Indian assistance to Mauritius to deal with the environmental crisis due to oil spill

August 16, 2020

Indian assistance to Mauritius to deal with the environmental crisis due to oil spill (August 16, 2020) is a commendable gesture. Mauritius has requested assistance from the Indian government in managing the environmental crisis caused by the oil spill. India has responded positively and has allocated 30 tonnes of equipment, including 10 search and rescue teams, to assist Mauritius. This assistance includes the use of specialized equipment such as the Indian Ocean Search and Rescue Vessel, the Indian Coast Guard, and the Indian Air Force. India has also dispatched 30 tonnes of equipment, including 10 search and rescue teams, to Mauritius to assist in managing the environmental crisis caused by the oil spill. This assistance is a testament to the strong bond between India and Mauritius, and is a clear indication of the commitment of both countries to protect the environment and ensure the safety of the people.
