as much as East Bengal Government. Three of my Ministers have already toured East Bengal and Governor General is scheduled to visit the Province on March 5th in another connection. You High Commissioner has already visited affected areas and I notice from reports appearing in Indian press that he is satisfied that situation there is now peaceful and NO recrudescence of trouble has occurred.
This confirms what I have been telling you all along. Any SPECTACULAR action that may prevent emotional temperature from returning to normal should be avoided.

2. I have NO objection to Representatives of International Red Cross visiting East Bengal. I presume that object of visit would be to assist the two Governments in devising ways and means of alleviating the distress amongst victims of disturbances.

3. In your telegram PRIMIN 22104 dated February 24th you have complained against a news item broadcast by PAKISTAN Radio and newspapers to the effect that 10,000 Muslims were killed in West Bengal. I have made enquiries into matter and find that news was based on information supplied by a Correspondent of Associated Press of Pakistan who based it on information received from refugees from West Bengal. The attention of Associated Press of Pakistan has been drawn to the impropriety of publishing HEARSAY figures of casualties and Agency is taking Correspondent to task. Radio PAKISTAN has been instructed to broadcast the casualty figures given by you in your statement before Indian Parliament.

4. The figures of casualties in East Bengal were given by me at my Press Conference on February 27th. I now hope that the All India Radio and Indian Press will refrain from putting out exaggerated accounts of what happened in East Bengal. The news that has reached you that position in East Bengal is still grave and that persistent efforts are being made to drive out Hindus is wholly incorrect. I can assure you that the situation in East Bengal is new normal and majority of displaced persons have been rehabilitated in their homes.

5. The suggestion made in paragraph No. 2 of your telegram under reference has my general support. My comments on various points raised are:

   (1) I agree that we should immediately announce that we shall punish those who have been guilty of killings, arson, looting etc. You will see that at my Press Conference I categorically stated that protection of all nationals of PAKISTAN was first duty of my Governments and that we shall continue of discharge this duty unflinchingly and with utmost vigour.

   (2) The East Bengal Government have already announced that financial help will be given in rehabilitating those who have suffered during the disturbances. A special Relief Commissioner invested with wide financial and executive powers, has been appointed to deal with refugees and relief problems. At my Press Conference I stressed need for two Governments making themselves publicly responsible for rehabilitation and resettlement of victims of disturbances, I should like to add announcement should include a clear declaration that two Governments will make every effort to check large scale migration.
(3) and (4) I agrees that recovery of looted property should be undertaken on humane lines and that persons and newspapers responsible for mischievous rumours and propaganda should be proceeded against unsparingly.

(5) I am NOT quite clear about your proposal that each Government should appoint a Committee of Enquiry to enquire into disturbances and punish those guilty. A Committee of Enquiry may be able to ascertain causes and course of disturbances and examine measure taken to check them but it will hardly be possible for such a Committee to discover who the guilty persons were and to recommend their punishment. Before appointing Enquiry Committees we should I think bear in our own minds what Committees would be required to do and I shall be glad to have your further views on this point. We can then decide what line to take.

6. As regards your telegram PRIMIN 22109 of February 26th we are both agreed that we should do our utmost to control publication of exaggerated reports ever though as you are aware both in India and PAKISTAN press enjoys a considerable amount of freedom. Unfortunately there have been bad instances of false news and objectionable comment appearing in Press in both countries. I would for instance draw your attention to leading articles appearing in Hindustan Times from time to time. I have occasionally asked my colleague Minister in charge of Information to impress upon Press need for utmost restraint and moderation and to make it clear if limits of legitimate comment are exceeded action will be taken freely against offenders according to law.

7. Finally I come to your telegram PRIMIN 22112 of February 27th which refers to my Press conference. I am sorry that you should have been distressed by what I have said in statement but if you will read full text you will see that I have described GENESIS and course of disturbances in a strictly objective manner and have confined myself to clearly demonstrable facts. I am surprised that you should think that I have misquoted from speech of your Deputy Prime Minister. My quotations were taken verbatim from un-contradicted version of his speech published in your Press namely in Calcutta edition of AMRITA BAZAR PATRIKA dated January 16th. NOR have these quotations been torn from text to give a distorted expression. I have reread text of Deputy Prime Minister's speech and am satisfied that import of speech was correctly indicated by me at press conference.

8. Your observation in India Parliament that India shall have "to adopt other methods" can have only one implication in the context of your statement. Neutral Observers have placed the same interpretation on your statement which I did in my address at Press Conference. I was much grieved to find that while both of us had condemned aggression against others and while useful and friendly discussions as to ways and means of lessening tension were taking place between us you should have chosen to make a statement in Parliament which could only be interpreted as a threat. I am sure that peace loving people in our two countries and outside would be glad to have your assurance that NO threat was implied and I hope that you will find it possible to make a public statement clearing position.

9. My object at Press Conference was to place before all concerned FACTUAL story of origin and development of disturbances in East and West Bengal. I was constrained to do so in view of one sided and erroneous picture given by you in your speech in Parliament. Observations were made in that speech, which were in my opinion most damaging to us. I was therefore forced most reluctantly to make a public statement refuting incorrect and exaggerated allegations and putting whole case in its proper perspective. After your speech in Parliament you could hardly have expected me to leave your charges unanswered or to refrain from stating full position as I see it.

10. My desire for friendly and full cooperation with you in promotion of mutual harmony remains unchanged. I am convinced that all that right minded people in both countries desire is to be allowed to live in peace. I am determined to see that nothing is done that may prevent fulfillment of this desire. In this solemn task let us support each other unstintingly and without reservation.

For Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan from Jawaharlal Nehru.

In my telegram to you on February 24th I made certain suggestions. I repeated these more fully in my letter to you of February 25th. I feel that it is urgently necessary that both Governments should make some declaration in regard to the Bengal situation. Whatever our future policy may be the present policy must be clearly enunciated. My suggestions were that both Governments should announce publicly that they will compensate the sufferers among the minorities and take the responsibility of rehabilitating fully in their former places all those who have been rendered homeless or who have recently migrated. Further that they will make every effort to punish the guilty and for the recovery and return of looted property. A warning should be issued that those who possess such looted property should return it within a few days otherwise they will be liable to punishment. People spreading wild rumours and preaching communal hatred should be proceeded against. This will apply to newspapers also. Governments will make every effort to recover abducted women. They will NOT recognize forcible conversions.

These were some of the suggestions I made to you for both Governments to declare and act upon immediately. This is by no means enough and we shall have to consider other steps also. But the definite assurance contained in some such announcement would steady the situation and prevent large scale migrations. The responsibility for giving full protection to minorities must be of Governments concerned.

I shall be grateful if you will kindly let me have your reply to these proposals. I should like to make a statement in Parliament here on this subject soon. May I also have your permission to quote in Parliament from letters and telegrams exchanged between us.

MOST IMMEDIATE

From Jawaharlal Nehru for Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan.

Your telegram No.1077 dated 1st March. This has crossed my No. 21027 of same date.

I entirely agree that we should try our utmost and without reservation to promote harmony between our two countries. In order to do this it has become essential that minorities on both sides should be rid of fear and should have a full sense of security. In subsequent telegram I am suggesting declaration which both Governments should issue. As I have already suggested to you this declaration should specifically mention recovery of adducted women and non-recognition of forced conversions.

You refer to our High Commissioner's report about conditions in East Bengal. As a matter of fact our High commissioner's reports about these conditions are very disturbing and indicate that minority (minorities) in East Bengal are panic-stricken and are anxious to migrate. As you must be aware, frequent attacks on trains carrying Hindu refugees to West Bengal are continuing. One such attack took place on the Dacca Mail on the 26th and another on the Assam Mail on the 28th. Our information is that all passengers of the Down Dacca Mail were detrained at Rajbari yesterday. We are also informed that on 27th morning the steamer bound for Goalundo from Naraingunge carrying 1500 evacuee passengers was forced by some Muslim volunteers to disembark all evacuee passengers on a Char named KAZIRKHOLA in district Faridpore. This was NOT a halting station and the steamer left Goalundo leaving passengers stranded but carrying part of their luggage. After some time they were attacked by local hooligans.

Number of people proceeding to Calcutta are marooned in various places in East Bengal and it is urgently necessary to make arrangements for completing their journey under adequate protection.

I am telegraphing to our Minister in Switzerland to request International Red-Cross to send representatives to East and West Bengal and informing him that you agree to this suggestion. It will expedite action by International Red-Cross if you were also to telegraph to them directly your agreements to this suggestion.

March 2, 1950.

From Jawaharlal Nehru to Liaquat Ali Khan.

I suggest that following declaration might be made immediately by both Governments.

BEGINS.

The Governments of India and Pakistan consider it their duty and responsibility to give full protection and security to minority communities in their respective countries. In order to restore confidence among minority communities in East and West Bengal, which has been greatly shaken by recent unfortunate events, the Governments of India and Pakistan wish to announce:

(1) That they will punish all those who have been found guilty of murder, arson, loot and other heinous offence, for instance rape and abduction of women.

(2) That they will help in every way those who have suffered by loss of life or otherwise and give adequate financial assistance to them for purposes of rehabilitation. This will include those who have temporarily evacuated to the other country.

(3) Both the Governments will make every effort to recover any women who may have been abducted and restore them to their families.

(4) There shall be an intensive search for looted property and those in possession of it shall be asked to return it immediately. Failing such return within a stated period, those found in possession of looted property will be presumed to have participated in looting or receiving stolen property.

(5) Persons and newspapers responsible for mischievous rumours and propaganda shall be rigorously deal with.

(6) Each Governments will appoint a committee, presided over by a person of the standing of a judge of High Court, and including a representative of the minority, preferably a member of the provincial minority board, to enquire into the origin, cause and extent of the disturbances and to make recommendations with a view to preventing recrudescence of similar trouble in future.

The Governments of India and Pakistan earnestly hope that as a result of the measures indicated above, which will apply to the present and future, as well as other steps which the two Governments might take, a feeling of confidence and security will grow in the minds of the minorities and normal life will be restored. Ends.

The steps indicated above are necessary preliminaries to any further action that Governments might take. The first step in to bring about some sense of security. I agree with you that large scale migrations should be discouraged. But the right time to say that would be after we have brought about some normality. Otherwise anything in the nature of a ban on migrations might itself produce a sense of insecurity and add to panic*.

* On March 5 in his telegram No. 1144 Liaquat Ali Khan proposed the following amendments to the above declaration which he said would make it comprehensive:

1. The scope of Clause (1) should be widened by omission of specific offences by way of illustration. All offences against person and property and other criminal offences whether heinous or NOT, should come within clause.

2. I still think clause (2) should include a declaration that two Governments will make every effort to check large scale migration. Such a declaration would have a most salutary effect. Many Hindus in East PAKISTAN seem to be under the impression that Indian Government wish them to migrate to India. No ban need be placed on migrations but a declaration that large scale exodus in NOT to be encouraged seem essential.

3. There is No objection in principle to appointment of an Enquiry Committee for the purposes stated in Clause (6) but it seems unnecessary to restrict its composition to suggested membership. I am myself inclined to favour the setting up of a censorship Judicial Body, but am still considering the matter in consultation with all concerned on this subject.

For Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan from Jawahalal Nehru.

I have just learnt that fifteen hundred passengers coming from Barisal to Calcutta via Khulna were stopped and detrained at Benapole, near the border. Apparently the plea was that they did NOT have income tax relief certificates or Indian Domicile Certificates. They were then taken away from there to some surrounding areas.

2. I also understand that airlines from Calcutta have been informed that they CANNOT book any people or carry them unless these people have these income-tax relief or Indian Domicile certificates.

3. I have previously drawn your attention to large numbers of people coming to Calcutta from East Bengal being detained and marooned in various places. Every time crowds of relatives go to receive them at station and are NOT only disappointed but greatly excited at the nonappearance of the people they were waiting for. I would suggest to you that this is the surest way of creating panic and excitement, which might lead to untoward incidents. Our immediate object is to stop panic and fear and produce a sense of security. This CANNOT be done by forcible measures which only add to panic. Still less can it be done by stopping people en route and leaving them high and dry where they might be attacked and looted.

4. To expect these unfortunate people to carry about income-tax certificates is rather extraordinary. So far as Indian domicile certificates are concerned, I am NOT aware of any having been issued. It seems to me NOT only very unwise but rather cruel to treat people in this way. We are passing through a period of great tension which requires great tact, courtesy and imagination and NOT rigid adherence to some rules which have NO application in the present. I would earnestly request you to arrange for the relief and transport under proper protection of all these marooned passengers in various places.

For Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan From Jawaharlal Nehru

I have received a report that the Government of East Bengal have threatened to close down all refugee camps in Dacca except one at Sadhana Oushadhalya and another at Ram Krishna Mission and have warned that NO Government rations will be supplied to any other camps from March 3rd. One camp at Nawabganj to which Government have threatened to stop supply of rations contains more than 1000 refugees who are afraid of going back either to their houses which have been completely looted or to other camps which are far away.

I am sure you will agree that it would be cruel to stop the supply of rations and starve the refugees till normal conditions return and the refugees feel safe enough to go to their homes many of which are at present occupied by trespassers. I would therefore request that the camps at Dacca and elsewhere may be kept open and the refugees therein continue to be supplied with rations.

I would like to draw your attention to the following report regarding abductions in Barisal.
Begins.

On the 13th February several Hindu families who had assembled in the Lakutia Zemindar’s house were mercilessly beaten. Six young ladies who were hiding in Lakutia house were forcibly taken out by Goondas who also set fire to adjoining thatched house while leaving the place uninterrupted. The steamer services between Barisal and Khulna were suspended on 14th and 15th February and the Hindus who were eager to send back their female members could NOT do that for want of conveyance. As a result a few families from the suburbs who came to avail the steamer were sheltered by Muslims in their boats and subsequently kidnapped from there.

According to the information received from the affected places the total number of deaths exceeded 125 where as about 100 young girls are reported to be still un-traced. Several Hindus who are willing to leave the district are NOT allowed by the district authorities to do so. Only a few Hindu families could avail of the only steamer which left Barisal on the 16th February.

Ends.

Our Deputy High Commissioner in a report dated the 28th February states that reports have been received by him that abduction of women took place on a considerable scale in some villages in Sodar Sub-Division of District Bakerganj and that a large number of refugees who have collected at Nalchhiti and Jhalakati in the same Sub-Division are suffering from want of rations.

I would request that these reports be investigated earliest possible and vigorous measures taken for the recovery of the women and their restoration to their relations. I also suggest that where refugees are collected and suffering without food steps should be taken to provide them with free rations.

2995. Press note issue by the East Bengal Government regarding accreditation of Indian news correspondents posted in East Pakistan.

Dacca, March 5, 1950.

In answer to a question in India Parliament on March the 2nd the Indian Prime Minister is reported to have said that (1) all correspondents of P.T.I. in East Pakistan had been disaccredited and fresh accreditation had been demanded from certain P.T.I., United Press and newspaper correspondents while two P.T.I. correspondents had been ordered not to function till accredited with the Government of East Bengal. Amrita Bazar Patrika and Jugantar correspondents were supplying news only after approval by officials. (2) Hindustan Standard and Anande Bazar Patrika were refused permission to the East Bengal Assembly., (3) A P.T.I. correspondent was arrested on November 25th 1949 in Dacca and another at Rajashani was arrested in January this year. The first statement is entirely inaccurate.

The facts are that ever since the partition all P.T.I., U.P. or newspaper correspondents have been operating freely in this province without being accredited to this Government at all. This resulted in many abuses and in early December Government asked District Magistrates to advise all such correspondents to get themselves formally accredited to this Government. With the exception of one correspondent on whose behalf an application for accreditation was received in the last week of January none of the other correspondents or their principals have so far applied for accreditation. The question of disaccreditation or fresh accreditation therefore does not arise and in fact no such orders have been passed. Further although not one of these correspondents has so far been accredited they are all being allowed every facility to which foreign correspondents are normally entitled. The second allegation is also completely baseless. The third statement is correct.

The circulation of these two papers has had to be banned in the public interest for their rapidly communal and anti Pakistani propaganda and although their correspondents are continuing to operate in this province they are not being given special facilities such as invitations to assembly meetings etc. The last statement is also correct. The P.T.I. correspondent at Dacca arrested for prejudicial activities in respect of which a specific criminal case has been filed against him. Similarly the P.T.I. correspondent at Rajashahi was arrested for activities which had nothing whatever to do with his duties as a correspondent. He was however released three days later. Both these persons are Pakistani citizens. They cannot claim immunity from the operation of the laws of the country merely by virtue of being press correspondents. As a further instance of the veracity of Pandit Nehru's informants may be mentioned a New Delhi P.T.I. report of the same date ascribing certain statement to the District Magistrate Dinajpur and alleging that in consequence thereof disturbances broke out in that district in the second week of February. In fact the Magistrate never made any such statements and up to date there have been no disturbances whatever in that district. The nature of the above statements and reports throws interesting light on the kind of propaganda that is being carried on in India about conditions in the province.

Kindly refer to your telegram No. PRIMIN 21028 dated March 2nd and your telegram No. PRIMIN 22122 DATED March 4th. I have repeated these two telegrams to East Bengal Government and as soon as I have received their reply will wire you again. Meanwhile I have been receiving rather alarming reports of disturbances in JALPAIGURU where heavy casualties and arson and loot on a considerable scale are said to have occurred. Reports of looting and arson in Burdwan are also reaching here. From JALPAIGURU and Assam large number of refugees continue to arrive in DINAJPUR and RANGPUR Districts. Reports have also been coming for some time of troop carrier concentrations on borders of East Bengal. A whispering campaign originating from Calcutta is afoot that India would soon invade East Bengal and that the Hindus should clear out of that place before invasion comes. This appears to be direct result of your statement in Parliament that India will have to adopt "other methods." I have just seen Press report of your broadcast* on March 3rd and I must confess that

* He recalled his address to Parliament on February 23, when he mentioned that "if present methods and proposals fail, we shall have to adopt other methods" and went on to clarify his statement stating that "I have been criticized for hinting at the possibility of war. Anyone who knows me should known that I hate war and will go to the farthest limit my reaction is one of disappointment. Although you stated you would go fullest limit to avoid war I wish that you had categorically declared under No circumstances would "Other methods" include war. I am distressed to see that you referred to religious character of PAKISTAN and asserted that its policy must inevitably produce sense of lack of fulfillment of citizenship and continuous insecurity among minorities. I can only infer that your observation is made from an incomplete understanding of basic conception of our State, which guarantees equal citizenship and other rights to all nationals, including minorities in PAKISTAN.

Your remark can only have effect of misleading minorities about the basic conception of our state and of encouraging them to believe that citizenship and security must continue to be denied to them in PAKISTAN: I fear your statement CANNOT but have a most unfortunate and unsettling effect.

In your broadcast speech I have vainly looked for condemnation of killing arson and looting that have been committed in West Bengal and elsewhere in India and your determination to uphold the law and to punish the evil-doers. I am certainly NOT surprised to read in this morning's newspapers that despite your appeal for restraint serious rioting involving loss of life and property took place on 3rd and 4th March in a number of towns in India including MORADABAD, BAREILLY, ALIGARH, PILIBHIT and there was renewed rioting in Calcutta.

to avoid it. But to talk complacently of peace, when there is no peace and when something worse than war is possible and people are rattling back to barbarism, is to be blind to facts. Hence I said that we must explore every avenue and every method to avoid this great catastrophe."

He said: "The lives of tens of millions of people are involved in this and human considerations apart from others, compel us, whether we live in India or Pakistan to strive to our utmost to find a way out. I claim no superior virtue in myself or my Government or my people. But I do claim that, however imperfectly, we have tried to follow the right path, the path of peace and the path of equality and unity among the various communities that live in this great country. The people of Pakistan are of the same stock as we are and have the same virtues and failings. But the basic difficulty of the situation is that the policy of a religious and communal State followed by the Pakistan Government inevitably produces a sense of lack of full citizenship and a continuous insecurity among those who do not belong to the majority community. That policy leads to hatred and violence and produces conflict."
Draft Declaration after including amendments suggested by Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan.

Reports now received of disturbances in JALPAIGURI from 24th to 26th February are most serious. Practically all MUSLIM houses and shops in town and adjoining areas are said to have been looted and those which could be destroyed without harms to Hindu property have been burnt. Estimated loss of Muslim property runs into crores of rupees. Damage to mosque in KHENPARA is reported. Heavy loss of life has occurred and surviving Moslems of JALPAIGURI town totaling over 5000 are said to be living in 6 refugee camps in miserable condition.

The entire Moslem community in Hooghly, CHINSURAH and CHANDERNAGORE and adjoining areas is reported to have been uprooted from homes. Incidents of killing, loot and arson began on February 28th and ended in a furious attack on March 3rd. All Moslem inhabitants including West Bengal Government employees have been removed to HOOGHLY IMAM BARA where refugees number 2,000 and large number of Moslems of CHANDERNAGORE, PAIKPARA, GONDAL PARA and TELINI PARA have all been driven into open fields opposite Victoria Jute Mill where about 10,000 refugees have taken shelter. Women and children have also been attacked and stabbed. Several villages have been devastated by loot and arson.

In Calcutta itself disturbances are reported to have continued throughout night of March 4th with bomb explosions in Park CIRCS area. About 1000 refugees reached Park CIRCUS on March 3rd. Living conditions of Moslem refugees are fast deteriorating. Our Deputy High Commissioner’s staff car No. BLC 8517 was attacked with BRICKBATS while returning from staff quarters at 10p.m. on March 4th.

From Jawaharlal Nehru for Liaquat Ali Khan

I have received three telegrams from you here in Calcutta forwarded from Delhi Nos.1141 and 1144 dated 5th March and 1145 dated 6th March. I am answering some points raised in them separately. I shall send a fuller reply from Delhi where I return tomorrow. Meanwhile, I should like to draw your attention specially to certain matters.

3. Regarding proposed declaration I think it is important that we should mention in declaration that forced conversions cannot be recognized. This is common ground. There is a great deal of feeling on this subject and many cases have been brought to my notice.

4. Regarding migrations. I should very much like to discourage large scale transfers of population. Migrations cannot however be prevented until a feeling of full security grows amongst minorities. That feeling is singularly absent at the present moment and idea that migration is prevented and traveling is dangerous actually increases panic, lessens feeling of security and produces feeling of being trapped in a dangerous place. The only way to produce a sense of security and desire not to migrate is to give freedom to do so for those who are so inclined. In addition, full arrangements for protection during journey must always be provided. If both these are done, a number of people will no doubt migrate, but very soon this freedom of movement will help in producing a sense of security and the desire to migrate will greatly lessen. Hence I suggest that we should clearly state in the proposed declaration or separately that while we have no desire to encourage large-scale migration, we wish to provide facilities and full protection for traveling from one country to another.

5. I have already brought to your notice cases of attacks on trains and forcible disembarkation of passengers from trains and steamers. I am told that some of these attacks took place despite the presence of armed guards. Even now train services have not been fully restored and travel by train and steamer in East Pakistan seems very insecure. If you have any difficulties in providing full protection to trains and steamers, some arrangement similar to what existed for some time in the Punjab, might be arrived at for a relatively brief period of a few weeks. This would mean permission to either country to arrange for protection during traveling from certain specified railway and river stations in the other country. Some such arrangement for a brief period would immediately produce a sense of confidence which will lead to a feeling of security.

6. Demand for production of certificates of domicile and exemption from income tax proving very harassing to those who wish to come away from East Bengal. I have already drawn your attention to this. In existing circumstances it has little meaning and I trust that for some weeks at least it will not be followed.

7. I should like to inform you that my investigation here from a large variety of sources had led me to the conclusion that conditions in some parts of East Bengal have been even worse than I had imagined. Attacks on railways trains and steamers and taking of passengers out have led to great excitement here. I am convinced that mere declaration of good intentions for the future will not meet the situation. One immediate step which should follow is to make it easy for those people who wish to come to do so. I might mention that there are considerable number of persons in East Pakistan who is terms of our Constitution are or may become Indian national. For the present of course no clear demarcation has taken place and no certificates of citizenship have been issued by us and no register of citizens has been prepared. It is not my intention to enter upon a legal discussion of citizenship. In any view of the matter it seems to me desirable that there should be freedom of movement with protection and I hope you will give serious and immediate consideration to my proposal.

From Liaquat Ali Khan for Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru

Indian Press continues to publish false and exaggerated accounts of disturbances in East Bengal. An item in Sunday News of India dated March 5th speaks of no less than 200 persons having lost their lives during first three days of disturbances in Chittagong Town. Publication of this false report is particularly objectionable in view of my clear statement at Press Conference on February 27th that total casualties in East Bengal excluding Dacca were 23 dead. Again the Times of India in leading article dated March 6th accuses high officials of PAKISTAN of having publicly incited Moslems in East Bengal to wipe out minority in that Province. Propagation of mischievous lies of this kind unless severely dealt with can have nothing but harmful repercussions.

My attention has also been drawn to text of Press Note issued by Assam Government as reported in Bombay Chronicle dated March 2nd. Among other things the Press Note contains following:

"The Government of Assam has received further material which enables it to trace roots of trouble at KARIMGANJ further back. The fundamental cause seems to be reported plight of minority community in East PAKISTAN which finds itself without security of life honour and property and without a ray of hope of any betterment of conditions or prospects. It finds that all ills, real and imaginary, from which people in PAKISTAN suffer, Hindus are made or held responsible. If there be a fire accidental or otherwise the Hindu is the culprit. The Hindus must NOT even protest. Protests if made are suppressed. Moslem mobs are, it is alleged, incited or encouraged to deal in their own way with Hindu life and property. The incessant singing or hymns of hate, the constant talk of war, raising of boundary disputes without sufficient cause, mobilization of armed and other forces, holding of meetings in which popular mind is shaped and directed to look upon a Hindu as cause of its troubles add various other matters of a similar kind have deepened anxiety of Hindu mind in East PAKISTAN."

You will agree that statements like these can only inflame communal passion and must act as an encouragement to unruly elements in India.

From Liaquat Ali Khan for Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

Reports continue to reach me of very unsatisfactory situation in West Bengal and Assam.

Number of registered refugees from Karimganj and other part of CACHAR now in Sylhet District is 14215. Number including those NOT registered is well over 20,000. In addition over 6,000 refugees have up to date come into Rangpur District from GOALPARA, KAMRUP and DARRANG Districts. Majority of them are victims of very serious communal disturbances which have occurred in GOALPARA district and in which mass violence and extensive damage have taken place. Many of these refugees have injuries and practically all of them had their belongings looted on the way. Wide spread killing and looting of Muslims in GOALPARA District and inability of local administration to protect them have completely shaken the confidence of minority community and a situation of extreme tension and insecurity has developed.

On 3rd March there was recurrence of trouble in Karimganj. Number 266 Down train was attacked at MAHISASHAN and property of Muslim passengers looted. There are allegations of female passengers being tortured. No action was taken by military or railway staff to protect passengers.

In Calcutta situation has apparently deteriorated further. Between BELGACHIA and TANGRA all Muslim BUSTEES are said to have been practically wiped out. On night of 6th March Muslim BUSTEES were attacked by Hindu mobs with bombs. When Muslims tried to defend themselves armed police appeared on the scene and charged them with bayonets and arrested some 80 persons.

Our Deputy High Commissioner in Calcutta has received telegrams from Midnapore Muslims regarding wide spread disturbances in that District. Alarming reports are also being received of communal trouble in other MOFUSSIL areas. Alarming reports are reaching from Central Provinces. KATNI has been scene of serious rioting. A number of other towns have been affected. Trouble is also spreading to MOFUSSIL areas.

Please refer to your telegram No. PRIMIN 22127 dated 9th March. The suggestions that you have made with regard to additions to draft declaration are under consideration and I shall reply to you in detail in a day or two. I wish however to take opportunity at once of telling you that suggestion made in paragraph No. 5 of your telegram that traveling conditions in East Pakistan are very insecure, is wholly incorrect. There has been No incident of any kind whatsoever for several days in East Bengal except for two unfortunate attacks on trains on 1st March. The situation is fully under control. There is No difficulty whatsoever in providing full protection where necessary to traveling public. Your proposal that we may follow Punjab precedent has such grave implications that a mere mention of it might create a most unfortunate situation throughout the country and produce an effect entirely contrary to what you envisage. I would therefore earnestly suggest to you that No indication that you ever made proposal should be made public at any stage. Any public mention of this proposal may lead to gravest consequence and must be avoided at all cost.

1. From reports that I have been receiving and which I have been passing on to you from time to time communal trouble of gravest character is prevalent in several parts of India particularly in Assam and West Bengal and Central Provinces. In a number of places attacks on passengers in trains have occurred. There are also indications that trouble is brewing in East Punjab. The situation in India demands far more effective and energetic action by your civil and armed forces than has hitherto been taken for protection of minority community.

No PRIMIN 210311.            March 10, 1950.

From Jawaharlal Nehru to Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan

I have already dealt with various matters contained in your telegrams of March 5th and 6th.

2. There has been NO troop concentration on our part of East Bengal Border. Some normal pickets and patrols are functioning on that border. We are informed however that on Pakistan side of Border, Ansars and others are being collected and there are reports of their infiltration on Indian side at some points. You will appreciate that any infiltration or occupation of India territory CANNOT be tolerated by us. More particularly, in existing circumstances, this is likely to lead to dangerous consequences.

3. You refer to my broadcast. I might inform you that we have repeatedly condemned killing, arson and looting committed anywhere in India and have taken stringent steps to punish evil-doers.

4. It is true that I did NOT state in my broadcast that under NO circumstances would war NOT take place. I stated that I would do my utmost to avoid war. It would have been unrealistic in the circumstances for me to say more because conflict does NOT depend on one party alone and we have seen things happening which may be said to be worse than war. For several months past the Pakistan Press has openly talked about war. Many statements have also been made by prominent people in Pakistan advocating war in regard to Kashmir. It is for us to remove these dangerous trends and in particular to give sense of security to minorities.

5. I am sorry if you feel that I have NOT correctly represented character of Pakistan State. After a close study of that State and of statements of its leaders and, more particularly, of the atmosphere that prevails in that state, I have been convinced that non-Muslims CANNOT have that equality of citizenship and of functioning which modern democratic states lay down and practice. There can be little doubt that in fact this is the belief of minorities in Pakistan. Many people who had firmly decided to stay in Pakistan and give their full cooperation and allegiance to it feel now that their position is intolerable. That fact alone is significant.

The theory of religious State inevitably leads to the conclusion that persons belonging to another religion have an inferior status and do not have normal opportunities in practice. This has become evident.

IMMEDIATE

From Jawaharlal Nehru to Mr. Liqauat Ali Khan

Reference your telegrams 1141 of 5th March, 1145 of 6th March and 1185 of 7th March. I am giving some factual information below. Other matters being dealt with separately.

2. Your information that disturbances continue in Calcutta is NOT correct. Except for a few stray incidents there has been NO disturbance worth mentioning in Calcutta since 12th February. Such incidents in a big city like Calcutta are NOT uncommon even in normal times. There was great excitement in Calcutta when reports reached the City of recent attacks on trains and steamers in East Bengal and removal of large number of passengers at wayside stations. Authorities however took effective steps immediately.

3. I am surprised to read about allegation in your telegram that Hindu young men enter railway compartments on frontier and assault Muslim passengers. The story of bangles and torn blouses being throw about in compartments is fantastic. There is plenty of evidence about attacks on these trains in Pakistan and we would welcome a full enquiry into the matter. Indeed East Bengal Government have themselves admitted these attacks on trains near Rajbari and Santahar, although they have sought to make out that these have NO communal complexion.
4. No serious disturbance has taken place in Howrah since 15th February. Some days ago there was some disturbance in mill area in Hoogly district including Chinsurah. Casualties were: dead three Hindus, twelve Muslims and nineteen unidentified and injured twelve Hindus and twenty-eight Muslims. Incidents at Telinipara and Chandernagore partly due to labour communist trouble. NO further incidents in Hoogly district since 4th March. Number of refugees in Hoogly Imambara is 1200, near Victoria Jute Mills about 5000. Shelter, food, sanitary arrangements and light provided for them. Four women and no children attacked. No village damaged by loot or arson.

5. No incident occurred in Burdwan in March and none in Murshidabad in February or March.

6. Jalpaiguri. There was some disturbance but the account supplied to you is very great exaggeration of what occurred. In all 35 small Muslim huts were burnt and 20 small shops looted. Loss of property estimated in thousands of rupees and NOT in crores. Top wall of a mosque slightly damaged by fire from neighbouring house. Number of dead in Jalpaiguri town 16 Muslims, one Hindu. Most stringent measures were taken by the District officer. Refugees being looked after.

7. Your information about condition of Muslim refugees in Calcutta in unfounded. I have visited their main camp in Park Circus. Adequate relief is given to them consisting of free ration according to normal scale together with four annas in cash to each refugee. In addition milk supplied free to children. Blankets distributed to those in need. It is hoped that most of these refugees will return soon to their homes.

8. Goalpara district in Assam. Trouble occurred there consisting chiefly of arson resulting in considerable number of refugees going chiefly to Cooch Behar and East Bengal. I have discussed situation with Chief Minister Assam and his Government had taken very strict measures including firing by police and military, and a large number of arrests were made. Understand that large number of non-Muslim refugees have crossed into Assam from Rangpur district.

9. I have NOT seen reports except in newspapers about happenings in certain U.P. towns. All these apparently occurred in connection with Holi festival. I have called for full reports from the State Government.

10. I am deeply grieved at any such occurrences in any part of India regardless of what happens elsewhere, and have expressed myself strongly about them. But you will appreciate that accounts of occurrences in East Bengal have deeply stirred feelings all over India. I shall deal separately with your reference to my broadcast and some other matters.

From Jawaharlal Nehru for Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan.

In my telegram No. 22127 dated 9th March from Calcutta, I suggested some changes in the proposed declaration. In my immediately following telegram I give the text of the declaration which in our opinion, we should now make without delay. By way of explanation I make the following comments:

A. I have explained to you previously why I consider it necessary for facilities and full protection for traveling from one country to the other should be provided now as a measure designed to create confidence and allay panic. I would, therefore, strongly urge you to agree to the insertion in the declaration of 3 as proposed. I have also suggested to you separately arrangements for a limited period of a few weeks, such as were made in the Punjab in 1947, for armed guards to be provided at certain specified railway and river stations, by the other country, to accompany trains and steamers for protection. I have NOT included this in the declaration, as it would be out of place there. Nevertheless immediate introduction of this arrangement is important and it might be provided for by an exchange of letters or telegrams.

B. 5 of the draft declaration is of vital importance and should be included. From the many talks that I have made in Calcutta, I have discovered that NOT only have cases of forcible conversion occurred, but that there is very strong feeling that it should be authoritatively declared that forcible conversion will NOT be recognized.

C. 8. From the standpoint of the public effect of the declaration, it is important that the judicial character of the presiding officer of the proposed committees and the inclusion in it of representatives of minorities should be explicitly mentioned. Failing that, confidence in the findings of the proposed committees will NOT be assured.

I have given considerable thought to the question of some provision which would act as an effective deterrent to communal violence and crime. You will remember that, in case of widespread communal disturbance in the past, it was usual to impose collective fines. I feel strongly that resort to that procedure will be extremely helpful in present situation and hope that you will agree. To produce maximum effect, it would be desirable to mention this specifically in the declaration. However, if you are NOT agreeable to such inclusion, I should be content if we were to agree between ourselves that this would be done.

In view of the urgency of this matter, I shall be grateful to have an early reply.

Reference my immediately preceding telegram. Following is proposed text of declaration.

Begins.

*The Governments of India and Pakistan consider it their duty and responsibility to give full protection and security to minority communities in their respective countries and are determined to take all necessary measures to that end. In order to restore confidence among minority communities in both countries and more especially, in East Pakistan, West Bengal, and Assam, which has been greatly shaken by recent unfortunate events, which the two Governments strongly condemn, the Governments of India and Pakistan wish to announce:

1. That they will punish all those who have been found guilty of offences against person and property and other criminal offences.

2. That they will help in every way those who have suffered by loss of life or otherwise and give adequate financial assistance to them for purposes of rehabilitation. This will include those who have temporarily evacuated to the other country, provided they return to their own country, for which full facilities will be provided.
3. That, while the two Governments have NO desire to encourage large-scale migrations, they will provide facilities and full protection for traveling from one country to the other to those who may wish to do so.

4. That both Governments will make every effort to recover any women who have been abducted and restore them to their families.

5. That forcible conversions will NOT be recognised.

6. That there will be an intensive search for looted property and those in possession of it shall be asked to return it immediately. Failing such return within stated period, those found in possession of looted property will be presumed to have participated in looting or receiving stolen property and will be dealt with accordingly.

7. That persons and newspapers responsible for mischievous rumours and propaganda shall be rigorously dealt with.

8. That each Government will appoint a committee, president over by a person of the standing of High Court Judge and including representatives of the minorities, to enquire into the origin, cause and extent of the disturbances, and to make recommendations with a view to preventing recrudescence of similar troubles in future.

9. The Governments of India and Pakistan earnestly hope that as a result of the measures indicated above, as other steps which the two Governments might take, a feeling of confidence and security will grow in the minds of the minority and normal life will be fully restored." Ends

From Jawaharlal Nehru to Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan.

During my four day stay in Calcutta, I was inundated with evidence from reliable sources of events in East Bengal during the past month or more. I have been powerfully impressed as well as distressed by this evidence. I am NOT passing all this on to you, but the basic fact came out repeatedly that non-Muslims in East Bengal live in a state of continuous fear and apprehension and all sense of security has gone. More particularly, they feel that officials, who are very largely of one community do NOT function impartially. In this connection I should like to remind you of the fact that the Dacca trouble started on February 10th by a procession and a meeting of Secretariat employees, fiery speeches were delivered and immediately after, arson looting and killing commenced. It is significant that Government servants should have taken the lead and organized this.

My dear Nawabzada,

I returned from Calcutta last night after four days stay there. These four days were very exhausting, not physically so, for I am used to physical exertion. They were exhausting for other reasons. As more and more facts came to my knowledge and the effect that those facts and occurrences had produced on people's minds, I was greatly depressed.

It is not much good from any long-term point of view for us to go on accusing each other or other people. The burden of grappling with this difficult problem, which grows more difficult and complicated, is upon us. The consequences of not solving it are terrible to contemplate for both our countries.

I have sent you from here today two telegrams. I enclose copies of them. I earnestly hope that the declaration that I suggest, and to which you have largely agreed, will be issued by both our Governments very soon. Every day's delay may make some difference.

One fact has impressed itself upon me and that is the widespread fear among the Hindus in East Bengal and their conviction that they have no part or lot in Pakistan, no self-respect or security. Hence their desire to get away. Whether facts justify this conviction of theirs or not, may be arguable. But their feeling this way is itself a fact to be reckoned with. It is because of this that I have become convinced, against my will that full facilities for them to come away, under adequate protection, to West Bengal should be provided. I do not wish in the slightest to encourage a mass migration. I have fought against this for a long time past and I still believe that this would be bad for the people concerned as well as for India and Pakistan. But, in the circumstances, to talk too much about their remaining where they are and preventing them from coming away, is to irritate and frighten them all the more and to increase the panicky condition. Therefore the situation has to be tackled in another way and that is to permit them to come, if they so want to and make them feel that they can go under sufficient protection. This declaration and feeling will itself improve the conditions and lessen the state of panic. No doubt a considerable number will come away.
But I feel sure that the exodus will lessen and almost stop fairly soon. The mere knowledge that one can come away removes the sense of fear and takes away from the urgency of the desire to come. If conditions improve, as we hope they will, then the exodus will stop, and it may be, that those who had come over would think of going back. This applies to both countries. I hope, therefore, that you will agree to this. I would also like you to agree to the other proposal about exchange of guards that I have made.

I am glad that your Government has ordered that no certificates either of income tax or domicile should be demanded from these people, who are traveling from one country to another in these circumstances. I am grateful to you for this.

The more I think of it, the more I feel that these arrangements and declarations that we may make, good as they may be, are not enough to grapple with this situation. Some kind of a psychological approach affecting people's minds has to be made. If Gandhiji was here, he would undoubtedly have known what to do in the circumstances. Unfortunately we have not got him with us. Nevertheless, we have to do something to stop this rot.

I had suggested to you that you and I should visit East and West Bengal. I had done so with no political motive and with no desire to make some kind of capital out of this tour. My sole object was to help in soothing people and in bringing back some normality. You did not agree to this proposal for the reasons you gave and thought that it would produce a very great impression both in East and West Bengal.

I am so anxious to do something in my individual capacity that I have been thinking repeatedly of visiting some of those places, not as Prime Minister but as a private individual. It is just possible that my visit might shake people up. I attach so much importance to this that I would gladly give up my Prime Ministership and go to East and West Bengal entirely as a private citizen and stay for a while there. I would not do so with the object of carrying on an enquiry and of casting blame, but just to give some heart and confidence to the people I meet, whether Hindus or Muslims. I think I have some capacity to do so. I wish you would agree to my doing so, that is my going to Pakistan as a private individual for a stay of a few weeks.

When I was in Calcutta, I had a message from Basanti Devi (Mrs. C.R. Das) saying that she would like to go to Dacca, if her visit could do any good. She is an old lady and not too well in health, but she was anxious to be of some service in soothing ruffled feelings. Perhaps you know that her family originally came from Dacca. Her suggestion was that she might go there with her daughter (Mrs. Aparna Roy) and one or two companions and stay quietly in Dacca for a while hoping that her presence itself and meeting a few old friends might be helpful. I sent word to her that I rather like the idea of her going, but if she did so, it should be entirely in a private capacity and with no official interference on our part. I refrained therefore from bringing this matter rather officially before you.

Yours sincerely,
Jawaharlal Nehru

Hon 'ble Liaquat Ali Khan
Prime Minister of Pakistan
Karachi

3012. Press Note issued by the Government of East Pakistan that no request was received from India for safe travel of non-Muslims to India.

Dacca, March 10, 1950.

The report dated March 8, published in the "Statesman" and originating from their special representatives in New Delhi, to the effect that the Government of Bharat have sent a Note to the Government of East Pakistan requesting the latter to arrange for the safe travel, including special trains and steamers, of Bharat citizens and Pakistani Hindus, who wished to leave for Bharat temporarily, is not correct. No such Note has been received by this Government from the Government of Bharat.

The truth of the matter is that this Government have received from time to time both from the West Bengal Government and from the Government of Bharat through the Government of Pakistan, requests that people proceeding to Bharat from this province, who are alleged to have been held up at various points in East Pakistan should be provided with facilities for unrestricted and safe travel to Bharat.

In most cases the allegation was found to be based on incorrect information; in other cases the necessary action was immediately taken.

Bharati Propaganda

The report published in the Statesman is obviously part of the Bharati propaganda campaign designed to convey to the outside world the completely erroneous impression that conditions in this province continue to be so seriously disturbed that the minority community in East Pakistan desires to evacuate en mass to Bharat and that travel throughout this province is being restricted and interfered with and is otherwise unsafe.

As has been made clear in the statement of the Premier in the Provincial Assembly today that conditions in the province are uniformly peaceful throughout and although there is some tension owing to irresponsible war talk and continued riots across the border of this province, the situation remains quiet and fully under control.

The leaders of minority community themselves have in several districts in this province already issued public statements declaring that they are living in peace and security and that their main desire is that disturbances in West Bengal and Assam should, in the interest of the minorities on both sides of the border come to an end forthwith.

As regards train travel, there has not been a single incident or any attempt to attack or interfere with traffic since the robbery in Hindu and Muslim passengers in the Dacca Mail near Rajbari on February 26, and the attack on the Assam mail near Santaharub on February 28, full details of which were immediately published by this Government in Press notes and effective action taken against those who were responsible.

As part of Government’s normal policy to prevent railway crime, armed guards are posted on all passenger and goods trains and steamers since the disturbances, and in particular to allay any apprehensions that might be aroused in the minds of intending travelers by this mischevous propaganda in Bharat regarding the perils of travel in East Pakistan, there guards have been considerably strengthened.

Stories of interference with railway passengers on trains in West Bengal and in particular with the would be travelers at Sealdah and Howrah stations, combined with the arrival of empty trains from West Bengal to East Pakistan, have in their turn led to some unrest and disquietening rumours in this province. But as a result of measures taken on both sides, movement in both directions is now freer.

As it was found that the number of through passengers dropped considerably by the East Pakistan Railway, but full compliment is being progressively restored as the demand justifies it. As far as this Government are concerned there is no question of their tolerating any interference by any person with free movement of travelers from East Pakistan and in the opposite direction. In fact, the normal requirements regarding income tax and domicile certificates from persons leaving the Province have been waived for the time being.
At the same time, this Government deprecate any suggestion to provide excessively abnormal travel facilities out of the Province of such a nature as to unsettle or attract persons who would otherwise not consider leaving their homes, since they believe that on both sides of the border the emphasis at the moment must be on relief and rehabilitation of all who have suffered in the recent wholesale evacuation, either temporary or permanent, which can only have the effect of creating problems than it solved.

Your telegram No 1239 dated 10th March has crossed mine Nos. 22129 and 22130 of same date. I have in earlier telegrams given you full reasons for suggestions I have made. I trust that the declaration suggested by me will be acceptable to you so that we can jointly issue it at an early date.

Every report of communal trouble that you have sent to me has been and is being promptly attended to and State Governments concerned issue official reports of true facts with necessary promptitude and frequency. I devote personal attention to this matter constantly and I am satisfied that our civil and armed forces, both Central and Provincial, are doing everything possible to protect minorities. In the circumstances, I can only express my profound regret that you should give credence to reports that whatever can be done is not being done. It was because I felt mistrust could best be avoided by joint survey of facts that I had suggested appointment of commissions including Ministers and the joint visit by both of us to the affected areas.

This is with reference to incidents mentioned in your telegrams RIMIN 21028 dated March 2nd and PRIMIN 22122 dated March 4th. Press notes giving details of attack on Assam Mail and a Passenger train on February 28th have been issued by East Bengal Government. The casualties in these attacks were 28 killed and 22 wounded. I deeply deplore these incidents. No other case of attacks on non-Muslims has since occurred anywhere in East Bengal. Regarding allegation of compelling passengers to disembark on morning of February 27th from GOALUNDO steamer the actual facts as ascertained from passengers themselves are that at RAJKHARA steamer station some Musalmans and Hindus approached passengers and requested them NOT to leave their homes unnecessarily for West Bengal where they were bound to be put to extreme discomfort as refugees. Being persuaded of bona fides of these people about 200 passengers disembarked and later took CHITTAGONG mail steamer and returned to their respective homes via CHANDPUR. The allegations that they were attacked by local HOOLIGANS are entirely false. There was NO molestation of any description.

2. As regards people proceeding to Calcutta being MAROONED all such allegations are part of propaganda STUNT to create the impression that conditions in East Bengal are very grave and steamer and rail traffic are NOT safe. Steamers on main route and passenger trains are being provided with strong armed guards where necessary and travel both within or from East Bengal is quite safe. East Bengal Governments are issuing a press not on the subject.

With regard to incidents in TELIMPARA and Chandernagore you have stated that they were partly due to labour troubles. You still have NOT described the full extent of disturbances in GOALPARA district, nor have you stated anything about the incidents in Central Provinces and with regard to the incidents in United Provinces you say that all these apparently occurred in connection with HOLI festival which to my mind all the more deplorable. 2. I am glad to have your assurance that there have been No troop concentrations in areas around East Bengal. I should however greatly appreciate a similar assurance that No armed members of RSS or the private force organized by the League for protection of rights of minorities are concentrated around East Bengal.

3. Reports of ANSAR infiltrations on Indian side are entirely without foundation.

4. I still think it was unfortunate that you did NOT specifically exclude war from definition of "other methods" in your broadcast. I hope that in larger interest of peace you will take the opportunity of publicly repudiating possibility of war in clear terms. The impression continues to persist that India contemplates aggressive action against East Bengal and way to remove that impression which can only have the effect of unsettling the mind of minority community in particular is to say it publicly in so many words that India has NO such intentions.

5. I am most disappointed to see that despite my clear statements that in PAKISTAN the minority enjoys citizenship and other rights equally with other nationals you should persist in repeating that that is NOT the case. I will NOT make the retort that despite your protestations that India is a secular state Muslims in India find themselves excluded and in an almost unbearable position of inferiority. As for your telegram PRIMIN 21032 dated March 10th I have told you repeatedly that conditions in East Bengal are normal. But unfortunately you continue to assert the contrary and to accept the wild STORIES of excited or mischievous persons in preference to my clear statements. This can result only in endless controversy and can lead us nowhere. It is only by trusting each other's words that we can actually hope to check this deplorable development.

From Liaquat Ali Khan for Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

Reference your two telegrams Nos. PRIMINE 22127 dated March 9th and March 11th. I have already dealt with part of your first telegram No. 1239 dated March 10th.

2. As regards the other points raised by you I have NO information about forced conversions in East Bengal but it is clear that if any such conversions have taken place here or in India they cannot by recognised. I have therefore No objection to a mention of matter in Draft Declaration.

3. I am satisfied that travel within Ease Bengal is quite safe and traveling public is receiving full protection where necessary. The provision of any special facilities for travel such as police or military escorts provided by the other country, will have only the effect of convincing the minorities in both countries that the two Governments are unable to give them protection in their homes and have therefore agreed to virtual exchange of population. This will certainly NOT allay panic or stimulate a feeling of security. On the other hand the result will be to encourage panic and start a movement which will quickly and inevitably develop into a stampede. You will agree that such a development cannot be in the interests of either the minorities of the two countries.

4. The point raised in para 6 of your telegram dated March 9th 1950 has already been disposed of vide your telegram 1650 dated March 10th.

5. You raise the question of Indian Nationals in East Pakistan. If it is your desire that the few Indian Nationals should be evacuated with local official assistance from East Bengal, I can have NO Objection although I should be very sorry if you took that stand. I do not understand what you mean when you say that there are persons in East Pakistan who in terms of your Constitution may become Indian nationals. I have studied your Constitution and do NOT find any provision in it where any persons later on residing in Pakistan can be described or may become at any rate nationals after the commencement of the Constitution of India. The questions granting special treatment to such persons therefore does NOT arise.

6. My comments on revised draft declaration received with your telegram PRIMIN 22130 dated March 11th are as follows:

(1) For reasons stated in para No. 3 above and in my previous telegrams clause 3 should be redrafted thus: "the two Governments will make all reasonable efforts to discourage large scale migrations but will provide facilities and full protection for traveling from one country to other for those who may wish to do so." I attach importance to this matter.

(2) clause 5 may be amended to read; "that forcible conversions if any will NOT be recognized."

(3) I still consider that committee should consist of persons of the standing of a High Court Judge. The great regard in which the higher JUDICIARY is held in both countries should ensure full confidence in the investigations and also ensure that enquiry is held by completely impartial persons who are NOT afraid of expressing their views. In view however of your keen desire that a member of minority community should be on the Committee, I am prepared to accept the suggestion. Clause 8 will read as follows: "that each Government will appoint a Committee presided over by a person of the standing of a High Court Judge and including a representative of minorities to enquire into the origin, cause and extent of disturbances and to make recommendations with a view to preventing RECRUDESCENCE of similar troubles in future".

7. The remainder of revised declaration is in accord with views I have already communicated to you. If you agree to above amendments I suggest that declaration should be released to press on morning of March 16th from Delhi and Karachi.

Prime Minister
India

My dear Nawabzada,

I have had no answer from you to my latest telegrams as well as my letter. I am writing this letter late at night and very early tomorrow morning, I am going to Calcutta again.

2. I have taken the liberty to write these rather personal letters, although there is nothing personal in them, because it is easier to write frankly in this way than if one follows the official method. I have felt as I have told you previously, that the issues before us are so serious and so dangerous in their possible consequences, that no effort should be spared to solve them. Events have occurred repeatedly which have stirred the public mind and roused it to a pitch of excitement and passion. I have myself felt the impact of these events deeply, but I have tried to the best of my ability, not to allow myself to be swept away by emotions. It is no small matter for me to see something happening which might well mean the ruin of all that one has lived for and worked for. I would do an ill service to such ideals as I have possessed, if I forgot them in this hour of crisis.

3. For the last two years and a half, there has been a continuing crisis in Indo-Pakistan relations. Sometimes it appeared to tone down a little and we hoped that some kind of an equilibrium would be established. But again it blazed up and now we face it in all its intensity. Ever since this Bengal affairs started, I have been convinced that the time has gone by for patchwork remedies. We might not be able to cure the disease suddenly, but we have to think and apply measures to root it out, and not merely rely on some cooling ointment. Cooling ointments are good enough in their own way, because they relieve pain for a moment but something else has got to be done to cure the patient. As a temporary measure, to relive tension and to enable people who were struck down by fear and panic, to regain their composure and to travel from one country to another if they chose to, I suggested a joint statement to be issued by both our Governments. That was a very small thing, which hardly scratched the surface of the problem. Even that has not been agreed to by so far. Meanwhile, time pass and the value of it, such as it was, fades away and we have to face the big problem.
4. One of the objects of the proposed declaration was to put some fear in the minds of evil-doers and to make them realize that they would have to pay for their evil deeds. That I felt was quite essential. What has happened in the past is that people who have been notorious for murder and worse have gloriéd in it and profited by it and posed as heroes of the people. If that is so, then we put premium on murder and pillage. Unless we make the burden of the ill-deed follow the evil doer, we will not stop him from a repetition of it. I suggested to you punitive fines or collective fines, as has been the practice in the past. In addition to this, the individual concerned must be made to suffer heavy penalty and some financial burden should fall on him. On the other hand those who suffer must be helped and compensated. This would not only be rough justice but also a deterrent.

5. I have been reading Pakistan newspaper as well as statements made by various persons in Pakistan. I am not much of an admirer of the press anywhere, when it comes to moments of crisis or excitement. I have disapproved strongly of the writings in some of the Indian newspapers recently. But I must confess that the way the Pakistan press has dealt with the Bengal situation has taken my breath away. Falsehood has been piled on falsehood and the most amazing inventions have been made. The Dawn as usual, carries the palm for its inventive genius and vitriolic and malicious attacks. How can there be peace between India and Pakistan, if this kind of campaign is carried on? If facts are disputed and these wild allegations are made, it is better to have them investigated properly and thoroughly and let the truth come out, whether we like it or not. I think it is time we dealt with this matter effectively. I am prepared to face the truth, whatever it is, and take the consequences. It is an impossible situation for these charges and calumnies to be hurled at one and no opportunity for sifting them or establishing or disproving them given.

6. Much evil has happened in East and West Bengal and in Assam. It may be that I have not got all the facts. Indeed it is difficult to get all the facts. But I think we have enough to form a general judgment. I am deeply grieved at the evil deeds that have taken place in any part of Indian territory and, to the best of my ability, I want to punish those who have done them. But I am astonished when a comparison is made between what has happened during the last six weeks in India and in Pakistan. There has been a good deal of arson and looting on both sides. I believe, from such facts as I have that much more of this has happened in East Bengal than in any part of India. Then as regards killings, I would welcome a correct estimate based on investigation. Our own information is that killings in East Bengal were very heavy indeed and ten or twenty times as much as in India.

7. I am not trying to measure or balance evil. It is bad enough wherever it occurs and it serves little purpose to justify one act by another. But when these amazing charges are made in the public press and repeated by responsible public men, then one has to think of this.

8. Perhaps you know that while killing and arson and looting are very bad, nothing moves people's passions so much as assault on the abduction of women. Also that forcible conversions stir people's minds and passions. If person wants to change his religion, so far as I am concerned, he is perfectly free to do so. That should be the right of very man. But compulsion in such matters is humiliation and destruction of the spirit of man.

9. I would like you to find out if there has been a single authenticated case of assault or abduction of a woman or rape in West Bengal during these past six weeks. Or if there has been any attempt at forcible conversion. To my knowledge, there has been none. But to my knowledge again, there have been a considerable number of such cases, both of assault on and abduction of women and forcible conversion under fear of death in East Pakistan.

10. There is one other important aspect to which attention must be drawn. It is well-known that the troubles in Dacca were started on the 10th February by the Secretariat employees there. These people nearly mobbed the Chief Secretary of the East Bengal Government and then went in procession and had a meeting. Immediately after the meeting, looting and arson and killing started. Not much investigation is necessary to prove that these Government servants were the investigators and perpetrators of all this. Individual Government servants may have misbehaved elsewhere, but I do not known of any other instance when a large group of them, functioning together, started a major disturbances and killing. If Government servants are to behave like this, what then of others and who are the people to look to for protection. How can those people continue to live in a place where the very people who are supposed to protect them, have indulged in an orgy of killing and arson and looting.

11. I am sorry to enter into this business of making charges, but I could not help if after reading all that is being written in the Pakistan press. Also because if we have to root out this evil, we must understand it and deal with it thoroughly. I honestly believe that the root of this evil was the intense communal policy which led to Pakistan and which Pakistan has followed since. There is enough of communalism in India also today. But, at any rate, it is not the policy we pursue and we combat it. In Pakistan it is the State policy and this nurtures the feeling of hatred, violence and religious bigotry. I have no feeling against Islam. I have honoured it as one of the great religions of the world and some of my most intimate friends have been Muslims. But this conversion of the State into a citadel of communalism inevitably leads to far-reaching evil consequences. It makes the lives of all those in that State who do not accept the predominant religion, unhappy and insecure. It makes conflict with other States where other religions may prevail. It makes for continuing conflict between Pakistan and India till we exterminate each other or survive in some wretched form.

12. I have no business to interfere with your State policy or anything else that you may consider desirable in your country. But if that policy creates continuous conflict and leads us to the verge of complete break, then obviously I am much interested in it, as it concerns me and my country. Also if it leads to frequent killing, arson and looting and abduction of women and all the rest of it, and demoralization of vast numbers of human beings who have been and are intimately connected with us, then I am affected.

13. I have written to you frankly, because the utmost frankness is necessary when dealing with these tremendous issues affecting vast populations. We must face them and try to solve them instead of trying to injure each other all the time and drifting to major conflict. There has been an extraordinarily unintelligent charge brought against India that we seek to put an end of Pakistan or to compel it to join India. Some foolish persons may have said so. But if anything is certain, it is this: that no intelligent Indian wants that to happen for the simple reason that it would be bad for India. We want to live at peace with Pakistan and we would rejoice in having normal friendly relations with it so that both countries may cooperate and prosper. We are on the brink of grave dangers and, as I have said above, any patchwork remedies are of little use now. I am prepared to meet you to discuss these matters in all seriousness before it becomes too late to discuss them.

14. I trust you will appreciate the spirit in which I have written this letter and forgive me for my frankness. I would not be true to myself or to you, if I did not tell you how I felt.

Yours sincerely,

Jawaharlal Nehru

I have received your letter of March 10th for which I thank you.

2. I telegraphed to you yesterday agreeing to draft declaration with slight modifications and suggesting that it should be issued simultaneously on March 16th. I trust there will be NO further delay in the matter.

3. I fully share your anxiety about consequences of failure to resolve problem that faces both of us. You may depend on my whole-hearted cooperation in dealing with the situation. It has throughout been my earnest endeavour to maintain conditions of full security in East Bengal and I am determined to see that nothing is allowed to disturb peace on my side of the border. I have NO doubt that you will help me in this task by speedy restoration of normal conditions in your country and prevention of further trouble in India. I have all along stated that we must ESCHEW blame and must trust each other. Only then can real progress be made in ensuring confidence and amity between ourselves and our people. I am glad to see that you agree with me in this respect.

4. I am visiting East Bengal on March 17th for three or four days and shall write to you on my return.

From Jawaharlal Nehru for Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan.

I have just received in Calcutta your 2 telegrams No. 1292 and 1293 13th March. Authoritative accounts of happenings in India have been appearing in Press. I have gladly sent you information when you have asked for it. Surely you do NOT expect me to supply information generally or specifically about conditions in India or what our Government does.

2. You have got mixed up between Howrah and Hoogly. If you refer to my previous telegrams you will see casualties were at Hooghly.

3. I informed you that there were NO troop concentrations on East Bengal border. We shall of course take necessary precautions to protect our borders from any untoward happening. We do NOT permit or tolerate any private armed forces. I might inform you that we have had reports of ANSARS coming across our borders occasionally. One of our small relief centres at JAYNAGAR near BANPUR border manned by women workers was visited by ANSARS recently.

4. As I have written you in my letter dated 13th March it has become essential for us to deal with this entire problem which CANNOT be solved by partial and patchwork remedies. In view of developing situation and widespread fear mere assurances do NOT go far more especially when little faith is put on them. I am anxious to avoid by every means possible to me any further deterioration but this CANNOT be done by mere expression of wish.

5. I impressed on you that while I do NOT want to encourage large scale MIGRATION facilities and protection for travel has become essential to prevent greater panic and greater desire to MIGRATE. I am glad that there has been improvement in this respect. I am sure that if proper facilities are given large scale migrations will NOT take place after the first rush is over.

6. In this connection I should like to point to you that refugees coming from East Bengal are greatly harassed at border stations in Pakistan. They have NOT only to pass through customs which can be understood but they have then to pass a barrage of 3 separate groups -- police, ANSARS and miscellaneous crowd who call themselves JANA GANA. In course of this they are relieved of their money and belongings. I trust arrangements will be made to prevent this happening and refugees will be permitted to bring personal belongings and some money; otherwise they produce unsettling effect and create discontent.

7. We shall have to consider later question of compensation for those who have suffered on either side. Immediately steps should be taken to protect their properties so that they might NOT be seized by unauthorized persons.

3021. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Indian High Commissioner in the United Kingdom Krishna Menon.

New Delhi, March 16, 1950.

My dear Krishna,

I have just returned from my second visit to Calcutta There are a number of letters from you which demand a reply. I shall deal with them as soon as I can.

This is just brief note. You will realize that this Bengal situation is absorbing a good deal of my time and energy. There is a concerted effort, backed by strong forces, to drive us into war with Pakistan. The most amazing exaggerations and hysterical statements and writing are taking place both in Pakistan and India. The problem is extraordinarily difficult. At present practically every Hindu in Eastern Pakistan is in a state of utter demoralization and fright and wants to come away. To a slightly lesser extent that applies to the Muslims in West Bengal and Assam. Already large numbers have traveled from one country to another under pressure of circumstances. Probably this process may continue till another half million come over and then it may lessen. That of course depends on circumstances and what happens in between. But the major problem remains. The basic policy of Pakistan makes it very difficult for non-Muslims to carry on there and I believe there is a definite attempt to push out the upper layers of the population and try to convert many of the other. The reactions in India to this are equally bad.

Yours sincerely,
Jawaharlal Nehru

MOST IMMEDIATE

From Liaquat Ali Khan for Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

The Times of India dated 14th March and Statesman dated 15th March have published a report ascribed to official sources in New Delhi, giving widely exaggerated estimates of loss of person and property in East Bengal. It is, for instance stated that number of persons killed and wounded in East Bengal is about 3500 during recent disturbances. At my press conference on 27th February I stated clearly that total casualties throughout East Bengal were 222 killed and 276 wounded. In attack on trains on 28th February, 28 were killed and 22 wounded. I think it most unfortunate that Indian Press presumably under official inspiration should continue to give false and highly exaggerated accounts of loss of life and property in East Bengal. Such reports can only increase alarm and foster panic. I trust that it will be possible for you to contradict press report in question and to prevent reappearance of such reports in future.

No. F.3 (16) BL/50 the 18th March, 1950.

Reference the Pakistan Prime Minister’s telegram No 1075 dated the 1st March, we have now received a report from West Bengal and the facts are as follows:

2. Hartal was observed in Calcutta on Saturday 25th Feb. and not on 26th February. Some leaflets were distributed on 24th February but number was very small. Public transport services were suspended and there was some interference with private cars. No tram car was set on fire. Hartal was peaceful despite considerable excitement and resentment arising out of details of incidents in East Bengal which filtered through. Towards evening there were a few small incidents in Sealdah: one case of stabbing leading to death occurred in Calcutta on border of Sealdah. Two other cases of stabbing reported from Lower Circular Road. One shop at Sealdah was attempted to be looted by menacing crowd which was dispersed by tear gas. Some arrests were made. It is not repeat not fact that crowds at Sealdah were cordonning off station and preventing Muslims going to East Bengal. Muslims coming by Barisal Express were neither attacked nor killed. No Muslim dragged through streets with ropes as alleged. Two Muslims were alleged untraced but were subsequently found to have been arrested by police for criminal charge. Other incidents reported are baseless. Calcutta was on the whole peaceful on the 23rd February and no bomb was thrown in Amherst Street. No incident occurred at Ballygunge on 23rd February. There was some panic amongst Muslims in West Bengal but confidence returned soon. It is not true that Orient Airways were forced on 25th February to suspend air services. All vehicles including buses of every air company were stopped for hartal. When this came to notice these were escorted to Dum Dum airport.

Your telegram 1350 dated March 17th. I regret I am NOT able to accept the figures of person killed in East Bengal which is given by you. We have a number of lists compiled on the spot of persons killed in some important places. According to our information in Barisal alone those killed far exceeded the number given by you. Besides the attack on the two trains on 28th February which you mention many trains were attacked during the height of the disturbances between BRAHMANBARIA and Bhairab Bayar in TIPPERAH district and at and near SITAKUND in CHITTAGONG district. The number of casualties in these attacks is believed to have been very heavy. A number of persons were also killed in the attack on the Dacca mail near RAJBARI on 25th February. In view of the persistent reports current in Were Bengal and other parts of India that the number killed during the disturbances in East Bengal could be counted in many thousand, many unofficial enquiries were made of us about authentic information regarding casualties. To withhold such information as we possessed would have led to a worsening of the situation.

Reference Foreign, Karachi's telegram No. 1226, dated 9th March, 1950. We have now received replies from the State Governments concerned regarding the incidents mentioned in the telegram. The position is as follows:

2. The trouble in Goalpara district was mainly confined to arson. Fortunately not many persons were killed and injured and there was little looting. Local Administration very quickly took steps with the aid of police and military to bring situation under control and all has been quiet for several days now. There was no recrudescence of trouble in Karimganj on 3rd March.

3. The position regarding Calcutta has been explained in previous telegrams to you. As regards Midnapore, two unoccupied Muslim houses were set on fire and one bomb incident resulting in injuries to two Hindus and one Muslim took place on 28th February night. Minor cases of arson and one case of stabbing occurred on 1st March. Two Muslim houses at Mahtabpur were set on fire on 5th March. Five or six Muslims were assaulted and two shops and two Muslim houses looted. There was also some arson and here Muslims were killed and two injured in Sutahata Police station, Tamluk Sub-Division. Small cases of arson are also reported from Barkola near Kharagpur Town. Energetic steps were taken and many arrests made. Situation was brought quickly under control.

4. In Katni a small riot occurred on 5th March after one Sindhi refugee was killed and other wounded by firearms by a Muslim shopkeeper after coloured water, which sweepers in intoxicated condition were throwing on each other, fell accidentally on a Muslim. Later in the day another Muslim fired on a Sindhi boy. Total casualties were 20 Muslims killed and 36 injured. There was also some looting but prompt action was taken and situation controlled. On house searches, collections of stones, brickbats, spears, etc. were recovered from Muslim houses from which it appears that preparations for trouble had been made.

The Honourable

*********

A SUGGESTION FOR SECURING THE LIFE AND HONOUR OF MINORITIES IN INDIA AND PAKISTAN

In any negotiation that we may have with Pakistan we must try to avoid a repetition of what has happened on our western border. There has been an exchange of population there and we have more or less the same number of Hindus and Sikhs coming to us as Musalamans emigrating from our side to Pakistan. Both India and Pakistan had to deal with more or less the same number of displaced persons, but with this difference. Whereas we had to deal with a population which was well to do, had a great deal of land of good quality with irrigation facilities and possessed a large quantity of house and other property all of which it had to leave behind. Pakistan had to deal with a comparatively less well to do population which had much less property to leave behind. The result has been that, apart from the initial difficulty which lasted for a short time of having to deal with a large population which was unsettled for the time being, Pakistan had practically no problems of rehabilitation and settlement to tackle, and it has been able to declare as it has done that all immigrants have been rehabilitated and settled. It could do so because it settled them on the lands and houses left behind by the Hindus and Sikhs, and apart from what was grabbed out of it by the local Muslim inhabitants, the rest has all been taken up by the displaced persons. On the other hand, we have spent 70 crores or more on relief and have not been able to rehabilitate vast numbers of our immigrants and even those that have somehow been settled have had to content themselves with whatever we have been able to provide them with. That has not been anything like what they possessed. The result is great discontent and bitterness among the displaced persons, and we may have to face a serious situation on that account at any time in the future.

We have, therefore, to avoid a repetition of this at all costs. I suggest that we should not agree to any unplanned exodus of population from either side. It should be the duty of Governments on both sides to give protection to their minorities and it should be made not only the duty but also the interest of both Governments to give them fullest security so that failure on their part to do so should expose the Governments concerned and not the minorities to penalties. It is true that it is not possible for us to throw those back those Hindu who come to us or to prevent their coming to us. Nor should it be left to Pakistan to allow its Muslim population or officers to misbehave with them and at the same time to prevent their exodus. Pakistan should be made to agree to conditions which will make it difficult, if not impossible to allow a situation to be created, in which Hindus will be squeezed out from there as has happened with the Hindus in Sind. Apart from the large and initial exodus that took place in 1947 which all happened before our Governments or perhaps even the Pakistan Government could realize the immensity of the exodus from both sides, Pakistan has followed a deliberate policy of squeezing Hindus out of Sind, as against our deliberate policy of not only conciliating our Muslim nationals but also for creating conditions for the return of those who had migrated. The result has been that while nearly one or two lakhs of Muslims, including the Meos, who had migrated to Pakistan, have returned to India, an equal number of Hindus have after the big exodus of 1947 has been found to migrate to India from Sind, and not a single Hindu or Sikh who had migrated to India during the great exodus or after has found it possible to return to Pakistan. My fear is that Pakistan is trying the same policy in Eastern Bengal and just as in Sind it forced the Hindus to come away in several batches at intervals of months, it has tried more than once already to force lakhs of Hindus to come to us. On this occasion it has sent to us some two lakhs and if what has been reported to the Prime Minister comes to pass, probably the present exodus may cease after another couple of lakhs have migrated. But we may expect another exodus after some time unless something effective is done. We must therefore try to secure conditions by agreement with Pakistan to prevent a repetition of this which is practically the same thing that happened in Sind. I have said this can be secured only if the Pakistan Government finds it to its interest not to allow this.

It will not be to the interest of Pakistan to allow exodus of Hindus if it has also to deal with the problem of rehabilitation in the same way and to the same extent as we have to do in case of exodus. We cannot contemplate forcing our Muslim nationals to move to Pakistan nor can we contemplate leaving Hindu nationals of Pakistan to their fate and disavow all concern with them. The agreement should therefore insist on the following terms:

(1) India and Pakistan should give protection to the minorities. It should be the right of the minorities to judge whether they are getting the protection that they should have. The criterion for judging this should be the willingness of the minorities to remain where they are and not to think of migrating to the other side of the border. It is reasonable to fix this criterion as no one will leave his hearth and home unless he finds his life and honour unsafe.

(2) Any one who wishes to migrate should be allowed to do so. But the country to which the emigrant belongs should agree to compensate him for the property that he has to leave behind. This is reasonable because Pakistan or India will get the property that is left behind by the emigrant. It will thus become the interest of India and Pakistan to prevent conditions from arising which will force its Muslim or Hindu population to emigrate. In other words, migration of population must be linked with compensation for the property left behind.

(3) This compensation should be fixed on Governmental level between the two Governments and should be paid by Government to Government.

(4) If any exchange of population is agreed upon -- and it is possible to contemplate small scale exchange of populations - it must be on the basis of man for man and property for property. Without some such arrangement of linking population with property for purposes of migration we shall have to face the same problems of rehabilitation as we have had to do from Western Pakistan without the latter having to do it. It must be borne in mind that in Eastern Bengal also it is the Hindus who are better off than the Muslims who are likely to migrate from our side, and Pakistan will not have any difficulty in rehabilitating them with the property left behind by the Hindus. It will be impossible for us to rehabilitate any large population coming from East Bengal, not to speak of rehabilitating the 12 millions or more, if they all emigrate to us. At present large scale exodus it going on form both sides. But the character of the population that is emigrating is worth considering. Apart from the fact that large number of those who are emigrating from West Bengal and even perhaps from Assam are those who have their roots, if not their houses and property in East Bengal, they are very largely labourers employed in the factories in and around Calcutta or otherwise earning their living here and recent immigrants into Assam in search of land and have practically no landed or house property which they leave behind. On the other hand the Hindus who are emigrating from East Bengal are all residents of East Bengal and have at least their houses and many of them other landed property there. We must therefore link population and property for purposes of migration, whether it is one voluntary basis or by exchange or forced by conditions arising or created in either territory.

(5) There should be sanctions created for enforcing the agreement. One sanction by agreement may be that in case of any considerable exodus it should be open to India or Pakistan as the case may be, to occupy part of territory of the other which may be demarcated beforehand in proportion to the migrating population without exposing itself to the charges of aggression. Such territory will be restored if the migrating population can be induced to return and gets back its previous property and positions in tact.

(6) It should be agreed that in any case of large scale migration third party should be invited by agreement of India and Pakistan to investigate and judge if conditions had arisen for the application of the sanction contemplated in (5) above, and if it finds that the application of the sanction has been without justification then the territory occupied should be restored otherwise it should be allowed to become the territory of the occupying Governments.

If such an agreement is reached, it will become necessary for both Governments to keep the minorities well secured against oppression. We on our part have been trying to do that and it is evidenced by the fact that there has been no sign or indication of any desire on the part of our nationals to migrate. Even the migration that is taking place now is mostly of Pakistan nationals to Pakistan and not of our nationals. I do not anticipate that if we continue to pursue our present policy there will be any emigration from our side. On the other hand it will act as an effective check on Pakistan to play the game it has been doing. I have my grave doubts if Pakistan will agree to any such thing. But anything short of this will not give security to the Hindus of East Bengal and will not prevent Pakistan -- whether the Government of Pakistan wishes it or not - from following the policy of squeezing out Hindus.

We must do our best to avoid armed intervention. Even if it is forced on us its objective cannot be anything more than securing such an agreement. In our own interest we cannot afford to have large territories with sullen and hostile majority ever anxious to revolt and ever plotting against our Government. Conquest is thus out of the question, whether we look at it from the point of view of international repercussions or our own interest involved in effecting it which will not be any easy affair on the whole, and then even if we succeed, in maintaining our position and getting anything out of it. Our experience of Hyderabad should rule out any idea of conquest. There we had the bulk of the population that felt oppressed either directly by the Government or on account of its inefficiency and inability to control its unruly elements. Yet we had to keep our military Government functioning for about a year and a half and even when we have a civil Government things cannot be said to have settled down and become normal even now. We have so far failed in our effort to tackle the communist problem there. We shall have our difficulties hundredfold in conquered Pakistan, assuming we have succeeded in conquering it, and we shall find it impossible to tackle the problems that will arise. Our resources in men and material will be unable to bear the strain and chaos and confusion with consequent misery and suffering to both our people and Pakistanis will be the only result of any such enterprise aiming at conquest. It will also be opposed to all our professions and protestations that we have no territorial ambitions and that we have accepted the partition as a settled fact.

Our objective should therefore be clearly understood to secure conditions of security and honourable life for the Hindus in Pakistan assuring on our side the same conditions for our Muslim nationals. We should avoid armed intervention as far as it is humanly possible consistently with the objective of security of life and honour of Hindus in Pakistan. In case armed intervention is forced on us by Pakistan refusing to be a party to any agreement on the lines suggested above or on any other line which is equally effective and continuing in its game of squeezing out Hindus, our objective of armed intervention as stated above should be clearly understood, defined and made public and when it is once achieved we should withdraw to own territory.

Our policy should be directed towards achieving the objective of security and honourable life of Hindus in Pakistan and Muslims in India. Our own people should be instructed on this line, Pakistan should be approached for an agreement and foreign opinions should be cultivated in its favour. A mere agreement that minorities will be protected couched in precise language and expressed in the most effusive form possible will not solve the problem unless sanctions are provided for enforcing it. We have had so many agreements in the past without being able to get the benefit hoped for or at any rate benefit to the extent hoped for. Another agreement as contemplated or derivable from the proposed joint declaration to tide over the present difficulty will share the same fate. It may be that as a result of this agreement, if achieved, previous agreements also may become more effective. As our proposals are reasonable and will be equally applicable to both sides, it is possible we may in course of time win international opinion also on our side. In any case our own conscience will be clear in case any action is forced on us by Pakistan's recalcitrance and intransigence. In considering the problem which has arisen and which may arise in future I have tried to be as detached and as objective and realistic as possible. I would not like the chances of an agreement to be jeopardized either by insisting on an investigation of the past and allocation of blame for it or by encumbering it with anything else which does not immediately and intimately concern the present. I should proceed on the basis of what is happening without exaggerating or minimizing it on either side and insist on guarantees for the future and an automatic arrangement for their enforcement, that is, an arrangement which will not depend upon the will of the defaulting party to enforce it but will be enforceable at the will of the other party. The mere fact that the objective in enforcing the agreement will be limited and that neither India nor Pakistan will lightly undertake an enterprise involving armed intervention with all its uncertainties and risks will by itself be a sufficient and effective check on the enterprise degenerating into an aggression, for conquest of territory. If we fail in our effort to achieve the agreement which is quite reasonable, we can with confidence depend upon all fair-minded persons and countries to take a just view of whatever actions we may be forced to take. In any case even if we find others judging us wrongly we shall have the satisfaction that we did everything that was humanly possible to avoid it and as I have said our own conscience will be clear. That by itself will give us strength to face the future with courage and if there are any spiritual laws operating in nature, will lead us to success.

3027. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to President Rajendra Prasad.

New Delhi, March 20, 1950.

My dear Mr. President,

As you know, I have been greatly troubled in my mind during recent weeks. Even before the Bengal occurrences, various events and developments made me wonder if my continuing as Prime Minister was serving any worthwhile purpose. I mentioned this to you and confided to you that it was my desire not to continue as Prime Minister. This feeling has grown upon me even more since the tragedy in Bengal.

Very soon after the disturbances in East and West Bengal last month, the idea struck me forcibly that I could serve the cause better by going in a personal capacity to East Bengal, if I was permitted to do so, and, in any event, for me to devote myself largely in some way or other to the Bengal problem. In the first statement I made in Parliament regarding Bengal, I said that I wished to devote myself particularly to the Bengal and Kashmir problems. I had in mind then my retirement from the Prime Ministership.

It seemed to me that while necessary governmental action of course had to be taken to meet this situation, what was even more necessary was a psychological and personal approach to this problem. I am not vain enough to think that any such approach on my part would make a very great difference. Nevertheless, I felt it was worth trying, as every other course seemed to lead to a further complication of an already intricate and difficult problem.

I had long felt disturbed and distressed at the trend of events in India and the way people's minds were turning to thoughts and courses of action which were entirely opposed to all the ideals many of us had held dear. For thirty years or more we had worked for these ideals and objectives and now one by one they faded away under stress of uncontrollable events. We became passive agents of an evil destiny and the light that had thus far illumined our hearts became dimmer and dimmer.

I felt also that I was not truly representing the wishes of a large number of members of Parliament and perhaps of the people outside. Some kind of a hiatus existed between them and me. Our objectives even seemed to be different. They liked me well enough and honoured me with their affection. But they thought and felt differently from me. I seemed to come in their way and they, to some extent, came in my way. This was not a happy state of affairs and it produced a measure of frustration on both sides.

Ever since the Republic came into being, and even before, I have been thinking of the formation of new Council of Ministers as required by the Constitution. At first I hoped that this would take place very soon after your assumption of office. Then came the Budget session of Parliament and it seemed to me that any change just then would be rather upsetting. So we carried on in the old way and I decided that the time to make the change would be soon after the Budget was passed. That time is coming now and in any event a new Council of Ministers has to be formed. That new Council may of course contain the old Ministers, or many of them.

This impending change has given me an opportunity, without any fuss or trouble, to give effect to the powerful urge which has been moving me for some time. I feel that I have practically exhausted my utility in my present high office and that I can serve my country and my people better in other ways. My heart is elsewhere and I long to go to the people and to tell them how I feel. If they accept what I say, well and good. If not, then also I shall have done what I felt like doing. In particular, I would like to devote myself for some time at least to the Bengal problem in its many aspects.

I have discussed with you some of these aspects and some of the far-reaching consequences that must inevitably flow from the course of events. Our whole future is at stake and each one of us has to think, as earnestly and deeply as he can, about his present duty. I have given much thought to this matter and the conclusion I have arrived at is that I should function in some other capacity for some time at least.

At this evening’s Cabinet meeting, I gave expression to some of these ideas. While I had discussed them with one or two members previously, most of my other colleagues had not been taken into my confidence. I thought it only fair to them and to myself that I should let them have a glimpse into my mind.

It is my intention, soon after the Budget is passed, to offer you my resignation and together with it, the resignation of the present Cabinet. Thereupon a new Council of Ministers will have to be formed. I would beg of you then not to charge me with this responsibility.

Yours sincerely
Jawaharlal Nehru

3028.
SECRET

Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Prime Minister of the United Kingdom Clement Attlee.

New Delhi, March 20, 1950.

You have enough burdens to carry and I have no desire to add to them. And yet I feel that I should write to you and put you intouch with recent happenings in India in regard to Indo-Pakistan relations. A great deal of importance has been attached in the past two years or more to the Kashmir affair, and undoubtedly, it was and is important. From our point of view, it could have been settled long ago and much more easily, if it had been dealt with properly, but unfortunately, some of the basic facts of the situation were repeatedly ignored and we managed to get more and more entangled in details.
2. However, it is not about Kashmir that I am writing, but about something which is far more important and dangerous in its consequences. This is the Bengal situation, as it has arisen in the course of the past three months. I am writing to you not with the object of asking you to do anything in this matter, but rather to keep you informed of the background and the present state of affairs. I feel I owe this to you.

3. We accepted Pakistan and the Partition of India with great reluctance, but nevertheless firmly, in the hope that this would give us peace and an opportunity of devoting ourselves peacefully to the many problems that we had to face. We hoped that Pakistan would do likewise and, as old-time passions cooled, there would progressively be more and more cooperation between India and Pakistan. Immediately after Partition came the terrible killings and the huge migrations in the Punjab. More than ten million people were uprooted from Pakistan and India and a legacy of passion and hatred was left by these terrible happenings. That was a time of great trial for us. Fortunately for us we had Gandhiji with us then and, largely because of him, we stopped this madness from spreading much beyond the Punjab. And then we set ourselves to find another equilibrium and to heal the deep wounds that had been caused.

4. Partition left huge minorities on either side, though larger in India than Pakistan. It was assumed, as the very basis of Partition, and assurances to this effect were freely given, that the minorities on both sides would be given full protection. We hoped that after the tremendous upheaval in the Punjab to which I have referred, the minorities would find a secure and honourable place in both countries. We tried our utmost in India, both in theory and practice, to give the Muslim minority the same position and opportunity as others had. Muslims occupied and occupy the highest places in the State, memberships of the Central and Provincial Cabinets, Governorships, Ambassadorships, Federal Court Judgeship, High Court Judgeships, high executive offices and the like. They were and are members of our political parties like the Congress. In Pakistan the Hindus did not and do not occupy any important place and cannot even be members of the Muslim League Party which controlled the Government. That party itself is communal and thus there is not even a chance for a non-Muslim to influence its work or decisions.

5. As a result of the migrations after the Partition, the Frontier Province and West Punjab were almost completely cleared of Hindus and Sikhs. East Punjab was also almost completely cleared of Muslims. But we made a great effort and brought back many Muslims to the East Punjab and I believe there are over 100,000 of them there now. Many thousands of Muslims, who had gone away from Delhi, also returned. It was Gandhiji’s policy that we should try to bring back as many people as possible.
6. The Province of Sind and East Bengal were not affected, to any great extent, by those early migrations. But conditions in both these provinces continued to be such that non-Muslims felt unhappy there and saw no chance of fitting in to the new order. About 27% of the population of Sind was Hindus, who were largely professional and business people - lawyers, doctors, teachers, engineers, merchants, etc. In East Bengal about a third of the population numbering 16 millions, were Hindus. Many people believe that the Pakistan Government deliberately followed a policy in both Sind and East Bengal of squeezing out the Hindus. Whether they did so or not, many of their minor officials functioned in that way, and there was the continuous pressure from the Muslim refugees who had come from India, mainly from the East Punjab. Even apart from this, the whole conception of the State in Pakistan, that is a theocratic Islamic State, was such that non-Muslims could only have some kind of inferior position in it. The atmosphere was oppressive and religious bigotry and hatred of the Hindus were the prevailing sentiments.

7. And so, a gradual migration of the Hindus started from Sind and East Bengal. Occasionally some incidents took place, which accelerated this process. This went on till Sind had practically no Hindu population left, except for the sweepers who were not permitted to leave by the Government there, as their services were required. Sind was thus added to West Punjab and the Frontier Province as an area where the minority problem had practically been solved by the elimination of the minority.

8. Meanwhile, the gradual migration of Hindus from East Bengal also continued, in spite of our attempts to stop it. We discouraged it in every way, because the prospect of over 10 million people coming over was frightening. Any such migration would have involved terrible misery for vast numbers of human beings and would have created almost insoluble problems. It would have upset the whole economy and social set-up of India and it would have created difficulties in the way of the nearly 40 million Muslims who are our countrymen in India. In spite of our efforts, people came over. Ultimately, about the middle of 1949, this stream lessened and almost stopped for a while. By then nearly two million non-Muslims had come over from East to West Bengal.

9. During this period, there was no major migration from India to Pakistan. Some Muslims undoubtedly went over. But a very much larger number came back to India, because they found conditions here secure and satisfactory. Hardly any Hindu who came over from Pakistan went back.

10. This was the state of affairs, when sometime last December certain incidents happened in Khulna District in East Bengal which led to an influx of refugees into Calcutta. The stories that these refugees brought led to trouble in Calcutta, and a kind of chain reaction was started. Immediately after, widespread trouble took place in Dacca, Barisal, Bakarganj, Feni, Chittagong and many other places in East Bengal. It was rather extraordinary how this trouble took place more or less at the same time in a number of widely separated areas of East Bengal. There was heavy killing, arson and looting and abductions of women and forcible conversion. Bengal is peculiarly susceptible to any attacks on women and forced conversions. Tension increased greatly and incidents occurred in some parts of the U.P. and Bombay also. Early in March, tribal people in some parts of Assam, incited by some refugees from East Bengal, swept down over the Muslim population of that area and committed widespread arson and drove about 40,000 Muslims across the border into East Pakistan. Since then there has been no major incident either in Pakistan or India. But minor incidents, such as occasional stabbing or arson, have occurred.

11. I do not wish to draw a balance-sheet of evil deeds, as it serves little purpose to do so and the information at our disposal is still far from complete. But my own belief is, from such facts as we possess, that the killing in East Pakistan, was far greater. Also that there was no rape or abduction of women or forced conversions in West Bengal. On both sides passions have been roused and there is a sense of insecurity both in East and West Bengal. In East Bengal it may be said with some assurance that hardly a single Hindu wants to remain there. For some time after the disturbances, travel was limited and obstructions were placed in the way of people coming from East to West Bengal. The result of this was to increase panic and a feeling of being in a trap. Much as we dislike big migrations, we felt that it was essential to open the door to these people coming over and to ask the Pakistan Government to give full protection during travel. This protection was necessary, because some horrible train outrages had occurred, when large numbers of people were killed in railway trains. As soon as train services and steamers were resumed, though on a restricted scale, the migrations started. Over 200,000 Hindus have come over from East Bengal, usually with little or nothing even in the shape of personal belongings. At the same time over 100,000 Muslims have left West Bengal for East. Probably most of these are permanent residents of East Bengal who worked in Calcutta and the neighbourhood. Some of the Muslims left Calcutta for other parts of India, like the U.P. and Bihar. These migrations continue and are limited only by the transport available.

12. I have recently visited Calcutta twice, and seen the stream of refugees collecting in camps and other places. I have also seen, at close quarters, the intense emotion and anger of the people in Calcutta. It must be remembered that a very large number of people in East and West Bengal are related to each other and thus any tragic happening has an intimate significance for people on either side. We are trying to do our best for the refugees and to lessen the panic and the anger. We have felt that it is better to allow people to come to West Bengal or to go away from it without let or hindrance, in order to remove a feeling of being shut in, as if in a trap. I do not know how long this migration will continue. We have controlled the situation wherever any trouble has occurred and punished the trouble-makers. We are trying to help Muslims who have suffered. Meanwhile reports reach us of petty-incidents happening and of people traveling from East Pakistan to India being harassed in many ways and deprived of their belongings. Large numbers of Hindus in camps in East Bengal are in great distress because adequate food is not supplied.

13. I made various proposals to the Prime Minister of Pakistan, including one for a joint visit by him and me to both East and West Bengal, also about joint commissions of the Governments of East and West Bengal, inclusive of Ministers, visiting the affected areas. Neither of these proposals was accepted. We then discussed the desirability of issuing some kind of a joint declaration. On the whole we agreed to most of its terms; the most important part of these was free movement of people from one country to another. But such a declaration has no great importance now, because people have lost all faith in declarations and assurances.

14. We have to face today a problem of colossal magnitude and complexity. We can hardly think in terms of vast transfers of population which may last years before they are completed and which would upset completely the economy of both countries. It would be a continuing evil, with refugees spreading all over the country carrying their tales of woe and becoming sources of further infection. At the same time we cannot think of preventing people, who find it impossible to remain in Pakistan, seeking succor from us. The problem has many aspects, but perhaps the most important is the psychological one. That derives, I think, from that unfortunate conception of an Islamic theocratic State which Pakistan professes. That in itself prevents minorities in Pakistan from settling down and tension and trouble continue. We cannot spend the rest of our lives in facing this and in meeting year after year huge migrations of people. We cannot also just ignore what happens to our kith and kin on the other side. There can be no peace or equilibrium in India till the fullest protection and opportunity are given to the minorities both in Pakistan and India. We have set ourselves to do that and I think, by and large, we have succeeded, though occasionally we have failed. At any rate our policy is clear. On the Pakistan side, their policy, influenced by the idea of a theocratic State, itself tends to push out the non-conformists. As these people come to India, they create difficulties for our Muslim countrymen.

15. My colleagues and I have done our utmost to face this difficult situation and to stand our ground against heavy pressure for some kind of direct action aimed at protecting the non-Muslim minority in East Bengal. How long we can stand that pressure will depend on happenings in East Pakistan. So long as the mentality that led to the creation of Pakistan, namely the hatred of the Hindus and India lasts and expresses itself in violence or in continued pressure on the Hindu minority, so long will there be not only no easing of the tension between the two countries but an ever-present risk of sudden conflict. It is my considered opinion that the fair and just treatment of the minorities in both Pakistan and India is far more important for the maintenance of peace than the settlement of the Kashmir dispute. Unlike Kashmir, this problem of the minorities involves no dispute over territory. And yet, as large numbers go over from one side to another, questions of having additional territory for them are put to us.

16. What we need for a satisfactory solution is to put our conceptions of the State on a right basis and to put an end to distrust and hate. India, as I have repeatedly said, has no designs upon the territorial Integrity or the independence of Pakistan. We seek nothing more than to be left free to develop in our own way and to do so in friendship and peace with Pakistan. But Pakistan continues to be influenced by that communal spirit which led to its creation and which influences still its policy even towards its non-Muslim minority. If there is to be real peace between us, this mentality must come to an end.

17. This has become a long letter and I must apologies for having taken up so much of your time. I have written with no desire to blame Pakistan or to throw upon other shoulders the responsibility which, in the last resort, only the two Governments directly concerned must bear. The purpose of this letter is to give you, as objectively as I can, an account of recent happenings and their effect on Indo-Pakistan relations. We are thoroughly alive to the perils that face us and are anxious to avert them. But success in this extremely difficult task cannot be achieved by our efforts alone.

Yours sincerely,
Sd/- Jawaharlal Nehru.

The Right Honourable C. R. Atlee,
Prime Minister of the United Kingdom,
10 Downing Street, London, S.W.1.
I venture to make the following suggestions for Prime Minister's considerations:

2. P.M. has announced that the Government of India will receive and look after all those who seek refuge in India from East Bengal. In fact, Government's immediate policy is directed to securing conditions of safe travel in East Bengal so as to facilitate the movement of all those, whose number is reported to be thousands, who are waiting to evacuate to India. The Hindus of West Bengal, particularly those who have during recent times come out of East Bengal, are in a very angry mood. They demand immediate action against the Government of Pakistan and are talking of armed intervention. Quite a large number of persons are also openly discussing forced exchange of population between India and East Bengal. The saner sections, however, are convinced of the difficulties, if not the inequity, of immediate armed intervention and of exchange of population. Public feelings will be mollified to a great extent and the reputation of Government correspondingly enhanced if the assurance which the P.M. has given in regard to the relief and rehabilitation of refugees is implemented in letter as well as in spirit. If that is not done, the bona fide of Government will be called in question, and the refugees will fall easy victims to the propaganda of communists and other anti-social elements. Oppression of the Muslims in India, in big ways and small, is likely to continue and mass migration of Muslims may be forced by the pace of events. All accounts tend to show that while the West Bengal Government, are facing a Herculean task with zeal and vigour, the same spirit of cooperation and sense of urgency are lacking in the neighbouring states. At a time like this difficulties are bound to arise and there is an easy tendency to talk of these difficulties and discuss means of settling them. The situation, however, cannot brook of any delay. My own feeling is - I speak without full knowledge of facts - that the existing machinery in Bihar, Orissa and Assam are inadequate to the task ahead, even for administration of relief. The question of rehabilitation will present still greater difficulties, but this in any case is bound to take time to solve. In Assam, frankly speaking, the local government seem more worried about the Muslims who have been dislodged from their homes than about refugees who are seeking shelter in Assam from East Bengal. One task is as important as the other, but the existence of one should not be made an excuse for the neglect of the other.

3. My own specific suggestion is that the P.M. take up the matter as one of the utmost priority and call again a conference with H.M.(Relief), Chief Ministers, West Bengal, Assam, Bihar and Orissa, Chief Commissioner, Tripura, and Administrator of Cooch-Behar. This conference should take place preferably in Calcutta. Adequate machinery should be devised and detailed instructions be given on the spot to all concerned as to the reception, accommodation and relief of the refugees. Immediately three high level officers with sufficient authority to speak direct to the Chief Ministers of Assam, Bihar and Orissa, should be appointed at the headquarters of these three states. These officers will be responsible for seeing that the Government of India's policy is being fully implemented and that any local difficulties are got over immediately. The officer to be posted in Assam should not be a Bengali.

IMMEDIATE

From Jawaharlal Nehru to Liaquat Ali Khan

In your telegram No. 1302 dated 14th March you said that you would write to me on your return to Karachi from East Bengal. I have not heard from you so far.

I need not tell you of the urgency of the East Bengal problem. You have been there and must now have a personal appreciation of the gravity of the situation. Refugees from there continue to pour in; during the last three days the numbers have averaged fifteen thousand daily. Nearly half a million have come over since the recent trouble started, and there are no signs of the flood stopping. That is evidence of the persistence of a sense of insecurity among non-Muslims there. Apart from the misery that refugees suffer from this uprooting from their ancestral homes and all that that involves the economic burden and the psychological strain upon our people both Hindu and Muslim have become intolerable.

A flow of Muslim refugees in the opposite direction, though smaller in volume, is also in progress. That must create a similar economic and psychological problem for you.

This process cannot go on without disastrous consequences to both our countries and we have to make all out efforts to solve it.

I think that quickest and most effective way to attempt a solution is for us to meet. Correspondence is a poor substitution for personal discussions. The urgency and gravity of the task will not brook the unavoidable delays that correspondence involves.

I would therefore urge you to come to Delhi at the earliest possible convenient date. So far as we are concerned we are prepared to meet you here and any colleagues that you may wish to bring on any date and to put aside every other engagement. As I pointed out in my telegram No.9GS from Calcutta dated 16th March the stage for a mere declaration on the lines that we have been discussing is past. Practically everything that was to be included in that statement has already been said by both of us publicly. It is imperative that we go to the very root of the problem and devise solutions which will put an end to the present situation that threatens catastrophes.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖
Letter from Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.
Karachi, March 26, 1950.

My dear Pandit Nehru,

I am writing in reply to your letters dated the 10th and 13th March and in continuation of my telegrams Nos.1302 and 1357, dated the 14th and 17th March respectively.

2. I have just returned from a fairly extensive tour of East Bengal where I met representatives of Muslims, caste Hindus, Scheduled Castes, Europeans and refugees, Government officials and others, and also addressed a number of public meetings which was attended by, among others, the members of the minority community. From personal observation and enquiry I found that my earlier information about the origin and extent of the disturbances was substantially correct, namely, that the trouble in East Bengal broke out after, and as a direct reaction of, the attacks on Muslims in West Bengal; and that wherever the trouble took place in East Bengal it was suppressed rigorously and as speedily as possible. Wherever I went, all my interviewers, and particularly the members of the minority community, were unanimous in praising the energy, zeal and impartiality with which the district officers worked to bring the situation under control. Now that the reports of trouble in remote areas have come to hand, I regret to find that the loss of life has been greater than was known earlier: the number of killed and wounded in Dacca is 225 and 235 and in the rest of East Bengal 203 and 351 respectively. The causalities, though serious and most deplorable, are however, nowhere near the fantastic exaggerations that have been appearing in the Indian Press. In fact, there has been no trouble of any kind anywhere in East Bengal for nearly a month and normal conditions now prevail throughout the Province.

3. As regards Dacca, it is not correct that the trouble was started on the 10th February by the Secretariat employees or that they had themselves taken part in it at any stage. The actual facts are as follows:

A large number of the Secretariat employees, whose homes and relatives are in West Bengal, were greatly agitated, as were other people in the town generally, over the widespread communal disturbances that had been taking place in that State almost continuously, on West Bengal Government's own admission, since the 24th January. Towards the end of January refugees from West Bengal also started reaching Dacca in considerable numbers. Apart from the tales of horror brought by these refugees, the relatives of many of these employees had either come personally or written to them informing them of the seriousness of these disturbances and urging them to remove their families to East Bengal for safety. Their anxiety naturally grew; as did the tension in the town, with the news that on the 8th February large-scale anti-Muslim riots had flared up in Calcutta. On the 10th morning about 250 of these employees gathered inside the Secretariat compound awaiting the arrival of the Chief Secretary, West Bengal, and the Indian Deputy High Commissioner with a view to making a personal representation to them regarding the safety of their relatives in West Bengal. When the car carrying West Bengal's Chief Secretary and India's Deputy High Commissioner arrived, these employees placed their fears as to the safety of their relatives etc. before the Chief Secretary, West Bengal. It is not correct that he was "mobbed". The entire proceedings were peaceful though many of those present were evidently agitated. The Chief Secretary and the Deputy High Commissioner invited a deputation of five of the employees, to meet them immediately. While the deputation was being interviewed about 100 of these employees, mostly clerks of the Accountant General's Office, withdrew to an open space within the Secretariat compound to await the return of the deputation. It was while this group was awaiting the return of the deputation that one of the clerks addressed it about the happenings in West Bengal. It was the presence of Muslim refugees from West Bengal in Dacca, the injuries on their persons and the stories of the happenings in Calcutta and other parts of West Bengal that they brought with them, coming as they did on top of a fortnight's almost continuous anti-Muslim rioting in that State, that actually provoked the trouble in the town and not the peaceful protest by the Secretariat employees or their going out in a procession. The clerk who addressed the employees was arrested under the Special Powers Ordinance under orders of Government and is still in custody.

4. In your letter of the 10th March you said that Mrs. C.R. Das wanted to go to the Dacca with her daughter and one or two companions on a goodwill mission. If she has not already visited Dacca by now, I have no objection at all to her and her party going there. Indeed there is no restriction on any person who may wish to go to East Bengal in a private capacity. The East Bengal Government have told all who have asked to visit the Province that they are welcome. I understand that Miss Mridula Sarabhai, Mrs. Agatha Harrison, Mr Horace Alexander and others have already been to East Bengal and have been given every facility to go where they please.

5. In one important respect conditions in East Bengal are far from normal. A steadily increasing stream of refugees from India is pouring into East Bengal, and the exodus of Hindus from parts of East Bengal continues. The refugees have many a woeful tale to tell but I will not enter into all that in this letter to you. The leaders of the Hindus told me that they wished for nothing better than to continue to stay in their homes in Pakistan, but that there were two main reasons why several Hindus were going away even though peaceful conditions now prevailed in East Bengal. First, that as communal violence was continuing in varying degree in West Bengal, Assam that they might once again become the victims of reprisals. Secondly, that the Indian Press and several Indian leaders were urging that India should invade Pakistan and that they were being told by friends and relations across the border that in the circumstances, for Hindus to stay in Pakistan would be to commit suicide.

6. That in brief is the present situation in East Bengal. I now turn to the remedies that may be applied to put an end to communal disorder in your country and to prevent its recurrence in mine.

7. I have already agreed to the joint declaration and before I left for East Bengal on the 18th March. I telegraphed to you urging you to agree to its simultaneous publication at once. I have not as yet had a reply from you but I still hope that even though the joint declaration may not be enough and may be ever due, you will agree that it is still worth making, if only as an earnest of the desire of the two Governments to march in line in so far as certain immediate measures for the enforcement of public order and the rehabilitation of displaced persons are concerned.

8. I have, during my tour of East Bengal, emphasized on all concerned the need for providing facilities and full protection for those who wish to leave for India. No hindrances are to be placed in the way of such persons. I have done all this in the hope, which you share, that if peace can be maintained in both the countries, most of them who are now leaving will before long return to their homes. Neither you nor I can contemplate the major calamity of an exchange of population with equanimity, and we must therefore continue to do all we can to discourage large scale migrations.

9. The Press in both the countries requires our immediate attention. I do not wish to measure blame but in barefaced and malicious lying the Indian Press, particularly the Calcutta Press, would take a lot of beating. In saying this I do not exculpate the lapses of Dawn. But as a specimen of abusive journalism I will ask you to study the leading article on my speech at Barlisal which appeared in Amrita Bazar Patrika of the 22nd March. The opening lines of the article were: "Is Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan a fool or a knave? A close study of his Barisal address of March 19 would convince anybody with ordinary intelligence that he is more a knave than a fool". It is not the personal aspect of this article, however unseemly that may be, to which I take objection. What I most deplore is the vicious attempt made by the writer, by dishonest and shameless attribution of false motives, to destroy the effect of my Barisal speech, which was a forthright condemnation of evil-doers and a firm assurance to the minorities of full protection. If any effort to promote harmony and concord is ever to succeed, we will have to keep the Press in both countries under the strictest control.

10. Another feature of many Indian newspapers which has appalled me is their blatant and unchecked advocacy of war against Pakistan. I do not ordinarily see Calcutta papers in Karachi but some of the headlines and articles in such Calcutta papers as I read during my tour of East Bengal made me wonder if indeed it was the official policy to allow newspapers to carry license to the point of dangerous madness. Nor has advocacy of war been confined to the Press: the invasion of Pakistan has been publicly demanded by several Hindu leaders. I have already touched upon the unsettling effect of war hysteria in India on the minorities in East Bengal. I have only to add that the iniquity of advocating war against a friendly neighbour will no doubt be fully apparent to you. Trust that you will take immediate and vigorous action to put a stop to this war propaganda.

11. I entirely agree that there has been a most deplorable resurgence of evil forces in both the countries. This is a development which all right thinking person must unreservedly condemn; and I have taken every private and public opportunity to do so. But if one must pass a general judgment as to the extent of the evil, one must take into account its sequence, duration and amount. Looking at the position from any or all of these aspects, I would be constrained to say that what has happened in India has been far worse than what has happened in Pakistan. Unfortunately the forces of evil are still active in India, although, due largely to your efforts, they are no longer altogether uncontrolled.

12. I must confess that I am profoundly disappointed to read your observations on the Islamic concept of the State. I have been at considerable pains to explain to you that in an Islamic State the minorities are fully assured of equal rights and citizenship, but it seems to me that an inadequate understanding of the principles of Islam has unfortunately led to the misconception that a State which is guided in its policy by these principles in not governed by high moral purpose. The suggestion in your letter that the State policy of Pakistan produces discrimination and conflict is entirely unwarranted. I am afraid frequent repetition of this baseless suggestion cannot but do enormous harm to the peace of mind of the Hindu minority in Pakistan, and to relations, present and future, between India and Pakistan. Nor must anything be said or done to encourage the minority in a country to look for protection to the other Government. There are grave inherent dangers to the stability of Pakistan and India in the assumption by either Government of the role of the protector of the minorities in the other country. Ultimately, whether we call ours an Islamic State and you call yours a Secular State, the world will judge us by the practical effect of our policies. I am very sorry to have to make comparisons, but I think that on the record, say, of communal troubles since the partition, a neutral observer will probably agree that the Islamic State of Pakistan has provided far greater security to all its nationals than the secular State of India. In the larger field of international relations, no conflict need ever arise between two countries because of the differences in the religion of their majority communities.

13. But I must desist from prolonging this discussion. What I have said all along and I notice from your last letter that you appreciate the point is that if we do not trust each other and keep on blaming each other we will get nowhere. It is on the basis of trust alone that we can build lasting harmony. I am always ready to meet you and discuss with you the present matters and, if you like, the whole question of relations between Pakistan and India. You have never been to Karachi, and it will give me very great pleasure indeed if you will pay us a visit as the guest of my Government.

14. I must, however, be frank with you. I have been greatly pained to hear, on my return to Karachi, that heavy concentration by India of troops and military stores has taken place in forward areas on the frontiers of Western Pakistan. This concentration, in the view security of Pakistan, and coming as it does on the top of a systematic campaign in the Indian Press and by some Indian leaders that India should declare war on Pakistan, has created an extremely grave situation. I have repeatedly requested you for a categorical assurance that when you spoke of "other methods" you did not mean joint declaration to which we have agreed has not yet been issued, nor have I received a reply to my proposals with regard to the "no war" declaration. Pakistan has no aggressive designs on India and I still believe that the difficulties between us can be resolved by the peaceful methods of negotiation and arbitration. But the unwarranted forward moves of the Indian army have created a situation which I cannot but treat as extremely serious.

15. You have written to me with great frankness and sincerity, which I much appreciate. I too have written in the same spirit. And if in the course of this letter I have said a hard thing, it is only because the issues before us are grave and must be faced squarely. History has placed a heavy responsibility on your shoulders and mine. On the way we discharge this responsibility depends not only the peace of this subcontinent but also perhaps the peace of Asia. I abhor all violence, no matter what its shape or dimension, and so, I have no doubt, do you. In the world torn by insane dissensions and conflict, if you and I can get together and help in some small measure in the eradication of these dissensions and conflicts, we will indeed have done a service to humanity.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

Sd/- Liaquat Ali Khan.

The Hon'ble Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru,
Prime Minister of India,
New Delhi.

TOP SECRET

TELEGRAM

From : Hicomind, London.
To : Foreign, New Delhi
No.3536. March 27, 1950.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

For Jawaharlal Nehru from Krishna Menon.

I saw Attlee today at 6 o'clock and was with him for an hour. He had both the copy of your telegram to Liaquat Ali and the letter which you sent me by registered air mail to be delivered to him.

The discussion was entirely informal and on a personal basis. Mr. Attlee displayed unusual friendliness and concern. He was deeply impressed by your letter and I think also by the fact that the invitation to Liaquat Ali has NO strings at all attached to it. He also appreciates the gravity of the situation.

Our talks were about what could be done. I told him that I could only speak at a personal level and that was the idea of seeing him without other Ministers. He expressed anxiety to help but equal anxiety NOT to interfere.

What is communicated to you in the immediately succeeding telegram was discussed. The initiative came from me but there was a ready response. He proposed to call his Colleagues immediately into consultation and to call me back before 10 o’clock. The others had also apparently seen your letter by then and were impressed and they all agreed to the suggestion. The 9 o’Clock meeting was the result at which I had to say very little. I had also made the suggestion at the 6 o’clock meeting that he should call us both. I give this background to the proposal in the immediately following telegram which I feel will enable you better to appreciate it.

I also now understand from my own sources that Lord Addison has agreed to go if asked. He has been most helpful recently as already reported to you and is highly respected and has great wisdom.

Attlee is seeing me again tomorrow for further talks. I take the liberty of hoping I shall have a favourable reply to the proposal in the succeeding telegram by then. I feel strongly that its acceptance will make a useful contribution in the present situation.

I want you to feel assured that I have made NO suggestion or proposal this or other on your behalf or committed you.

3033. Statement of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru in Parliament on the situation in East and West Bengal.

New Delhi, March 29, 1950.

Sir, as the House knows, I have been for some time past in correspondence with the Prime Minister of Pakistan in regard to recent happenings in East and West Bengal. In view of the grave developments that have taken place, I felt that correspondence, by telegram or letter, was not an adequate or satisfactory method of dealing with this problem. I invited Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan therefore to come to Delhi, with such colleagues as he might consider necessary to discuss these matters, not only with a view to meeting the present crisis, but also to find an enduring solution of the problems that face us. Soon after I had sent him my invitation, I received an invitation from him to go to Karachi for the same purpose. Our invitations crossed each other. On my further pressing him to come to Delhi, he was good enough to agree and we shall expect him and his colleagues here on April 2nd.

I have also to inform the House that the situation in the Howrah area and in some other parts of West Bengal became serious and, day before yesterday, the West Bengal Government asked the military to take charge, from the law and order point of view, of the Howrah area. Rather inaccurately, this has been described as the promulgation of martial law. No such actual promulgation has taken place and therefore technically there is no martial law. But we have given the largest powers to the military and they are more or less in control of the Howrah area. We have assured the West Bengal Government of our fullest support in any action they may take to deal with the situation in any part of the State. If necessity arises, martial law will be proclaimed. We are determined to meet this menace with the full resources of the State and to punish all evil-doers as well as those who incite others to evil deeds.

These new arrangements in Howrah and elsewhere have resulted in an immediate improvement of the situation. The Howrah area has been quiet and in the rest of Calcutta also there has been practically no incident. The jute mill area is also quiet. There has been an improvement also in other parts of West Bengal.

As the House knows, the country has been shocked and pained by events that took place in East Bengal. Recent happenings in West Bengal, and more particularly in Calcutta and Howrah areas, have been a matter of the deepest shame and sorrow for us. It is the responsibility of our Governments, Central and State, as well as of our people, to preserve law and order and to give full security to every individual. More especially it is our duty and responsibility to give that full sense of security to the minorities who dwell in this country. Every failure to give it as a failure of Government to that extent and no excuse is sufficient to justify it. A distinguished Englishman, Mr. Cameron, President of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, met his death at the hands of a mob, in trying to protect his servant. Many citizens and nationals of our country have also met their death at the hands of evil-doers and others who have been led away by passion and prejudice into committing deeds which cannot possibly be excused. I should like to express our Government's deep sorrow for these unhappy and deplorable occurrences which bring discredit upon us.

The fact that an excited and impassioned crowd misbehaves is bad enough, but it is far worse for some people, by speech or writing or otherwise, to excite and inflame the multitude and thus induce them to commit evil deeds. The responsibility of these people is very great, far greater often than that of the crowd or the individual who actually commits the deed. I should like everyone to realise this, and to realise even more how the whole future of our country and our people is being injured by the madness or fanaticism of a few. There has been far too much wild talk and wild writing without thought given to what all this means and what the consequences might be. Our country will progress or will perish because of what we do ourselves, not because of what others may or may not do.
No Government, worthy of its name, can tolerate public disorder and incitement to disorder which we have seen recently. The Government, of which I have the honour to be Prime Minister, is determined not to tolerate this, and I am sure that this House and the country will give their full support and cooperation to the Government in this task.

3034. Radio Broadcast of Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan on the eve of his departure for New Delhi to discuss with the Indian Prime Minister the question of minorities.

Karachi, April 1, 1950.

As you all know, I am proceeding to Delhi tomorrow morning to discuss with Mr. Jawaharlal Nehru and his colleagues the difficulties facing the minorities of Bharat and Pakistan. We shall try to devise proposals, the implementation of which would result in the removal of these difficulties, so that the minorities in both countries may not only be relieved of their present troubles but may live for the rest of their lives in peace and with honour. We shall also strive to settle those issues which are responsible for the existing tension between the two countries.

On learning of my proposed visit to Delhi the people of Pakistan have sent me innumerable letters, telegrams and messages. In several places they have held meetings and have expressed not only feelings of affection and regard for me but have also shown anxiety for my personal safety. These sentiments of affection and devotion, which have been expressed alike by young and old and men and women, have greatly touched me.

I repeat what I have often said before, that I have dedicated my life to the cause of Pakistan and Islam. Everything which is so dedicated to a cause is in the special protection of Almighty God. He is the Master of his and hope of resolving our present difficulties. I am convinced that it is the right step.

INHUMAN BARBARTIES

I am going to Delhi because for quite a considerable time now humanity has been suffering greatly in this sub-continent. Human values which emerged from ceaseless striving continued over centuries are being destroyed by inhuman barbarities. The edifice of civilization which was built on the principles of justice and peace is being demolished by hatred and malice.
Crores of men, women and children are spending a life of misery and woe. For large numbers of them the future holds nothing but perpetual fear and misery. When the day dawns they do not know what their fate would be at its end; when the sun sets they do not know whether they will live to see another day.

In this state of terror they have lost their self-respect and sense of honour. In their daily lives they hardly see any ray of hope.

It is the duty of every human being to strive to improve this sad state of affairs. I have said many a time before that a clash between Pakistan and Bharat will not only ruin both countries, but would also endanger world peace. In the circumstances, if I fail to do my very best to ease the situation, I feel I would be guilty of dereliction of duty.

I am aware that the plight in which the Muslims of Pakistan or Bharat finds themselves greatly grieves the Muslims of Pakistan. Nevertheless, we should not do anything which would tend to make the situation worse. Instead, we should remain calm and patient and do our best so that light may replace the existing darkness. By the Grace of God, there is complete peace prevailing in Pakistan. Eastern Pakistan, where conditions were disturbed for some time, has now been enjoying perfect peace for over a month.

Remarkable Discipline

The speed with which peace was restored in Eastern Pakistan deserves special mention, and I congratulate the Government and the people of Eastern Pakistan on their sense of discipline.

We should always follow the path of truth and justice, for the path of injustice and falsehood leads to destruction. Our progress, success and salvation can only be ensured when we stick fast to the principles of truth and righteousness. Under no circumstances should we allow injustice to take root in our hearts.

I am proceeding to New Delhi, in the hope that we shall, with our united efforts, create peaceful conditions in Bharat and Pakistan and remove all misunderstandings which have created tension between the two countries.

I appeal to every Pakistani to pray for the success of this Conference, so that the minorities of both countries may live a peaceful and honourable life, and relations between Pakistan and Bharat may so improve that they become real friends by understanding each other and thus make it possible for all the inhabitants of this subcontinent to live that life of happiness which they so well deserve. —Pakistan Zindabad.

Telegram from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to the Indian Ambassadors in London, Washington and Moscow.

New Delhi, April 3, 1950.

Liaquat and I had long preliminary conversation yesterday primarily about situation in two Bengals and Assam and protection and rights of minorities. Our Secretariat and his are now working out plan of agreement which, apart from providing for recovery of looted property and abducted women, punishment of wrong-doers, prevention of inflammatory propaganda, adequate protection of migrants in transit and freedom to them to take away moveable property without harassment by customs authorities and compensation to those that may not return to their homes, will include affirmation by both Governments of determination to ensure effective equality of rights and opportunity to all citizens, irrespective of religion, freedom of movement, speech, occupation and worship and provision for appointment of joint minority commission to watch over implementation of agreement and report to two Governments who will be responsible for action thereon. Possibility of conversations on other disputes, e.g., trade war, evacuee property and Kashmir not excluded but we shall concentrate first on securing agreement to deal with urgent Bengal situation. I shall keep you informed of developments.

Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Chief Minister of West Bengal Bidhan Chandra Roy.

New Delhi, April 4, 1950.

My dear Bidhan,

For the last three days we have been having talks with Liaquat Ali Khan and those he brought with him. Apart from my talks with Liaquat Ali, there have been talks on secretarial level. Liaquat Ali has met nearly all our Ministers at or after dinner. He has had a separate talk this afternoon with Maulana Azad. Tomorrow he is meeting Sardar Patel.

One thing I think is quite clear and that is the earnest desire of Liaquat Ali to come to some agreement. Our talks have been very frank. I believe that considerable pressure also has been brought to bear upon him by the U.K. Government. We are discussing this matter with the full realisation on each side that we are on the brink of a terrible catastrophe. This makes one think furiously and does not leave much room for round about talks or manoeuvring for position.

We have discussed this business of an Islamic State at great length. Maulana Azad has laid considerable stress upon it and asked Liaquat Ali to clear this up publicly. Liaquat Ali was at pains to point out that all that was meant by the Islamic State was that Muslims should have their personal law etc. In no sense should they or could they have special privileges. His State was an ordinary democratic State like England. He was prepared to make this perfectly clear at any time. In any joint agreement he was prepared to accept any common language which he and we could use. But he could not denounce the Islamic State phrase for obvious reasons, as this would give a handle to the reactionary elements in Pakistan. But apart from this, he was perfectly prepared and intended to make this fully clear.

About the machinery for implementation, we pressed for a joint commission for East and West Bengal and Assam. In practice he was not opposed to joint consideration of these problems, but he has pressed very much for separate commissions which could meet jointly, whenever so desired. His main fear appears to be that in view of the agitation for the joining together of East and West Bengal, which has thoroughly frightened Pakistanis, any such joint commission might give rise to the impression that this is a first step to that end. He has no objection to the work being joined, whenever necessary.

It is proposed that each Province should have a commission of its own, consisting of a representative each of the minority and the majority and a Provincial Minister plus the two Central Ministers from India and Pakistan. The commissions of two Provinces to meet together, whenever so desired by either of the Central Ministers. This would ensure joint working, whenever necessary.

Maulana Azad, as you know, has been very anxious to introduce minority ministers in East and West Bengal. Liaquat Ali Khan at first said that this principle should be accepted for the whole of India and Pakistan. But it was pointed out to him that it was difficult for us to make any such commitment about the whole of India, which had varied problems to face in different States. We had all along tried to give the fullest representation to the minorities. At last Liaquat Ali appears to have agreed to this principle being applied to East and West Bengal only for the time being. I presume you have no objection.

I am not going into other matters in this letter. On the whole they are proceeding on the lines we had indicated, with some variations. One new addition however is the decision to have departments for the welfare of minorities in both the Central Governments. These departments to be in charge of a Minister. These departments might introduce some machinery in their respective Provinces for the welfare of minorities. As a matter of fact, we have been thinking of this for some time past independently of the present talks. The demand for this has come to us from Christians and others also.

I think it is likely that we shall come to an agreement. This agreement will necessarily include a strong attempt to stop propaganda against the integrity of either India and Pakistan and against war.

I have no doubt in my mind that such an agreement, as we hope to arrive at, will be a good thing for us and will not only avert a major catastrophe but will tend to better conditions. How fast this process of improvement may be, I do not know. But having decided to go one way, we should throw all our weight in that direction. We may have to contend against intransigent groups and factions. Well, we shall just have to face them. There is no other or half-hearted course to adopt.

It is doubtful if many of the refugees in either countries will go back to their original homes. I hope however that a fair number might do so. I think they are likely to be much better off if they go back. We do not wish to force them to go back in any way, but we do hope to create conditions when they might feel inclined to go back.

In view of these probable developments, we should try to steer our course from now onwards so as to fit in with them. I hope that Muslims in Calcutta and West Bengal will not be encouraged in any way to go to Pakistan. Every move in either direction adds to the complication of the problem and the difficulties of ultimately solving it.

It seems to me that we have to contend against two factors in West Bengal, and to a much lesser extent, in other States. One is the popular passion and resentment against Pakistan, which develops into an anti-Muslim feeling. Secondly, the organised attempts of groups to exploit the present situation for political purposes. These groups may not be big, but they can take advantage of the present excitement. I do not suppose that these particular groups, whose aim is political, will be satisfied with any settlement, however good. Their aim is unsettlement and war. Therefore they are likely to give trouble. But I think that it should certainly be possible for us to allay popular passions somewhat and at the same time to deal with intransigent groups sternly.

We have to face and you especially in Bengal, a situation, which is of the greatest peril to the whole country and which is looked upon by a large part of the world as dangerous for world peace. It is a heavy responsibility and the consequences are staggering. I think we have a chance to stop this rot, control it and give a different direction to events. It is a difficult job, but we can do it and I feel sure that we will do it. In spite of the loud shouting of certain newspapers and others, I am quite sure that there is a passionate desire in the country to have a satisfactory settlement. I have received quite enough indications of this from odd quarters. Even the refugees from West Pakistan are anxious about it. A move in the right direction, therefore, will certainly be welcomed by vast numbers of people in India and even in Bengal. We should take it with faith and confidence and not be frightened into taking a false step.

About your message regarding the military, I am asking Baldev Singh (Defence Minister) to send proper instructions.

Yours

Jawaharlal

New Delhi, April 8, 1950

A. The Governments of India and Pakistan solemnly agree that each shall ensure to the minorities throughout its territory, complete equality of citizenship, irrespective of religion, a full sense of security in respect of life, culture, property and personal honour, freedom of movement within each country and freedom of occupation, speech and worship, subject to law and morality. Members of the minorities shall have equal opportunity with members of the majority community to participate in the public life of their country, to hold political or other office, and to serve in their country’s civil and armed forces. Both Governments declare these rights to be fundamental and undertake to enforce them effectively. The Prime Minister of India has drawn attention to the fact that these rights are guaranteed to all minorities in India by its Constitution. The Prime Minister of Pakistan has pointed out that similar provision exists in the Objectives Resolution adopted by the Constituent Assembly of Pakistan. It is the policy of both Governments that the enjoyment of these democratic rights shall be assured to all their nationals without distinction. Both Governments wish to emphasise that the allegiance and loyalty of the minorities is to the State of which they are citizens, and that it is to the Government of their own State that they should look for the redress of their grievances.

B. In respect of migrants from East Bengal, West Bengal, Assam and Tripura, where communal disturbances have recently occurred, it is agreed between the two Governments:

(i) That there shall be freedom of movement and protection in transit;

(ii) That there shall be freedom to remove as much of his moveable personal effects and household goods as a migrant may wish to take with him. Moveable property shall include personal jewellery. The maximum cash allowed to each adult migrant will be Rs.150/- and to each migrant child Rs.75/-

(iii) that a migrant may deposit such of his personal jewellery or cash as he does not wish to take with him with a bank. A proper receipt shall be furnished to him by the bank for cash or jewellery thus deposited and facilities shall be provided, as and when required, for their transfer to him, subject, as regards cash to the exchange regulations of the Government concerned;

(iv) That there shall be no harassment by the Customs authorities. At each Customs post agreed upon by the Governments concerned, liaison officers of the other Government shall be posted to ensure this in practice;

(v) Rights of ownership in or occupancy of the immoveable property of a migrant shall not be disturbed, if, during his absence, such property is occupied by another person, it shall be returned to him, provided that he comes back by the 31st December, 1950. Where the migrant was a cultivating owner or tenant, the land shall be restored to him, provided that he returns not later than the 31st December, 1950. In exceptional cases, if a Government considers that a migrant’s immoveable property cannot be returned to him, the matter shall be referred to the appropriate Minority Commission for advice. Where restoration of immoveable property to the migrant who returns within the specified period is found not possible the Government concerned shall take steps to rehabilitate him.

(vi) That in the case of a migrant who decides not to return, ownership of all his immoveable property shall continue to vest in him and he shall have unrestricted right to dispose of it by sale, by exchange with an evacuee in the other country, or otherwise. A Committee consisting of three representatives of the minority and presided over by a representative of Government shall act as trustees of the owner. The Committee shall be empowered to recover rent for such immoveable property according to law.

The Governments of East Bengal, West Bengal, Assam and Tripura shall enact the necessary legislation to set up these Committees.

The Provincial or State Government, as the case may be, will instruct the District or other appropriate authority to give all possible assistance for the discharge of the Committee’s functions.

The provisions of this sub-paragraph shall also apply to migrants who may have left East Bengal for any part of India, or West Bengal, Assam or Tripura for any part of Pakistan, prior to the recent disturbances but after the 15th August, 1947. The arrangement in this sub-paragraph will apply also to migrants who have left Bihar for East Bengal owing to communal disturbances or fear thereof.

C. As regards the Province of East Bengal and each of the States of West Bengal, Assam and Tripura respectively, the two Governments further agree that they shall:

1. Continue their efforts to restore normal conditions and shall take suitable measures to prevent recurrence of disorder.

2. Punish all those who are found guilty of offences against persons and property and of other criminal offences. In view of their deterrent effect, collective fines shall be imposed, where necessary. Special Courts will, where necessary, be appointed to ensure that wrong doers are promptly punished.

3. Make every possible effort to recover looted property.

4. Set up immediately an agency, with which representatives of the minority shall be associated, to assist in the recovery of abducted women.

5. NOT recognise forced conversions. Any conversion effected during a period of communal disturbance shall be deemed to be a forced conversion. Those found guilty of converting people forcibly shall be punished.

6. Set up a Commission of Enquiry at once to enquire into and report on the causes and extent of the recent disturbances and make recommendations with a view to preventing recrudescence of similar trouble in future. The personnel of the Commission, which shall be presided over by a Judge of the High Court, shall be such as to inspire confidence among the minority.

7. Take prompt and effective steps to prevent the dissemination of news and mischievous opinion calculated to rouse communal passion by press or radio or by any individual organisation. Those guilty of such activity shall be rigorously dealt with.

8. Not permit propaganda in their country directed against the territorial integrity of the other or purporting to incite war between them and shall take prompt and effective action against any individual or organisation guilty of such propaganda.

D. Sub-paragraphs (1), (2), (3), (4), (5), (7) and (8) of C of the Agreement are of general scope and applicable, according to exigency, to any part of India or Pakistan.

E. In order to help restore confidence, so that refugees may return to their homes, the two Governments have decided (1) to depute two Ministers, one from each Government to remain in the affected areas for such period as may be necessary; (ii) to include in the Cabinets of East Bengal, West Bengal and Assam a representative of the minority community. In Assam the minority community is already represented in the Cabinet. Appointments to the Cabinets of East Bengal and West Bengal shall be made immediately.

F. In order to assist in the implementation of this Agreement, the two Governments have decided, apart from the deputation of their Ministers referred to in ‘E’ to set up Minority Commissions, one for East Bengal, one for West Bengal and one for Assam. These Commissions will be constituted and will have the functions described below:

(i) Each Commission will consist of one Minister of the Provincial or State Government concerned, who will be Chairman and one representative each of the majority and minority communities from East Bengal, West Bengal and Assam, chosen by and from among their respective representatives in the Provincial or State Legislatures, as the case may be.

(ii) The two Ministers of the Governments of India and Pakistan may attend and participate in any meeting of any Commission. A Minority Commission or any two Minority Commissions jointly shall meet when so required by either Central Minister for the satisfactory implementation of this Agreement.

(iii) Each Commission shall appoint such staff as it deems necessary for the proper discharge of its functions and shall determine its own procedure.

(iv) Each Commission shall maintain contact with the minorities in Districts and small administrative headquarters through Minority Boards formed in accordance with the Inter Dominion Agreement of December, 1948.

(v) The Minority Commissions in East Bengal and West Bengal shall replace the Provincial Minorities Boards set up under the Inter Dominion Agreement of December, 1948.

(vi) The two Ministers of the Central Governments will from time to time consult such persons or organisations as they may consider necessary.
(vii) The functions of the Minority Commission shall be:

(a) To observe and to report on the implementation of this Agreement and, for this purpose, to take cognizance of breaches or neglect.

(b) To advise on action to be taken on their recommendations.

(viii) Each Commission shall submit reports, as and when necessary, to the Provincial and State Governments concerned. Copies of such reports will be submitted simultaneously to the two Central Ministers during the period referred to in E.

(ix) The Governments of India and Pakistan, and the State and Provincial Governments, will normally give effect to recommendations that concern them when such recommendations are supported by both the Central Ministers. In the event of disagreement between the two Central Ministers, the matter shall be referred to the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan who shall either resolve it themselves or determine the agency and procedure by which it will be resolved.

(x) In respect of Tripura, the two Central Ministers shall constitute a Commission and shall discharge the functions that are assigned under the Agreement to the Minority Commission for, East Bengal, West Bengal and Assam. Before the expiration of the period referred to in E, the two Central Ministers shall make recommendations for the establishment in Tripura of appropriate machinery to discharge the functions of the Minority Commissions envisaged in respect of East Bengal, West Bengal and Assam.

G. Except where modified by this Agreement, the Inter-Dominion Agreement of December 1948, shall remain in force.

SECRET

Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to the Chief Ministers of the Indian States on the Agreement signed with Pakistan on the question of Minorities.

New Delhi, April 8, 1950.

My dear Chief Minister,

You have been sent separately copy of the Agreement that was signed today by me and the Prime Minister of Pakistan. This agreement deals principally with East Bengal, West Bengal, Assam and Tripura. But generally it concerns itself with the entire minority problem in Pakistan and India.

We met to consider these vital problems at a most critical moment in our country's history. We were, it might be said, hovering on the verge of a precipice. The significance of recent events and the terrible possibilities of the future, gave great importance to this meeting. Very great interest has been taken in it in the principal countries of the world. This was so, not because people abroad are interested very much in the fate of millions in India or Pakistan, but because they realised that this was a matter which had the widest international significance.

After seven days of continuous and exhausting discussions we have arrived at an agreement. It is possible to criticise some items in this agreement or to suggest that there might have been an improvement here and there. But, it is clear, what counts is not any detail in the agreement but rather the spirit underlying it and the future possibilities. We have crossed a very big hurdle, many hurdles remain. Although we discussed at length recent occurrences in East and West Bengal and Assam, we had all the time before us the basic problem of Indo-Pakistan relations. These have poisoned the air for us for these two years and a half and they had arrived at a stage, when a measure of disaster had already overwhelmed us and a far greater disaster seemed imminent. It was the parting of the ways. We went either to this greater disaster or we took a turn in the opposite direction. The agreement indicates a turn in that opposite direction. I wish to be neither optimistic nor pessimistic about this agreement and the future will show what its consequences are. But I am quite sure that the mere fact of agreement and this determined and sincere effort to turn the tide of events in a more hopeful direction is a good thing. It will bring immediate relief to millions of people who have lived or passed through disastrous happenings and for whom the future was terribly dark. That relief itself is something to be grateful for. We get time to consolidate this position and perhaps go some way in the right direction towards solving this most difficult problem.
Whatever the views of any person may be about the merits of particular clauses of the agreement, the position we have to face, after the agreement is signed, is clear. Personally I think that the agreement is definitely a good one from every point of view and that it lays down the foundations of a future settlement. But in any event it is something which gives us a handle to work for better ends and it would be unfortunate in the extreme if we do not take full advantage of this. Having come to an agreement, it should be accepted by all of us in the best of spirit and with a view to making it a living thing. There is no other way and no other alternative, except deliberately to aim at a big scale conflict with whatever it may bring. There is no halfway house. I take it that almost everyone is agreed that we should avoid that conflict in so far as we can. If so, then we must of necessity give full support to this agreement and implement it in letter and spirit.

There are many aspects of this communal problem. But perhaps the most important aspect is the psychological one, the prevalence of fear and hatred and passion. From no point of view can these emotions be justified, for they are weakening and disabling. This agreement helps us to fight the psychology of fear. Let us take full advantage of it and let us do so with goodwill and not in a half-hearted way.

It is often said that we cannot trust the faith of the Government or people of Pakistan. That may have some justification, though I think it is always wrong to treat a people in this way. Personally I am convinced that Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan is sincerely desirous of implementing this agreement and trying to solve all the other problems between India and Pakistan. It is also well-known that the Prime Minister of Pakistan occupies a commanding position in that country and his word counts. We should accept that word of his and help him and help ourselves to implement it.

But quite apart from what Pakistan may or may not do, it appears to me incumbent on us to go ahead with this matter with all our strength and energy and good-will. We are playing for very large stakes in which the future of our country and the well-being of millions of common folk are involved. We would be guilty of a gross betrayal if we temporized at this moment and allowed evil forces to have their way and merely looked on.

I earnestly trust therefore that your Government will do its utmost to implement this agreement in every way and to make it perfectly clear that we stand by it to the full. We must try to capture the minds of the people and to influence them in this direction. We cannot do so by an attitude of caviling and throwing the blame on others. Others may be to blame and if so, they will necessarily suffer the consequences of wrongdoing. But even that wrong-doing can be limited and controlled by us by our actions, if they are right. It has been a great sorrow to us to learn of the sufferings of the minorities in East Bengal and elsewhere. But what has happened in some parts of our territory in India has been not only a sorrow but a failure of responsibility. We must stop this.

The whole approach to this question must be a friendly one and not of blaming people. Only thus can we create an atmosphere that will help. We have to isolate the actual evil-doers, who are not many. They flourish because they get a friendly atmosphere to work in.

I commend this agreement to you and earnestly trust that you will seize hold of this opportunity which history offers us to stop the rot that was setting in and to turn the tide of events in a better direction.

Yours sincerely,
Sd/- Jawaharlal Nehru.

To All the Chief Ministers of States.

SECRET/PERSONAL

Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan.

New Delhi, April 14,1950.

My dear Nawabzada,

We have been thinking of how to give proper publicity to the agreement arrived at between us. We are trying to use the press and radio to this end. I have no doubt that you will do so in Pakistan also. We hope to produce a film about the agreement. It will be a short one and we shall send you a copy.

Apart from some leaflets and pamphlets it is proposed to issue a four-page leaflet in Bengali, Hindi and Urdu (that is separately in each) for wide distribution in West Bengal, Assam, U.P., etc. This leaflet will give some relevant parts of the agreement which are of particular interest to the people concerned and brief extracts from your statements and speeches as well as mine. We want to distribute this on a big scale. We hope the pamphlet as produced will be such that you would consider it suitable for distribution in East Pakistan also. In any event I shall send you a copy of it in English, so that you might judge. We should like some such pamphlet to reach the Hindu minority in East Bengal and of course, the majority also. Probably the easiest way to distribute it is by air. I have no doubt that the East Pakistan Government could make necessary arrangement. If any cooperation from us is desired in this respect, we shall gladly offer it.

There is one matter to which I should like to draw your special attention. We have about 2000 officers and men serving in our Defence Forces whose families are in East Pakistan. Naturally these people are very anxious about their families. It is possible that some of them may have come over or might be in the process of coming over. It would be greatly appreciated if you would allow us to send a small mission consisting of six persons, two commissioned officers, two J.C.Os., and two Other Ranks, who might go to East Bengal to make enquiries about these families and bring back news about them. This will create satisfaction to the people concerned.

While you were here, I mentioned to you the question of exchange of prisoners of war taken in Kashmir. This has been pending for a long time. We nearly came to an agreement about an exchange about a year ago. This agreement however did no finally materialize, because your Government and ours did not agree in regard to one matter. Pakistan suggested that the exchange should be on the basis of man for man. We suggested that all of them should be exchanged. The number involved is, I believe, about 600 prisoners in the Pakistan and about 150 prisoners with us. I hope that in the altered circumstances of today, this exchange can take place, in accordance with international conventions regarding such exchanges.

I can assure you that we are doing and shall do our utmost to give full effect to the agreement arrived at. Sardar Patel is going to Calcutta day after tomorrow morning. West Bengal, as you know, is in a highly emotional state of mind after the experiences it has gone through. Sardar Patel has, however, in spite of his ill-health, decided to go there to explain the situation to the people and to get their full cooperation in implementing our agreement.

There has been some delay both on our part and your part in appointing the Central Ministers. I hope, however, that we shall be in a position to inform you of our choice soon. Meanwhile, if necessary, we are prepared to send one of our existing Ministers to Bengal till such time as the new appointment is made.

Apart from this, I might inform you that we are considering the appointment of Shri C. Rajagopalachari as Ambassador-at-large. The first duty we might assign to him would be to go to Bengal etc. He will have no special business allotted to him. He would simply advise our Central Minister, our Provincial Ministries and others. He can stay there as long as he likes. He is not well at present and has had serious trouble with his eyes. But he is recovering and may be able to come to Delhi within ten days or so.
I sent you a telegram about my sending my Deputy Minister, Dr. B.K. Keskar, to Dacca. I have had no reply from you yet. The object of sending him was that he might personally explain to our Deputy High Commissioner there and his staff the full implications of our agreement. He might also perhaps visit some of the camps and collections of Hindus there and explain this agreement to them in the hope that this would bring some satisfaction and they might be induced to stay in East Bengal.

Yours sincerely,
Sd/- Jawaharlal Nehru.

The Hon'ble Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan,
Prime Minister of Pakistan, Karachi.

SECRET

Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan.

New Delhi, April 15, 1950.

My dear Nawabzada,

Thank you for your telegram inviting me to Karachi.

I have sent you a telegraphic reply. I have every intention of going to Karachi, but I confess that it is not easy to fit in dates which are suitable both to you and me. Normally the proper time for me to visit you would have been sometime in May. But that is out of question, as you are leaving for the U.S. I have to go to Bihar for three big functions from the 21st April to the 24th. We are having the opening ceremony by the President of one of our large scientific institutes - the Fuel Research Institute at Dhanbad. I am also visiting the Sindri Fertiliser Factory and the Damodar Valley works. I return to Delhi about mid-day on the 24th. On the 25 there is an important conference here, which I must attend. This is a Planning Conference and people will be coming from all over India for it. The Conference will indeed last at least two days. I must attend at least one day.

This means that I cannot leave Delhi before the 26th morning at the earliest. As you are leaving Karachi on the 28th, there is not much time left. At the most I could go on the 26th morning for two days.
I should have preferred going somewhat later from various points of view. The agreement we have arrived at would have had some little time to function and I hope would have yielded satisfactory results. That would have created a suitable atmosphere. However, I leave it to you as to when I should come to Karachi. If you desire me to come on the 26th for a couple of days, I shall do so.

You will no doubt realise that while our agreement has been largely welcomed in India, we are having a difficult time in West Bengal. People in West Bengal have suffered a serious nervous shock during the last few months and it is not easy to get over it. We have to proceed with care and gentleness to deal with this situation and to show results as rapidly as possible. It is these results that will ultimately soothe the people's wounded feelings. Sardar Patel is going early tomorrow morning to Calcutta to meet people there and to help in getting their cooperation.

Results can be measured in various ways. The immediate test is freedom from harassment and trouble at Customs posts and at the border. This kind of thing is a continuous irritant and if we put an end to it there will be a feeling of relief all round. Ultimately, however, the test of success of our agreement is the stoppage of the migrations and, later, a reverse process setting in. I am glad to notice that the departure of Muslims from Calcutta and West Bengal has greatly lessened. This is also very noticeable in the U.P. I am told that the atmosphere in the U.P. has shown a marked improvement since our agreement.

The exodus of Hindus from East Bengal, however, continues and we are informed that large number of them are collected at various river stations and other places.

I watch the daily figures anxiously to find out how far this exodus is being affected. I do not expect a sudden change. But some change should be noticeable.

It is clear that if we are to expect the Hindus to remain in East Bengal, or for those who had come away to go back, it is necessary that leading and prominent Hindu citizens of East Bengal to go back. Only then can a feeling of confidence be created in the rank and file. Sardar Patel is firmly of this opinion and it is his intention to suggest this in Calcutta.

A complaint often made by prominent Hindu migrants is that their houses have been requisitioned and they had nowhere to go to. This is a fairly old complaint. Even when they had several houses, all of these were requisitioned and none was left for them to live in. They were thus compelled to leave. If it is possible to derequisition houses of people who go back, it would help greatly in this process of people returning to their old homes. If anyone has several houses, at least one of them should be left for him to live in. Probably, to begin with, he will go back by himself and a little later he may bring his family. I suggest, therefore, for your consideration that houses of people returning might be made available to them to live in. It is hardly possible to expect them to return if they have no living room.

Another matter, to which I drew your attention when you were here, is the arrest of a number of prominent citizens in East Bengal. Naturally I cannot say what, if any, evidence there is against them. But we all know that in times of trouble and upheaval, not such evidence is required for arrest and often enough, the vital elements of a community are arrested. There is little doubt that these arrests have gone a long way to make Hindus in East Bengal feel that there is no room left for them there, when the tallest of them can be so removed. I mentioned one particular case to you, that of Satin Sen, who is known to all of us. I hope you will consider these matters and I have no doubt that the release of some of these people will have a powerful effect on public opinion in West Bengal.

I received your telegram about Keskar. Unfortunately there was some error in transmission and I could not quite make out what you said. But, in any event, I have decided not to send him just yet, as Sardar Patel is going to Calcutta and it is likely that our Deputy High Commissioner in Dacca will pay a visit to Calcutta.

I wrote to you yesterday about a leaflet which we propose to issue in large numbers in Bengali, Urdu and Hindi. I enclose a copy of this leaflet. You will see at the top an indication that there should be a half-tone block of you and me shaking hands. I do not like this, as this business of shaking hands in pictures is rather cheap. I am suggesting that they might give two pictures at the top, separately, one of you and one of me.

Yours sincerely,

Sd/- Jawaharlal Nehru.

Hon’ble Liaquat Ali Khan
Prime Minister of Pakisatan
Karachi

3041. Note from the High Commissioner of Pakistan in India to the Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, April 24, 1950.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India

New Delhi

The Pakistan High Commission in India present their compliments to the Government of India; Ministry of External Affairs, New Delhi, and have the honour to refer to their note No.F.13(58)-P/50, dated the 23rd January 1950, on the subject of the policy adopted towards Muslim residents of Assam. As no reply has yet been received and as this subject was raised informally at Secretariat level during the recent Delhi discussions, the Government of Pakistan think that it may be useful to elaborate their views on this subject for the consideration of the Government of India.

2. With the passage by the Indian Parliament of the Immigrants (Expulsion from Assam) Act in February 1950, the Pakistan Province of East Bengal is threatened with a mass influx of five lakhs of Muslims from Assam. The Government of Pakistan cannot but view with great concern an influx of such dimensions which must have great repercussions on the problem of law and order in East Bengal, and which will inevitably produce the gravest discontent amongst Muslims in that Province. The Government of India will no doubt also appreciate that such an influx, following that which has already taken place as a result of the recent disturbances in West Bengal and Assam, will have the most unhappy repercussions on the economy of East Bengal. The Government of Pakistan have already in their note, referred to above, drawn the attention of the Government of India, to the injustice and hardship involved in such a policy of eviction, especially where the persons who are likely to suffer from the operation of such a policy, are and have been, since August 1947, Indian nationals. That this is so, is unmistakably clear from the fact that nowhere in the Act has the term "settler" been clearly defined, and its operative clauses extend to all those persons who entered Assam before the passage of the Act.

3. The Government of Pakistan believe that the Government of India are seriously misinformed about the number of persons who are alleged to have migrated to Assam from East Bengal since August 1947, and find it incredible that the figure could approach five lakhs. Their information is that no such migration has taken place. The Honourable Mr. Gopalaswami Iyengan in his statement before the Indian Parliament while piloting the Bill stated: "At first when the Assam Government reported to us above the middle of 1949 their opinion was that only about 1,50,000 to 2,00,000 persons had migrated into Assam from the neighbouring Pakistan Province of East Bengal. Later on when I went to Shillong and had discussions with the Assam Government on this question, the numbers they estimated that had come into Assam were of the order of 5 ,00,000. * This suggests how much uncertainty is felt even in Assam about the correct figure. The increase in the figures could not possibly be accounted for by increased migration during the six months between June 1949 and January 1950, for the Assam Government had already intensified their eviction policy, against which the Government of East Bengal had protested on several occasions.

4. As this High Commission has already pointed out, this legislation is a breach of the paragraph 3 of Section II of the Delhi Agreement, under which this question was to have been discussed between the two Governments at Ministerial level. No such discussion was held before the legislation was enacted.

5. Finally, the Government of Pakistan would draw the attention of the Government of India to the humanitarian aspect of the problem, and would ask the Government of India to consider the extreme hardship and suffering that is likely to be inflicted on a large number of its own nationals. It was reported some time ago that immediately after the passage of the Act, the Government of Assam had directed its local officers immediately to put into operation the policy of eviction.

6. The Government of Pakistan propose, therefore, that the whole question may be discussed between the two Governments immediately with a view to annulling this legislation. Meanwhile, they sincerely hope that the instructions issued by the Government of India to the Government of Assam to defer action under the legislation will be continued.

7. The Pakistan High Commission take the opportunity to renew to the Government of India the assurances of their highest consideration.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖
Prime Minister of Pakistan referred to the request made by the Defence Ministry of India for a small mission to visit East Pakistan to see families of soldiers serving in the Defence Forces of India. He said that he was agreeable to this, provided they went in plain clothes. Also that similar facilities should be given to a small Pakistan mission to visit families of their soldiers in India. Arrangements for protection etc. should be made. It would be desirable for someone to accompany them.

2. Derequisitioning of houses in East Bengal:

Recent comers will, of course, get back their houses. In regard to old migrants too Pakistan Government was anxious to help to the best of their ability, but they have had to face great difficulties owing to lack of accommodation, more especially in Dacca and Chittagong. They were prepared, however, to say that where a person owned more than one house, and all these have been requisitioned, he would be given back one house to live in. Other cases of hardship will also be enquired into. Houses so provided would be for personal use. The matter will be enquired into further, and every effort would be made to provide for people who may be going back to East Pakistan. But at this stage no definite promises can be given.

3. Exchange of war prisoners:

Prime Minister of Pakistan said that he was agreeable to a full exchange. It was understood that prisoners from the "Azad" forces and tribesmen would also be included in this exchange.

4. Unattached women and children:

There were at present about 150 at the Gurukul Camp in Pakistan and 159 at the Ambore Camp in Pakistan. There was no objection to their transfer to India. About 130 women and children from Poonch and Baltistan have already been sent to Lahore on their way to India.

Prime Minister of Pakistan said that apparently some Muslim women and children were detained in Amritsar Camp on the ground that they would be kept there till their relatives were discovered. This was not sufficient reason for their being kept and they should be sent to Lahore.
5. Trade Agreement:

Prime Minister of Pakistan said that he felt that our delegation had been unreasonable about coal. This had previously been tied up with jute. Now, it was tied up with cotton. Pakistan had asked that if full supply could not be given now at least enough coal should be given for East Bengal for running of trains etc. This will improve conditions there and facilitate trade and help in refugee traffic.

He said that India had insisted on their internal price for cotton. Pakistan was prepared to agree to this, provided the cloth supplied to them was also at India's internal price. Nevertheless, the Indian delegation did not agree.

He realised that there was a dispute about the exchange ratio and, therefore, the trade arrangements had been on a barter basis. We should avoid doing anything which resulted in commitments about exchange. It was possible, however, otherwise to come to an agreement.

6. It was agreed that strict injunctions should be issued to officials to prevent harassment of migrants or any members of minority communities. Prime Minister of Pakistan said that he had made it clear to officials that in future their work will be judged not so much by their administrative duties, but by their treatment of minorities and the extent to which they could implement the Agreement.

7. Exodus:

The continuation of this exodus from East Bengal was discussed and latest figures were given by Prime Minister, India, to Prime Minister, Pakistan. Telegrams from the Deputy High Commissioner for India in Dacca were read out showing that there were considerable numbers of intending migrants collected at various places. Prime Minister, Pakistan, expressed his surprise at this information, as he had been informed that there were none or very few people left in camps of this kind.

Prime Minister of Pakistan expressed his concern at the continuing exodus from U.P. etc., to West Pakistan. Prime Minister of India pointed out a report that invitations were being issued to artisans and others to come to Pakistan. Prime Minister of Pakistan said that individuals may have done so, but the Government certainly did not encourage this. In any event, it was agreed that every effort should be made to discourage exodus or migration from any part of Pakistan or India to the other country.

8. Prime Minister of Pakistan expressed his regret and concern at the continuing attitude of the press in West Bengal which was not favourable to Agreement, while the press in Pakistan had behaved very well.
9. Section B (v) and (vi) of Agreement was discussed. In regard to this separate paper will be prepared.

10. The problem of evacuee property in West Pakistan and India (that is apart from Bengal) was also discussed. Prime Minister of India said that they should try to apply, in so far as possible, principles laid down in the Agreement regarding Bengal and Assam to other parts of India and Pakistan. It may not be possible to apply these fully, but much could be done. Prime Minister of Pakistan agreed generally, but felt that there would be considerable difficulties, more especially in regard to land in West Pakistan. In any event, it should be possible to arrange for the exchange and sale of urban property.

It would be desirable to hold a conference of representatives of the two countries to consider these matters fully. The evacuee property laws ought to be changed and, in any event, a date fixed beyond which they should not be applied. The present position was unnatural. This matter is further being discussed by the Secretaries.

11. Various Sind matters were discussed. It was decided to have a separate note prepared in regard to them.

II
Further points discussed between the Prime Ministers

Various matters relating to the position of the minorities in Sind were discussed. Prime Minister of India pointed out that in effect a vast majority of the Hindus in Sind had left Sind and only about forty or fifty thousand now remained, apart from a certain number of Scheduled Castes people. There was a widespread impression in India that these Hindus had been squeezed out of Sind by governmental policy, and their properties had been taken possession of. Now, only a relatively small number remained, but even they had the feeling that they were not welcome here and that they were being pushed out.

The first question that arose was as to whether the Pakistan Government wanted the Hindus to stay on here or not, and secondly whether they were prepared to have some Hindus to return here. If it was their definite policy to have the Hindus stay on here, then conditions should be created here to enable them to do so. They must feel that these conditions had been created. If the Pakistan Government wished to do so, he had no doubt that necessary steps would be taken to produce that feeling in the minds of the minorities here. This question was important enough before, but since the Agreement of April 8th it has become even more important. We have turned a corner and we were trying to retrace our steps somewhat. It appeared essential, therefore, that minorities in Sind should also have a feeling of this change having taken place.
There were many complaints, general and individual. Among these the important general ones were as follows:-

(1) The Custodian had passed orders in about 300 cases that the people concerned were not evacuees. The matter was then referred, under the rules, to the Pakistan Government, and had been pending there for several months. No 77 final orders had been passed and apparently fresh enquiries had been instituted. This procedure and delay, even after the decision of the Custodian, was highly undesirable and productive of uncertainty.

(2) Hindus wanting to go to India on temporary visits in order to visit relatives or attend marriage and like ceremonies cannot get the "no-objection" certificate. They have to wait for months till the occasion for their going disappears. Or if they go without a "no-objection" certificate, they automatically become evacuees. This action is a kind of pressure to deprive these Hindus of their property here. There is no reason why "no-objection" certificates should not be granted with speed in such cases.

(3) Documents for transfer of property, that is sale etc., were not even accepted for registration pending the production of income tax clearance certificate. It often takes months for such a certificate to be obtained. In India such documents can be executed without waiting, although effect may not be given to them till later. Indefinite waiting even before acceptance for registration is exceedingly inconvenient and harmful.

(4) The question of the Swami Narayan Temple and property adjoining it was considered. It was pointed out that full facts had been given in a recent letter sent by Shri Gopalaswami Ayyangar to the Pakistan Government. This temple and property is not only important in itself, but has become symbolic as something representing the minorities here and their properties. If anything is done to this temple and property, it means that no member of the minority community or his property or any religious endowment is safe. This will have a very bad effect.

It had been stated that a committee of Hindus had been appointed to look after this, but they had not taken too much interest in this. This statement was contradicted. The committee was never consulted and ultimately it was wound up by the Administrator.

Even now encroachments on the temple are taking place. Walls are broken down and shops extended inside. In a very recent case a man occupying a flat in the temple building for eleven years, which he used partly for business and partly for residence, was suddenly given three days' notice to quit. This notice expires today. It is evident that this kind of thing produces a great deal of consternation in the minds of the minorities.
The first step that is suggested is that no further encroachment of any kind be made on the temple property. Even if some flat or room there is vacant, it should remain so in charge of a committee of the minority community and should not be given or rented out to anyone else. The present position should therefore be for the moment stabilised. The next thing will be to deal with past encroachments.

(5) Prime Minister of India mentioned the case of the closed districts in West Punjab and the Frontier Province. He suggested that these should be opened out for the purpose of recovering abducted women. According to our information these districts being closed had been utilised for the purpose of keeping abducted women there. Prime Minister of Pakistan said that he would enquire into this matter and wanted to know the procedure and the details of recovery work.

(6) The notes on evacuee property prepared by India's Rehabilitation Minister were given to Prime Minister of Pakistan.

(7) In regard to various questions, specially relating to property and other matters affecting minorities, it was suggested that some kind of machinery should be set up to deal with complaints with speed and efficiency. At the present moment, there was not only delay, but even the Custodian's orders were not carried out. The High Commissioner in India should not directly and normally concern himself with such matters. But in the peculiar circumstances now prevailing, he had drawn the attention of the Pakistan Government to some of them. It would facilitate matters if some special officer was appointed for Sind by the Pakistan Government, or a small committee, to deal with such matters, so that there would be no delay in disposing of them. India's High Commissioner would, of course, give such help as he could.

The question of temples or religious endowments in Sind was also referred to. It appeared that a large number of these temples had been sealed or taken possession of either by the Government or the refugees.

III

Among other matters discussed between the Prime Ministers were:-

(1) Prime Minister of Pakistan expressed his apprehension in regard to the appointment of Shri C.C. Biswas as Minister. He said he did not know him himself, but he had Hindu Mahasabha background and his son is also connected with either the Hindu Mahasabha or the Minority Rights Committee. His appointment would not be welcomed by many people and would not produce the effect of serious implementation of the Agreement which we so much desired to produce. In selecting Dr Malik, as Minister, the Pakistan Prime Minister said that he had consulted Hindu members of the Constituent Assembly and it was on their recommendation that he chose him. He thought that he was a good man who will get on well with the minority;

(2) Prime Minister of India mentioned to Prime Minister of Pakistan the possibility of appointing Dr. Sen of Dacca as Deputy High Commissioner. Dr Sen's name was also mentioned to the Governor-General. The initials could not be remembered. But if the same person was discussed, the Governor-General thought that he was a very good man. Prime Minister of India pointed out that it was unusual to appoint a person, who was thus far a Pakistani citizen, to this office, but there had been exceptions of course. Prime Minister of Pakistan said that if the man was good, he would have no objection.

(3) Prime Minister of Pakistan referred to people in the Pakistan Defence Forces who have opted for Pakistan, although their families continued to remain in India. Some of these had been demobilised now and they wanted to go back to India and settle down there permanently. Apparently, this matter was referred to India, but India Government did not agree. Prime Minister of India said that he knew nothing about this, but would enquire.

(4) The question of Kashmir was discussed, without any progress being made.

(5) Prime Minister of Pakistan laid stress on the concentration of Indian Army formations near the Pakistan frontier in the West. He said that it would be highly desirable if some of these troops could be removed, as otherwise there was a constant feeling of apprehension, and a concentration of Pakistan troops on the other side.

(6) Prime Minister of India saw some leading newspapers' editors. They complained that sections of the Indian press had not yet changed their tone to any noticeable extent in regard to the Agreement. There was a certain danger of an adverse reaction on the irresponsible sections of the Pakistan press, if this continued. So far as they were concerned, they were going all out to create a better atmosphere between India and Pakistan towards implementation of the Agreement. They would welcome any criticism or any lapses on their part to be pointed out to them.

They pointed out that several Pakistan newspapers, including Dawn and Civil & Military Gazette were under ban by Provincial Governments of India, although the Central Government in Delhi had lifted some of the old bans. They suggested that these bans should be lifted now. Among the papers they mentioned were
This note was recorded by Prime Minister Nehru while commenting on the letter that Mohammad Ali had written to Commonwealth Secretary S. Dutt and had been put up to him. Mohammad Ali referring to Nehru’s notes of conversation with Liaquat Ali Khan had suggested on Liaquat Ali’s behalf that these notes of Nehru were not minutes of the meetings; they neither covered all the subjects nor were complete.
fact numerous personal invitations were received. It was widely believed, with what truth I do not know, that the Pakistan Radio had issued this invitation. I mentioned this matter to the Prime Minister of Pakistan and he promised to have a contradiction issued by Radio and in the press.

3. The question of Kashmir was also discussed.

4. Regarding the sending of several missions to contact families of Pakistan soldiers in India, I stated that I would convey this to our Defence Ministry. There could be no objection to this, but several missions at the same time might be difficult to organise, and I think it will be better for the two Defence Ministries to contact each other on this subject.

5. Regarding the repatriation of members of Pakistan armed forces who had opted for Pakistan but who wished on release to settle in India, I said that the matter will be referred to our Defence Ministry. I knew nothing about it.

6. It is certainly correct to assume that the same facilities for derequisitioning and return of houses would be extended to migrants who returned to West Bengal, Assam and Tripura. I do not understand what "old migrants" means. The clause in the Agreement will be applied.

7. It is true that I agreed that many Muslim women and children from Kashmir who were detained in Amritsar and other camps in India would be sent to Pakistan. Only Amritsar was mentioned to me. We shall be glad to have any particulars so that we can take action.

8. While it may not be possible to apply the provisions of the Delhi Agreement in their entirety to other parts of India and Pakistan, I suggested that the general principle might be applied as far as possible. In regard to this matter the Pakistan Government will be addressed soon by the Government of India and it would be desirable to hold a conference soon after.

9. The canal waters question was not discussed by me with the Prime Minister of Pakistan, but I entirely agree that it is a question which should be settled as early as possible. I do not myself see any particular bearing of this question on evacuee property. Even the bearing that it might have would be on agricultural land, but even that need not come in the way of a settlement of either of these questions.

10. I think you might reply to Mr. Mohammad Ali on the above lines, if you like you can even send him a copy of this note.

I hope you are proceeding with the preparation of the note on evacuee property. I hope also that you have taken action about the Amritsar camp of Muslim women and referred some of the matters mentioned above to the Defence Ministry.
One thing I did not mention in my note yesterday. “Mr. Mohammad Ali has said that I referred to the concentration of Indian forces on the border of West Pakistan and added that I had said that they included certain extra forces which we proposed to withdraw as soon as arrangements for their transport could be made. This statement is not quite correct. What I said was that we had decided on new dispositions of forces long before the recent crisis had risen in Bengal and for general reasons. Their departure had undoubtedly been expedited a little because of recent events. Now that they had gone there it was difficult to shift them about suddenly. But gradually as occasions arise, a part of them may be shifted for the sake of convenience.

3044. Note of the Government of Pakistan to the Government of India regarding influx of Muslims from India to Pakistan and proposal to seal the Sind border.

Karachi, May 12, 1950.

Inquiries in official circles reveal that the Government of India are not in favour of the immediate sealing of the West Pakistan frontier by the Government of Pakistan against the influx of refugees from India. The Government of India recognize that this is a matter for decision by Pakistan but they are of the view that migration of Muslims from India into West Pakistan is rapidly on the decline and that any artificial sealing of the frontier will have an effect opposite of what is desired. It is pointed out that for similar reasons it was decided by the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan in their recent Agreement to guarantee free movement of populations between East Bengal and West Bengal.

2. The Government of India are understood also to have pointed out to the Government of Pakistan that they are taking all possible steps through official and non–official channels to persuade intending evacuees to return to their homes. They intend to further intensify their effort in this regard. Not only those refugees who are on their way to Pakistan but even those who migrated to Pakistan after March 1 will be given back their properties if they return to their homes.

3. The Government of Pakistan have declared that they do not want any fresh evacuees to enter West Pakistan and it is understood that the Government of India have offered to give wide publicity to any views on the subject which Pakistan leaders may express.

For Mohammed Ali from Dutt.

Your telegram 2262 of May 12th. In U.P. every effort is being made by officials and non–officials to persuade intending evacuees to return to their homes. Latest information shows that there has been a gradual decrease in the number of persons collected at Phulera and Agra, the two stations where the assembly of evacuees was the largest. We are NOT aware of concentration at other places. We are hoping that the concentration will be cleared off within the next few days. As we have informed you separately our intention is NOT only to restore their properties to persons who have temporarily left their homes but have NOT yet reached Pakistan but even to those who have recently migrated to Pakistan but who come back to India by December 31. We will also provide other facilities to refugees to return to their homes. In the circumstances we do NOT think that it is really necessary for any of your staff to come over to India to persuade the refugees NOT to proceed to Pakistan. Our information was that a large number of letters were being received from Pakistan inviting artisans to go to Pakistan. We have given full publicity to the recent statements of your Ministers that they do NOT want any fresh influx into West Pakistan. We suggest that these views be repeated by leaders in Pakistan and we will give every publicity to them in India.

2. We have NO objection to your trying to check influx into Pakistan by enforcement of the permit system. We shall also make such additional effort as may be possible to dissuade persons collected in Barmer, Phulera and elsewhere from proceeding to Pakistan. We apprehend, however, that any artificial sealing of the border on a fixed date might have the effect opposite to that intended by you. You will recall that for this reason the two Governments have guaranteed free movement between East Bengal and West Bengal. However, if on further consideration, you decide to close the Sind border please let us know as much in advance as possible so that we can give decision necessary publicity.

The Pakistan High Commission in India present their compliments to the Government of India in the Ministry of External Affairs, New Delhi, and with reference to the Secret telegram No. 2262, dated the 12th May 1950, from Foreign, Karachi, to Foreign, New Delhi, regarding sealing up of Sind border by the Government of Pakistan, have the honour to say that the Government of Pakistan have decided to postpone the date of sealing Sind border from 20th May to 1st June 1950. Between 20th and 31st May, only permit holders would be allowed to cross the border and thereafter nobody, whether he holds a permit or not, would be allowed to enter Pakistan by this route. The agreed policy of both Governments being to discourage further exodus of minorities from one country to the other, the Government of Pakistan seek Government of India’s cooperation in this task and request that from 20th May to 31st May, the Government of India should not allow Muslim refugees to proceed beyond Barmar without our permits and nobody, whether holding permit or not, should be allowed to proceed towards Pakistan beyond Barmer after 31st May 1950.

Letter from Ministry of External Affairs to the Pakistan High Commissioner in India regarding sealing of Sind border to stop the refugee influx.

New Delhi, May 16, 1950.

No.F.10(5)–BL/50 Date 16 May, 1950

Dear Mr. Ismail,

Will you kindly refer to the High Commission's Memorandum No. F. 13 (88) P/50 – 1351 of the 15th May 1950 to the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India, regarding the sealing up of the Sind border by the Government of Pakistan against further influx of refugees from India? Your Government have suggested that nobody intending to enter Pakistan across this border should be allowed to proceed beyond Barmer without permit from the 20th May to the 31st May, and with or without permit after the 31st May. There is no law in India under which we could prevent a person from proceeding beyond Barmer if he wished to do so. You will, therefore, appreciate that it would not be possible for us to comply with the Pakistan Government's wishes in this regard. The Pakistan Government are, of course, competent to prevent the entry of any person into their territory, but you will, I am sure, agree that if large numbers of people reach the frontier or congregate at places near the frontier and are physically prevented from entering Pakistan territory, a grave law and order problem will arise which may have undesirable consequences and seriously embarrass the Government of India. We have already expressed the view that the best means of preventing exodus is to restore confidence among the minorities. The U.P. Government are doing all they can through their officials and also with the assistance of non–official agencies, such as office bearers of the District Congress Committees, to induce minorities to stay where they are. We have even offered to restore properties to those who have migrated to Pakistan during recent months. Every publicity is being given to the statements made by Pakistan leaders that they do not want further influx into their country. Latest figures show that the rate of exodus is gradually falling. In the circumstances I am desired to reiterate our earlier view that the professed sealing of the border would create more panic and result in quicker tempo of movement among those who have already left their homes and would not really attain the objective which the Pakistan

* On May 18 the Revenue Department of the Ministry of Finance informed the Ministry of External Affairs that as per the report received from the Collector of Customs and Central Excise the possibility of sealing of the frontier had led to aggravation of the problem and there was the possibility of people congregating in very large numbers at the frontier station and there was the apprehension of law and order problem.
Government have in view. We think that the frontier should be kept open until the exodus peter out, as, we hope, it will at no distant future.

For Dutt from Muhammad Ali.

Your telegram No. 30324 12th May 2950. We appreciate your efforts to persuade MIGRANTS to return to their homes. In particular by your decision to restore properties to persons who have recently migrated or are migrating to PAKISTAN but come back to India by December by 31st repeat December 31st will greatly help the return movement. We trust you will continue your efforts to dissuade by person collected in BARMER, PHULERA and elsewhere from proceeding to PAKISTAN. We are giving full publicity to view that by Moslems should NOT leave India and that we do NOT want any influx into West Pakistan.

We gave careful thought to best method of checking influx into West Pakistan before arriving at decision to seal border temporarily. The analogy of East Bengal and West Bengal is NOT applicable because there has never been any restriction of movement between the two Bengals. On the other hand the permit system had been in force on this border for last sixteen months but became inoperative under pressure migration. Our aim still is to restore permit system as early as possible and sealing border with effect from 1st June is only a temporary device intended to restore conditions which would enable permit system to function. Under these circumstances, I hope we will have your full cooperation in giving effect to these arrangements.

Your telegram 30323 of 12th May. Pakistan Government request further consideration of your suggestion regarding submission of list of persons arranged district wise for verification that they are new migrants. They point out that this procedure is likely to defeat very purpose of enabling refugees to return to their homes. It will cause delay and it is doubtful if it will be possible for District Magistrates to verify facts of domicile and date of departure of refugees. Accordingly they suggest that on verification from their camp officers who have maintained daily record of all persons arriving with full details of their place of residence or from district officers in respect of some few who did Not enter through camps Pak Government may give certificate on which permits for permanent return may be issued by us at Karachi. They assure that they will take utmost precaution in seeing that certificates are issued to bona fide persons. Pak Government further suggest that as these refugees are no destitute they will bear expenses of their transport up to Indian border and that from India border up to their destination transport expense may be borne by Government of India.

3050. Press Note issued by the Government of Pakistan regarding the sealing of the Sind border.

E. No. 1681. 21.5.1950

PRESS NOTE

The continuous influx of refugees into Sind from the Jodhpur border has been causing anxiety to the Government of Pakistan for some time. When conditions were disturbed in the Western U.P., the Government did not think it proper to stop refugees coming without permits. The Delhi Agreement of the 8th April 1950*, has however, brought about better conditions. Efforts are being made to create an atmosphere of friendly and cordial relations between the two countries. As part of this peace campaign leading official and non—official spokesmen of India have been trying to allay the fear and suspicion of the minority community and instill in them feelings of security and confidence. They have also been endeavoring to persuade the intending evacuees to return to their homes. Further, they have offered various concessions to the intending evacuees as well as those persons who have migrated to Pakistan during these months. They have promised them restoration of their properties if they decided to go back. In view of these developments the Government do not find any justification for continuing the suspension of the permit system The Government have, therefore, decided to reimpose it shortly.

In the meanwhile it has been decided to cancel all special facilities of transport which were provided as an emergency measure to meet the influx. The Government have given sufficient indications of their intention to re–impose the permit system and, therefore, hope that all persons concerned have now had sufficient warning.

On account of the unprecedented influx of refugees from the Sind – Jodhpur border it was necessary to provide special facilities for the conveyance of the refugees from the border to Khokhrapar and from Khokhrapar to Pitharo. These special arrangements strained the already inadequate resources of the metre gauge section to the utmost and reacted on the transportation of essential goods. From May 27, 1950, it has been decided to withdraw the special transport facilities and revert to normal working. As some trains have yet to be run to disperse the refugees from Pitharo Camp, which is being closed down by Government there will be no passenger traffic between Chhor and Khokhrapar from that date for the present.

* Nehru-Liaquat pact on minorities.
During the harvest season, the Railways are not the only carriers of food – grains from one place to another. For the purpose of feeding its desert population, Sind has to use a large number of camels for the purpose of transporting grain. These camels are now being used for the purpose and it would no longer be possible for passengers to get camel transport on the border.

Intending evacuees from India are, therefore, advised in their own interest not to try to enter West Pakistan by the Jodhpur route. A journey on this border at this time of the year when it is extremely hot, means traversing 40 miles of barren, sandy desert without shade, shelter or drinking water. When refugees were transported by trains, even then it was exceedingly difficult to provide them with water which had to be carried across this distance of 40 miles. With the train services having been withdrawn, water tanks cannot be moved to any place along this route and any person who crosses the border at this place will have to face indescribable hardships.

During the hot weather the Sind desert cannot be crossed on foot. The railway was the only link between the border and the habitable interior of Sind and its closure means that this distance cannot be negotiated. There are no roads and no means of transport, and even camels will not be available. Permit holders are also advised to choose some other route for which their permits will be revalidated on application to the issuing authorities.

D. O. No. 5/9/50-PMT Karachi, the 22nd May, 1950

My dear Dutt,

Many thanks for your D.O. No. D.O. 10(5)/50 – BL dated the 17th May 1950 which I have received through our High Commissioner.

We fully appreciate your Government’s point of view on the general question of closure of the border, and let me assure you that we are most anxious to avoid taking any measure which may embarrass your Government or create a serious law and order problem on your side. For that reason and in view of the fact that the figures are now definitely showing a downward tendency we are putting the date back. In the meantime we are taking other preparatory measures, and I enclose a copy of our Press Note which is issuing immediately. (See Document No.3050.)

Our side of the border is topographically and climatically most difficult to negotiate at this time of the year, and as you will see we have in this Press Note quite candidly told the people what great risks and hardships they would have to face in crossing the desert after the withdrawal of the special facilities which were provided as an emergency measure. But merely issuing a Press Note will not be sufficient to drive home this warning to the people. Hence we would once again request your Government to give us the necessary facilities to enable some of our men to explain the situation to the intending migrants at important Railway junctions where they are collecting.

We are most grateful for all the efforts which the public leaders as well as officers are making in the United Provinces to create confidence among the minority community and discourage their exodus. But one important aspect of this propaganda is to appraise the Indian Muslims of Pakistan’s various difficulties in permitting uncontrolled immigration to continue any longer. Khwaja Shahabuddin made some statements drawing attention to the fact that West Pakistan was not now in a position to accept any further burden of refugee influx. These statements have received some publicity on your side, but the subject is of such vital importance that it needs to be stressed and explained over and over again. If your Government do not like the idea of our officials coming to India for this purpose, we could send a small goodwill mission of known non – officials to try to remove the ignorance of the people on this subject.
The mission may even include one or two persons from among the recent arrivals who would be able to give an eye – witness account of the conditions on the border. They will come for the limited object of putting the intending migrants wise, and their itinerary will be settled with your Government’s approval.

We understand that your Government have not provided any special train services or facilities for migration, but I have no doubt you will appreciate that it is, in the present circumstances, not merely a question of providing no special train services but also of reducing the normal services on this route as we are doing on our side of the border. This measure, synchronizing with action on our side, is bound to have a discouraging effect on migration and I do hope your Government would accept this suggestion and pass necessary instructions to the Jodhpur Railway to cut down the number of train services to the bare minimum.

Yours sincerely

Your telegram 161 of May 19. New Migrants from U.P.

We have carefully considered this matter afresh and are prepared to meet Pakistan Government’s wishes as far as possible. It must be remembered that unless return of migrants is carefully checked and organized, there will be difficulties both for them and for Government. Therefore we should proceed cautiously and experimentally at first and adapt our procedure to circumstances. We propose that to begin with, 5000 migrants should be sent in accordance with procedure suggested by Pakistan. We would like however that such persons should be distributed in such a way that NOT more than 500 or 600 in the batch of 5000 should belong to any one district in U.P. This would facilitate dispersal and return to original homes. You should issue permits to number mentioned only on certificates from authorized officers of Pakistan Government to the effect that persons concerned migrated to Pakistan from U.P. after February 1st, 1950. It should be made clear to Pakistan that at this end there will have to be enquiries by district officers to ensure that returned persons are in fact new migrants before their properties are restored to them. If old migrants return under cover of this procedure, they CANNOT profit by present arrangement which may have to be revised.

It would cause serious practical difficulties if Pakistan were to issue railway tickets only up to their frontier stations and we were to issue fresh tickets from there to destination of migrants in India. We would like you to issue a pass along with permit from the frontier station to destination. On strength of this pass the holder will be allowed to continue his journey without interruption at the border. If Pakistan agreeable, details will be fixed up by our Railway Ministry in direct consultation with you.
3053. Note by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru on his talks with Pakistan Finance Minister Ghulam Mohammad.

New Delhi, May 24, 1950.

Mr. Ghulam Mohammad, Finance Minister of Pakistan, came to lunch with me today and stayed for about an hour and three quarters. I did not mention any political subject and for a considerable time we talked about other matters, chiefly related to old times in the U.P. He then mentioned that he was going to Dacca in order to see the implementation of the Indo-Pak Agreement. He said that he was surprised that neither the East Bengal Government nor the West Bengal Government had yet appointed the Minorities Minister provided for by the Agreement. I was myself a little surprised to hear this because I was under the impression that the West Bengal Government had already appointed him. Dr Roy (Chief Minister of West Bengal) had told me some weeks ago that he had chosen the man to be appointed.

Mr. Ghulam Mohammad asked me if I had anything special to say to him in regard to Bengal. I said that numerous incidents were still happening in East Bengal and the Ansars were often involved in them. This was creating a bad impression and a check must be put on the Ansars. Further that requisitioning of houses had taken place on a large scale in East Bengal and it was difficult for the owners of these houses to stay there or to return unless the houses were derequisitioned! This was a matter to which considerable importance was attached.

He then referred to the West Bengal Government suggesting that there should be an enquiry by the Minorities Commission before possession was given to the returning migrants. He said this was not contemplated by the Agreement and would rather defeat the purpose of it by delaying matters. I said that I would myself prefer a more summary method of enquiry.

He referred to refugees having been settled temporarily on the land and cultivating it. How were the returning migrants to be restored their lands? I replied that it was clear that a person who had actually cultivated the land and worked upon it could not be thrown out till harvest time. That would be unfair and would give rise to trouble. He seemed to agree with me, but asked what about people who had themselves cultivated the land and sown, etc. and then had gone away who were now returning. It would then be a question of timing as to what the old cultivator had done and what the new man had done.

We referred to the rigidity of officials when they meet in conferences and mentioned the recent Railway Conference which failed to achieve any substantial results because of the difficulty of adjusting the exchange ratio. He said that they had gone very far to meet our viewpoint, but unfortunately our people had not agreed. I said I was a little surprised to learn this as my own impression was that the Pakistan officials were agreeable to accept one of our proposals but their Government vetoed it. Mr. Ghulam Mohammad immediately said that it would be far better for some informal talks between Ministers before a formal official conference took place. That would yield more fruitful results and the possibility of failure, which was bad, would be avoided. I agreed with him.

He said that this exchange ratio business was creating difficulties all over the place, and till this was settled some of our other problems would also be held up. I agreed with him and asked him when he expected it to be settled. He said that it is in the hands of the International Monetary Fund and they were taking their own time over it. They should decide by August next or perhaps even in July. Anyhow Pakistan did not wish to delay matters.

He referred to defence expenditure which was very heavy, and which could be greatly reduced on both sides if we came to common agreements about various matters. At present there was no doubt that the people of Pakistan were full of fear of an invasion or aggression from India. Possibly there was a slight fear in India. Anyway there was this fear which resulted in continuous arming. I referred to the recent arms explosion in the United States and pointed out that this constant effort to buy arms, etc. abroad was not conducive to the removal of the fear he had mentioned or to peaceful relations. Further that Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan's speeches had often referred to this purchase of arms. He did not say much about Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan's speeches except to say that he had made many friendly references to me. As a matter of fact I said that there was an embargo on the purchase of arms in the United States, and their munitions, etc. which had recently blown up had been purchased thirteen months ago before the embargo was announced. I then referred to the evacuee property question and said that probably this was an issue which affected public opinion almost more than any other. Large numbers of people were personally involved in it. And if this was even partly settled, this could make a great difference. He agreed and said that he saw no reason why we should not go a long way to settle it in regard to urban property. Rural property was a little more complicated and could be taken up later.

He referred to the canal waters dispute also and said that Mohammad Ali was coming here soon and would like to have a brief talk with me about it. I said I was agreeable to this. Further I said that I really did not see any great difficulty in solving this canal waters dispute if we proceeded on reasonable lines.

As is usual with Mr. Ghulam Mohammad, immediately he criticised strongly minor officials in Pakistan who did not carry out the Government's policy and thus created trouble. He criticised some more important persons by name. Then he said that it was amazing what a change had been brought about in the outlook of two old sinners, Shahabuddin, the Minister for Rehabilitation and Altaf Hussain, the Editor of Dawn, both of whom from being troublemakers in the past had now become great advocates of friendly relations between India and Pakistan. As for Mr. Liaquat Ali Khan, his mental approach to problems and to everything in life was that of an Oudh taluqdar (official). He was cautious in his approach and suspicious but having come to a conclusion he stuck to it. There was no doubt that he was anxious to carry through fully the Agreement that we have arrived at. And not only that but to follow it up in, other ways also.

3054. Letter of Indian Minister of Rehabilitation K. C. Neogy to Pakistan Minister of Refugees and Rehabilitation.

Dear Khwaja Shahabuddin,

Will you kindly refer to your D.O. letter No. F. 62(3)/50 – P of the 13th May 1950, regarding the new evacuees to West Pakistan from the U.P.? Since the issue of Dutt's telegram No. 30316 of 6th May 1950 to Mohammed Ali we have informed our High Commissioner that we have no objection to persons, who migrated to West Pakistan from the U.P., between February 1 and May 31, 1950, being given permits for permanent return to India by December 31, 1950. Such persons will also have the privilege, on return, of claiming back the properties in India. By now our High Commissioner must have passed on this information to your Government. This was also stated in Dutt's telegram to Mohammed Ali No. 30324 of May 12. You will, therefore, see that in effect the concession provided in clause (v) of Section B of the Agreement has also been extended to the new evacuees from the U.P. to West Pakistan.

As regards your suggestion that permits for permanent return to India should be given automatically by our High Commissioner in Karachi on a certificate from officers authorized by your Government, you must be aware of the arrangement which has recently been agreed upon between our two Governments. I hope that as a result of our experience in dealing with the first 5,000 evacuees, it will be possible for us to extend the concession to subsequent batches also. I am sure you will agree that every precaution has to be taken at your end in screening the returning evacuees so as to prevent the return of persons who are not entitled to the benefit of the new scheme.

Your sincerely

3055. Letter from the High Commission for India in Pakistan to the Ministry of External Affairs.

Karachi, June 3, 1950.

Office of the High Commissioner for India
Damodar Mahal, Karachi-5.

D.O. No. C.V. Poll 8/XLIIX-50. 2

2nd June, 1950

Dear Department,

Please refer to correspondence resting with your telegram No. 30853, dated the 31st May, 1950, regarding return to India of refugees who entered West Pakistan between the 1st February, 1950. With the concurrence of the Government of Pakistan, the normal procedure for the receipt of applications and issue of permits has been somewhat simplified.

Refugees will apply to the Ministry of Refugees, Government of Pakistan, on form 'A'. From the information provided therein, the Ministry of Refugees will compile form ‘B’. This will be sent to our permit officer and will constitute authority for the issue of a permit and a railway pass. The permit issued will, of course, be the usual permit for permanent return.

Form ‘B’ will be accompanied by three photographs of the person (s) concerned; also three specimen signatures/ thumb impressions. The Signatures/thumb impressions will be executed on detachable slip of paper pasted on to the last column of form 'A'. The slip of paper will be detached by the Ministry of Refugees and passed on to the Permit officer along with the photographs and form ‘B’. The permit office will then paste one signature/thumb impression and one photograph on to each copy of the permit.

The completed permit and railway pass will then be dispatched to the Ministry of Refugees for distribution to the applicants.

Arrangements for dispatching refugees to the border will be made by the Government of Pakistan. The latter are instructing their own railway authorities to get in touch with Indian counterparts with a view to ensuring that arrival at the border from Pakistan is synchronized with departure to the destination in India. The permit office will be given prior information as to the probable date of arrival of the refugees at the Indian border.

The number of refugees to be admitted into India under this phase of the rehabilitation scheme has been limited by the Government of India to 5,000 persons. Allowing for the fact that many of these persons will travel in families, and will, therefore, not require separate permits, we have estimated that approximately 2,000 permits will have to be issued. The Pakistan Government have intimated that they will not be able to send us more than 100 forms ‘B’ per day, and we propose to issue permits and railway passes at the same rate, i.e., 100 per day. This will be impossible of achievement with our existing staff. We have calculated that six more clerks will be required – five for writing out permits and railway passes (at the rate of 20 per man, per day) and one for supervision and check. Obviously, it will be impracticable for staff to be sent from India. It is proposed, therefore, to have recourse to local recruitment for such period as may be necessary, at a consolidated pay of Rs. 100/- per menses. Recruitment is being started forthwith in anticipation of sanction. It is presumed that the expenditure will be debitable to the Ministry of Rehabilitation. Please confirm.

Your’s ever,
High Commission

The Ministry of External Affairs,
Government of India,
New Delhi.

Letter from High Commissioner for India in Pakistan to the Ministry of External Affairs.

Karachi, June 3, 1950.

High Commissioner for India
Damodar Mahal, Karachi

Dear Mr. Dutt,

The Press of India and Pakistan and the Radio Pakistan are responsible for the news that Pakistan has agreed to take back 5,000 Hindu refugees who had left Sind between the 1st of February and 31st May, 1950.

We have no other information about this nor is it known who took the initiative in this respect and what correspondence if any, ensued about it between India and Pakistan? When the matter of Muslim refugees was initiated by the Pakistan Government they did it through us and the subsequent correspondence in this connection passed through us, but I regret that so far we have received no intimation whatever about Hindu refugees.

My first reaction is one of surprise at this. It has added a feather in the cap of Pakistan and has practically dimmed the grace from India's generosity in having agreed to take back a lakh or so of Muslim refugees. Now Pakistan is displaying its sweet reasonableness by taking Hindu refugees, although the number of Hindu refugees is only 5,000 as against a lakh or more of Muslim refugees and if the Hindu refugees do not come back, the kudos still remain with Pakistan for having made a noble gesture!

If India wanted to accept a sort of reciprocal arrangement, I don't see why the period of 1st February to 31st May was preferred for Hindu refugees. Pakistan suggested this period because of the large number of Muslim refugees coming over from India. During the period from August 1949 to January 1950 more than 14,000 Hindus migrated from this place. So, perhaps it would have been better if India had asked for the return of these. That would have been an acid test for Pakistan also. It was during this period in recent years that a sufficient number of Hindu house-owners, factory owners and zamindars left, followed by other people. Their houses, lands and factories were considered evacuee or allotted. Some of the other class of people who left did so because of the fear of molestation of the women, some because of social and economic pressure, some because of lack of opportunities in the absence of the richer section and others because of their belongings having been forcibly taken over. It is clear, therefore, that unless the upper class Hindus are allowed to come here and are securely resettled even in a part of their holdings, there seems absolutely no chance of the other section coming back. During the period Feb. to May, it was the smaller people who left — hawkers, petty shopkeepers and manual workers. It would be absolutely futile, even risky perhaps, for them to come back. Where will they live? What will they do? How would they withstand the economic and the social boycott, or to resist the molestation of their women or arrange for the schooling of their children?

Leave aside the pre–pact period in which a lot of things happened, even during the post–pact period here are a few instances taken at random which show the mentality prevailing here and the conditions which would make it impossible for members of a demoralized community to come back.

1. Here is an extract from a Confidential letter No. C – 784 dated 22nd April 1950 addressed to me by the Sind Governor in response to a complaint made by me in March.

   “As regards para 2 of Your Excellency’s letter, the facts, as reported to me, are that some of the refugees driven out of Bharat with all kinds of atrocities perpetrated on them raised a serious objection to some of the individual Hindus of Mirpurkhas occupying palatial houses all by themselves. The refugees became desperate, but the District Magistrate intervened and with the consent of both the parties the seven or eight Hindus in question were allotted three or four houses in which they could live comfortably and the remaining three or four houses were placed at the disposal of the refugees. The assertion that, “the District authorities are rather unwilling or unable to give protection to the minorities” is seriously challenged. In fact, District authorities had made every kind of effort to protect these aggressive Hindus for full one year. Perhaps you would agree that as loyal citizens of Pakistan Hindus as well as Muslims are expected to cooperate with the District authorities in the rehabilitation of refugees”.

2. In a District in Sind a grandson took the bones and ashes of his deceased grandfather to Hardwar. During his absence and in spite of the presence of another grandson (the son having died much earlier), a serious threat has been given of his garden and some land being taken. In fact, some is said to have been taken already.

3. In Karachi, a widow was living in a house and had let out some flats in her house to some Hindus. These tenants have been turned out. They took refuge in the Swaminarayan Temple. The Custodian’s office referred the widow to the Judge, Small Causes Court, who declared that as the tenants had taken shelter in the Swaminarayan Temple, he could do nothing to turn out the Muslim who had been allotted the main portion of the house. Now this allottee is not living in it himself but is said to have let it out to other tenants.

4. We have received a telegram that an old Hindu lady occupying a house in the interior of Sind has been murdered, obviously with the intention of her house being taken possession of.

5. A Hindu officer of the Port Trust, Karachi went to India on 4 months' leave after officially securing a written assurance that his flat will not be allotted in his absence. On the written undertaking he let in a Muslim employee of the Port Trust temporarily, after having a regular agreement drawn up. On his return the temporary occupant is in defiant possession and the Hindu officer finds himself in great trouble. He is still making representations.

Thus, a lot of things are being done here still – all in the name of rehabilitation of refugees. Aggrieved persons get no redress or get one occasionally after persistent efforts. To expect that when such a mentality prevails, our Hindu refugees will be able to lead a life of security in the interior of Sind is doubtful, even if they do come back by the pressure of circumstances and even though, in some districts, Govt. officers may try to help them in right earnest.

To sum up, my position is that when we show generosity, as an act of statesmanship, let us do it without striking a bargain. That is Gandhian philosophy. But if we strike a bargain, let it be substantial and not one which without being of advantage to us, serves only as a point for propaganda in favour of Pakistan. In this case the period between February and May suited Pakistan. The principle being that refugees on either side who have come away owing to fear or disturbed conditions should be given freedom to go back, such a condition prevailed recently in Sind between August – January when more than 14,000 Hindus migrated. Pak. Government has been proclaiming that Hindu refugees are welcome to return to Sind. Thus, we might take Pakistan at their face value and see if even now we can do something for the return of Hindu refugees to Sind, assuming, of course, that we do ask for reciprocity. As against a lakh of Muslims, India would only ask for $14,000 + 5,000 = 19,000$ for the present.

No. F 10 (5)-BL/50

June 6th, 1950

My dear,

Will you kindly refer to your D.O. No. 5/9/50 – PMT, dated the 22nd May, 1950 to Dutt regarding the migration of Indian Muslims to Western Pakistan through Barmer?

2. Our information is that as a result of your strict enforcement of the permit system and of our efforts both official and non official to dissuade Indian Muslims from migrating to Pakistan, the exodus has completely stopped. There are also no concentrations at Barmer, Phulera or other railway stations. It would appear, therefore, that the situation has returned to normal and I hope you will agree that it is not now necessary for any special steps to be taken by you or by us as mentioned in your letter. I may mention, however, that our efforts to do everything possible to restore and maintain confidence amongst the minorities are being continued and all facilities will be given, as already intimated, to the returning migrants.

Yours Sincerely

Letter from Secretary Ministry of External Affairs S. Dutt to High Commissioner for India in Pakistan Sita Ram.

New Delhi, June 12, 1950.

Dear Dr. Sita Ram,

Will you please refer to your Top Secret D.O. letter of June 3 regarding the reported offer of Pakistan Government to take back 5,000 Hindu refugees who left Sind between the 1st February and the 31st May 1950? I am afraid you are under a complete misapprehension as to the Government of India’s attitude in this matter. You will notice that Section B of the Prime Minister’s Agreement* are to apply only to recent migrants from East Bengal, West Bengal, Assam and Tripura. Although there is no definition of a “recent migrant” in the Agreement, it was understood that people who left East Bengal, West Bengal, Assam and Tripura as a result of the disturbances which began in February, would be entitled to the benefits provided by Section B. The question whether similar benefits should be insisted on in respect of earlier migrants was discussed while the talks between the two Prime Ministers were in progress but it was decided for various reasons not to pursue it.

2. The disturbances in U.P. were supposed to be, in the main, an echo of the troubles in East Bengal. It was hoped that following the Prime Minister’s Agreement, exodus of Muslims from U.P. would cease. This hope was not, however, fulfilled for weeks the daily exodus of Muslims to Pakistan across the Jodhpur – Sind border was on an average 3,000. The Government of Pakistan drew our attention to this continued exodus from U.P. and the matter was discussed by the two Prime Ministers in Karachi. The Pakistan Government alleged that the Muslim exodus was due to the pressure from the non – Muslims and disturbed conditions in U.P. We contended that this exodus was continuing because large numbers of Muslims, who had already migrated from U.P., were sending letters to their relatives in India to the effect that Pakistan offered an attractive field of employment for artisans and others. However, the fact that large numbers of our nationals were leaving U.P., in spite of the Prime Minister’s Agreement, was proving embarrassing to us. As an earnest of our anxiety to disprove the allegation of pressure on the Muslims and to ensure safe conditions of life for the minority, we decided not only to dissuade those who had not already left, but also to take back those who had migrated from northern India as a result of the recent disturbances and to restore their properties to them. As in the case of East and West Bengal, we proceeded on the assumption that the recent migration had started from the 1st of February; and we put the limiting date as the 31st May as we hoped that by that date further exodus from U.P. would cease. At no stage was it our intention to couple our offer to take back the Muslims with a demand that Pakistan must also take back the Hindus who had recently left Sind. In fact we have no official intimation of Pakistan's intention to that effect. All that we have seen are press reports which appeared about the end of May. As I have already stated, the Prime Minister's Agreement and its subsequent extension, in certain respects, to the U.P. covers only recent migrants and we could not, therefore, in any case object to Pakistan's giving reciprocal benefits only to those Hindus who had left Sind after the 1st February. If we propose to bring within the scope of the Agreement earlier migrants, that can only be done as a result of further negotiations between the two countries. Personally, I have no doubt as to the likely results of such negotiations. They would not lead to any agreement.

3. As regards the instances you quote of the unfair dealings which the Pakistan Government are meeting out to Hindus in Sind even now, you will remember that this matter was discussed at Karachi between the two Prime Ministers and between me and Mohd. Ali. I have recently sent you Mohd. Ali's reply to a note which I had sent him on our conversation. Mohd. Ali denies the allegation of forcible dispossession of Hindu property. I have asked you for material for reply to his letter. The instances that you give are telling rebuttals of his statement and I suggest that you take them up immediately with the Pakistan Government.

Yours sincerely

Letter from High Commissioner for India in Pakistan Sita Ram to S. Dutt Secretary in the Ministry of External Affairs.

D.O. No. HC - 742

High Commissioner for India
Damodar Mahal, Karachi

Dear Mr. Dutt,

Thanks for your D.O. No. 407/50 – S, dated 12th June 1950. Let me assure you that the policy of the Government of India is well – understood by me. This will be clear from what I said in my D.O. letter of 3rd June that it was an act of statesmanship and generosity. But what led me and other officers of the Mission into confusion was the reports which had appeared in the Press of India and Pakistan and by the news and talks broadcast day to day by the Pakistan Radio. They were not contradicted. In fact, one of the news items was that India was ascertaining the wishes of the Hindu refugees about their return. What we felt was that Pakistan would not and could not give real and full support to the return of Hindu refugees to Sind. About 100 Hindu refugees or so are even now migrating from here every week. We have brought it to the notice of the Pakistan authorities. The conditions in the interior of Sind and Karachi are still not very favourable for their return. Only the other day a big businessman, a Hindu, went on a permit to India but was refused return permit to Karachi; this would mean grabbing of property worth about 8 lakhs! This talk of Hindu’s return was started perhaps by Pakistan to take away the grace of India’s action. That is what led me to write to you, so that in case we struck a bargain, we might ask for a great deal more. However, I am glad to have had a misapprehension removed by your informing me that there has been no such agreement.

You will be interested to learn that there is a concerted move to send away as many Muslims as possible from this place and that there is a very great rush on us here for granting permits to Muslims for India, apart from the 5, 000 (or is it 1,00,000?) who are to be repatriated under the new understanding. Only yesterday some members of the ‘Phir Bassao Committee’ (Resettlement Committee) asked me to give facilities for the repatriation of about 30, 000 Muslims who had migrated from various Districts of the U.P. long ago but who are said to be nationalists. You will have to think over the whole question about West Pakistan.

P.S. You will find the enclosure rather interesting.

Enclosure to the Above Letter

The following is the operative part of the Custodian's judgment in the appeal made under Section 36 of the ‘Pakistan Evacuee Property Ordinance' by Lalchand Nenumal of Nawabshah (Sind):-

'I allow appeal and direct that the appellant's property shall all be restored to him except what may have been allotted by the Rehabilitation Commissioner to any refugee. For property which has already been allotted, the appellant may, if he is so advised, apply to the Rehabilitation authorities for cancellation of the allotment.'

Lalchand Nenumal wired to the Hon'ble Minister for Rehabilitation on 31st May 1950 that he was declared 'non evacuee' by Custodian six months ago but his Cotton Ginning Factory at Nawabshah was not yet restored. He has also applied in writing under a registered cover.

3060. Note of the Ministry of External Affairs to the Pakistan High Commission in India.

New Delhi, July 5, 1950.

No.F.23-4/50-pak.III.

The Ministry of External Affairs of the Government of India present their compliments to the Pakistan High Commission in India and, with reference to the High Commission's note No.F.8(11)P/50/1159 dated the 24th April, 1950, (Document No.3041.) have the honour to say that the views of the Government of Pakistan have been carefully considered.

2. As the Government of Pakistan are aware, the Government of Assam have, for many years prior to partition, had to deal with a serious problem arising from the entry of a large number of East Bengal residents into their Province and occupying lands reserved for grazing and other purposes in accordance with settled policy and thereby upsetting the economy of Assam. All such occupations were in contravention, and, indeed, in defiance, of the Revenue Laws of the State. The Government of Assam have been dealing with such occupations strictly in accordance with the policy formulated before partition which had also the approval of the one time Muslim League Government of Assam. Immigration into Assam from East Bengal continued even after partition and to control this immigration which was rapidly creating a serious law and order situation in the State, the Government of India were compelled to issue an Ordinance and later to enact legislation by an Act of Parliament in February, 1950 for the expulsion from Assam of all undesirable immigrants.

3. No request was received from the Government of Pakistan under the Indo-Pakistan Agreement of December, 1948 for a discussion of this problem, at Minister level. Nor was it possible, in view of the suspension of Indo-Pakistan conferences and the political climate prevailing at the time, for the Government of India to consider discussion of the matter with the Government of Pakistan at Minister level. The law and order aspect of the problem was so urgent that no delay could be tolerated.

4. The Government of India cannot accept the view of the Government of Pakistan that the passage of the Immigrants (Expulsion from Assam) Act is likely to result in an influx of large dimensions from Assam to East Bengal. The experience of the months since the Act was passed shows that the fear of the Government of Pakistan is unfounded. Such movement of Muslims as there has been from Assam to East Bengal has been the result of communal disturbances which unfortunately took place in February and March, 1950 and even so the magnitude of the movement has nowhere been so great as imagined by the Government of Pakistan.

5. The Government of India fully appreciate the humanitarian aspects of the matter and have taken steps to ensure that the Act will be enforced only against persons who are clearly established to be new and undesirable immigrants. They have taken steps to ensure that cases of earlier immigrants, as well as doubtful cases are carefully considered at the highest level before action is taken under the Act for their expulsion. They have directed that necessary opportunity should be given to persons against whom action is contemplated to be heard in defence and that a reasonable time should be allowed for an undesirable immigrant, against whom an order of expulsion is passed, to leave the State. Action has also been taken to ensure that there is no harassment of those against whom orders of expulsion are passed. In spite of the fact that several months have elapsed since the Act was placed on the Statute Book, the number of persons expelled from Assam under its provisions has been very small, (not exceeding seventy five cases) showing that very great care is being taken in the application of the Act, and this will continue to be so.

6. The immigrants (Expulsion from Assam) Act has been passed by the Parliament of India and can be annulled only by parliament. In the circumstances adverted to above, the Government of India do not feel that there is a case for moving Parliament to do so. Nor do they consider that any useful purpose will be served by holding a conference now at Minister level to consider this matter.
The Ministry take the opportunity to renew the assurance of their highest consideration.

To
The High Commission of Pakistan in India,
New Delhi.

3061. Note of the High Commission for India in Pakistan to the Pakistan Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Office of the High Commissioner for India in Pakistan
New Town, Karachi-5

The Indian High Commission presents its compliments to the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Foreign Affairs & Commonwealth Relations, Karachi, and has the honour to state that, as the Government of Pakistan are aware, the Government of India agreed recently to take back 5,000 persons out of those who migrated to Pakistan between 1st February 1950 and 31st May 1950 as a first step towards repatriation. The movement of these 5,000 persons was to take place under a special procedure, and it was agreed that until the Government of India had an opportunity to examine the working of this procedure, further batches of migrants should not be allowed to return to India. It has now been learnt that about 254 persons have entered Jodhpur border without permits, thereby contravening the agreed procedure under which the movement was to take place. These persons are being placed in a camp and they will not be allowed to proceed further into India until the Government of India are satisfied that they are recent migrants.

2. It is reported that another 1,000 persons are endeavouring to enter Jodhpur territory without permits or other authorization. If this movement takes place, it will be a further violation of the agreed procedure. It is requested, therefore, that suitable measures be taken to prevent such irregular movement from Pakistan into India. Immediate action, under intimation to this Mission, would be appreciated.
3. The High Commission avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Government of Pakistan assurances of its highest consideration.

Ministry of Foreign Affairs & Commonwealth Relations,
Government of Pakistan,

3062. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan.

New Delhi, August 5, 1950

New Delhi August 5, 1950.

My dear Nawabzada,

I have had several meetings with the two Central Ministers, Dr Malik and Mr Biswas, and have also met the Chairmen of the Minority Commissions and the Chief Secretaries of East Bengal and West Bengal. We have discussed various matters with them. My colleague, Mr. Gopalaswami Ayyangar, has also had long discussions with them. I do not propose to write about these discussions, as you will no doubt be informed about them. But there are some matters to which I should like to draw your attention.

2. I find that there is some vagueness about the functions of the Central Ministers. When we appointed them, I thought that our intention was for them to be in responsible charge, on behalf of their respective Governments, and to deal with matters arising out of the Agreement of April 8th. The position was undoubtedly rather novel. I find that on our side there has been some overlapping and consequent delay by the fact that provincial Governments often deal directly on this subject with our Government here. Our Central Ministers have largely devoted themselves to touring in both West Bengal and East Bengal and have no doubt done a great deal of good work in this way. But apart from this, they appear to have functioned merely as a post office.

3. I think it would be desirable for them to deal a little more directly with the problems that come up before them. First of all, I would suggest that all papers should normally go to them. That is to say that the West Bengal Government, in dealing with problems relating to the Agreement, should deal with our Central Minister as representative of the Government of India. He can either dispose of the matter himself or, if he thinks it necessary, refer it to us here. The provincial Government should, at the same time, send copies of communications, etc., to us here to keep us informed. But the normal channel should be through the Central Minister. This would be a much more expeditious and effective way of dealing with day-to-day problems. In the same way, I would imagine that your Central Minister, Dr Malik, would function as your Government's representative there dealing with the problems on the spot and making references to you whenever necessary.

4. There is to be of course constant touch between each Central Minister and his provincial Government and full coordination between them. Each should be kept informed of what the other is doing in regard to these matters.

5. The Central Ministers should give their advice or suggestions to the provincial Governments, or whenever they tour, many small matters can be disposed of on the spot without long correspondence, etc.

6. The Central Ministers should send frequent reports containing their own analysis of the situation as well as their recommendations. Where possible, it will be a good thing if they send joint reports and joint recommendations. Where they disagree, they can easily note their disagreement. These reports could be sent direct to the Central Governments as well as to the provincial Governments concerned. Of course it is always open to each Central Minister to send his separate report to his own Government.

7. You will remember that I have often spoken and written to you about the question of requisitioning of urban houses. I mentioned this during our talks early in April 1950 and later, at Karachi. I wrote to you about this also, because this matter of requisitioning houses belonging to the minority community in East Pakistan had given rise to a great deal of feeling. It was an important reason for people to think that they were not wanted in Pakistan and were being pushed out. Indeed it became difficult for some persons to stay on when their house was requisitioned. It was equally difficult for people to go back when they had no house to go back to. I suggested, therefore, that every attempt should be made to derequisition some of the houses that had previously been requisitioned.

8. You were good enough to say that you would look into this matter and that you agreed that houses should not be requisitioned, unless there were special reasons for it. In particular, occupied houses should not be requisitioned and where a person had more than one house, he should always be left with at least one house.

9. To our surprise, we found sometime later that many more houses were being requisitioned. Last month, in July especially, information came to us repeatedly about a large number of houses being requisitioned all over Eastern Pakistan. This had a powerful effect in making people feel that members of the minority community were not welcomed in East Pakistan and the migrants should not return. In particular, complaints poured in the month of July. We communicated immediately with the Pakistan Government and I believe the West Bengal Government communicated with the East Bengal Government. To our great surprise, we were told by Pakistan that this was being done in agreement with the Government of India. Nothing could have astonished me more, because right from the beginning we have been pressing you for derequisitioning and it was exceedingly difficult for us to be told that we had agreed to large-scale requisitioning of houses.

10. It has now transpired in the course of our talks that something that I had written to Chaudhuri Zafrullah Khan about land and cultivation thereon had been applied to urban houses. I have referred back to what I wrote and it is perfectly clear. This misunderstanding has thus been removed.

11. On enquiry, we were told that the East Pakistan Government issued an order on the 7th July for large-scale requisitioning and in fact, in the three weeks that followed in July, 8, eleven houses were requisitioned in East Bengal. This figure was given to us by the Chief Secretary of East Pakistan. I was taken aback to learn this and I realised how powerful must have been the effect of this large-scale requisitioning on the mind of the minority community. We were told that this requisitioning has been done of empty houses only. That may have been the intention. But I have little doubt that there were many cases, when houses occupied by some relative or someone else were also requisitioned. To our knowledge, people were asked to vacate their houses at very short notice, causing great inconvenience, and some alarm. We were told that altogether 4,000 to 5,000 houses had been requisitioned in East Bengal in the course of the last year or two. Of these, some were Muslim houses; but the great majority belonged to Hindus.

12. Apart from the fact that houses which were empty were requisitioned, there was the other fact that these houses contained furniture, goods and chattels of the owner and there was grave risk of these disappearing. In West Bengal I am given to understand that altogether forty-six Muslim houses were requisitioned since February 1950, and out of these, twenty-four were derequisitioned. Thus ultimately only twenty-two Muslim houses were requisitioned and this was done for governmental purposes and not for refugees. I might mention that hundreds of Hindu houses were requisitioned by the West Bengal Government.

13. It is true that a large number of houses were forcibly occupied by refugees in West Bengal. The Government there forcibly ejected these refugees from two hundred and eighty-five such houses, in spite of a great deal of agitation against this kind of thing. After that, they toned down a little, but it is their policy to get these houses vacated.

14. The news of the large-scale requisitioning in East Bengal has had most unfortunate consequences in West Bengal, more especially when it is known that the requisitioning was for refugees. The refugees in West Bengal are agitating for a like procedure to be adopted in West Bengal and those who have forcibly occupied houses now find an argument not to leave them. All this of course powerfully affects the return of the migrants and generally creates difficulties all round. You will appreciate the importance of this matter from the point of view of giving effect to the letter and spirit of our Agreement.

15. I would earnestly request you to have early steps taken about this matter.
I would suggest for your consideration the following:

(i) There should be no further requisitioning of houses, except for very exceptional purposes and when Government itself requires them (not for refugees),

(ii) The procedure for derequisitioning, after the owner comes back, should be very easy and swift,

(iii) No houses should be requisitioned by Government, even for its own purposes, if the house is occupied by the owner or any member of his family or any other representative,

(iv) There should be a careful enquiry before a house is requisitioned as to whether it is in fact vacant. The house should not be considered unoccupied if the owner has gone away for a few days,

(v) A careful scrutiny should be made of the houses already requisitioned to find out if they were really empty or not at the time of requisitioning. The scrutiny should extend to the moveable property belonging to the owner that was in the house,

(vi) The rent realised from houses that have been requisitioned should be paid to the owners.

16. I was told that in practice in East Bengal blank and signed forms were supplied for requisitioning houses to the inferior staff. These forms were pasted on houses which, for the moment, looked empty. Thus, whatever the policy of the East Bengal Government, the implementation of it was left to the judgement or pleasure of some very petty local officials. At any time this would have produced undesirable results. In existing circumstances, this was bound to lead to injustice and consternation.
17. There is one other matter to which I should like to refer and that is about educational institutions in East Bengal. Both practically and psychologically, the policy to be adopted in regard to such institutions has far-reaching effects and I would suggest to you that great care should be taken not to interfere in any way with such institutions.

18. We have to deal with difficult problems, but the greatest difficulty is how to produce the right impression on the minds of people. If we do not produce that right impression, then our efforts fail. It is because I think that this requisitioning of houses and the treatment accorded to educational institutions particularly affects the people concerned and makes them think in a special way that I have laid some stress on these two matters. There are other matters of course, but I do not wish to lengthen this letter. You will no doubt discuss them with the Central Ministers.

19. I have suggested to the Central Ministers that I would like them to spend a day here in Delhi on their way back from Karachi. They need not stay long here and the others accompanying them need not trouble to come back to Delhi. It would be helpful to us if we had a brief talk with the two Central Ministers after they had seen you.

Yours sincerely

Jawaharlal Nehru
3063. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan.

New Delhi, August 12, 1950.

New Delhi, August 12, 1950

My dear Nawabzada,

Dr. Malik gave me your letter* of the 10th August today. Thank you for it.

We have today accepted the various agreements arrived at after the discussions of the two Central Ministers with us here and with you in Karachi. We have suggested two or three very minor changes in the drafts. These embody points which have been separately agreed to. I hope that these agreements will be published, as arranged, on the 15th, and that they will help somewhat in easing the situation.

I do not know if you have read the speech I delivered in Parliament here in the debate on the Bengal situation. In the course of this speech, I dealt fully and frankly with Dr. Shyama Prasad Mookerjee's proposals and general attitude. In case you would care to have a copy of this speech, we are asking our High Commissioner in Karachi to supply it to you.

I agree with you that there should be a certain flexibility in the work of our Central Ministers. We have felt, however, as I wrote to you previously, that some directions from the Central Government would be helpful in enabling our Central Ministers to decide many points on the spot. Also that the procedure should be normally for the provincial Government concerned to deal with the Central Minister directly on the subjects concerning him. He would represent the Central Government for this purpose. Of course, he can make any reference. To make this clear, our Cabinet has passed a resolution empowering the Central Minister to act in this manner.

Yours sincerely,

Jawaharlal Nehru

* Liaquat Ali promised immediate action on an agreement relating to requisitioning of houses in East Bengal and into complaints of interference in the activities of a minority educational institution in Chittagong and wanted India to check propaganda by the West Bengal press and the activities of certain leaders like Shyama Prasad Mookerjee.

 Speech in the Lok Sabha on August 9, 1950 while replying to the debate on Bengal.
Press Note Issued by the Ministry of External Affairs about the agreements arrived at between the Ministers of Minorities of the Governments of India and Pakistan.

New Delhi, August 16, 1950

The two Central Ministers of India and Pakistan, Mr. Biswas and Dr. Malik, and the Chairmen of the Minority Commissions of East Bengal and West Bengal held discussions with the Prime Minister and representatives of the Government of India from August 3rd to 5th and with the Prime Minister and representatives of the Government of Pakistan on August 9th and 10th. At these meetings, the working of the Indo Pakistan Minorities Agreement of April 8th was brought under close review. In particular, difficulties that have been experienced in practice in the implementation of some clauses of Agreement and the further measures necessary to speed up the restoration of confidence in the minds of the minority community in West Bengal, East Bengal and Assam were fully discussed. The decisions taken have been embodied in the annexure.

These decisions provide in particular for measures for dealing with communal incidents and their prevention, the restoration to the returning migrant owner or migrant occupier of his property and the tightening up of the procedure for the recovery and restoration of abducted women and the punishment of offenders.

COMMUNAL INCIDENTS

As regards communal incidents, it has been agreed that every communal incident brought to the notice of the authorities shall be promptly investigated and effective and deterrent action taken against the miscreants, including Government servants, if any, who may have been guilty of dereliction of duty; that the widest publicity should be given to action taken to deal with the offenders and that in each case the causes underlying the incident shall be investigated in order that remedial measures may be taken to prevent the recurrence of such incidents. The Presidents and Members of Union Boards will be charged with the special responsibility of preventing communal incidents in rural areas and of actively promoting goodwill between the two communities. In areas where communal incidents are of frequent occurrence, influential persons, particularly those belonging to the majority community, should be appointed Special Constables and charged with the responsibility for preventing such incidents. In addition in such areas, or whenever in any area a serious communal disturbance takes place and the inhabitants are found to have been either responsible for such crimes or have not been diligent in preventing them, a collective fine shall be imposed or a punitive Police force stationed. Action shall also be taken against Government officers who are found to have acted against the spirit of the Returning Migrants

As regards returning migrants, the following principal decisions have been taken:-

Firstly, the Governments of West Bengal, East Bengal and Assam will persuade employers of industrial labour and other private employers to reinstate returning migrants in their old jobs.

Secondly, all migrants shall be entitled to the restoration of their immovable property as stated below:

A. Urban Property:

Third parties occupying migrants' houses without lawful authority shall be ejected by the Government and the possession of such houses shall be restored to the migrant owner or migrant occupier immediately he returns. As regards houses requisitioned by Government those requisitioned after the Agreement shall be de-requisitioned if at the time they were requisitioned they were in occupation of the owner or his relations or tenants. Every attempt will also be made to de-requisition such of the recently requisitioned houses as are periodically visited by their owners and remain for the rest of the year in the occupation of their employees. As far as practicable the same principles should apply to houses requisitioned before the disturbances. In future houses occupied by the owners or their relatives or tenants in a bonafide manner will not be requisitioned except for urgent Governmental requirements. Rent or compensation for a requisitioned house shall be promptly assessed and regularly paid. In the event of the migrant owner or migrant occupier returning before 31st December, 1950, the house shall be de-requisitioned.

B. Rural Property:

Migrants lands which are under the Aus and Jute crops shall be restored to returning migrants whenever they return after the end of the Aus or jute harvest and third parties now in occupation shall be ejected. Where, according to this arrangement the entire holding, including the homestead, cannot be restored to the migrant, he shall be provided with alternative accommodation.

As regards lands under the Aman crop, it shall be open to the migrant to return at any time after the 15th of January and before the 31st March, 1951 when such lands shall be restored to him on return.

Vacant homesteads and lands on which no crops have so far been grown shall not be allotted to third parties. It shall be open to the migrant owner or migrant tenant or occupier to return and occupy such lands and houses at any time before 31st March, 1951 and the State/Provincial Government shall assist him in obtaining possession of such lands and houses immediately on return.

Recovery and Restoration of Abducted Women

As regards the recovery and restoration of abducted women, it has been agreed that recovery should be quick, that during the investigation and trial the abducted woman should be kept in neutral custody, that the trial should be speedy and the punishment to the offender deterrent and that such women must eventually be restored to their relations. For this purpose it was agreed that police officers should be given powers to search without a warrant houses and places where an abducted woman is suspected to have been kept and that the two Central Ministers should examine the question whether any other additional legal power are necessary to facilitate and punish offenders.

Annexure

I. Communal Incidents:

1. It was agreed:

   (i) that whenever a communal incident is brought to the notice of the authorities, it should be promptly investigated and effective action should be taken against the miscreants, including Government servants, if any, who may have been guilty of dereliction of duty;

   (ii) that the widest publicity should be given by Government to action taken to deal with the offenders;

   (iii) that investigation should be directed to determine the causes of the particular incident in order that remedial measures might be devised and taken to prevent the recurrence of such incidents.

2. It was agreed that each and every incident reported by one Government to the other should be inquired into promptly and, if the facts are established, action taken to bring the wrong-doers to book. The result of the enquiry and the action taken should be communicated to the other Government. Priority in the matter of inquiry and action should be given to the more serious incidents including cases involving offences against women. Wherever necessary, the State/Provincial Government should set up a special machinery or place officers on Special Duty so that those inquiries could be undertaken quickly.
3. It was agreed that the Presidents and Members of Union Boards should be charged with special responsibility for the prevention of communal incidents in their areas, the protection and the welfare of the minorities and the promotion of goodwill between the two communities. Instructions to this effect should be issued to the Union Boards by each State/Provincial Government.

It was also agreed that the legal implications of this should be further examined as also the possibilities of penal or disciplinary action against the Presidents and Members of Union Boards in the event of their failure to discharge this responsibility.

4. It was agreed that in areas where communal incidents are of frequent occurrence influential persons, particularly those belonging to the majority community should be appointed as special constables and charged with responsibility for the prevention of such incidents, in particular abduction or molestation of, or insults to women and for the apprehension of offenders.

5. It was agreed that an area where a serious communal disturbance takes place, or where there is a succession of incidents involving oppression or harassment of the minorities, and where the inhabitants have either themselves been responsible for the crimes or have not been diligent in preventing the commission of such crimes should be penalized by the levy of a collective fine or the imposition of a punitive police force.

6. It was agreed that a deterrent sentence should be awarded on an offender convicted of communal crime, particularly in cases involving offences against women.

II Recovery and Restoration of Abducted Women:

1. It was agreed that the procedure to be adopted in East Bengal, West Bengal and Assam should be such as to ensure (a) speedy recovery of abducted women, (b) during investigation and trial her interim custody in a neutral institution where she can be free from extraneous influence (c) speedy trial and punishment of the offenders, and (d) the ultimate restoration of the recovered woman to her relations.

2. So far as trial and punishment of the offenders were concerned it was agreed that the normal penal law and procedure should continue to be followed; but that steps should be taken to ensure that investigation and trial were prompt and a deterrent sentence was awarded in case of conviction.

3. It was agreed that police officers of a stated rank should be given the powers to search without warrant houses and places where according to information received by them, an abducted woman might be found.
4. It was further agreed that the two Central Ministers should examine the question whether any other additional powers were necessary to deal with such cases and in particular whether for the purpose of recovery and custody the definition of an abducted woman should be framed on the model of the Punjab Acts.

5. It was agreed that upon the recovery of an abducted woman, it should be obligatory for the Police and the Court to remit her to the custody of a Home to be established by the Provincial/State Government, and that this should be done irrespective of the age of the recovered woman, her statement before the Magistrate or the Police or the defence case.

6. Such Homes for the custody of recovered women should be established by the Provincial/State Government at such places as may be considered necessary. With the management of such Homes should be associated and Advisory Committee consisting of an Official Chairman and non-official women members, a majority of whom shall belong to the minority community.

------------

III. Deliquent Government Officers:

1. Attention of Officers of both Governments should be drawn to the provisions of para 7 of the Delhi Agreement of December, 1948.

2. It was agreed that disciplinary action should be taken against officers who are found to be acting against the spirit of the Agreement or in any way fail to implement it, or who directly or indirectly lend support to persons who are against the Agreement.

3. The Governments of East Bengal and of West Bengal have already taken steps to appoint a Focal Officer and who would be kept informed of the progress of the Departmental Proceedings. It will be the responsibility of the Focal Officer to ensure that these cases are dealt with promptly and properly and that the punishment awarded is adequate. It was agreed that the Government of Assam should also be asked to appoint a similar Focal Officer.

IV Restoration of Houses and Lands to Migrants:

It was agreed that the Governments of West Bengal, East Bengal and Assam should immediately assume powers necessary to eject unauthorized occupants of migrants' property and to restore the possession of such property to the migrant owner or occupier on his return.
In this connection following decisions should be given the widest publicity:-

(A) Urban Property

As regards migrants' houses occupied by third parties without lawful authority, the Provincial/State Governments concerned undertake to eject such persons from those houses immediately on the return of migrant owners or migrant occupiers and to restore possession of such houses to them.

As regards houses belonging to the minority community which have been requisitioned by Government, it is agreed follows: -

a) That with regard to houses requisitioned after the April Agreement all houses belonging to the minority community which were in the occupation of Owners or their relations or tenants shall, if requisitioned, be de-requisitioned and possession shall be restored to those who occupied such houses at the time of requisitioning. Every attempt will also be made to derequisition such requisitioned houses as are periodically visited by their owners and for the rest of the year remain in the occupation of their employees. As far as practicable, the same principles should apply to houses requisitioned before the disturbances;

b) That in future, houses which are occupied by the owners or their relations or by their tenants will not be requisitioned, provided, however, that houses which are occupied in bona fide manner by the members of the minority community may be requisitioned in future only for urgent governmental requirements, and orders of requisition should be issued only after a careful examination of the case by a responsible Government Officer of high status;

Note:- Urgent governmental requirements shall not include finding accommodation for individual refugee families but may include the establishment of refugee camps by Government.

c) That the procedure for de-requisitioning should be made as simple as possible;

d) That in the event of requisition, adequate time should be allowed to the owners for the removal of their furniture and other movable property;

e) That rent or compensation will be promptly assessed, and in the case of rent, shall be paid regularly; any arrears of rent that may have accumulated shall be cleared off as quickly as possible;

f) That in the event of a migrant owner or migrant occupier of a requisitioned house returning to his home before the 31st December, 1950 the house shall be de-requisitioned.
(B) Rural Property:

1. It was agreed that migrants’ lands which are under the Aus and Jute crops shall be restored to returning migrants whenever they return after the end of the Aus or jute harvest and the third parties (whether authorized allottees or trespassers) now in occupation shall be ejected.

b) In the event of the migrant not returning such lands shall not be reallocated to third parties before the 31st March, 1951.

c) Where according to these arrangements, the entire holding, along with the homestead, cannot be restored to the migrant, he shall be provided with alternative accommodation.

d) In all such cases the over-riding consideration should be the restoration of all the immovable property of the migrant to him at the earliest possible date.

2. As regards lands under the Aman crop it shall be open to the migrants to return at any time after the 15th of January 1951 and before the 31st March, 1951, when such lands shall be restored to him on return.

3. Vacant homesteads and lands on which no crops have so far been grown shall not be allotted to third parties. It shall be open to the migrant owner or migrant tenant or occupier to return and occupy such lands and houses at any time before 31st March, 1951, and the Provincial/State Government shall assist him in obtaining possession of such lands and houses immediately on return.

V. Jurisdiction of Trust Committees:

With regard to the difference of opinion which has been arisen between East Bengal and West Bengal as to whether the Trust Committees under Clause (VI), Section B of the Agreement, could assume management of the property of a migrant who applies in writing asking for such arrangement without formally declaring his intention not to return, it was decided that the two central Ministers will give their final decision in the matter on return to Calcutta.

VI. Customs:

1. It was agreed that Customs Officers on both sides should be asked to give liberal interpretation to the term ‘migrant’ and that elaborate examination of a traveler to ascertain whether he is a migrant or not should be avoided.

2. It was agreed that it should be impressed upon the Customs authorities on both sides of the border that ‘certificate of status’ was not necessary in order to enable a migrant to bring his personal jewellery.
3. It was agreed that the question of the detention of cattle at beanpole and other border points in East Bengal should receive the highest priority of consideration at the next Chief Secretaries' Conference.

4. It was also agreed that the procedure for the speedy return of articles seized by Customs before the Agreement should be resolved at the next Chief Secretaries' Conference. In the meantime the time limit of three months after which seized articles are due to be sold by auction should be extended.

VII. Displaced Industrial Labour:

The Governments of West Bengal, East Bengal and Assam agree to persuade employers of industrial labour and other private employers to reinstate returning migrants in their old jobs.

VIII. Publication of figures of migration between West Bengal and East Bengal:

It was decided that only agreed figures of migrant traffic at checking stations in East Bengal and West Bengal should in future be published. The mechanism necessary for obtaining such figures should be worked out at the next Chief Secretaries' Conference.

IX. District Minorities Boards:

1. In view of the fact that some members of District Minorities Boards had migrated to the other country it was agreed that district Minorities Boards in either country should be reconstituted immediately, wherever necessary.

2. It is understood that rules relating to the grant of transport facilities and traveling allowances to members of Minorities Boards in respect of journeys authorized by the Boards already exist. These rules should be brought to the notice of the members of the boards by the district Officers.

3. It was agreed that Sub-Divisional Minorities Boards should be established both in East Bengal and in West Bengal and Assam.

X. Publicity and Propaganda:

1. It was agreed that pamphlets and literature regarding the Indo-Pakistan Agreement should be circulated more widely particularly in the rural areas.

2. It was agreed that a Communal harmony Week should be celebrated in East Bengal, West Bengal and Assam in the near future.

3. It was also agreed that such propaganda, in order to be effective, should be sustained.

3065. Comments by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru on the Note for the Cabinet Committee on "Displaced Persons from East Bengal" prepared by the Ministry of Rehabilitation.

New Delhi, August 30, 1950.

1. The note of the Rehabilitation Ministry, prepared for the Cabinet Committee, deals with the problem of the displaced persons from East Bengal. The rehabilitation of the displaced persons from Western Pakistan is itself a very big problem. But it is static in the sense that the numbers are not growing. In regard to the D.Ps from East Bengal, however, the situation is fluid and more people are coming through. It is difficult, therefore, to have a precise picture of the future. The future will depend on many factors, some of which are uncertain.

2. Nevertheless, in spite of the influx from East Bengal continuing, there is a certain measure of uniformity about it and we can form some picture, provided nothing unforeseen happens.

3. The First thing to be clear about is the position now, that is, the number of people who have come over from East Bengal and who require looking after. In the first paragraph of the Rehabilitation Ministry’s note, it is stated that fifteen lakhs of D.Ps came over from East Bengal to India up to the end of December 1949. From the 1st January, 1950, it is stated that another 26.5 lakh D.Ps came to India from East Bengal. Separate figures are given of arrivals in West Bengal, Assam, Tripura and Bihar and Orissa. It seems to me that these figures are not correct and certain facts have not been taken into consideration. The figures are more or less correct in so far as they give the number of people who have come over. But, as is stated later in the note, there has been also a considerable movement in the reverse direction. In order, therefore, to get a correct picture of the total number of D.Ps from East Bengal, one has to deduct those of them who have gone back, and that makes a considerable difference. I have had a careful check-up made in the External Affairs Ministry of all the figures of migrations at our disposal I am giving these figures separately.

4. From this it would appear that the total influx of non-Muslims from East Bengal from 1947 onwards to the 6th February, 1950, is estimated to be a little over thirteen lakhs. (The census was taken in December, 1949, and this figure is based on the census. The census include D.Ps in West Bengal, Assam, Bihar, Manipur and Tripura).

5. From 7th February, 1950, up to the date of the Agreement of April 8th, 1950, the net influx was 7,90,365. After the Agreement the net influx has been 8,36,967.

6. This totals up to 29, 34,065. This does not include those who came on foot across the land frontier. Only an approximate estimate of these can be made. The figure given for this is three lakhs. The total thus becomes 32,34,065 (This total has been arrived at after deducting the number of non-Muslims who have returned to East Bengal in 1950, chiefly after the Agreement. The figure is 7,61,603).

7. The figure for the total influx given in the Rehabilitation Committee's note is 41½ lakhs. This should be corrected therefore, the actual figure being 32,34,000 or so.

8. The Total net Muslim exodus from India to East Bengal has been calculated as about 5½ lakhs. Again, this figure is arrived at after deducting the number of Muslims who have come back to India from East Bengal.

9. Balancing the influx in and exodus from India in so far as East Pakistan is concerned, the net influx into India since the Partition (both Hindus and Muslims included) is thus about 26,84,000.

10. In understanding the present position, we see that since the Agreement the net influx into India from East Bengal of non-Muslims has been 8,36,967. The net exodus of Muslims from India to East Bengal after the Agreement has been 4,21,908. This means that taking Hindus and Muslims together, the net influx into India from East Pakistan has been 3,81,092.

11. Again, examining recent figures of migrations for the last thirteen days from the 14th August to 26th August, we get the following figures:

   Hindu exodus from East to West Bengal .... 82,102
   Hindus returning from West to East Bengal .... 73,842

There was thus an excess, during these thirteen days, of 8,260 Hindus coming to West Bengal. This means roughly an excess of 650 a day.

12. During the same period of thirteen days, Muslims coming from East Bengal to West Bengal number 35,184, and Muslims going in the reverse direction number 27,798. This gives an excess of 7,386 Muslims coming to India. This works out at the rate of about 560 a day.

13. Looking at the figures of migrations of the Hindus, it appears that this excess of those coming to India from East Bengal is greatly lessening. The figures on both sides, that is, those coming and those going are still large. A check up was recently made of these people and it was found that a considerable number of them were not migrants in the real sense of the word, but were ordinary passengers or smugglers. This, no doubt, applies to the Muslim figures also. We are trying to get more exact figures and have made arrangement of proper statistics to be obtained. But the fact has to be borne in mind that the figures we give are of total passengers and not of displaced persons only.

14. When, however, we deduct the number of those going back to East Bengal from the number of those coming from East Bengal, this normal factor of non-migrant passengers does not make much difference as it is common to both sides.

15. As a result of the examination of these figures, more especially of the Hindu exodus from East Bengal to West Bengal, etc., it appear that the problem of future migration is not quite so big as we had feared. Even if the present rate continues, it means about 650 a day net excess, that is, about 20,000 a month. It is legitimate to assume that this figure will gradually go down. Therefore, the forecast made in paragraph 2 of the Rehabilitation Committee's note about the future exodus is exaggerated.

16. All this means that we should have careful statistics and only then can we have a true picture of the state of affairs in regard to these migrations, and can plan accordingly.

3066. Letter from Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru to Pakistan Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan.

New Delhi, September 12, 1950.

My dear Nawabzada,

I am writing to you about the situation in the two Bengals. I have had a number of reports from the Central Minister, Shri C.C. Biswas, as well as from our Chief Minister in West Bengal. They have pointed out a number of difficulties which are coming in their way and more particularly in the way of the Central Ministers.

As you know, the two Central Ministers have been undertaking joint tours in the affected areas of East Bengal, West Bengal and Assam, and I believe that these tours have done some good. The real difficulty that arises is in regard to the implementation of the India - Pakistan Agreement and in giving relief in individual cases which come within scope of that Agreement. Our Central Minister tells me that he has drawn attention to many such cases where relief is, according to him, necessary, but no result follows. Normally he sends these cases to Dr.
Malik who no doubt, forwards them to his Provincial Government.

Unfortunately, Dr. Malik is not always available for joint consultation, which are so necessary. Apparently, he has no office at Dacca such as our Minister has at Calcutta and is frequently away at Karachi. Another major difficulty appears to be that in East Bengal the provincial minority commission and the district minority boards do not appear to be functioning satisfactorily or some time at all. It is of the essence of the machinery devised for the implementation of the Agreement that these commissions and board should function satisfactorily. I hope you will kindly look into this matter.

In terms of the Agreement, any joint recommendation of the two Central Ministers should be normally accepted by the government concerned. I think that the two Central Ministers should make somewhat larger use of these powers and the Provincial Government concerned should give effect to their recommendations. This would lead to quicker results. Of course, such recommendations will normally be in regard to important matters or cases.

Apart from this each Central Minister would communicate with his own Government, but where information is required or some enquiry suggested, a Central Minister might suggest this to the provincial Government of the other State. I make this suggestion so as to make the machinery more speedy in its work and in cases the two Central Ministers are not together at the time.

I want to make it clear that I do not envisage that the two central ministers should lose themselves in a morass of individual cases. If they do so they would be overwhelmed by this and might be able to give less time to certain other general and more important matters. Normally speaking, the individual cases should be dealt with by the provincial minority commissions and the district minority boards. My difficulty is that apparently such commissions and such boards are not functioning properly in East Bengal.

Our Central Minister, Shri C.C. Biswas, has sent me a copy of a letter he has addressed to Dr. Malik. In this he has drawn attention to a number of steps that he considers the East Bengal Government should take. As you know, Bakarganj was the worst affected district in East Bengal. Though there is some improvement, the conditions there still appear to be bad. I must confess to you that I am distressed at receiving daily reports not only about Bakarganj but about other districts of East Bengal giving instances of widespread lawlessness, dacoities, molestation of women, etc. Our Central Minister suggests that the Government of East Bengal might adopt a more liberal policy for the relief of those who have suffered during the disturbances. He found, in the course of the joint tour, acute distress among the Hindus who have stayed on in the affected areas. He has suggested, therefore, that grants and loans might be given to people for rebuilding houses and godowns or for setting up work. Also some maintenance grant until the harvest and accommodation in suitable camps or homes for unattached women and children, old persons and invalids.

A relief and rehabilitation organization is now being set up in the Bakarganj District, but according to Mr. Biswas they have very little resources at their disposal and hence the relief given is totally insufficient as well as late.

Any improvement of the law and order situation in Bakarganj will go a long way towards restoring confidence. If people who have taken part in any lawless activities or encouraged them are proceeded against, as envisaged in the Agreement, this would help greatly. Also a re-examination of the cases of members of the minority community who have been detained without trial or whose cases are still pending.

The disturbances in the Bakarganj District were on such a wide scale that there can be little doubt that they were well-planned and organized. If some stringent penal action is taken there against those who organized those disturbances, this will produce a feeling of confidence. Any such action taken, if given due publicity, would bring about an improvement in the situation.

I have ventured to write to you at some length as I know that you are greatly interested in the successful implementation of our Agreement

Yours sincerely,
Jawaharlal Nehru

3067. Note of the Pakistan High Commission in India to the Ministry of External Affairs.

New Delhi, September 13, 1950.

Office of the High Commissioner for Pakistan in India
New Delhi

The Pakistan High Commission in India present their compliments to the Government of India, Ministry of External Affairs, New Delhi, and with reference to their Note No.F.23.4/50-Pak. III, dated the 5th July, 1950, have the honour to communicate the views of the Government of Pakistan regarding the policy adopted by the Government of Assam in respect of expulsion of "undesirable" Muslim immigrants.

Even though no request was received from the Government of Pakistan for a discussion of this problem at Minister level, in view of Clause (3) of Section II of the Indo-Pakistan Agreement of December, 1948 read with the assurances contained in para 3 of Section III of the Calcutta Agreement of April, 1948, which the former Agreement did not specifically abrogate, it was, in the opinion of the Government of Pakistan, incumbent upon the Government of India to consult the Government of Pakistan before legislation was passed empowering the Government of Assam to expel Muslim immigrants from the State.
